In England it is the "eleven-plus", and parents bribe their children to get through with promises of bicycles and fashion sets.

In France it is called the "Entree en Sixieme" — entrance for the sixth class." "Bribe him to pass?" cried a French parent, but "He'd soon hear from me if he didn't."

Other countries give different names to the certificate, the test, the examination, whatever it may be, that defines the transition from primary to secondary education, and which for the most part decides for ever the subsequent schooling of the child, whether academic, technical or general lines.

Every nation knows that this break; but in two of the biggest countries of the world, the break is not quite so clear. In the United States and the Soviet Union, the passage from primary to secondary schooling is either automatic or so easy that in neither case is there any particular distortion of the syllabus or any particular stress put on the final examination.

Elsewhere, however, difficulties confront the eleven-year-old. Educationalists have long complained of technical and general education, and the overwhelming reasons of class, prestige or opportunity, the parents' eyes are fixed on the academic education of grammar schools and lycees that leads to the universities and the liberal professions. And in most countries, whether for historical or economic reasons, it boils down to the same thing, too many children are pushed too fast places. Hence elimination, selection, competition, all at the tender age of eleven-plus.

In all these countries the problem of the general education of the child seen his carefully designed syllabuses pulled about to shape by the coaching and preparation for the important exam, which inevitably takes precedence over the last primary school year. The danger is that the concentration on "getting them through," to the detriment of the school program and the general education of the child itself. The parents are faced with anxiety for their child's whole educational future should not be permanently compromised as a result of one single examination. "I've had the eleven-plus," a mother assigned the mother of a large family; and the child, as a survey covering Austria, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Sweden and Denmark confirms, suffers weeks of emotional tension.

Criticisms of the selection examination come not only from parents, but also from educationalists. A report on the whole subject has been presented to Unesco by J. Maisuli, of the French Ministry of Education, in preparation for the meeting of the International Advisory Committee on the School Curriculum, convened by Unesco in Paris during September to discuss the whole question. His report, Mr. Pecl, who points out that, except to the few for which they are employed, preliminary practice in the controversial intelligence tests used in England, from 5 to 7 points in the I.Q. results the cites a French expert, M. Cal, as declaring that chance and luck play too great a part in deciding the future of all but the obviously unfit; he protests that the intensive preparation for the lion lines of precis-writing demanded of the French child tends to dry up its imagination — a child after passing the examination has learnt to exclaim with relief: "At last we can really tell stories"; and he points out that examiners have failed the examination and pass to secondary education a year or a year later frequently do as well or better than the others.

Some two years ago a small girl in a Swedish town went quietly after her examination and sat down to write a highly critical and highly intelligent report of her examiner, noting his lack of politeness, his hesitation, and so forth. When, later, she was failed for a "low standard of intelligence," her outraged parents released this report to the press, with the consequent storm. The whole of Australia, the whole of England, laughed; laughed with delight and more than a touch of malice.

Which is why, in France, there is a movement in favor of the "tronc commun" — "the common stream," a plan to defer any selection of children until thirteen-plus. In England a group of educationalists advocating "more comprehensive schools", and in Paris, this September, a conference of educationalists devoted to all aspects of this question.

Deplore Trend In Funerals

Windsor Star

A report which deplores the extravagance of funerals has been approved by the General Assembly of the United Church and referred to ministers, congregations and sessions for study. The report was prepared by the Commission on Christian Faith.

Many clergymen of various denominations have been perturbed about the trend in funerals. The money spent on floral tributes, on magnificent caskets and other arrangements often amounts to a very large sum. And, for poor people, it often is a very heavy financial burden.

The report above mentioned alludes to the "excessive expenditures on elaborate caskets, vaults and headstones." It also suggests some of the rituals now surrounding death are not in the simple Christians spirit.

Many laymen, as well as the clergy, have also been perturbed, or even more seriously disturbed by many modern funerals. When a member of the family dies, its mourning members naturally want a decent, fitting funeral, in their sorrow they are in no mood to quibble over expenditures. They frequently commit extravagances and over-arrangements which, in a natural frame of mind, they would resist.

The amount artificial environment can alter the fact of death, is a sad, simple fact. It should be treated with decency and dignity, it need not be surrounded by fussy expensive trappings and ritualistic arrangements. Usually the grieving relatives do not wish these and the kin find themselves with heavy bills which, in large part, were unnecessary.

Up Snicket, Down Ginnel

Victoria Times

According to report, Dr. Ranjee Shahani Quirk, a Reader in English at Durham University, has informed 200 foreign students attending summer sessions that there are few, if any, substantial differences in pronunciation between English and English English.

Were this true, it would be disturbing news to Canadians. Canada would be out of one of its big jobs if it were no longer necessary for Canadians to interpret Britain to the United States and vice versa.

We refuse to accept the suggestion. And we will continue to accept it as long as England continues Yorkshiremen who say ginnel and with some merit on the basis of original Anglo-Saxon — the superior merit of which allow as English.

In certain parts of Yorkshire an outdoor passageway running between the front and back of two close buildings is called a "ginnel" (phonetic spelling). Or it may be called a "snicket" (phonetic spelling again).

But the nouns are not interchangeable. You can't run up a snicket. If the direction is reversed, you run down a ginnel.

When children in Flatbush understand this, automatically and without explanation, Brooklyn Quirk may claim some authority. Until then, Canadians must preserve their traditional roles as interpreters — preferably interpreters who know the difference

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO
October 9th., 1936

Mr. Donald Baxter of Bloomfield has been appointed a member of the Board of Governors of Albert College to succeed the late A. E. Calnan, Picton. He will be the youngest member on the Board.

Mr. Edgar D. Hicks of Sandercock is visiting his brother, Mr. Frank Hicks, Plainfield, after an absence of thirteen years. For twenty five years he has been engaged in wheat farming in the West.

Some interesting items about the Bonnie Rose Tea Room, which stood upon the site now occupied by Hotel Quinte was the finest hotel between Toronto and Montreal. It was burned on October 9th., 1836. It was the second hotel on the same site to be destroyed by fire. The first hotel was destroyed in 1854. Both buildings were owned by Mr. William Dafoe, a large property owner residing here. From one fire copy at this time in 1886 we quote the following incidents which were reported a few days after the fire:

Miss Irwin, milliner with the Reynolds firm of Brignall and Thompson, escaped from her room with few clothes, her trunks were lowered from a window; Miss Keith of Munro's Store lost all her property except that which was in a trunk and which was saved by Joseph D. Clarke of the firm of Walbridge and Clarke, grocers. Lost goods to the value of $200.; A traveller gave a man named Kerr $10. to go up a ladder and get his vest which he had left in his room. The man succeeded and the traveller was happy to get the vest as in it's pocket was $90.00. Col. Strong, Col. Sirois, United States Consul-Jones, escaped with little clothing; the hotel cook, Maggie Bennett, lost $200.00 in cash which she had received from John Dow, a carpenter, who occupied a room in the rear. Lost a fine set of tools; Mr. Dan Houston insured his bar room fixtures for $2300.00 last Thursday and the policy was delivered to him early the morning of the fire. Mr. S. R. Balkwill, the proprietor, lost $14,000.00 insurance on furniture, etc.

Lieut. Col. J. Lyons Biggar of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, was a visitor here yesterday.

The planking in the flooring of the bay bridge was discovered to be on fire near the centre span yesterday morning. The local fire brigade attended to the scene but the fire was extinguished without their aid.

Mr. Frank Cook of Havelock spent yesterday here with Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Anderson.

Miss Jessie McKenna has returned to Kingston to resume her studies at Queen's University.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Warham have returned home from Toronto where they visited friends.

From our file copy at this time in 1896: Mr. Charles Lafferty, Avondale, Trent Road, sowed one acre and a quarter of land with two bushels and a peck of oats and harvested 85 bushels by measure and 94 bushels by weight.

The Rev. W. Bertal Heeney, a former rector of Trinity church here, has resigned as rector of St. George's Church, Newport, Rhode Island, and will go to Barrie, Ontario, as Vicar of Holy Trinity Church.

Mr. Robert Mathison, who has been superintendent of the Bell and D. Institute, Trent Road here, for the past twenty seven years, has resigned to accept the position of Supreme Secretary of the Independent Order of Foresters in Toronto. He and his family will be greatly missed by many friends.

Mrs. F. Draycott, Bridge Front Street, has returned home from Montreal where she has visited her daughter, Mrs. Robert Bell.

The Rev. A. H. Lord formerly of Wellington and at present the rector of St. Simon's Church in Sault Ste Marie, Mich., has been made an Archdeacon by the Bishop of the diocese in which his parish is situated. Archdeacon the Ven. Allan Lord, is a son-in-law of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Ruttan of Wellington.

Owing to the wet weather the attendance at the Robbin Mills fair was very small last Saturday; the gate receipts amounted to only $17.25.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INFLUENCE

Anyone who circulates at all gives out influence—and often to those who may never acknowledge it even to themselves. And by the fact! Our influence is like the air we breathe, keeping us alive and in health while we pay no attention so long as we feel right.

Our influence may be as subtle as the utterance of a single word. It is as powerful as the force that attracts and influences, and without personality are created the thoughts and words that we send out. All persons with whom we have to do, influence us, as we influence them. All about us are influences.

Nature and its miraculous wonders influence us—and many to such an extent that they devote their lives to its study. No one can read the books of W. H. Hudson, John Muir, Thoreau, William Henry Davies, Burroughs, Fabre, Seton, Grey Owl, Roberts, Ernest Thompson, Charles G. D. Roberts, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Jack London, Kipling, Stevenson, Barrie, Dickens, Thackeray, Hardy, Bennett, Galsworthy, Wells, Conrad, Shaw, Lawrence, Maugham, Cronin, Priestley, Bromfield, Steinbeck, Hemingway, Wilder, Lewis, Sinclair, Cather, Buck, Wharton, Ferber, Sandburg, Lindbergh, Byrd, Shirer, Churchill, Eisenhower, Montgomery, Stalin, Truman, Roosevelt, Lincoln, Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Emerson, Thoreau, Whitman, Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Holmes, Poe, Hawthorne, Twain, Harte, Irving, Cooper, Howells, Tarkington, Lardner, Benchley, Leacock, Nash, Ogden, Parker

Doug Smith Turns Childhood Flare for Hobby Into Business

Disclosure that adults are more interested than youngsters in do-it-yourself toy construction and the extraordinary performance of model aeroplanes, was a revelation of a visit to the Doug Hobby Shop, 338 Pinnacle St.

Owner Doug Smith, who turned a childhood flair for this hobby into a business, explained that youngsters go for simpler models while adults seek a sterner challenge in the more complicated multi-piece designs—construction of which may involve the exact placement of over a thousand parts.

Somewhat reluctantly Doug admitted that adults are more likely to buy the top model electric trains for themselves than for children.

Casual sale of model equipment as an original member of the Bay of Quinte Aero Modellers encouraged Doug to start a model retail outlet in the basement of his Pine Street home, followed by establishment of the only store in Belleville devoted exclusively to hobbies. "The growing boom in assembling toy cars, boats, trains and aircraft," he explains, "is inspired by a search for a creative outlet, fun and recreation."

REQUIRE NO TOOLS

"People have more time for creative expression and more people have the money to buy the equipment which makes this expression possible. The advantage of these prefabricated plastic and balsa wood toys is that they require no tools or specialized knowledge."

"While the original design and construction of sixworthy flying craft require more than average designing ability, prefabricated designs of proven performance bring the satisfaction of successful completion within the reach of everybody."

A glance through the shop shelves confirmed Doug's statement. Here was a wide range of models extending from simple planes, cars and boats, comprised of a few segments quite suitable for a six-year-old to cut his teeth on to exact duplicates of the intricern superliners of air, sea and land demanding patience and hundreds of reading and advanced constructive skill.

"Quite aside from fun and creative satisfaction people of all ages get in progressing from simple to complex models, Doug observed "this construction hobby develops patience, accuracy, and attention of detail which is excellent training for draftsmen, engineers, designers and students of other professions."

The performance of today's toy flying models was the next source of amazement. Miniature piston or jet engines, which can be enfolded in the hand, develop up to four horsepower at 14,000 rpm giving up to 18 miles per hour and an estimated altitude of 1,000 feet. Planes are flight controlled by either fine hand-operated converting wires or by radio transmitted impulse making possible most of the manoeuvres of pilot - operated aircraft.

Model planes are now reaching such size and speed that the possibility of crashing into onlookers with serious results is growing, Doug, who is presently constructing a new model with a fifteen foot wing spread, is covered with a $10,000 insurance policy against mishap.

BARELY MISSED SPECTATOR

Although he has never seen anybody injured in a model plane accident, Doug admits he came too close to comfort when he misdirected his plane in an attempt to shoot the trailer off an opponent in a "dog fight" and the crashing engine barely missed a spectator.

Strangely enough, most injuries plane flying is done by adults. Doug, who took second place at the Model Aeroplane Contest at Waterdown and represented Belleville at the Radio Control Meet at Syracuse, reports that all entrants were over 21 years of age.

Other items of interest to people with a collective or creative bent are stamps, leather, metal and flower craft and copper enamelling. Interest in all these activities has been growing with the expansion of the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club.

Doug's Hobby Shop is a family affair, several other members who are all strong believers in private enterprise.

Doug's mother, Mrs. Patty Smith, who sold a flourishing summer resort at Picton, takes care of the shop in the morning; Doug's wife, Marguerite, is on duty in the afternoons and Doug takes over at lunch hour and in the evenings after his regular day's work as a draftsman for Stephens-Adamson has been completed.

The building is shared by his brother Sam Smith who operates his own electrical contracting business.

In his comparatively short 30 years, Doug has seen a personal hobby and an idea blossom into a successful private enterprise.

It was a happy thought, he admits.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

A very well attended L. of L. meeting was held in Christ Church parish hall. Among those present were President R. D. Arnott, Reg. Commissioner A. S. Lewis, Field Commissioner A. L. Jackson, D.C., Oliver Owen, A.D.C., T. L. Boyle, D.S.M., H. Smith, D.C.M., J.Townsend and two new members Dr. G. R. Craig and Mr. Geo. McIntosh.

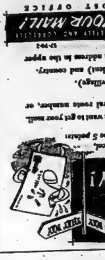
We are sorry to learn that Mr. Dan Stewart will be unable to carry out his duties owing to sickness. D.S.M. Harry Smith will act for him. S.M., T. Legacy of Avondale is also in hospital. The L.A., express their sympathy for these gentlemen and hope they will be back with us soon.

With Apple Day almost here, the Scouts and Cubs are busy preparing for the biggest day yet. Everybody is asked to support this important project which keeps nearly 1,000 Belleville Scouts and Cubs busy and useful. This is the only day that Scouts appeal — Please show them their efforts are appreciated.

Scouter Don Hickson is welcomed in Belleville. He intends to form a Rover Crew in Christ Church group. We wish him every success.

A Regional Training Course is being set up for leaders.

Frank Clarke is the representative for the 8th group and Adam Stalker for the 2nd.



Keep Wednesday, October 24th in mind, the annual meeting — you are expected to be there.

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH W.A.

The Woman's Association of Tabernacle United church held its meeting, Tuesday evening in the church parlors, with 18 members and two visitors in attendance.

The president, Mrs. R. Johnston, opened the meeting with a Thanksgiving poem.

During the business period the group voted to have a Christmas dinner for members to be held December 13 in the church Sunday school room.

Mrs. Roy Brickman reminded all the the all-church bazaar will take place early in December and asked for the co-operation of each church member.

Group one convener, Mrs. R. Lockyer was in charge of the devotional period program. Scripture reading from Thessalonians 5:15-25 was read by Mrs. M. Buck and a meditation and "Prayer" followed.

Mrs. Douglas Shaw favored with a solo, "I'll Walk With God" which was enjoyed by all.

The guest speaker, Mrs. J. Marsh, president of the Hastings, Prince Edward Women's Association, was introduced by Miss Ethel Horton, who gave some interesting thoughts on woman's part in church work.

Religion must be made attractive to children very early in life, such as through visual education —colorful illustrative pictures. A saint is a person that the light shines through. A Christian must have an inner faith from which to draw from in times of trouble and trial. The church is a refuge for sinners The Woman's Association across Canada has done much in the improvements and upkeep of parsonages and manses. Members must work towards world peace. One's influence is far reaching—people can never know how much they may be responsible for—so we sure to start the day right. The difference between Christianity and Communism, is that a Christian is a man of two worlds. In Communism the belief is that death is the end of life. One should use his influence wisely.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. J. Marsh for her inspiring address and Mrs. D. Shaw for her much enjoyed solo.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

Weddings

CULLIGAN—HUGHES

A wedding of interest to Marmora district residents, took place in Holy Rosary church, Toronto, when Marjorie Rosalie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Hughes of Toronto, formerly of Marmora, became the bride of Leo Courtney Culligan, son of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Courtney Culligan of Minneapolis, Minn.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. D. J. Forestall, assisted by the Rev. M. C. Martin.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace over tulle illusion and satin. The bouffant skirt, which ended in a chapel train, was topped by a bodice that had a small pointed collar and lily-point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley.

Her maid of honor was her sister, Barbara Ann Hughes and the bridesmaids were Janet Hughes, also a sister, and the bridegroom's three sisters, Sheila, Frances and Kathryn Culligan.

The maid of honor wore a ballerina-length gown of yellow taffeta and nylon with headdress of yellow sequins. The bridesmaids were similar dresses in aqua with gold braided Juliet caps. All carried autumn flowers in bronze and gold.

The groomsman was Kevin Culligan, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Bernard W. Hughes, Jr., Laurence Culligan, John Paul Kennedy and John Murray.

At the reception held in Casa Loma, the bride's mother wore a gown of powder blue lace and silk organza, matching hat and corsage of purple orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore purple French crepe with matching accessories.

Those attending from Marmora district were, Mrs. Laughlin Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. James Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Buskard of Deloro; Mrs. John Clairmont and daughter, Patricia; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pearce of Marmora.

These days most people work under pressure, worry over many things. This strain on body and brain makes physical labour easier to have—harder to regain. Today's home living, lowered resistance to overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backaches, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy, headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 33

NEW KNITS

By VERA WINSTON

The knitted sheath is taking over for early fall and many of the smartest take on costume airs with their own jackets, or smarter yet, their own "blouson" jacket. This one has a leather belt over which it is slightly bloused to show it is the latest. The jacket is elasticized at the bottom to fall at will and like the dress has rich knit detail. You can't go wrong choosing this one for casual town wear, and certainly for plenty of use in the suburbs or country.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"AND HE WHO GIVES A CHILD A HOME"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column just after Christmas last year, when you were suggesting many ways of using our Christmas cards to help happiness to sick children at home or in hospitals (do you remember the column I mean?) you quoted, in the last sentence of your column, two lines that made a most deep impression on me. The idea of the words was that the person who in kind to a child makes bells ring in the street of Heaven. If you recall the lines I mean, would you, please, print them for me in your column? My husband and I have been considering for some time adopting a baby (unfortunately we cannot have one of our own), and the idea of the lines you quoted touched us so very, very much that finally we persuaded each other that we should really apply for an adoption of a baby. There are no words adequate to thank you for the wonderful impulse you gave us, and our deepest thanks again and always if you are able to recall the two lines you quoted. —Mary C.

With all my heart I thank you for your shining and wonderful words. I am deeply touched by your good deed and I am more grateful than I can possibly express for the inspiration you and your husband got from the two lines I quoted. And the amazing part is that in the other two lines of the four-lines verse is the perfect expression of the spiritual reward of adopting a child: The goodness of your hearts and spirits must have been reaching for just such an inspiration.

The poem is by John Masefield, and I have always cherished it in my poetry-treasures:

"He who gives a child a treat
Makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street.

And he who gives a child a home
Builds palaces in Kingdom Come."

(Every good wish to you and to your husband and to the child who will come to you as a dear and codearing messenger of light and happiness and sweet companionship.)

WEDDING PROCEDURE FOLLOWS TRADITION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is today's procedure about paying for the wedding? That is, are the bride's parents still expected to pay for the whole affair, or is it proper to split the wedding-expense bill between the bride's parents and the groom's parents?

A.M.

Today's rule is still that, is the financial responsibility of the bride's parents to pay the expenses of the wedding. That is the custom that is accepted by the fine and significant tradition that governs wedding procedure. The bride's parents issue the invitations, are the hosts of the wedding . . . and therefore it is they who pay the expenses. On the other hand, the groom's parents are the guests of honor of the wedding . . . and naturally guests of honor should not pay, or be expected to pay, any part of the expenses of the occasion.

proper time, and he'll show you in a very definite way that he is a changed boy and will be a good citizen for the rest of his life.

In the meantime, it will be better for you to do as your mother says (instead of complicating everything by opposing her.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR TROUBLE?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm the mother of six children and I think I'm happy with my husband. But sometimes he shows interest in other women. So I met a nice man I like very much. He doesn't know I like him. I've tried to get him out of my mind, but sometimes it's impossible. I hear songs that remind me of him. When I don't see him, I drive up the place where he works and try and get him to come to my house, but he never wants to come.

The only way I'll ever know if he cares is if he kisses me. Many times he has started to, but someone always comes along.

I don't know what to do. I want to be with this man, yet I don't want to give up my home and my children. Should I forget him, or tell him I love him and give up my marriage? — B.E.

Dear B.E.:

What's the matter with you anyhow? Have you no sense in your head whatever?

Here is a man who hasn't shown the slightest interest in you, so far as I can see, and you talk about giving up your home and children for him.

You certainly are letting your imagination run recklessly away with you, and all I can say is that you had better sign all this nonsense short, and instead of wasting your time daydreaming over a wholly imaginary romance, put your mind on being the proper kind of mother for your six children.

The way you're carrying on now will lead you to just one thing: Trouble—and plenty of it.

BETTER DO AS YOUR MOTHER SAYS AT THIS TIME

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 15 years old and Danny is 18.

He's in a reformatory because he and another boy stole a car. The other boy was sent to prison for over five years.

I promised Danny I'd wait for him, because I know he loves me and he has promised never to get into any trouble again. He plans to get a job when he comes out. Then, when I'm of age, we're going to get married.

My problem is that my mother won't even let me mention his name and this hurts me very much. I want her to like Danny, and I tell her that everybody makes mistakes. I admit that Danny's mistake was more serious than some, but he knows he was wrong and is sorry.

What can I do? — M.B.

Dear M.B.:

It's a fine thing for you to want to remain a friend of Danny's and help him by standing by him.

But just the same, I think that, right now, you had better respect your mother's wishes.

After all, at 15, you can't possibly know, even though you think you can, how you're going to feel about this boy several years from now. The only way for you to find out is for you to live a normal teenage life with friends of your own age—which means having boy friends as well as girl friends—instead of promising either Danny or any other boy that you'll wait for him and marry him later on.

After Danny has come out of the reformatory and shows his friends whether he really meant it when he said he wouldn't get into trouble again, it will be time enough for you to think of getting serious about him—in case you still want to. If he really cares anything about you, he'll be sure to look you up and let you know it at the

Colorful Creation

By ALICE ALDEN

Not every late afternoon and evening fashion is slinky, sirenish. Not when there are such handsome dresses as this very new cocktail dress, designed by Branell. A striking creation it is, the fabric is a rich silk satin in vibrant Kelly green—perfect for the right type and coloring. Self folds at the Empire waist, a skirt of easy fullness, and a high neckline are other attractive details of this perfectly poised dress.

Smorgasbord

By Mary Moore

Last week's Smorgasbord menu for Ahrem contained some dishes that she and you will want recipes for. Don't try to pickle herring. Buy it in jars for it is quite economical and good.

PICKLED EGGS

Hard-cook 12 eggs by starting them in cold water to cover and simmering 30 minutes, covered. Drain and chill in cold water and remove shells.[1] Boil together 4 cups white wine vinegar, 1 teaspoon each dry mustard, salt and pepper. Let cool a little then pour into glass jar. Drop in shelled eggs. Cover and let stand in refrigerator at least 10 days before serving. If desired cloves may be added to vinegar and for variety some green vegetable coloring.

MACARONI GARDEN SALAD

To serve 12 you will need 2 lbs. tiny macaroni shells or bows, 2 green peppers, 1 medium bunch celery, 12 radishes, 2 medium-sized mild onions, 2 to 2 1-4 cups mayonnaise, about 20 ripe or green stuffed olives, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper. Cook the macaroni shells or bows in a very large amount of salted water until tender, then drain well and chill. Slice or shred all of the vegetables and gently stir into the macaroni with the dressing and seasonings. This is lovely in a lettuce-lined bowl garnished with tomato wedges and sliced stuffed olives, or as a filling for scooped out tomatoes.

JELLIED TONGUE

Scrub well a fresh or corned ox tongue, cover with cold water, add 1 large onion sliced, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 2 bay leaves, cover and simmer 2 1-2 hours, being sure tongue is covered with water throughout. Remove from water, skin, trim root end neatly. Curve into a round mold large enough to hold it. Strain liquor. Measure 4 cups. Soak 2 1-2 tablespoons gelatin in 1 cup of it which must be cold, then dissolve the gelatin by stirring over hot water. Add to remaining liquor and pour over tongue to cover it. Chill until hard. Note: Vinegar may be substituted for some of the water on tongue, but not more than 1 cup.

WHOLE SALMON FOR CENTERPIECE

I suggested a whole baked salmon in the smorgasbord menu last week, but if you would care to boil it in parchment paper it would be equally good. It could be served cold at the centre of the table, attractively garnished with a piping of mayonnaise, studded with capers and bits of pimiento, and a border of lemon and tomato wedges and parsley.

CUCUMBER SAUCE

Often served on fish, or cold vegetables or with hot roast beef. Whip 1 cup sour (commercial) cream and into it fold 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne pepper, and 1 medium cucumber, which has been pared, chopped finely, and drained. When in serving dish sprinkle with paprika. Note: If Ahrem requires more details there is still time to write.

Young Liberals Urged to Work To Fulfill Laurier's Prophecy

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner has urged young Liberals to work toward fulfilling the prophecy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that some day Canada will have a population of 60,000,000, one half of it west of the Great Lakes.

The Liberal party in the 20th century had built Canada from a country of 5,000,000 people to one of 15,000,000, he said Saturday night at the closing dinner of the national convention of the Young Liberal Federation.

It now was for the rising generation to push the population figure to Laurier's "dream" of 60,000,000 by encouraging individuals and corporations to fully develop Canada's resources and by ensuring the masses receive a fair share of the national income.

As the trans-continental railways, radio communication and airlines contributed to building Canada, so will the natural gas pipe line, Mr. Gardiner said. Still required were such projects as the development of power in the Maritimes, the South Saskatchewan River dam for water and power and Columbia River power development in B.C.

KEEP IT NORTH

On the gas pipe line, the agriculture minister said it was just as important to keep it north of the Canada-United States boundary as were the railways.

Routing the line through the U.S would have left Canada a sparsely settled hinterland, he added. Where the gas went the population would have followed.

Saturday, delegates to the convention defeated by five-to-one margin a proposal approving the Trans-Canada pipeline legislation but regretting methods used by the federal government to secure its passage in Parliament.

Fifteen delegates voted to express some disapproval of the government's procedures and recommended that the senior Liberals in future exercise care in selection of methods in passing controversial legislation.

WON'T FINISH

In another pipeline mention Saturday, Justice Minister Garson said "it looks as if" the Alberta-Winnipeg section won't be completed this year.

He added: "But that, as we all know, is due to a steel strike in the United States which was not foreseen at the time that we were piloting the pipeline bill through Parliament."

Under the contract between the government and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., the company must complete the 575-mile Alberta-Winnipeg section by Dec. 31, 1956, and repay its $80,000,000 government loan by April 2, 1957, plus five per cent interest.

However an escape clause in the contract sets out conditions under which the prairie leg would not have to be finished this year and the contract still be valid. Officials have said the recent U.S. steel strike can be considered one of these conditions.

Accused Called Victims of Riots

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters)—A defence lawyer pointed today at nine Poles accused of taking part in the Poznan riots last June 28 and declared: "They too are victims of this day."

"There were not only the dead and the wounded," he said. "The men before this and other courts were also victims."

Witold Trojanowski, the lawyer, demanded that the court quash charges against two 20-year-old youths, Stanislaw Kaufmann and Janusz Bieganski, accused of aiding an armed attack on security police headquarters by giving ammunition to others. Both have admitted being in possession of cartridges.

Monday, in the first of the trials arising from the June "bread and freedom" riots, three defendants received unexpectedly mild sentences—ranging from four to 4½ years—for the fatal beating of a security policeman during the disorders.

In another court today, eight policemen testified that they were too surprised to resist when attacked by a band of armed youths on the day of the riots.

Giving evidence at the trial of eight youths aged between 18 and 25 who are accused of attacking police stations, they were unable to identify any as rioters as having taken part in the raid.

TOT BLEEDS, DIES

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A three-year-old boy bled to death Monday when he tripped, broke his dog's glass food bowl and suffered a slashed jugular vein. Roger Allen Harris was dead two minutes later. He had just fed his dog at the family home.

FALL PLOW FERTILIZER PAYS
● Saves time during next spring's rush
● Saves extra handling costs
● Saves winter storage
When you're busy next spring, you may have no time for that extra fertilizer application so many crops need. Seeding may be delayed or your fertility level may be low. Don't rely on planter treatment alone. Many high-producing crops need extra nutrients in addition to fertilizer banded near the seed, and Plow Down fills this need.
C-I-L Plow Down Fertilizer pays all ways!
It increases soil fertility . . . increases crop yields . . . increases profits. Because fertilizer is placed deeper, right down in the moisture zone, plants make deeper roots, resist dry weather better.

Lawyer Operates Movement Much Disliked by Communists

By REINHOLD ENSE

BERLIN (AP) — On a quiet, tree-lined street in West Berlin lives a man who strikes fear into the hearts of East Germany's Communist rulers — through subtle, complicated weapons.

He is Dr. Ghee Friedeaau, a soft-spoken lawyer, and his weapons consist of law and legal justice.

Friedeaau operates through the League of Free Jurists, which he founded and heads. It is one of the world's most original and respected anti-Communist underground movements. It has the backing—both moral and financial —of influential jurists throughout the free world.

Volunteer informants throughout East Germany keep the league advised on the doings of Communist officials. Whenever one of the officials does something that could be considered a crime against humanity or justice, it is recorded in the files of the Free Jurists.

ENOUGH TO CONVICT

The aim is to gather enough evidence so these officials could be convicted on criminal charges, should they ever fall into Western hands.

The organization has become so effective that the Communists have twice attempted to kidnap Friedeaau. They failed, but in 1952 they did succeed in kidnapping Dr. Walter Linse, head of the Free Jurists' economic division.

Ever since the Linse kidnapping, Friedeaau has lived a careful life. His home telephone number is unlisted. He sleeps within reach of a pistol and a police alarm button. An armed guard keeps a constant vigil in front of his home, which stands less than a mile from East German territory.

But Friedeaau dislikes talking about the dangerous aspects of his job. He would rather explain how and why the Free Jurists was organized in 1949.

"I think I got the first ideas for my present job in prison," he says. "The Nazis put me there after the July 20th (1944) attempt on Hitler's life. I had nothing to do with this plot, but I did know some of the people involved.

"While in prison, I learned that the guards and higher officials could be influenced if you forgot about politics and talked to them about legal justice and legal rights."

Friedeaau believes East German Communist officials can be influenced the same way. Therefore his organization concentrates on gathering every available bit of criminal evidence that could be used against the officials.

Snails in Mails Trouble British Post Office

LONDON (AP) — Snails in the mails are giving the British post office trouble, an official admitted today.

The situation was bared through a letter Mrs. Winifred Duggan received from Exeter. One corner of the envelope had been patched, and a tag affixed saying:

"The postmaster much regrets that this packet has been accidentally damaged in the post by snails."

Mrs. Duggan told newspapers the whole thing struck her as suspicious "in view of complaints you hear about the snail-like pace of the post office."

BEDS IN BOXES

The post office official said such complaints had nothing to do with it.

"At this time of the year," he explained, "snails begin to hibernate.

"Apparently letter boxes in some parts of the country are a favorite sheltering place with them, and while waiting for sleep to overcome them, they nibble on envelopes. We are putting a chemical preparation in the boxes which will repel the snails without harming the mails."

Ship Hits Bridge Island Isolated

SITTINGBOURNE, England — (Reuters — More than 35,000 people, the inhabitants of the Isle of Sheppey in the mouth of the Thames, were isolated after a cargo ship knocked out the only bridge to the mainland.

Bread, milk and other vital supplies were carried across to the island by an emergency fleet of small boats.

A Norwegian cargo ship, the 481-ton Mica, Friday rammed the bridge which carries rail and road traffic to and from the coast of Kent. Engineers estimate repairs will take at least five days.

Report Ready In Three Weeks

LONDON (Reuters)—Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannam returned here Friday after completing investigations into the deaths of a number of women at Eastbourne, a fashionable resort on the south coast of Britain.

He started to work on a report Monday and is expected to submit it to Scotland Yard in about three weeks.

It will be studied before being sent to the director of public prosecutions for his opinion whether legal proceedings are warranted.

Hannam went to Eastbourne following a flood of rumors and a gossip about the deaths of a large number of elderly women, rumored to have been killed for their money.

ARMY CORPS MEETINGS

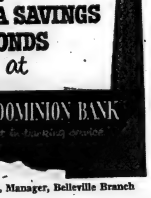
OTTAWA (CP)—Nine corps of the Canadian Army will hold their annual association meetings before the end of the year, Army headquarters said Friday the signal corps meeting will be held Oct. 18-20 at Barriefield, near Kingston.

Little Benny's Notebook

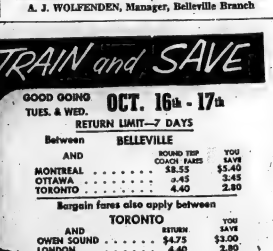
Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sports page, and ma said, William, there's only one word for that sister of Milly Dilly's. She's loathsome, I guess is preferable to the N'th degree, period.

I dont think I care to meet her, pop said, and ma said, The woman needs nothing a sword worth listening to, and yet she seldom or never stops talking. And she has a voice like a cracked parrot, ma said.

On 2nd thoughts, I'm positive I dont care to meet her, pop said, and ma said, Unfortunately I had to ask Milly to bring her over.



Yee gods, why? pop said, and ma said, I was in duty bound, because Milly was so nice to my sister Fanny when Fanny was visiting us. I cant exactly say she wined and dined her, but she had her over for tea afternoon, so I have to return the compliment now that her sister is here, and my, how I dred it. You wont be home, William, so you dont need to worry, ma said.



Good, I've stopped worrying, pop said, Stick some cotton in your ears and have a nice time, he said.

Which just then the telefone rang and ma said, That must be Milly Dilly now. She was suppose to call and tell me just what time to expect them tomorrow.

And she went to the foos and back, saying, Well of all the unmitigated gall. Milly claims there are so many sites she wants to show her sister, she just wont have a minute to spare. That's as much as saying that bringing her over here wouldn't be worth her sister's time, and that makes me furious, ma said.

The result being pop laffed like anything, proving it made him just the opposite.

Three Veterans of Civil War Give Advice on Long Life

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — What keeps a man alive, tough and tickling well beyond three-score and ten?

"Working hard and making friends and keeping them," says John Salling of Slant, Va.

"Regular habits, an outdoor life and plenty of good food," suggested Walter Williams of Franklin, Tex.

William Allen Landry, Crestview, Fla., wasn't quite sure. Perhaps moderation in alcohol helps. But probably it's not simply a question of diet, because "I eat anything—anything I can get to eat."

Salling, 110; Landry, 108, and William, 113 are the three surviving veterans of the U.S. Civil War. They're southerners; the last northern veteran, Albert Woolson, died last August in Duluth, Minn., aged 109.

On scores details of salubrious living the three oldsters agree. Hard work, they feel, has certain medicinal virtues. A vigorous appetite is a blessing; all are, or have been, hearty eaters.

Otherwise, their habits diverge. "Uncle Bill" Landry, for example, has never taken tobacco in any form in his 108 years and looks with disfavor on people who do. But Salling chews tobacco and enjoys an occasional cigar.

A shot now and then? A reporter, putting the question to Landry, noted the old soldier's eyes lit up. "When I can get it," Uncle Bill replied.

Texan Williams still insists on his toddy every morning before breakfast. "Makes a person eat hearty," he explained. "But you don't want to be drinking it all during the day."

Salling, who puts much store by hard work as a health factor, remembers how "many a day I've split 100 or more fence rails out of cedar logs for 10 cents a day and then went home and plowed my land with oxen."

He is still in relatively good shape. He sees well but his hearing is poor—"Can't hear thunder without a hearing aid."

Salling's hair is still black, a phenomenon he attributes to "always wearing a hat and never washing my hair." He eats well and drinks about a half-gallon of milk daily. Breakfast is his main meal: three or four eggs, coffee, "plenty of sausage and fatback and puffed wheat and plenty of bread."

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. George Carlisle recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Langman, and Mr. and Mrs. George Salisbury and family of Camden East.

Several Rawdon and Sidney folk attended a meeting in Belleville in connection with the Federation of Agriculture in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington.

Plans were made to hire a competent field man to work in this area during the winter months. A special committee will convene to make necessary plans.

Ronald Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Heath, in the Bethel area, won high award for his grain sample at the club achievement day.

Mrs. Philip McAvoy was hostess to the C. W. I. group at her home for the September meeting.

Mrs. Harry Brooks entertained Carmel W.A. at Jubilee Hall. The vice president, Mrs. Everett Grills was in charge of the business and Mrs. Douglas Fyear arranged the programme.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Goodkey have sold their farm on the seventh concession of Rawdon to Mr. Douglas Glidden of Toronto. He will take possession in a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodkey have purchased a home at L'Amable, Ontario, where they will take up residence about October 20th.

PARENTS PROTEST MASS PUNISHMENT

Mrs. Melville Van Slyke is one of many parents of Oshawa, Ont., demanding the resignation of a teacher, Mr. Korbelas. Her daughter, Diane, 13, is one of 25 pupils who came home from school to tell of a mass strapping in which they were punished for unfinished or poorly done homework. The children also must be called them "stupid jackasses" and "moronheads." The parents have formed a committee to demand the resignation of Mr. Korbelas. (Central Press Canadian.)

Lifeboat Just 10 Feet Away As Hamilton Man Disappears 3-Hours After Sloop Upsets

HAMILTON (CP) — A 28-foot sailboat plying Lake Ontario despite small craft warnings and 10-foot waves overturned Sunday and Joseph Atkins, 31, one of two men aboard, was drowned.

A lifeboat from the Fort Henry, a Canadian Steamships Lines freighter, was within 10 feet of Atkins when he disappeared. Ronald Simpson, 22, was watched from the overturned sloop, Little Lady.

The two, reported to have been wearing seat-type life preservers, were in the water three hours while harbor police and other rescue boats struggled to reach them in a half gale raged.

The Fort Henry sent out a lifeboat after other small craft were turned back.

The Little Lady, based at Toronto Island, was travelling from Beamsville to Hamilton, a distance of about 18 miles. The men were making their third attempt during the day to enter Hamilton harbor.

Harbor officials said light craft warnings had been up all day.

Simpson and Atkins worked together at Canadian Westinghouse here. Simpson was graduated from University of Detroit last year.

Atkins, who had worked and sailed in Europe and South America, came to Canada two years ago from Liverpool.

Canada's Christmas Tree Industry Getting Geared Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's Christmas tree industry, whose once-a-year burst of activity involves some $7,500,000 annually, is getting geared up again for another visit by old St. Nick.

Within the next few weeks carloads of green young trees will be rolling across the land on the first stage of their journey from the forests to thousands of Canadian and American homes.

Canada harvested an estimated crop of 16,500,000 trees for last year's needs, worth an estimated $7,500,000.

Of the total 1955 cut, an estimated 12,500,000 trees worth $5,500,000 were exported—12,500,000 of them to the United States. The rest went to grace the fireside of Canadian homes.

D. M. W. Hummell, an assistant trade commissioner in Ottawa, describes in the current issue of his department's publication Foreign Trade movement of Canadian trees into the United States every Christmas. A good number of them go through Chicago where they are handled by wholesalers at a unique market known as the Christmas tree team track.

Mr. Hummell, formerly stationed in Chicago, describes the market wholesalers as a hardy lot who deal in juice grapes and watermelons in the Christmas tree off-season, which is most of the year.

"They often operate thriving businesses using old railway caboose cars as a base," writes Mr. Hummell. "At night some of them sleep in these 'offices' to protect their merchandise. At the crack of dawn they kindle fires in oil drums outside the cars in which the trees have arrived and display their wares against the sides of the cars.

"Lively trading begins early in the morning and prices are governed by weather, demand and daily arrivals."

Spring Coulee Rancher First To Import From United States Pair of Charbray Cattle

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SPRING COULEE, Alta. (CP) — Wayne Malmberg pictures ranching as the future of Canada's beef cattlemen.

"I'm trying to look ahead," the 38-year-old rancher says. "Canada near hasn't been producing enough beef for her own needs and in five years, at the present rate of increasing demand, we'll have to import beef in quantity.

"The only way I can see to keep up with the meat eaters' needs is to grow more beef to the acre."

FROM UNITED STATES

That's why, he said, he was the first rancher in Canada to import from the United States a pair of Charbray cattle, a registered cross breed that might be loosely termed French-Indian American.

The Charbray is the result of cross breeding in the U. S. between the French Charolaise, largest cattle in the world, and the Gourezt, or beef Brahma, of Stella. The Charolaise predominates by at least 13-16ths of 3-16ths in the Charbray.

At the Malmberg ranch, near this town 30 miles south of Lethbridge, Wayne Malmberg is attempting to build up Canada's first Charbray herd. At the same time, his Charbray bull is being crossed with the British breeds, such as Hereford and shorthorn to produce what are called Charcross cattle.

Following his example, at least two dozen other cattle men in western Canada now are known to be starting experiments along similar lines.

BETTER ALL ROUND

The Charbray and Charcross, rancher Malmberg said, are healthier, put on more weight, grow faster and have more prime cuts than the straight British breeds, main cattle lines in Canada's beef industry.

"Besides growing more beef to the acre, a rancher can realize up to 30 per cent or more profit with the Charbray and Charcross than with straight British breeds," said Mr. Malmberg, one of seven Malmberg children born in this district in the early 1900s to Scandinavian parents who came here in 1904 from Oregon.

His father, who purchased 18 sections of deeded land, and four brothers, now share the original Malmberg spread, each operating a three - section farming and ranching unit.

In an interview at his modest ranch home where he lives with his wife and three of five children, Wayne Malmberg said it was during a trip to Texas that he became interested in Charbray cattle.

He had attempted to bring Charolaise direct from France, but was unable to do so because of federal health of animals regulations on cattle coming from Europe.

In April, 1955, he purchased a Charbray bull and heifer from Clint Ferris, widely - known rancher from Tie Siding Wyo., and today he has a Charbray calf from the imported heifer and nearly 40 Charcross calves from his British breeds, which have for years been his stock in trade.

From a pie in the living room, rancher Malmberg drew rafts of figures to support his enthusiasm for this new breed. "C - 15," his Charbray bull, carrying seven-eighths Charolaise blood, had gained 3½ pounds daily in a test period from March 11 to Aug. 28.

In a test carried out by the Baimorhea, Texas, experimental station, a Charbray bull and the same feed as 118 other bulls had gained a total of 542 pounds in 140 days, an average of 3.23 pounds a day, to top all other animals of other breeds entered. In comparison, the daily average gain of Herefords was 2.18 pounds or 2 pounds a day. Most were British breeds.

The Charbray, Mr. Malmberg said, retains the size and characteristics of the white or cream Charolaise and the disease resistance of the Brahma. With the slight Brahma blood factor, the Charbray also was rigorous enough to withstand the cold of a Canadian winter.

Mr. Malmberg said a Charcross calf will weigh up to 50 pounds more than a straight British breed calf on the same feed. Yearlings would be up to 75 pounds heavier and full-grown bulls up to 400 pounds heavier. Charbray would possibly be another 34 to 50 pounds ahead of the Charcross.

Charbray and Charcross cattle also yield a maximum of high-quality beef, he said. Fatty tissues are distributed throughout instead of being wrapped around, thus giving a fine marbled quality to the meat.

Scientist Says New Vaccine Can Be Taken by Mouth

CINCINNATI (AP)—A University of Cincinnati scientist has announced development of a new polio vaccine to be taken by mouth within 18 months and to produce long-term—perhaps lifetime —immunity against the dread disease.

Dr. Ibert B. Sabin, professor of research pediatrics in the College of Medicine, made the report Saturday to a private group of scientists. The Cincinnati Times-Star carried it in a copyrighted story.

Dr. Sabin said a single dose of the new vaccine will produce immunity against all three major strains of polio virus. He said the vaccine has proven safe after extensive tests on animals and humans and is now ready for mass testing on an international basis.

TO TEST NEXT YEAR

The researcher said that tests of the new vaccine will begin next year in foreign countries as well as in the United States.

Dr. Sabin said the vaccine is the first effective oral preventive against polio. He said it works in persons who have already received Salk vaccine.

A minimum of equipment will be needed to make the vaccine on a mass production basis, Dr. Sabin's report said.

A major difference between Dr. Sabin's vaccine and that produced by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh is that the Sabin drug contains live polio virus, while the Salk serum contains virus which has been killed. Another advantage is that the Sabin vaccine is taken orally, the Salk vaccine by injection.

Kingston Mayor Dies in Hospital Of Heart Attack

KINGSTON (CP) — Mayor George Clark Wright of Kingston died early Sunday of a heart ailment after an illness of several months. He was 71.

Mr. Wright was completing his second term as mayor after election in 1953 and was to stand for re-election in December. He was also mayor in 1932.

His father was also a mayor of Kingston.

Two Bandits Secure $4,000

OSHAWA (CP)—Two bandits, wearing dark glasses and gloves, escaped with $4,000 Saturday night after forcing a superintendent, of Canada Bread Company Ltd. to open an office safe.

The pair walked into the office while two salesmen were turning over the day's receipts to superintendent Howard Souter, 31, of Bowmanville. One man held a gun on salesmen Charles Gray, 39, and Milton McIndoe, 54, while the other ordered Mr. Souter to open the safe. They escaped in a car.

"Jest a Second"

"Go on, rest it up! Pretend it's one of my slippers."

"I never saw anything like it!"

RAWDON

Christian Education Board Holds Rally Service

RAWDON — The Board of Christian Education of the United Church of Canada chose as its theme, "With deeds of love and mercy," for the 1956 rally service.

On Sunday morning at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church Miss Betty McConnell was pianist and the superintendent, Mr. Lindsay McKeown, presided.

The service opened with "In Christ There Is No East or West," and the call to worship was taken from Psalm 107, "O Give Thanks Unto the Lord."

The invocation was a prayer for guidance to know the true meaning of Christian love. All sang a missionary hymn followed by a Psalm of Thanksgiving.

The junior choir sang, "All Creatures of Our God and King." The scripture lesson was based on "Love thy neighbor as thyself," followed by special prayers, and the singing of "Savior Teach Me, Day By Day."

The special story was given by Mrs. Frances Wrightman and the Rev. W. G. Fletcher gave the sermon message.

The offering will be used in helping orphanages, fighting tuberculosis, and rehabilitation of amputees in war torn Korea.

The service closed with, "O Lord of Life and Love and Power Give Thy Workers Might, that through the world Thy truth may ring, and all men see the light."

Rally Day services were also held at Bethel and Wellman's appointments.

Enormous Military Hardware Store Covers 576 Acres With 30 Miles of Railroad Tracks

By LMAR FALKNER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Millions of items stored in 23 miles of aisles at the U.S. Army's general depot here are waiting to go anywhere in the world.

Within 24 hours after military equipment breaks down in Seoul or Munich or Fort Benning, Ga., the Columbus depot usually hears about it.

This enormous military hardware store covers 576 acres with 30 miles of railroad tracks, 19 miles of roads and 12,000,000 square feet of storage space.

The supplies range from preserved turnip greens to an automotive rotor distributor, from collapsible field organs to accordions, pony hymns or a battlefield to the giant tires for earth-moving equipment and ball bearings tiny enough to slip under a fingernail. YOU NEVER KNOW

"We have been called the biggest mail order house in the world," says the depot's commander, Brig.-Gen. Herbert Hall. "Some people ask why the army overstocks certain items. It's simple. You never know when you'll need what."

In one of the huge warehouses is the only precision instrument repair shop of its kind in the world. Between 75 and 100 different surveying and measuring instruments are serviced, including altimeters, barometers, Stereoscopes, etc.

Among the highly skilled technicians in the shop are several dozen black widow spiders who spin webbing too strong to break under the blast of 90 pounds of compressed air. Depot officials proudly point out that the spiders save the army more than $6,000 a year—and the champion spinner produces nearly 2,000 inches of web a day.

While these deadly insects turn productive for the army, a nearby warehouse is flooded with music of organs. The instruments, of all shapes and sizes, are tested here before they are shipped to churches the world over.

Also in the crates of the warehouse, source of all chaplain's equipment throughout the army, is religious paraphernalia ranging from Hebrew Bibles to sacramental wine (under lock and key) to ceiling-high stacks of hymnals.

READY FOR USE

In contrast to the hustle and bustle of 3,200 civilian and 250 military workers at the depot is the silent line of gray railroad mortuary cars, waiting in a corner near the depot's gate.

These are the cars which brought 22,000 corpses of midwestern servicemen home from the Second World War.

"They haven't been used in a long time," commented a guard at the gate. "But you never know. . . ."

Hillier South

HILLIER SOUTH — Mr. Garnet Ireland met with a serious misfortune this past weekend. He had gone to Canadian Canners where he is employed and only shortly after beginning operations for the day, the ladder slipped on which he was standing. His foot became entangled and serious injury resulted. Dr. Douglas, from Belleville, set the bones and he is now a patient in Prince Edward hospital. Friends hope for an early recovery.

The epidemic of flu has been rampant in this district and several have been ill.

Tomatoes are ripening better this past week and factories are running mostly full time.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Rowbotham, (nee Preston), who were married recently at the home of the bridegroom.

The Sunday School Thanksgiving of Rose Hall will be held Sunday, October 14th at 7:30 p.m. in the Rose Hall church. The Captain of the Salvation Army at Picton will be in charge of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wannamaker attended the funeral service of the former's brother-in-law at Madoc on Sunday last.

Alnico magnets installed on refrigerator and cupboard doors provide quiet, easy, secure closing.

Powerful magnets, made with INCO NICKEL, help solve crimes... even hold false teeth tighter!

USING NICKEL supplied by Inco, a Canadian manufacturer is producing an alloy called Alnico.

When magnetized, Alnico becomes a powerful magnet that retains its magnetic strength indefinitely.

Several million Alnico magnets are made in Canada every year. These are used by Canadian companies in the manufacture of hundreds of products such as motors and generators, aeroplane instruments, telephones and children's toys, to name only a few.

Since every single one of these magnets contains Inco Nickel, it is easy to see how this Inco metal helps provide jobs in Canadian industry.

Babe Pinelli's Last Game Unforgettable

NEW YORK (AP)—Babe Pinelli a senior member of the National League staff of umpires, worked his last game behind the plate Monday and it was one he'll never forget.

Pinelli, who called balls and strikes in Don Larsen's perfect pitching performance, is retiring after this season. The game, in which New York Yankees defeated Brooklyn 2-0, was the greatest thrill of Pinelli's baseball career.

"It was the greatest game I ever worked in," Pinelli said happily as he tried to relax in his dressing room after the game. "And it was also my last behind the plate. Yes, I'm through after this series. Boy, what a way to bow out."

Babe stripped down to reveal a dull bluish bruise just below his chest. It was the mark left by a line drive hit by Gil McDougald of the Yankees that had struck him the day before.

"I'm a pretty lucky fellow," he said. "I might have been hurt bad and would have missed this one. That would have been a shame. I haven't missed one since I came up to the National League in 1935. That's about 3,400 ball games in succession that I've umpired."

Quebec League Geared for Race

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Hockey League, geared for what shapes up as the tightest race in its 21-year history, will provide one of the most unusual innovations in hockey this season.

The Ottawa junior Canadiens will compete on a limited-schedule basis along with five professional clubs in rounding out a six-team league. The baby Canucks, who called Montreal home last year, will also compete as amateurs in the Laurier Cup series against Ontario junior clubs.

As an "associate" member of the QHL, the Ottawa junior entry will have no official status in the league standing. But wins, losses and ties by other clubs in their 30 meetings with the juniors will be counted on the usual point system.

Braves Give Grimm Share

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves, second-place finishers in the National League, have voted a half share of their World series money to Charlie Grimm, who resigned in June as manager.

Del Crandall, catcher and captain, said Monday the Braves had voted to divide their $32,017 second place cut into 34 full shares. This would figure out to $1,529.31 a share and give Grimm about $764.

Fred Haney, who succeeded Grimm as manager, will receive a full share.

In the Eastern Ontario Cup competition it is Peterborough U.E.W. against Oshawa Kickers in a two-game home and home total goals to count series. The first game will be played in Peterborough next Saturday with the return match slated for Oshawa on the following Saturday.

Peterborough U.E.W. ousted Oshawa Thistles by a total on the two games series of five goals to one in one semi-final whilst Oshawa Kickers defeated 6RD by a 13 to 0 count in the other one.

In the Belleville Bantam League all teams saw action on Saturday morning. Bob Blair's league leading Canadian Legion squad defeated Arsenal by seven goals to nothing. Seames, Everett, Keilar and Archer netted two each for the seventh being tallied by Bourette. In the first game at the Cricket Field United edged Rovers by a two to one count. Jack Rushlow scored both United goals whilst Langton netted for Rovers.

Athletic beat Wanderers in the second game scoring three goals without reply. Rowlands hit the twice and Archer obtained the third.

Legion led the league with six points from three games. Athletic have four from two games. United two from two games. Rovers two from three games and Arsenal and Wanderers each have one from three games.

In Hamilton on Monday, both the Belleville Juveniles and the Branch 99 Canadian Legion Bantams come up against two very strong Hamilton squads in the divisional finals of the Ontario Minor Soccer championships. A strong wind was blowing and the Hamilton boys took full advantage of the conditions ,in their home town park Hamilton Civic Stadium.

The Juvenile were defeated by Hamilton East End Mosdell receiving goal to one. Dick Downing got the lone Belleville counter. The bantams were putting up a fine showing until the last fifteen minutes of the game when Hamilton East End Wolves who were unbeaten in bantam circles this year piled on the goals to end with an eight goal to nothing victory. Better luck next time boys!

TAKE LACROSSE TITLE

CORNWALL (CP)—Cornwall St. Regis Sunday defeated Lewiston, N.Y., Indians to win the Canadian Senior B lacrosse championship 23-20 in a two-game, total-goal series. The Indians also won the championship last year.

Y's Men Drop Second Game To Chatham

Belleville Y's Men dropped the second game of their all-Ontario OBA bantam finals to Chatham by a narro wt-3 score in Chatham on Saturday afternoon, losing the title in a gallant effort.

Belleville fans and the club management strongly protested the alleged "home" umpiring. They claimed the Chatham officials called every play against the Belleville boys in such obvious fashion even the hometown fans were disgusted. The Chatham pitcher was wild but was credited with 11 strikeouts. Ten of these were taken third strikes with the pitches nowhere near the plate.

The winners took a 2-0 lead in the first frame and the Y's Men knotted it in the second. Chatham went in front 3-2 in the seventh. Belleville tied it again in the top of the eighth but the homesters pushed across one in the eighth to take the series.

Glen Dainsard hurled fine ball for Belleville, allowing eight safeties. He walked only two while fanning three.

Roebuck was the winning hurler. He gave up five hits, fanned 11 and passed eight.

Bill Mozam slammed a bases-empty homer for Belleville in the eighth, with two out in the top of the eighth but the homesters pushed across one in the eighth to take the series.

The next batter, Jim Sherridan tripled but the pinch hitter was called out on bad pitches to quell the rally.

Bob Follwell and Mickey Locke each played well, Locke getting a pair of safeties. Bucky Ethier and Larry Soden turned in great plays in the field while Jimmy Lloyd also starred afield. Catcher Moe Hunter played a great game behind the plate and slammed one hit.

Yankees 3-1 To Win Series

NEW YORK (AP)—With a 3-2 edge in games, New York Yankees Monday night were made 3-1 favorites to win the world series from Brooklyn. Today's sixth game was rated even in the betting—11 to 10 and take your pick.

All-Stars, Habs Play Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, National Hockey League and Stanley Cup champions, will be looking for their first all-star victory in two tries when they take on the cream of the rest of the circuit at the Forum tonight.

The Canucks were turned back 3-1 in 1953 in their first crack at the annual pre-season classic.

In this eighth all-star exhibition coach Jim Skinner of Detroit Red Wings will attempt to jell an attack potent enough to mark up the all-stars' fifth victory. They have tied one game and been beaten twice—both times by Detroit .

Coach Toe Blake of Montreal has 16 of the 18 men on his trophy-winning team for the game. Only defenceman Butch Bouchard and forward Ken Mosdell are absent—Bouchard having retired and Mosdell gone to Chicago.

Skinner was to have had a punch line of Alex Delvecchio, Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay on hand, but Howe is sitting out an injury, Glenn Hall of Detroit and Terry Sawchuk of Boston will split the goaltending duties. Toronto is sending Hugh Bolton, Jim Morrison, Dick Duff, Tod Sloan and George Armstrong.

Gus Mortson, Johnny Wilson and Nick Mickoski are in from Chicago, Bill Gadsby, Red Sullivan and Dave Creighton from New York and Leo Labine and Fern Flaman from Boston.

Yankees' Don Larson Fashions First Perfect Game In Series History

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WORLD'S EIGHTH WONDER

This turbulent world series may be over by this time. At least as far as games now and last are concerned it will pass into the history books tomorrow.

There may have been thrills, and spine-tingling situations —nerve-racking episodes in today's struggle. There may be in tomorrow's game—if there is one.

But they will be anti-climactic. The supreme thrill of this series is over. We of this generation witnessed something yesterday either at Yankee Stadium or through the medium of television, that has never before been witnessed since the world series of baseball was inaugurated. It may never be seen again.

Only six times, these in the course of league play, has such a mound spectacle been paraded before the baseball faithful.

Never in the history of organized baseball when the champions of the two major leagues were at each other's figurative throats in the throes of the world's greatest diamond classic has twenty-seven men walked to the plate—and walked back again without benefit of a base hit or freedom of the base-path to first by virtue of four balls.

Never has a pitcher run the gamut of nerves, tension, and suspense as the parade of foemen came up to the plate and went down in motionless order as did the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday when hefele Don Larsen of the New York Yankees eloed out there alone and recorded the first perfect game in world series history.

Six other hurlers have stood on the mound in the glory of similar achievement. Their's, was the ordeal of tension, and suspense, but they did not have the added nerve-wrack of world series competition.

Larsen's feat is all the more remarkable since the records reveal he issued only 81 pitches to 27 men. That is practically eleven pitches an inning or not quite four to each batter.

The 26-year-old Yankee hurler admitted on a television interview after the game that he knew he was heading for a no-hitter after the sixth inning. It is a press-box legend that sports-writers do not as much as mention the fact a pitcher is on the way to such a feat. Tradition has it that it breaks the charm—and the no-hitter is no longer such a thing. That has been proven several times.

Vince Scully, broadcasting the second part of yesterday's game, came awfully close to our opinion. It was in the eighth when he said "The only semblance of a hit tossed by Larsen came when Mantle snared Snyder's bid for a hit . . ." However the tradition did not break and Larsen went on to his epochal performance.

In the ninth when but three Dodgers stood between him and his record-breaking effort, Larsen said his legs were weak and he couldn't tell how long they would last. "I was pretty nervous," he said.

He said his fast ball was his main weapon, although "I used a few sliders and sometimes a change-up." Whatever he used Larsen had the jump on every Dodger hitter that faced him. "A few were hitting the ball hard but our guys were right behind me," he said.

He admitted that he had used a "new delivery" after getting permission from the Yankee brass. He said he had used it sparingly before but this time it was all out. It seems to be a quick pitch without benefit of a wind-up. Whatever it is, it worked. In fact it was perfect. It could not have been better.

But don't forget Sal Maglie who also pitched superbly in a losing cause and whose effort was lost in the garish spotlight of Larsen's effort.

Sinister Sal, the Magnificent, pitched a five-hitter and whiffed seven, three of them in a row, a feat good enough to win any series game.

Golden Gaels Tie With Varsity Blues As Mustangs Wallop McGill Redmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University Golden Gaels paralyzed the highly respected kicking ability of slim Jocko Thompson and the outstanding play of all-star backfielder Roy Stewart into a 7-7 tie Saturday in the Intercollegiate Union senior football opener in Toronto.

Meanwhile, in London the Western Mustangs, not regarded as a serious threat this year, upset the robust McGill Redmen 6-3 in the other college opener.

Varsity's respect for Thompson —he averaged 46 yards a punt during the game—yielded only to the scoring of the Gaels' tying point with less than 20 seconds remaining in the game.

The Gaels were bogged down at the Varsity 46 when Thompson punted from middield. Varsity's safety man had retreated cautiously into the end zone, but the ball landed on the five and bounced crazily another 30 yards, forcing Rich Bethune to concede the tying point. A clean catch on the five would most likely have given Toronto the victory.

Stewart took over at quarterback in the second half of the game after the defending champion Gaels failed to roll under John Mocbelin, import signal caller from Clayton, N.Y. Stewart with great running support from Henry Clarke, marched Queen's 53 yards along the ground and crashed across the touchdown. It countered a Varsity major by quarterback Ed Skrzypek in the second quarter.

The Gaels blew two more golden scoring chances, once when a Stewart pass was intercepted by Curt Russell, Varsity linebacker from Baltimore, Md., on the Toronto four-yard line.

In the fourth quarter Blues put on a sustained drive of 89 yards to the Kingston five after which Ross Woods kicked a single to break the 6-6 deadlock.

The hefty and experienced McGill line was fought to a standstill by the light but eager Mustang front wall.

Redmen picked up a first-quarter point on a kick by Jan Sandzelius. Western won the game in the third quarter by marching 49 yards, with the help of two passes by quarter Art Turner, before Frank Loftus took a Turner toss in the end zone.

McGill's second-quarter safety touch ended the scoring.

Only 27 Dodgers Face Hurler In Thrilling Diamond Drama; Maglie, Too, Superb on Mound

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—Their backs to the wall, just as has been the case all year, Brooklyn Dodgers today were staking their world series hopes on friendly Ebbets Field in the battle with New York Yankees for the world baseball championship.

Beaten for the third consecutive time at Yankee Stadium Monday, 2-0 in a history-making perfect game performance by unpredictable Don Larsen, the Dodgers found themselves trailing for the first time, three games to two.

Realizing their could be no tomorrow, manager Walter Alston turned to his ace relief pitcher, Clem Labine, rather than to his 27-game winner Don Newcombe, to keep the Dodgers' fatal series hopes alive. Yankee pilot Casey Stengel, in a spot where he can gamble, sent Johnny Kucks—his 18-game winner, as the man to pitch the title-clincher and what could be the payoff game.

FIRST START

This was Labine's first starting assignment after relieving eight times in the series. In his one relief effort during this series, he pitched one hit and one unearned run in a two-inning relief job in the third game. He started only three games during the entire season, all in the September drive and twice he failed the first time he went up with a season record of 10-8.

Kucks has appeared in two games, both times in relief, and has given up three hits and two runs in two innings. Although Stengel leaned toward Kucks, Alston could hardly be mistaken change his mind at the last minute.

In that event, the Yankee pitcher would be Bob Turley, the bare-throwing righthander, who also has pitched in two series games, striking out three, giving up no hits, no runs and no walks in 1 1-3 innings. His season record was 6-4.

REPEAT UNLIKELY

It is extremely doubtful, in fact, the odds are better than 40,000 to 1 against, that either of today's pitchers will duplicate Larsen's nerve-tingling effort that had every fan in the gathering of 64,519 hanging breathlessly on every pitch.

The 27-year-old righthander's incredible performance, embellished by Mickey Mantle's third series home run and Hank Bauer's run-producing single, was at the expense of Sal Maglie, who literally pitched his heart out in a gallant but losing effort.

It was Maglie, the 39-year-old Cinderella man, who turned back the Yankees in the series opener and who matched Monday's game as the sentimental favorite.

GREATEST EVER

At the end, however, it was Larsen, the fun-loving, devil-may-care Yankee righthander, who had the huge, emotion-filled crowd cheering wildly as he fired a third strike past pinch hitter Dale Mitchell for the climax to the greatest game ever pitched in a world series.

Larsen did it with a most revolutionary delivery, a no-windup'service. Each pitch was served from a standing delivery which he adopted less than a month ago.

Larsen made but 97 pitches, striking out seven. So amazing was his feat that the four batters balls had a chance of being rated hits. One was a foul homer by Snider. Three drives were converted into outs by spectacular Yankee fielding.

CLOSE CALLS

In the second inning, Jackie Robinson smashed a vicious grounder off Andy Carey's glove at third base for what momentarily appeared a certain hit. But Gil McDougald, the shortstop Yankee shortstop, recovered the ball in time to nip Robinson at first by half a step.

In the fifth minutes after Mantle had put the Yankees ahead 1-0 with a blast into the right field stands, Gil Hodges sent a drive that appeared headed for the alley between centre and left for extra bases. But Mantle raced across the turf to make a sensational backhanded catch.

On the next play, Sandy Amoros connected with a pitch and rocketed a drive toward the right field stands that promised to tie the score. At the last second, however, the ball curved foul—by inches.

Then, in the eighth, Hodges again was victimized by a thrilling Yankee play. Gil hit a tricky low liner to the left of Carey. The Yankee third baseman lunged for the ball and caught it inches above the ground.

ALL AWARE

There wasn't a soul in the stands who didn't realize that Larson had accomplished the most spectacular of all spectaculars. This was only the seventh perfect game pitched in the major leagues and only the fifth in baseball's modern era.

The last perfect game in the majors was achieved by Jim Robertson of Chicago White Sox April 20, 1922 when he trounced Detroit Tigers, also by a 2-0 score.

For Maglie, the defeat, his second in world series competition, was a heart breaker. The Dodger pitched a better game of defeat than in his winning effort against the Yankees at Yankee Stadium. He permitted only five hits, walked two and struck out five, including the last three batters he faced, in the eighth.

STRONG START

For 2 2-3 innings, the veteran righthander matched Larsen batter for batter, turning back the first 11 Yankee hitters. So masterful was his pitching that not a single one of the 11 hitters was able to hit the ball to right field, in the direction of the nearby right field wall.

Then, with two out in the fourth and the bases empty, Mantle, after fouling off several two-strike pitches to left, lashed into a curve that broke a little inside and drove it into the right field seats to break the spell.

The Yankees got their second run in the sixth, ganging up on Maglie for three hits. Bauer opened with a single and after Larsen sacrificed, Bauer came through with a single between third and short to make it 2-0. Jon Collins followed with another hit but this time Maglie got Mantle to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Perfect Games

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Larsen of the Yankees Monday became the seventh pitcher in major league baseball history to pitch a perfect game. The other six accomplished it during the regular season.

The list:

1880—John Lee Richmond, Worchester vs Cleveland, NL, score 1-0; John M. Ward, Providence vs Buffalo, NL, score 5-0.

1904—Denton T. Young, Boston vs Philadelphia, AL, score 3-0.

1908—Adrian C. Joss, Cleveland vs Chicago, AL, score 1-0.

1917—a-Ernest G. Shore, Boston vs Washington, AL, score 4-0

1922—C. C. Robertson, Chicago vs Detroit, AL, score 2-0

1956—Don Larsen, New York, AL vs Brooklyn, NL, score 2-0.

x—Shore's performance in this game now is classified as a perfect game. Babe Ruth started for the Boston pitcher and was removed by the umpire after giving up a base on balls to the first batter, who was retired trying to steal second base. Shore then retired the next 26 batters in succession.

Argos May Take 'Nobby'

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Nobby Wirkowski, dropped from the import list Saturday by Hamilton Tiger-Cats at the Big Four Football Union, may be picked up on waivers by Toronto Argonauts, it was reported Sunday night.

Argonauts are said to be interested in getting the 27-year-old signal-caller back in the lineup to battle for a job with Arnie Galiffa and quarter utility man Gene Filipski.

Wirkowski two years ago after they rode with him for four seasons.

The Argonaut move apparently depends on whether Ottawa Rough Riders waive on Wirkowski.

HAVE FIRST CALL

Rough Riders, since they were last in the league race in 1955, have first call on players put up for the $750 waiver price this season. It is doubtful they are interested in Wirkowski because they are having great success with quarterback Hal Ledyard.

TiCats benched Wirkowski a few hours before their game against Argonauts and appointed him a backfield coach. However, under league rules he had to be placed on waivers.

Argonauts were beaten 42-6 by TiCats and fell into last place in the four-team league. Galiffa, formerly of British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference, had not his game days. He completed 15 of 33 passes for 164 yards.

'Sal' Pays Tribute to Larsen Deserves Plenty of Credit

NEW YORK (AP)—Sal Maglie, a sad and dejected athlete who had pitched a superb game himself, led the Brooklyn Dodgers Monday in paying homage to Don Larsen's great perfect performance in the world series.

"I'm glad he got it, as long as we had to lose," said Maglie, and all the other Dodgers chimed in.

"That's the way it goes."

As catcher Roy Campanella said:

"He had good control. Whenever we could hit it, it was either foul or right at someone. He deserves a big hand."

MAGLIE GOOD TOO

That was the sentiment of manager Walt Alston.

"He pitched a helluva ball game," said the scholarly Alston, who rarely uses profanity even on the light side. "And don't forget that Maglie pitched a good game, too."

Alston said afterwards in a second guessing session that he did not call for any bunts because his ace hitters are allowed to bunt on their own.

"Not much was said about bunting on the bench either," he said. "We kep thinking we'd get some hits."

In Alston's opinion, Maglie's five-hit, two run performance was more than better than the game he pitched in the opener which he won 6-3.

"He stuff was a little better today," he said.

"When I walked out to the mound in Alston, with two on and one out, I just wanted to find out how he felt, and as soon as he told me he was all right I didn't hesitate to leave him in. I wanted to talk to Peewee Reese and Junior Gilliam to set up a double play situation, too."

Actually Mickey Mantle hit into a double play, but not exactly by plan, the grounded sharply to Gil Hodges who stepped on first and then threw to Campanella, trapping Hank Bauer between home and third.

There was much talk by the Dodgers of Sandy Amoros' mighty blast in the fifth that went barely foul into the right field stands.

"Not by more than a foot," said Jake Pitler, the first base coach.

COACH LONESOME

It was a dull afternoon for Jake because there was no one to coach at first base.

"It got mighty lonesome down there," he said.

"Tomorrow we get back to Ebbets Field," was the sentiment of all the Dodgers. They are confident they can win there, just as they won the first two games of this series, and the three played there last year.

Larsen's no-windup style had all the Dodgers muttering.

"He'll have everybody throwing without a windup," said Alston with wry grin.

Powerful Alouettes Clinch Big Four Playoff Spot With Holiday Wins

Take Two From Rough Riders As Tigers Down Argos Twice; Wrong-Way Run a Feature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's hardly earth - shaking, but Montreal Alouettes have completed the first big stride towards the third straight berth in the Grey Cup final.

The powerhouse Als, using Ottawa Rough Riders as a cushion, clinched a Big Four Football Union playoff spot over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend by sweeping a doubleheader from the Riders, 42-35 and 24-6, when they can start picking at Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts for the remainder of the 14-game schedule.

Tiger-Cats, with import quarter Tony Curcillo giving them a big lift after four successive defeats, kept in pace with the Als by whipping Argonauts 42-14 and 29-3. Now, with only 14 games remaining in the league schedule, Als lead with 18 points, six up on Hamilton, eight ahead of Ottawa and 10 in front of the cellar-dwelling Argonauts.

Als, considered in pre-season reckoning by experts as the pick of the East, have had things much their own way so far in the schedule. They met Ottawa six times, won with five victories and finish off the season with two games each against TiCats and Argonauts.

The Als had to battle all the way for the weekend sweep against Ottawa.

In Saturday's game Ottawa, Montreal let lead going into the final quarter, helped along by a three-touchdown spree by fullback Pat Abruzzi.

Riders sprang to life and drew to within a touchdown when Don St. John crashed over the Montreal line to send the crowd of nearly 18,000 home shaking their heads at the fight of their Riders.

Montreal quarterback Sam Etcheverry completed 24 of 35 passes for 302 yards. Three were touchdown tosses. Ottawa signal caller Hal Ledyard completed 10 of 28 passes for 161 yards.

In Monday's game at Montreal, Riders went ahead 8-0 in the first quarter but the Als rallied with two converted touchdowns before the half to take a 14-8 lead. A field goal in the third and Red O'Quinn's second touchdown of the afternoon in the fourth wrapped up the game and sent Montreal into the playoffs.

Etcheverry passed for three touchdowns as he completed 24 of 31 heaves. Ledyard hit his pass receivers with eight of 22 throws.

Both quarterbacks finished on the limp. Etcheverry suffered an injured left knee and had x-rays taken after the game. Ledyard had to be helped from the field at the finish. He is to have an injured left knee examined today.

The Hamilton-Toronto doubleheader was featured by the most touchdowns in the longest safety touch run in football history. Hamilton halfback Tex Robinson, formerly of Cleveland Browns of the United States National Football League, pulled a sensational wrong-way dash in the third quarter.

Robinson, to the amazement of the 19,046 fans, picked up a Toronto fumble, didn't get his bearings and trotted 70 yards to his own end zone where he was downed.

Halfback Royal Copeland of Argonauts tried to talk Robinson into giving him the ball when Tex had crossed the goal line, telling he had scored a touchdown. Copeland replied to Robinson: "Nice going, let's have it."

Robinson said no, Copeland tackled him. But Copeland got the ball it would have been an Argonaut touchdown. TiCats were leading 34-7 at the time.

Argonauts later staged a comeback and drew within three points of catching Hamilton Tiger-Cats scored all their points in the first half and just held off the Toronto rally.

Pat Abruzzi Patterson Top Big Four Scorers

TORONTO (CP)—Hal Patterson is taking the high road and Pat Abruzzi the low road in the Big Four Football Union scoring race.

Patterson, an end, is the league's leading pass receiver. Abruzzi, 25-year-old fullback, is the top rusher.

League statistics issued today show Patterson has caught 42 passes for a total of 1,401 yards and seven touchdowns. Abruzzi has carried the ball 132 times for 630 yards and 11 touchdowns on the ground.

Abruzzi also has caught two touchdown passes to make him scoring leader with 78 points. The statistics cover games up to and including those of last Saturday.

PFEIFER SECOND

Patterson's closest rival for pass-catching honors is end Al Pfeifer of Toronto Argonauts, who has 47 receptions for 618 yards. Bob Simpson of Ottawa Rough Riders has caught 33 for 774 yards.

Closest to Abruzzi in pass is halfback O. K. Ferguson of Toronto, with 630 yards in 112 carries. He has four touchdowns. Cornel Gilchrist of Hamilton Tiger-Cats has the better average yardage than either of the two leaders. Gilchrist has averaged 7.6 yards on 85 plays for a total of 642 yards. Abbruzzi's average gain is 5.2 yards and Ferguson's 5.6.

Tony Curcillo, Tiger-Cat quarterback, completed 42 of 72 attempted passes against Toronto in his first full game last Saturday after completions in 30 tries gave him a pitching percentage of .767, best averaging 18.9 yards for a total of 567.

SAM THROWS MOST

Sam Etcheverry of Montreal is first among the number of passes attempted, number completed and total yardage gained through the air. He has completed 195 of 317 passes for a gain of 3,425 yards. His accuracy percentage is .609 and average gain 10.8 yards a pass.

Ottawa's Hal Ledyard has completed 119 of 222 pass attempts for 1,981 yards, while Arnie Gallifs of Argonauts was successful on 100 of 244 tries for 2,024 yards.

Etcheverry's passing resulted in 19 touchdowns, Gallifs's in 16, Ledyard's 12, and Curcillo's five.

'Bums' Back in Ebbets Field, Figure Series Will Go Seven

BROOKLYN (AP) — "Thank goodness we're back home again," said Jackie Robinson. "We shouldn't have any trouble with their pitching today—and then we'll see Ford again tomorrow." If that's too subtle, Robinson and the rest of the Brooklyn Dodgers figure this series belongs to go the full seven games—with them winning.

"We never would have won it in four games," said Jack. "We haven't done things the easy way all season."

The world champs, who won the National League pennant on the final day, were one down in the series going into today's seventh game in what has been a "home park" battle. Brooklyn won the first two games in its own park, then lost the next three at Yankee Stadium.

It was the same way a year ago. The Yankees had won the first two games at home, lost three at Ebbets Field, then won the sixth game at home again. It wasn't until the final game that the home "jinx" was junked so the Dodgers winning it all at Yankee Stadium.

All of the Brooks had complained about the deep shadows and poor background for hitters in massive Yankee Stadium. The Yankees, too, have commented on it.

Duke Snider, Brooklyn's best power hitter who had only one hit in the three games at the stadium, disgustedly turned away from the plate after a strikeout, asking Yank catcher Yogi Berra. "How the heck do you hit .300 in this park?"

Yogi agreed the background has been tough in the series.

Monday, incidentally, Duke made another fine defensive play in centrefield, robbing the same Yogi of a hit with a diving grab. "To tell you the truth, though," said Snider, "I got it backhanded and tumbled over on my head. I know if I really caught it or not."

Umpire Dusty Boggess didn't hesitate in the call, however, signalling an out immediately.

Manager Walt Alston is holding the betrobuled and disappointing Don Newcombe for the seventh game.

"I'll have Bessent in relief today," said Alston, "but I'll have saved Newk for tomorrow if I don't have to use him in relief today. I have to use everybody I need today.

"If we lose this one, I won't have to worry about tomorrow."

'Newk' Charged With Assault

NEW YORK (AP)—A Brooklyn parking lot attendant obtained a summons Monday charging Don Newcombe, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher, with simple assault.

Michael Brown, 40, the complainant, said Newcombe punched him in the stomach at the parking lot last Friday after Brown backed the car he was driving out of the box by New York Yankees in the second game of the world series.

Don Larsen Tossed 97 Pitches Without Benefit of Wind-Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Larsen threw 97 pitches in Monday's perfect baseball game for New Yankees but not once did he precede a pitch with a windup.

Brooklyn Dodgers, who didn't get a man on base all afternoon while losing 2-0, agreed they they hadn't seen anything quite like it before.

"I don't think there's anyone in the National League that pitches like that," said Pewee Reese.

"Except maybe Dick Littlefield of the Giants."

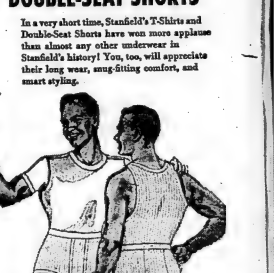
Manager Casey Stengel said the idea of pitching without winding up was Larsen's own idea.

"He thought Boston was stealing signs two, three weeks ago," said Stengel. "It's helped him, and I suppose everybody will be doing it now."

Brooklyn's Duke Snider said he had a heckuva time with that lack of a windup. "I can't wait for him so long and then he goes ahead and throws it. You can't tell when he's going to let it go. And while you're waiting there, maybe you drop your elbow or something and before you get set again the pitch is there. I guess we should have stepped out on him more, like Jackie Robinson did."

Knox Looks For Better Deal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronnie Knox, newly acquired Calgary Stampeder quarterback, will not be back with Stamps next season "if a better deal comes along," his stepfather Harvey said Saturday.



At a press conference following Saturday's game, which saw Brits Columbia Lions beat Stampeders 24-7, Knox said:

"He might hang around there, but the kid's got more deals than Tilden has racquets."

Riders, Eskimos Share Lead In Western Football Union

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders had their hands full but came home from the Thanksgiving weekend results in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, but the same cannot be said for Calgary Stampeders—despite Ronnie Knox.

Riders came through their regular season tests with their remain in a first-place tie with Edmonton Eskimos, who had a hectic win to stage a three-game losing streak, but the last-place Stampeders dropped a decision with Knox replacing quarter Don Klosterman, who saw their hopeful mathematical chance of a playoff berth go out the window.

Here's how the weekend went: Lions whipped Stampeders 24-7 before 25,633 fans at Vancouver and Bombers dropped Eskimos 10-7 before 18,721 at Winnipeg Saturday night to create a three-way first-place tie.

Riders won their fifth straight game by defeating Bombers 26-14 before 15,517 fans in a Monday afternoon game at Regina. It temporarily moves alone into first place. Eskimos and Lions meet Bright and Earl Lindley back in the lineup, walloped Stampeders 36-8 before 25,000 at Calgary to move back into a first-place tie.

Monday night in Calgary, Lions' scoring touchdowns were a Jackie Parker pass.

A 39-yard run by Parker and a forward pass to end Joe Mobra accounted for two more Edmonton touchdowns while Rollie Miles and fullback Normie Kwong plunged for two more. Mobra connected all five and Parker kicked a single.

Earl Lunsford scored the Calgary touchdown in the final quarter and Jim Sides converted. Bill Mackie got a single gave Calgary its other point.

World Series Notes

By ED CORRIGAN

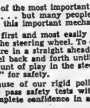
BROOKLYN (AP)—Is big Don Newcombe annoyed at not being called on to pitch today's sixth world series game against New York Yankees? "Nope," he said. "I don't feel bad about not coming back. And I don't mind not being called as a pinch hitter (some say he's the best left-handed pinch hitter on the club). I got no gripe with manager Walt Alston. He makes the decisions."

Enos Slaughter, so the story goes, has been taking vitamin pills. The manager of Brooklyn's National League pennant on the final day, were one down in the series going into today's seventh game in what has been a "home park" battle. Brooklyn won the first two games in its own park, then lost the next three at Yankee Stadium.

Alston's explanation of starting Clem Labine instead of Don Newcombe: "Labine had good luck against the Yankees last year and this year when he was in Saturday."

While Don Larsen was outside standing before almost as many klieg lights as Marilyn Monroe, New York Yankees' manager Casey Stengel sat a table right off to the side of the dressing room following the big right-hander's no-hit, no-run game over Brooklyn Dodgers Monday. Case just kept shaking his head in bewilderment.

The Brooks used their "Bourreau shift" against Mickey Mantle on the switch-hitter's first trip to the plate. They might just as well have all sat down for all the good it did Slugger Mantle. Next time when he belted his home run. They set a single in the same kind of hit in Flatbush Friday.



Duke Snider of the Dodgers is nearing a record for strikeouts. He has fanned twice in the world series and the mark for a six-game series is nine by Jim Bottomley of the Cards in 1930. The standard for a seven-game set is 10 by William Abstein of Pittsburgh in 1909.

In the seven series games the Dodgers played in Yankee Stadium over the last two years, they scored only 15 runs for an average of 2.1 runs a game.

Don Larsen's no-hitter dropped the Dodgers' team batting average for this series from .271 to .224. Yanks had collected a total of 39 in three and in total bases, 67 to 53.

Both New York Giants' president Horace Stoneham and Cleveland general manager Hank Greenberg are on the scene. The talk, naturally, was that the Yankees would be cold. With his legs back in shape, the Dodgers could spot him and he won for them." Said Greenberg: "I have no regrets. He just didn't fit into our lineup. We just don't get much opportunity with us but at 39 he just didn't belong. He had too many pitchers. There's no guarantee that he would have won 13 games for us as he did for the Dodgers."

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

SAFETY COMES FIRST!!

One of the most important safety factors in any car is the steering of the car. Yet many people don't know how to recognize faults in this important mechanism.

The first and most easily checked item is the amount of play in the steering wheel. To do this, first make sure that the wheels are in a straight ahead position. Then turn the steering wheel back and forth until the front wheels barely move. The amount of play in the steering wheel should not be more than 1¼" for safety.

Because of our rigid policy of inspection and overhaul, our cars pass safety tests with flying colors. You can drive with complete confidence in a Pinder car.

Larsen Was 'Weak in Knees' In Big Game's Ninth Inning

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—"It was so weak in the knees out there in the ninth inning, I thought I was going to faint."

Big Don Larsen, admittedly "in a daze," said he also mumbled a little prayer for help before he finally completed his perfect no hit, no-run, no-man-to-first game against the Dodgers in the fifth world series game.

It was the no-hit game in world series history and the first perfect game—no man reaching first — since another obscure pitcher, Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox did it in 1922 against the Detroit Tigers.

KNEW HOPSN TIME

Larsen said he realized in the seventh inning that he had a no-hitter going but added: "I didn't get nervous—my main object was to win the game."

Then, he said, came the ninth, and he felt the full impact of his performance coming. "I wanted to do was get out of the ninth inning," he said. "Once I mumbled a little prayer to myself, I said, 'please help me get through this.'"

The towering righthander from San Diego, Calif., credited nobody on the Yankee bench mentioned he had a perfect game going.

"The only thing said to me was by Yogi Berra," Larsen said. "Yogi hit me on the seat of the pants and said, 'go out there and let's get the first batter.'"

MANTLE ENTERTAINED

The Yankee dressing room—the dressing room of the "old pros"—was bedlam for the first time during the series.

Yogi grabbed Larsen around the neck. Mickey Mantle, normally quiet and retiring, let out a resounding whoop.

"Beautiful, beautiful," said Casey Stengel, the Yankee manager, his craggy face beaming like a broad smile. "This kid is a good pitcher."

Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, came in.

"You have my hat and my happy 'sout that," he said, elbowing his way through the crowd and the beaming pitcher. "I have to congratulate you—to me a favor will you? Sign this ball."

Larsen, who came to the Yankees in mid-season, 1954, as an insignificant part of the 19 - player deal with Baltimore which brought the Yankees Bob Turley, said Berra's crafty signal-calling and the fine pitching he once which brought the Yankees Bob Turley, said Berra's crafty signal-calling and the fine pitching he once which play deserve equal credit for his feat.

"I was pitching fast balls and sliders mostly," he said, "the ones I usually had pretty good control. I only shook off a couple of Yogi's signals, but he stuck with them, so I went ahead and pitched what he called. I'm glad it did."

AMOROS, SNIDER CLOSE

The six-foot-four, 225 - pound Californian said his heart sank when Sandy Amoros, the Brooklyn leftfielder, hit that shot in the fifth inning which went foul by inches into the rightfield stands.

"I thought sure he had it," Don said, "and I also thought Duke Snider's long foul in the fourth might have gone in. I was relieved when the umps motioned 'foul.'"

Larsen was lavish in his praise of third baseman Andy Carey, who before Monday had been the "goat" of the series with fielding errors and impotence at bat.

"That was a great stop Andy made on Jackie Robinson's bid liner in the second inning," he said. "and he made a beautiful play on Gil Hodges in the eighth. They saved the game for me. And also Mickey Mantle's fine running catch of Hodges' hard-hit ball to left center in the fifth."

When Larsen caught his breath, he said there was a bit of irony in Carey's helping him to his perfect pitching performance.

In 1954, when Larsen with Baltimore I had a no - hitter going against the Yankees until the eighth inning, Carey said, "And you know who spoiled it for me—that guy Carey."

Hunter the Star

Frankford Defeats Malartic, Wins All-Ont. Championship

Behind the iron-man pitching and clutch hitting of Bobby Hunter, the Frankford Merchants took two games of three from Malartic in the Quebec City over the weekend to capture the all-Ontario OASA Intermediate "B" softball championship.

Frankford took the Saturday game by a 15-3 score after making the over-500 mile trip. They lost the second game early Sunday 8-6 in two extra innings then roared back in the deciding tilt for a 3-1 victory.

Bobby Hunter was the man of the hour. He fired seven innings in the first game, allowed three hits, fanned 12 and helped himself to two singles. He came on in relief in the second game to take the loss in the extra frames, tagged for just one single, fanning one and hitting a triple. The rubber-armed right hander then wrapped it up by going the distance in the final fixture. He again allowed only three safeties, whiffed seven and had a perfect day at the plate with three hits in as many attempts.

The cars arrived back in Frankford at 11.00 p.m. last night only to be welcomed by a terrific crowd of cheering fans. The big reception was topped by a party in the players honor.

The trip was made possible only by the generous donations. The Frankford citizens, the district hydro, Frankford town council, Bata Shoe Company and the Bata Shoe Company Union all donated freely for the trip.

Playing coach Cerl Austin was thrilled by the championship, the first in his 19-year stint in connection with softball in this district.

Frankford took the first game with ease slamming out 9 hits including two homers. Mike Cosgrove led a homer and double. Harv Stoliker a homer, Bill Rankin two triples, Harry Wickman a triple and single, Hunter and Don Barclay two singles, Ackerman a double and Gilmour and Dafoe singles. Barclay also homered to open the eighth but the game was called after the next batter.

MacDonald also turned in a terrific amount of hurling for Malartic. He fired six frames in the first game and seven in each of the last two. He allowed 12 hits in all.

Bobby Green worked the first seven frames of the second game. He gave up only three hits, fanning seven and walking four. Hunter walked a total of ten during his 10 innings pitched.

The second game was played in a drizzling and very cold rain. The players participated throughout with their jackets on in a vain attempt to keep dry and warm.

Malartic played four runs in the fourth frame, two in the seventh to tie the score at 6-6 and won it with a pair in the ninth. Frankford scattered their six markers while gathering eight safeties. Cosgrove collected three hits, Rankin two, Hunter a triple and Austin and Green one each.

The third game was the best played in the series. Frankford won the championship in the fourth frame when they netted all their markers.

Hunter paved the way with a lead-off single and Gilmour followed with a two-bagger to left. foe had also singled. The score was then 2-0 but Barclay drew a free pass and Gilmour scored on Cosgrove's fielder's choice.

Barclay had two hits in this contest but Hunter led the way with three. Austin, Rankin, Dafoe and Gilmour got the others. Malartic tallied their lone run in the fifth when Belanger doubled.

Wall had a three-run homer and a single to pace the losers in the first game and he doubled during their victory on Sunday. Third game linescore

'Last Wagon' — Excellent Western drama triggered by Top Widmark Portrayal

"The Last Wagon" rolled into the Belle Theatre yesterday to take its place among the outstanding Hollywood western dramas. Spread across the great canvas of the CinemaScope screen this Twentieth Century-Fox film starring Richard Widmark with Felicia Farr reveals an adventure laden story with entertainment elements which remind the viewer of such screen classics as "High Noon," "The Tall Men," "Covered Wagon" and "Shane." It is certainly the finest outdoor drama of the new motion picture season.

Here in "The Last Wagon" producer William B. Hawks has fashioned a very gripping, excitement-filled picture. With the added advantage of CinemaScope it captures all the sweep and magnificence of the great Southwest in the days when the American frontier was being built. The cameras reveal backgrounds of breath-taking beauty as they have never before been seen on the screen.

In the leading role, Richard Widmark has chosen the choice plumb of his highly successful career—the roleof a man believed bad who justifies and vindicates himself. When called upon to be rough and tough he does just that; when he must be gentle and sincere he shows off his versatility to great advantage. The latter is displayed primarily in the scene between him and Felicia Farr, the beautiful new actress who has scored prominently in her short acting career. This marks her biggest role to date and she comes through like a true veteran. Also noteworthy are the performances of the supporting players, namely Tommy Retting of TV's "Lassie" series, Susan Kohner, Stephanie Griffin, Ray Stricklyn, Nick Adams and George Mathews.

Special accolades must go to Director Delmar Daves who has taken advantage of every exciting scene; and there are many; for the picture is tension-packed from start to finish. Especially exciting and novel is the sequence in which an exploding ammunition train scatters a horde of attacking Indians. Mr. Daves, many will recall, directed another memorable western drama, "Broken Arrow," several years ago, so his outdoor eagle is no stranger to him.

Continuing at the Belle Theatre "The Last Wagon" is a real epic of the West which you should not miss.

ROOF RAFT

A helicopter may hover like a bird, but when it comes down to roost on a roof it weighs plenty, and sets up quite a strain. So engineers have devised a gimmick. The whirly-bird lands on an aluminum raft floating in a shallow pool of water. The machine's weight is spread over the area of the raft instead of just that covered by the landing gear.

No doubt they figured out, too, how passengers can get "ashore". Certainly men who work with aluminum are mighty resourceful. In fact, they keep us busy supplying them with this versatile modern metal, as home and in foreign markets.

Cardinals Whip Giants 35-27

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago Cardinals, pro football's newest upset specialists, spilled the title-hungry New York Giants 35-27 Sunday to stand as the only unbeaten team in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

Following up their 9-7 shocker over the champion Cleveland Browns last week, the Cards took the lead on Dick Lane's 66-yard run with an intercepted pass on the final play of the first half and moved confidently ahead with two more touchdowns in the third period.

The loss dropped the Giants into a four-way tie for second place with Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, all of whom played Saturday night.

An upset also featured Sunday's play in the Western Conference, San Francisco's Forty-niners rallying for two fourth-quarter touchdowns to surprise Los Angeles Rams 33-30 in San Francisco. In the other game played, Chicago Bears bounced back from an opening loss to Baltimore and overpowered Green Bay 37-21.

Saturday, Cleveland defeated Pittsburgh 14-10, Detroit stopped Baltimore 31-14 and Philadelphia edged Washington 13-9.

CHARGE ARMY OFFICERS

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Maj-Gen. Harris Nasution, the Indonesian army's chief of staff, Monday ordered the arrest of 10 high army officers on charges of corruption. A spokesman said the 10 include the former Jakarta military commander, a Lt.-Col. Taswin. A special five-man army committee will investigate all officers "who have been active in politics."

AT THE McCARTHY — Olivia De Havilland starring with John Forsythe in the gay comedy hit "The Ambassador's Daughter" now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE PARK — Ghost Town Desperadoes — Richard Widmark and Gregory Peck, both members of a gang of desperadoes prepare to shoot it out in a ghost town in the Arizona badlands named "Yellow Sky". Anne Baxter co-stars in the Twentieth Century-Fox encore triumph now showing at the Park Theatre. On the same program in color "Racing Blood" starring Bill Williams, Jean Porter and Jimmy Boyd.

John Oldfield, 29, Is Killed Wife and Daughter Injured In Accident in Bancroft Area

TRENTON (Special)—A tragic highway accident near Bancroft Sunday claimed the life of John Oldfield, 29, of 66 Crown Street, Trenton. His wife still unconscious in a Peterborough hospital, suffered two broken legs, chest and head injuries. She is on the critical list at the hospital. Their eldest daughter, Carol, 8, had two legs broken and underwent surgery today. The youngest daughter, Catherine, 5, escaped without injury.

Mr. Oldfield was employed as a draftsman at the Williams and Williams aluminum fabricating plant here. He brought his family to Canada from England to settle down in Trenton nine months ago. A second cousin, Ralph Pheasan, 219 Van Street, London, is the family's only relative living in Canada. Mrs. Oldfield's aunt, Mrs. Allison of Leeds, England, is flying here to be with her daughter and two grandchildren.

One of the Oldfield's closest friends in Trenton, Mrs. Gordon Brillinger, wife of a local mailman, said the Oldfields left Trenton at noon Sunday for a drive through the north part of the country. Mrs. Allison of Leeds, England, is flying here to be with her daughter and two grandchildren.

One of the Oldfield's closest friends in Trenton, Mrs. Gordon Brillinger, wife of a local mailman, said the Oldfields left Trenton at noon Sunday for a drive through the north part of the country. Mrs. Allison of Leeds, England, is flying here to be with her daughter and two grandchildren.

Police, according to Mrs. Brillinger, reported the accident happened around 4.00 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

RESCUE OLD COUPLE

PERRY, Alich. (AP)—Two elderly persons were trapped for two hours in their automobile under 20 tons of coal Monday when a semi-trailer truck loaded with coal toppled on the car. The load was sinking down on William Nichols, 74, and his wife, Agnes, 77, of Battle Creek, Mich., when a trucker hauling heavy timbers and carrying hydraulic jacks happened by.

Bowmanville Training School Boys Recaptured

TRENTON (Special) — Police Constable J. A. Graham, off duty early this morning, was driving near Stanley and Metcalfe Streets intersection when he noticed two boys carrying large packages. Suspecting that something was amiss, he brought them-to the station for questioning.

The boys, both 14, told police several different stories as to where they had obtained the sum of money and clothing in their possession.

Police found the two had escaped from Bowmanville Training School last Thursday night. They admitted breaking into the local Salvation Army hall and stealing several boxes of clothing and articles such as knives, forks, pots, and food. They also admitted theft of two windbreakers from a car parked near a garage at Bowmanville. They said they stole two pairs of denim pants and socks from a clothes line at a farm house on their Jeep East.

They admitted that at a small village on the highway, they watched a house owl evening with the housewife left in a car. Then they broke into the house, went through a dresser drawer and stole a sum of money, two watch and some small brooches.

The boys told police that one night they stopped in a church and on leaving took four hymn slides from a projector.

Of the $13.93 found on them, $13.80 came from the farm house they broke into near Port Hope and the remaining 43 pennies was the amount they had stolen from the Salvation Army at Trenton.

The boys were turned over to one of the officials of the Bowmanville Training School and are now back in the institution from which they escaped.

ULCERS BADGE OF HONOR

VICTORIA CP) — Conscientious people are prone to ulcers, Dr. F. B. Thomson of Vancouver told the B.C. division, Canadian Medical Association Friday. He said the ulcer is an employee badge of honor from the employer's viewpoint. The key to ulcer treatment, he added, is elimination of stress.

Booths TV Lose Twin Bill To Simcoe

Booth Radio-TV lost a twin bill to Simcoe pee-wees on Saturday in the OASA all-Ontario finals at Simcoe. The Booth boys put up a great battle but bowed 6-5 in the first game in one extra inning. That evened the series at a game each after Booth's victory here last week. Simcoe then took the title with a narrow 8-4 win in the deciding affair.

The Belleville team was treated like kings on their arrival in Simcoe. They were housed in private homes, turkey and drinks were sent to their dressing room, a special luncheon was given, free passes to the Simcoe fair were distributed. All in all the boys greatly enjoyed the trip despite their defeat in the titular series.

Ottawa Mother, Young Son Killed Near Actinolite

Six Others Hurt in Crash Taken to Belleville Hospital

A young Ottawa mother and her one-year-old son were instantly killed and six other persons are in Belleville General Hospital following a two-car crash Tuesday afternoon on No. 7 highway, four-and-a-half miles east of Actinolite.

Actinolite is 30 miles north of Belleville.

Killed in the crash which ripped the entire side out of a small German make car, were Mrs. Kenneth Ewing, 33, of 525 Bessemer St., Ottawa and her son Kenneth Jr.

In hospital at Belleville are Kenneth Ewing, 30, the dead woman's husband, two daughters, Joan, 8, who suffered a fractured skull and thigh, and Mary Jane, 3, and three passengers of the other auto.

In the second car were Oliver Blais, 47 Government Road, Kirkland Lake, driver of the car; Mrs. Mary Blais, Mrs. Margaret Morin, Miss Ellen Blais and Miss Lucille Richardson, all of Toronto. Mr. Blais escaped uninjured.

The morning hospital authorities stated that Joan, most seriously injured of the Ewing girls, appeared to be slightly improved.

The accident occurred about 2.30 p.m. on an almost straight stretch of highway. One side of the Ewing car was crushed in while the right side of the Blais vehicle was damaged.

DETAILS NOT SORTED OUT

Details of the accident had not been sorted out by police but it was believed the Ewing car was eastbound, while the Blais auto was proceeding west.

An American tourist, Don Linscott, asked that the long nasal echoes of Rutland, Mass., be added to the accident scene shortly after the mishap brought the two Ewing girls to hospital at Belleville while an Ottawa man brought Mr. Ewing to the city.

Occupants of the second car were brought to hospital by Bush's Ambulance Service, Inc. Mr. Bush of Tweed attended the injured at the scene of the accident. Provincial Police Corporal Douglas Sears and Constable T. Lummiss of Madoc, investigated.

Suez Settlement Hopes Centred On 3-Power Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—New hope for settling the Suez Canal dispute centred today on a British - French - Egyptian meeting in the office of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Representatives of the three countries agreed Tuesday night during a closed-door session of the UN Security Council to hold the meetings. The council decided to suspend session for three days to see if the three parties can work out privately a basis for negotiated agreement.

The secret council session followed three days of debate in which virtually no progress was made in bridging the gulf in opinions on who should control the vital waterway.

After Tuesday night's session of the 11-nation council, Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, grinning broadly, said he had "a feeling of optimism." Other delegates had no comment.

NO ONE BUDGED

During the three-day debate neither side budged an inch. British and French insist the canal should be placed under international control. Egypt, backed by Russia, says she cannot negotiate on any basis other than that which would leave her in control.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles narrowed the gap between the governments slightly by saying the heart of the problem centres on one thing—the principle of "insulating" the waterway against the influence of national politics.

If Egypt would accept this principle, he said, subsidiary questions could be resolved. But if that principle is repudiated, "then it is difficult to foresee a useful role for a negotiating body."

Today's Chuckle

Then there was the New Yorker who went crazy in the subway. All the pictures already had mustaches.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP)—Tuesday was a cold day in Canada from the Prairies eastward to the Maritimes. In Northern Ontario afternoon temperatures barely reached the 40-degree mark and in Southern Ontario only a few above 50 were reported. The highest was 54 at Belleville.

Today skies are generally cloudy over Ontario and Quebec. Sunrise have occurred in the North Bay and Kapuskasing regions. Temperatures are below freezing but a few localities such as Whitby River reported a drop to below 36 degrees.

Tonight clear skies and light winds will be favorable for frost throughout the province but the weather will moderate on Thursday when sunny skies are expected to accompany warmer southerly winds.

BRINKS BANDITS DRAW NATURAL LIFETIME TERMS

No Parole Consideration For at Least 20 Years

BOSTON (AP)—Eight men convicted of the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery for six years to life have been sentenced to a "natural lifetime" behind the massive concrete walls and the steel bars of Massachusetts State Prison.

Judge Felix Forte sentenced the men to the prison Tuesday "for the rest of their natural lives"—with no chance for parole consideration for at least 20 years.

Joseph P. McGinnis, 53, called by the prosecution the brains of history's biggest cash robbery, actually was given eight life terms—to be served concurrently with the mercury holdup armed robbery, plus eight to 10 years as an accessory before the fact for entering and 2½ to three years for receiving stolen goods.

Four other men were sentenced to life for armed robbery, eight to 20 years for unarmed robbery and two years for conspiracy—the latter sentence to be served in a house of correction after the state prison terms are completed.

Sentenced with McGinnis were: Anthony Pino, 47, truck driver who is Pino's brother-in-law; Adolph Maffie, 49, a Pino friend and salesman; Michael V. Geagan, 47, Somerville, and Thomas J. Richardson, 48, longshoreman; James I. Faherty, 44, bartender; and Henry E. Baker, 39, vending machine operator.

COUNSEL HEARD OUT

Judge Forte handed down the sentences after listening to defense counsel and the prosecutor before their suggestions on what they thought the penalties should be.

Paul T. Smith, chief defense counsel, asked that the long sentences be limited to 10 years, arguing that the defendants are all middle-aged and that no violence was used in the Jan. 17, 1950, robbery.

District Attorney Garrett F. Byrne argued that the "decent people of the community" deserve "the most severe possible protection" life sentences would give these potential murderers" life sentences would give these potential murderers" life sentences would give these potential murderers

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

STOLEN TRUCK ABANDONED IN CITY

A three-quarter ton truck, stolen at Kemptville on Saturday has been recovered by city police. The vehicle was abandoned in the rear yard at No. 1 West Moira Street, the owner of the property notifying police of the truck.

Fire Check List Is Distributed By Chamber

In conjunction with Fire Prevention Week which was proclaimed by Her Worship Mayor Forrester to be observed in Belleville this week, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce is distributing to its members a fire check list which was prepared by committee of the Electrical Contractors' Association of Canada.

Included in the list are 74 areas in single, multiple and apartment dwellings where combination electrical fire and life hazards exist. It covers buildings from top to bottom and includes not only common areas in a dwelling but ture where hidden wires may lay exposed to wood or other inflammable materials.

Secretary manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Robert G. Hamilton, urges all chamber members to make use of the list and that there be no fire casualties in the city this year.

Fires in wood areas are due directly or indirectly to faulty wiring installed by an amateur electrician—namely the man around the house.

The Association and the local Chamber of Commerce remind everyone that electrical work is complex. Therefore, if it is done by amateur or unqualified people, it can be dangerous. It should be qualified men to do electrical work in the home or business.

Each member of the Association is examined, qualified, registered and is bonded as an electrician.

For advice on wiring call on any inspector of the Ontario Hydro Commission, the local fire department inspector of all city business ialists, the Canadian Adequate Wiring Bureau, the Electrical Service League of Ontario, the municipal hydro office, or any qualified electrical contractor.

Council Agrees Rest of Year Will See Gradual Changeover To City Manager Government

With the city to adopt a full scale city manager type of municipal government next January, city council agreed last night that the remaining months of the year should be treated as a transitional period with a gradual changeover from the present committee system.

Following a lengthy discussion on the matter members voted to discontinue separate meetings of standing committees and instead have one meeting when the business of all committees will be discussed.

The alternate Monday from the dates on which regular council meetings are held was suggested for the meeting of the committee of the whole but it was agreed that the day for the meeting could be arranged to suit a majority of council.

ABANDON COMMITTEES

Council has agreed that standing committees will be discontinued on January although discussion last night indicated that all members were not agreeable to this move.

In tabling the recommendation to disband meetings of the present standing committees in favor of the one meeting of the committee of the whole, Alderman Gerald Hyde said that although he felt small committees were "more operative," nevertheless with the city manager form of government there should not be the number of business to come before council.

Alderman C. D. Tice was agreeable to "go along" with the plan but said he felt no council could operate without committee chairmen to assist in the work of the various departments.

"A city manager would have to be a superman to get along without the guidance of committee chairmen," he said.

WILL SAVE TIME

Alderman A. E. David said he heartily concurred in the move, noting that under the present system of separate committees the council as a whole was not too well informed at all city business. He felt the move would save time.

Alderman Dr. John Stock also agreed in principle but felt more consideration should be given to the day of the proposed meetings as many addressed mail, no doubt arranged evening schedules.

Alderman Leonard Wright was opposed to any changes, claiming the move would only mean there would be a gradual change-over from the present committee system.

Following a lengthy discussion on the matter members voted to discontinue separate meetings of standing committees and instead have one meeting when the business of all committees will be discussed.

The alternate Monday from the dates on which regular council meetings are held was suggested for the meeting of the committee of the whole but it was agreed that the day for the meeting could be arranged to suit a majority of council.

ABANDON COMMITTEES

Council has agreed that standing committees will be discontinued on January although discussion last night indicated that all members were not agreeable to this move.

In tabling the recommendation to disband meetings of the present standing committees in favor of the one meeting of the committee of the whole, Alderman Gerald Hyde said that although he felt small committees were "more operative," nevertheless with the city manager form of government there should not be the number of business to come before council.

Alderman C. D. Tice was agreeable to "go along" with the plan but said he felt no council could operate without committee chairmen to assist in the work of the various departments.

"A city manager would have to be a superman to get along without the guidance of committee chairmen," he said.

WILL SAVE TIME

Alderman A. E. David said he heartily concurred in the move, noting that under the present system of separate committees the council as a whole was not too well informed at all city business. He felt the move would save time.

Alderman Dr. John Stock also agreed in principle but felt more consideration should be given to

Whole Concept of Industry Changing Kiwanis Club Told

In addressing the weekly meeting of Belleville Kiwanis Club yesterday, guest speaker Mr. Bud Punchard, plant manager of Northern Electric, told his audience that "we are in the shadow of a second industrial revolution" because the whole concept of industry is rapidly changing with the addition of servomechanisms, special sensing devices on machines, the increasing use of electrical power and the development of high speed electronic equipment.

Mr. Punchard, who is vice-president of Kiwanis here, briefly outlined the advantages of having a completely automatic factory to replace many men in industry. "Machines," he said, "can work 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year, barring a breakdown, whereas man generally works but an eight-hour day, five days a week and is given two weeks vacation each year in addition to periodic statutory holidays."

"The day of the robot is here," said the speaker.

With modern machinery, refrigerating specially in electronic computers and lathes, more work can be done by the hour in much shorter time than many men could do in a much longer time. At the present time, he claims, the public is only being smeared in mass production but in a few years when complete automation becomes a reality — the public will be drowned in it.

The only reason the second Industrial Revolution is not in existence is because "we haven't yet lived through the ideal machinery."

Mr. Punchard added that years from now, perhaps hundreds of years, complete automation factories will be operating without the aid of a single worker or man. But, he asserted, although plants may be set up which will run by the push of a switch, this will create a demand for more and better engineers, technicians and other skilled workers. Therefore, the adults of tomorrow should make every effort to get a university education.

To illustrate the development of electronic computers Mr. Punchard told of a machine at U. S. Steel which last year predicted accurately, the winning team and the margin of four out of six league football games.

Introduced by Stuart Robb, the speaker was thanked by Jim Musgrove.

Bill Riley, Belleville photographer, and Don Cresswell, manager of Dorey's Metro Wear store here, were inducted into Kiwanis by Harry Kells and welcomed by President Al Drysdale.

Navy League Forming Cadet Corps in City

Here is something that will interest boys in the 12-14-year age group.

For the first time in the history of Belleville the Navy League of Canada is organizing a cadet corps in this city which will be under the supervision of Sea Cadets of RCSCC Quinte at their headquarters on South Front St.

First meeting is tomorrow night at the headquarters at 7 p.m. and will be every week. Each succeeding Thursday night the corps will meet at the same time and at the same place.

This is the opportunity of a lifetime for boys in their last few years of public school and for those in the first few years at high school.

When boys reach the age of 15 years they will be eligible to enrol in the Sea Cadet Corps with a decided advantage over lads coming into the corps "off the street."

So, if any boy has the desire to "go down to the sea in ships," and wear a facsimile of the uniform worn by men of the Royal Canadian Navy, here is his chance.

Remember Tomorrow night at seven at the Sea Cadet headquarters on South Front St.

General announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Authorize Engineering Firm To Prepare Sewage Disposal Plans for City and Suburbs

A motion to have sewage disposal and drainage plans prepared for Belleville and the area proposed to be annexed to the city was approved by city council last evening.

The recommendation, tabled by Alderman C. L. Hyde, authorizes the consulting engineering firm of Gore and Storrie to prepare the necessary drainage plans at a cost not to exceed $3,500.

Cost of the plans would be paid 25 per cent by the city, 25 per cent by Thurlow and 10 per cent by Sidney township.

Alderman Keegan, as chairman of planning, said this was the most important thing which the city could do this year, as proper sewage disposal was one of the first requirements of industry intending to locate in a smaller centre.

He noted that the plans were required by June 1957 and that the municipality must be prepared to finance $1,750,000.

DEFEATED EARLIER

Although last night carried by a 12-1 recorded vote, the motion previously had been defeated and defeated in council. Last night the motion was carried when four new council members who had originally opposed the recommendation. Council members who voted last night for indigent burials to $95 for adults and $50 for children under 12. The new scale ranges down to $17 for indigent stillborn infants.

Alderman Percy Mack, as chairman of welfare, stated there had been no increase since May of Quinte Funeral Directors' Association for allowances for indigent burial rates from the present $75 to $150. The scale suggested by the association is the same as in Kingston, he said.

FILE RESOLUTION

City council wanted nothing to do with a Woodstock resolution petitioning the Ontario government to amend section 4 of section in the statutes calling on city councils to pay out certain funds to the extent 75 per cent of the merchants in one line of business ask for special consideration.

Alderman Enos David said such a resolution was unfair, as it did not see anything wrong with the present regulation which he thought was fair.

Alderman Graham noted the resolution was a controversial question and said this was not the proper time for such a resolution to come before council. He moved the resolution be filed and counted the recorded vote. A recorded vote.

A special committee consisting of Aldermen Art Keegan, Ben Safe and Gerald Hyde with city solicitor Harold Hamilton and Properties Manager O. H. Scott was named to meet with a meeting of the Ontario Resources Commission at Toronto on October 24. Reeves of Thurlow and Sidney townships will also be asked to attend.

GIVE JUVENILES $60

Council voted $60 to the Belleville Juvenile "B" baseball team which won the provincial title in a playoff series with Sarnia two weeks ago. The money will be used to assist in defraying the cost of a banquet for the team members.

Tenders for certain repair work at the Corby Public Library will be called, with Alderman C. D. Tice, property committee chairman and city manager Desmond Herring authorized to open same and award contracts if the prices are considered reasonable. Still was told the repair work, consisting of installation of eaves, troughs and drains as well as basement repairs, was urgent.

Council voted $300 to the city fire department to assist in defraying expenses of the Santa Claus Parade and also approved of the request of the Belleville Kinsmen Club for October 30th to be recognized as Gibraltar Day. A naval band will visit the city on that day and a parade will be held.

DRAINAGE PROBLEM

The city will seek to hold the Ontario Department of Highways responsible if added sewage is forced down into the city as result of the construction of No. 401 highway, it was decided last night.

It was pointed out that if extra water did come down through Coleman Flats because of the 401 highway construction it would cause flooding at the Moira St. and Bridge St. sewage lagoons, creating a serious problem.

Princess Visits Tanganyika Town

TANGA, Tanganyika (Reuters) —Princess Margaret arrived today for a one-day visit to Tanga, second largest town in Britain's East African trusteeship territory.

Nearly the entire 10,000 population lined the streets from the airport to cheer the princess as her car passed under arches decorated with big giraffes — emblem of Tanganyika—bearing the words "Karibu Mukuta"—"welcome great lady" in Swahili.

3 Tons of Salk Vaccine Arrive For Distribution

TORONTO (CP)—Three tons of commercial Salk polio vaccine arrived from the United States Tuesday. Part of the shipment was sent to local drug stores and the rest trans-shipped to other Canadian cities.

It was the first large quantity of polio vaccine to be imported into Canada. A nine-dose vial of the serum will cost about $12.

The serum, valued at several hundred thousand dollars, was imported by Eli Lilly Company (Canada) Ltd., which received an import licence from the federal government last month after two months' testing the vaccine in Ottawa laboratories.

Until now, all polio vaccine used in Canada has been produced at Toronto's Connaught Medical Research Laboratories, except for some imported test batches last year.

O. W Funk, manager of the importing firm, said there will be no rationing of the serum. Retail price is a matter between physician and patient but a prescription for a nine-dose vial from the druggist will cost about $12, he said.

Mr. Funk said the vaccine must be administered by a doctor.

The serum will be distributed at regional centres in Canada, including London, Hamilton, Fort William, Ottawa and Toronto.

Truck Driver Wounded in Foot By Two Bandits

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two masked gunmen shot and wounded a British American Oil Company truck driver in an attempted robbery Tuesday night of the company's warehouse.

Leslie Everingham, 45, was slugged from behind about 8 p.m. as he was loading a truck. As he got up after the blow one of the men shot him through the left foot.

They dragged Everingham into a warehouse and ordered him to open a safe. He did not know the combination.

The men then tied him with cord and left him lying on the floor. After a few minutes he was able to break loose and staggered to a nearby home to call police.

Long Sault Canal Strike Settled

MASSENA, N.Y (AP)—Workers were expected to return today to the Long Sault Canal project on the American side of the St. Lawrence River.

The Union of Operating Engineers reported Tuesday night that a strike which began Monday had been settled tentatively, and that additional talks were scheduled today with representatives of the contractor — Morris - Knudsen and Peter Kiewit and Sons.

The union said the workers left their jobs because a union steward had been "fired for performing his union duties." Neither the steward nor the duties were further described.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, THEY HUNTED

Yugoslavia's president Marshal Tito, left, and Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev look serious as they were deer hunting in Crimea. Mysterious circumstances surrounded their trip there, Kruschev and Tito were holding secret talks in Yugoslavia when they suddenly flew to Krushchev's villa at Yalta on the Black Sea. The Soviet press reported that the talks being held were purely social, but unofficial reports say a much different version. As to the outcome of the talks, even the rumor mills have not turned out a comprehensive account. Tito has returned to Belgrade on Friday and isolated himself in his white palace residence. Queen of Iran Says Divorce Out of Question

ROME (AP)—Queen Soraya of Iran denied with a show of deep feeling Tuesday that she is about to be divorced or that she had come to Europe to consult doctors about her childless state.

"The shah loves me as much as I love him and we will never be divorced," she said.

The queen, 24, normally does not speak for publication. But she received a reporter Tuesday because she said she had been deeply disturbed by stories in European papers asserting that, because she is childless, handsome Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi is thinking of divorcing her. She said she hoped the interview would end the rumors "once and for all."

"The published reports simply are distorting," she said "They are pure fancy, without any basis in fact. If we do not yet have children, it is because we feel the time has not yet come for them."

Prohibition Only Act to Reduce Alcoholism Much

TORONTO (CP) — Prohibition was the only public act in modern times which did much to reduce alcoholism, Dr. J. K. W. Ferguson, director of Connaught medical research laboratories, said Tuesday night.

"It seems that most of us don't want to abolish the problem of alcoholism at any cost," Dr. Ferguson told the annual meeting of the national states conference on alcoholism. "We would rather live with it, particularly when for most of us it is somebody else's problem."

Dr. Ferguson, chairman of the medical advisory board of the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario, said progress is notable, painful and slow in research on causes of alcoholism.

"Perhaps," he said, "we really don't want to face the controversial issues which immediately present themselves. At this stage of our history, most people are reluctant to look hard at the one necessary causal factor, access to alcohol."

Eisenhower Seeking to Win U.S. Labor Vote

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower carried his campaign into the industrial city of Pittsburgh, apparently seeking to break the traditional Democratic hold on the prized labor vote in the United States November election.

In a Tuesday night stand in the heavily - populated key state of Pennsylvania, the president trotted out the record of his four years of administration and lavished it generously with references to the benefits American labor has gained under Republican rule.

American labor has supported the Democratic party for the last quarter-century and this year's Democratic ticket, headed by presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson, has the endorsement of the powerful AFL-CIO, which claims a membership of 15,000,000. Democratic candidates also have the support of other important segments of the labor movement, including John Lewis' independent United Mine Workers.

Eisenhower also was striving to keep Pennsylvania, which gave him 52.7 per cent of its popular vote in 1952, within the Republican column.

Latest public opinion polls, meantime, indicate Eisenhower still holds the edge in popular voting strength.

A Gallup poll published today showed that 52 per cent of those persons interviewed were prepared to vote for Eisenhower, with 39 per cent for Stevenson. Eight per cent were undecided. This compared with 52 per cent for Eisenhower, 41 per cent for Stevenson, and seven per cent undecided in a poll published Sept. 26.

British Papers Urge Reservists Be Demobilized

LONDON. (Reuters) — Several mass-circulation British newspapers are demanding that the government demobilize reservists who were recalled for the Suez crisis.

Other newspapers declare that the men should remain where they are, but that the need for their service should be adequately explained to them.

The comments followed an announcement Tuesday night from the office of Prime Minister Eden which said it was still necessary to retain the reservists on active service. The announcement came after disclosures of unrest among reservists in Malta, Cyprus and home base.

The announcement said that the recall of the reservists "formed part of the precautionary measures which the government felt it their duty to take in connection with the emergency created by Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal."

The statement added that the emergency has not been resolved "and the government regrets that the situation does not warrant the release of any of those who have been recalled." But "no man will be kept any longer than is justified by the operation requirements of the time."

CHINESE STAGE RIOTS

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Police of Hong Kong's riot squad today used tear gas to quell an outbreak of fighting caused by pro-nationalist Chinese celebrating their national day. At least 10 persons, including several policemen, were injured during the clash in a refugee resettlement area.

Dangerous Crisis Facing UN Says Morrison

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)— The United Nations itself faces a "dangerous crisis" in dealing with the Suez Canal crisis, Herbert Morrison, British member of Parliament and former deputy leader of the Labor party, said Tuesday night.

"I want the United Nations to succeed," he said. "If it is not to develop the weaknesses of the old League of Nations it must make a just decision about this and similar problems."

Mr. Morrison, the first of a series of lectures scheduled this year by St. Catharines community lecture series, he said the UN's Suez decision must be both "clear and intelligible" otherwise the organization will be seriously weakened.

"Egyptian President Nasser's action in nationalizing the canal is one of a series of unilateral repudiations by Middle Eastern nations of international agreements" he said.

Mr. Morrison said that by a "dictatorial act" an international company has been suddenly put under control of one country. This was in fact an act of aggression, he said.

Havelock Plant Will Open Oct. 16

TORONTO. (CP) —International Minerals and Chemical Corp. Canada Ltd., will open its new nepheline syenite plant Oct. 16. The plant is located north of Havelock, about 20 miles east of Peterborough.

Nepheline syenite is widely used in the manufacture of glass and tile. The Havelock deposit is described as the largest yet discovered in Canada and the only one being mined on a large scale.

Piece of Ham Costs Railroad Total of $104,000

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP)—A case involving a piece of ham will now cost the Pennsylvania Railroad $104,000 instead of $60,000.

The $104,000 was awarded to 69-year-old former dining car steward Carl Jorgensen of Elizabeth Tuesday, as the railroad lost an appeal of an earlier verdict which granted Jorgensen $30,000.

The decision was rendered by a Superior Court jury, which awarded Jorgensen the damages for false imprisonment, libel, slander and breach of contract.

Jorgensen had been accused by the railroad of taking a piece of ham from a train parked at New York terminal on June 16, 1953. A railroad detective contended he found the piece of ham wrapped in a newspaper napkin in Jorgensen's personal bag.

The former steward said, however, that he was walking to the dining car refrigerator with the ham in his hand when the detective accosted him. Jorgensen said also that he was taken to the Pennsylvania Railroad office in New York, held for two hours, and finally signed a resignation in order to leave.

Afterwards he sued the railroad.

A LULL IN THE YEAR'S OCCUPATIONS

Peace - - it's wonderful!

By now, most of us have fully recovered from the hustle and bustle of the Thanksgiving holiday, when everybody is trying to have every last fling at summer and prepare for winter, all in the same holiday weekend.

No more holidays until Christmas—and isn't it a wonderful feeling? Not, of course, because there are no more holidays, but because the arrival of the post-Thanksgiving period always lets us know that a lull has come in the hectic pace of events, which chase us through the summer and into the fall.

For one thing, the World Series is due to end today and that peculiar form of madness which disrupts office, factory and store every year in the early days of October is receding. There are still a few arguments going on, a few bets to be paid off, but for most of us the 1956 Dodger-Yankee clash is just a memory.

Then, too, there are other changes in our seasonal activities which tend to reduce the pressure for our spare-time hours. This is the last week during which it will be legal to fish for bass and muskellunge, by this time next week rod and reel will be tucked away until spring, unless the owner desires to take a few more late-season casts for pike and pickerel.

Replacing the fishing fever is the hunting yen, but this is calming down after that opening-day wave. The duck season is now over a week old and the partridge have had their tail-feathers disturbed by the first volley of 7½ shot reaching out for them in thicket or on sunny road. The deer hunters have their guns all oiled and their gear sorted by this time.

Around the house, too, there has been a sudden change. The garden got a quick going over some time between the World Series games, the partridge hunts and the last fishing trips. It begins to look as though it was ready to face another winter, without suffering unduly from exposure. There are a few odd things which need to be done, but they will not require too much time. Once the leaves come fluttering down in earnest, they can be raked into protective piles over the roots of the perennials.

Down in the basement, the storm windows stand waiting for the call to duty. Some of them have already been cleaned and puttied and in the upper storeys of the house where the heat is supplied by small self-satisfied smile which has been earned by stern self-denial over the weekend. His storm windows are already in place. That smile may fade a little during the coming weeks, if the weather turns unseasonably warm and the flies become unreasonably active, leading the lady of the house to mourn for the screens, now neatly tucked away behind the furnace.

All in all, though, the situation is well in hand on all fronts and we can settle back to wait for the arrival of the snow and the start of the winter season.

Peace - - it's wonderful.

LET'S PRODUCE OUR OWN VACCINE

Announcement that Canada's supply of the Salk polio vaccine may eventually come from commercial establishments in the United States will be received by many Canadians with mixed feelings.

Almost all the vaccine used in Canada has been produced by the Connaught Laboratories at Toronto. Early last year some small amounts of vaccine were imported from the United States, but these importations were stopped when it was discovered that some defective supplies had entered the market in the U.S. The Montreal Institute of Microbiology began supplying vaccine this week and, fall, supplementing the supply from the Connaught Laboratories.

Canada's record in the handling of the Salk vaccine has been an eminently satisfactory one. There has never been any suggestion that any of the vaccine produced in Canada infected children with polio, instead of protecting them from it.

Why, then, one might ask, should our dependence on domestic supplies of the vaccine be ended?

The Connaught Medical Research Laboratories and the Montreal Institute of Microbiology have been subsidized to produce the vaccine. If this vaccine can be obtained from commercial sources, these laboratories will be able to devote their facilities to other fields of medical research. It is highly desirable that they should be free to do so. But it is desirable that Canada should depend for such a vitally important commodity as the Salk vaccine on imports from a foreign country, ever, if that foreign county is our neighbor and most dependable friend?

Under the circumstances, we believe that Canada would prefer that Canada should make every effort to supply ourselves, so that we shall not find ourselves in the embarrassing position of having to plead for consideration of our needs in the event of any future crisis.

It should not be beyond our ability to release the scientists in the Connaught and Montreal laboratories for other research, and produce enough Salk vaccine to meet our needs, either in Canadian commercial laboratories or, if necessary, in government operated or subsidized laboratories.

MERELY HIS WIFE

In Chicago a man who set a fire which took the lives of five persons has "explained" his action.

He had a quarrel with his wife. She fled from their apartment. He went looking for her. He thought he saw her cowering in a stairwell. So he dropped a lighted match into the rubbish in which he believed she was hiding.

Next case!

Perhaps, with the hunting season starting, it will be something on the "I didn't know it was loaded," or "I mistook him for a duck" theme.

THE "SHOOTER"

Very fair she seems to be,
Capped and gowned and shod in white,
Thumb and finger pinching me
For her hypo, and not charmed
By her I am not charmed
When she comes with "shotter" armed.

With that 'shotter' in her hand,
Round the clock the whole day through,
Pinch and jab is what she'll do.

"Turn," I hear her gently say;
Meant to comfort, I suppose,
Then she'll quickly find the way
Where the loaded "shotter" goes.

"I like Nurse," our Terry said,
"If a few feel off she'll stand,
But I don't like her by my bed
That."

Then my old gray head she'll pat,

Does Lawn Need Mowing?

New York Times

There is a matter of the utmost gravity to be considered along about now. It is whether to let the grass once again, or to ignore it until the spring. Like most grave problems, this one can be studied at length with tentative decisions being reversible from day to day. By and large, the arguments for both sides carry about equal weight. Those on behalf of a final cutting note that leaf raking is easier on typical lawn grass, and in addition the lawn will go into the winter looking fully groomed. Those against point out that if the place were occupied summer only, the lawn would be no one around after Labor Day to attend to the mowing, so the great would not be cut. Of the persons in the house, those who take no practical part in cutting the grass have a dismal habit of siding with the first group, while the gardener finds himself taken the view that a time of running wild will do the lawn no harm, and that new grass will be up in the spring, just the same. Neither point of view, however, has been able to persuade the other into adopting a reasonable point of view.

* * *

Since the, doctrine of another cutting is sponsored mainly by those who do the work, its arguments on that side deserve no further annotation. However, something further may be added on behalf of the solitary believer in the last mowing. The gardener's life is a solitary vice crying in the wilderness, a plaintive voice in chickenwire, and he needs all the morale bolstering he can get. It is quite true, as he says, that very few places a summer home only the grass would not be cut and no one would be the wiser. Unfortunately, it also is true that the place is not just used in the summer, since for the autumn's passers-by will see not only last year's grasses in the yard but lights in the house. The cutter, therefore, must assign good and practical reasons for deliberately not cutting. If he is at all adept at this, he may even persuade you that non-cutting now is a positive form of cultivation. At any rate he can try, and at this time of the autumn he does.

* * *

There is no need for the lawn mower to point out certain reasons for not cutting the grass further. These, of course, are all valid, yet as arguments they do not sound too well in context. Among these are the facts that the world series is coming up and the football season is starting, and so there are better things to do than cut the grass. It also is true that after a summer of chewing away at plus cones, sticks of wood, bones dropped by the dog and discarded toys, the mower is so nicked as to be unworkable. It could be sharpened, yet, but why this late in the game?

* * *

Valid as they are, those reasons may remain unspoken. It may properly be pointed out, however, that to clip the grass too short in dry weather might kill it. No one can say for a fact that this will be an extraordinarily dry fall. Against the argument that leaves complain if the gardener uses the rake, there may be offered the theory that it is best not to rake them. It is believed by the grass-cutting old husbands of the old wives who tell tales that the earth is enriched each winter by the substance of fallen leaves, so gather them up at all would thus deprive the lawn of nourishment as well as exercise several Saturday afternoons. Finally, an unanswerable argument can be based right at the non-cutters themselves. In order to put away summer things, and get out the woolens, they packed away the lightweight clothes used when mowing the lawn. Naturally no one would be seen in public dressed like a lumberjack.

Teachers Lose To Schoolboy

BBO London Letter

It is always a pleasant experience for a schoolboy to find that he knows more than the teachers, and recently eighteen-year-old Antony Carr of Mesnal Bridge, Aspley, who left grammar school, left school, defeated two schoolteachers, Mr. Martin Dakin and Mr. Arthur Maddocks, in a spectacular edition of the general knowledge program, "What Do You Know?" by scoring twenty-four points to their twenty-two respectively. The program, which is broadcast to listeners in the Midland area, is under the able present producer, Joan Clark, and is also popular for one of the other BBC quiz and general knowledge programs, including the phenomenally successful "Brain of Britain," which was broadcast in the BBC's General Overseas Service. Incidentally, Mr. Dakin had been the winner in "Brain of Britain" in March, 1955. Antony's final victory brought him a diploma from the BBC as "The Brain of Aspley," and a £5 record voucher, lit the spending of which the Aspley laboratories had chosen Beethoven's Symphonies No. 5 and No. 8, the first part of "The Barber of Seville," and the Goons crazy and popular record "The Ying Tong Song" "Songs of Christmas."

Antony, who does a newspaper round in his own locality and is hoping to go to the university the best part of the time of his childhood in the Falkland Islands, where his father was in business in Nigeria, was serving in the British Colonial Service.

Like most boys, he had a poor memory for faces and sometimes that for names, but remembered, he said, he had always had the type c brain that remembers "unless scraps of information." Hence he had no difficulty in differentiating between a gamin (a kind of antelope) and a gabelle (an old French tax on salt); in stating that Mercutio's folio of Shakespeare's plays published in 1623 contained all the plays except "Pericles, Prince of Tyre," and that the first cricket club in England was founded at Broadhalfpenny Down, Hambledon in Hampshire. The questions are set by John P. Wynn, who admitted that the idea for the program, and the job involves a great deal of research and study. It was hardly surprising that some of the questions defeated all the contestants, for instance, name of the outside of a locked door, the Latin for being on the inside, or alternatively the name of an American marmoset. It was new to them that "tamegan" might well appear on the menu in the Isle of Man, that this is the Manx name for scallops; and one the dollar sign of a capital ? with two vertical lines through it is a development of a capital P and small b used in Mexico to designate "peso" and adopted by American settlers.

Can Charm Warts Away

Louisville Courier-Journal

Our men of medical science are gradually catching up with those in woods medicine and barnyard science. Encouraging evidence of progress was revealed in the recent speech of Dr. Roy Kile to the American Medical Association in which he said that the power to cure by suggestion is "as dramatic a medical weapon as we have as with any disease we know."

What a lot of time we have spent trying to say was that warts can be charmed away. Any farm boy worth a hill of turnip seed could have told him that years ago.

Doctors have learned in the time that medicine was a poor way to get rid of warts. Dr. Lewis Thomas Terrell, for 1951, Dr. Stephan Epstein declared that "the quickest way to get warts on children was psychotherapy (big word for power of suggestion, or charming them off)."

Said Dr. Epstein:

"The warts are painted with a one percent alcoholic solution of gentian violet and then covered with the electronic war fluid," in front of the child. The old spark gap diathermy machine is used to make such noise as the wide spark gaps will provide. Naturally, the electrode is not connected to the machine, but it is made to appear as if it were. The child is assured that the treatment will probably be given three to four weeks. Only in few cases is a second treatment necessary."

That's all right if you happen to have a diathermy machine and a stock of gentian violet on hand, but any small town boy with a horse hair and a handy stump can do as well, if not better.

Huckleberry Finn had an elaborate procedure that entailed dead cats and midnight graveyards.

Some people still prefer rubbing the warts with buckeyes and paw-paw leaves. And there are some who claim that the warts must be held in stump water at night until a boat owl calls.

The genuine cure, and one respected by any man who grew up outside the benighting confines of a city, consists of taking a hair from the tail of a horse, soaking it in stump water and tying it around the wart. Before the hair rots, the wart will dry up and dry off.

Third Degree Opinion Poll

Ottawa Journal

The CNR has had assembled a rather disconcerting report on the United States tourist's attitude to Canada revealing the startling fact that we don't have enough first-class food and accommodations that Canada isn't different enough to be exciting and that there's nowhere to go for fun in the evening.

This, naturally, is good for us, but we were shaken by what Mr. W. R. Wright, CNR director of public relations, had about the method used in gathering this view of Canada:

"The main tool of our motivation survey was what the psychologists call the depth interview. It is a conversation stimulated by a trained interviewer along pre-defined lines and usually lasting, in our case, for over an hour. In addition other well-recognized psychological test techniques were employed. The data thus assembled were studied and assessed by trained psychologists".

If someone talked to us for an hour about us beating towards the Riviera or even Banff, probably into our subconscious mind stirring the cold ashes of memory, we'd be either befuddled and hostile and our evidence would not be worth a hoot even if we were laid on a psychiatrist's couch.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINGS EASILY LOST

It's the alert who win battles. But how easily a battle can be lost! Napoleon said that the reason why he had been beaten was that "they did not know the value of five minutes"! Later some authorities state that why Napoleon lost at Waterloo was that he slept too late, allowing re-enforcements to arrive that gave victory to Wellington. One thing is certain, Napoleon's magic power had ebbed. Great battles have been lost, easily, by inertness.

How many times the neglect of a friend has caused us to lose him, perhaps not just the time when we needed him most. Break a person's spirit and you lose that person, too. I was told of a man, in the early Western mining days, who built a great mansion in Denver. I think it was. Never knowing anything about books, he hired a man to buy enough to fill the elaborate library he had built in that mansion. But that library was useless to him, for long before he had lost all interest in books, while piling up a great fortune.

Rare fortune with which most of us are born, soon leave us if not developed. Our interest in useful things ebbs away if that interest is not kept warm and alive. Practice is what makes the great musician. All that talent can easily lie but unheat it is cultivated and given growth every day. How easy it is for us to lose love for beautiful things by not paying attention to them and learning to "feast" on their lasting appeal.

A chapter in one of my interesting books has this line as the heading: "I Found It Again." I thought of this line when I read in my newspaper of the passing of a dear friend so suddenly that I wasn't expecting it. There is so much in life that is easily lost.

Farm Investment

Simcoe Reformer

A young farmer starting today requires an original capital outlay of approximately $30,000. This amount is as great a capital expenditure as most small industrialists require. It seems to us that the farmer of today is as much a businessman as is the manufacturer.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

The Golden Rule of Personal Hygiene

After all, the stin..... the individual who evinces indignation or resentment when you try to dodge his conversation, sneeze, or cough spray merely shows his ignorance.

It is quite true that a considerable proportion of acute coryza, with sneezing, watery running at the eyes, stuffiness of the face, and other manifestations such as we associate with C R I (three, common respiratory infection) comes from allergy and not communicable at all. From the estimates made by physicians who have studied allergy extensively, it seems fair to assume that from 3 to 5 cases in a hundred are of this nature—cases of murious C R I, sinusitis, hay fever.

But human nature being what it is, a person who is absolutely certain his coryza is just an allegic reaction cannot expect that everybody will take his word for it. He must go along with the conviction that whatever he has got may be communicable, if he is willing to remain isolated until the spell is over. If he insists on attending school, a card party, or a meeting of the board meeting, it would be insufferable of him to complain if some persons chose to dodge his conversation spray.

In view of the indisputable fact that C R I (here, common respiratory infection) is responsible for three-fourths of the everyday work of physicians, the prevention of such infection is the paramount factor of national well-being.

But as long as doctors and folks cling to the quaint belief that "exposure" to cold, damp, etc. causes disease, respiratory infection will probably continues to keep the doctors busy.

The prevention of respiratory infection is essentially a personal matter. It depends on the golden rule of hygiene. For even if you don't know or care just what germs you've got, it is only fair to warn others who may come within spray range that if you have communicable, you say: "I've taken cold," you are trying to disseminate your illness to your friends or associates. On the other hand, if you live by the golden rule you'll say: "I don't know yet just what I've got —an allergic reaction or my old sinus trouble, maybe, but until we can be sure about it, we'll call it C R I, and thus give every one fair warning to keep that distance."

After all, it can do no great harm to anyone to keep at least five feet from a suspect, or if you are approaching within two or three feet to wear a mask for a few hours—not necessarily an ugly, frightful "men in white" type of mauve or chocolate gauze affair, but a good looking, transparent, comfortable Silvers mask.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MISSION OF MERCY

In the high Himalayas between Pakistan and China is a region called Hunza. Here the primitive people every year come within a hair's breadth of starvation. There is no starvation as we know it, apparently no hope. But right across the border the communists are building schools, hospitals and factories and at least keep the inhabitants from starvation.

Naturally it was hard for the Hunzas to resist communism. But Clark, an American geologist, decided in 1949 that he would go as a self-appointed, self-financed agent and assist these people. He taught them how to manufacture simple articles, improve their agricultural methods, and stepped up every aspect of their native crafts.

Clark was there only two years but when he left the people lined the roads for six miles, shook his hand heartily, and in every way tried to express their gratitude. Sometimes as we look at human life we feel people think about practically nothing but filling their own comfort, feed their indulgences, and allow them to be their friends or associates. But there are John Clarks in the world. There always have been and there always will be. They are God's little points of light in a realm of darkness. They are cheery voices of hope in a maelstrom of despair. They are people who put hands, feet, and heart to work to the benefit of their fellow men and to the glory of God.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As regards the new hat styles for the ladies, it is my sly opinion that every few years the dress dictators decree a hat will look funny thirty years from now in anaphot albums. And this is one of the years.

Fashion dictators are doubtless normal, happy human beings, both men and women, who have a sense of humour like most other people. We think of them as being in their salons. But they have to go home to supper, like the rest of us, and then they sit around their fireside at TV or reading or gassing, like the rest of us. And it stands to reason that, as they sit watching our time away, like the rest of us, they occasionally get an inspiration that leads to laughter. I would say was that warts can be charmed away. Any farm boy worth a hill of turnip seed could have told him that years ago.

Doctors have learned in the time that medicine was a poor way to get rid of warts. Dr. Lewis Thomas Terrell for 1951, Dr. Stephan Epstein declared that "the quickest way to get warts on children was psychotherapy (big word for power of suggestion, or charming them off)."

Said Dr. Epstein:

"The warts are painted with a one percent alcoholic solution of gentian violet and then covered with the electronic war fluid," in front of the child. The old spark gap diathermy machine is used to make such noise as the wide spark gaps will provide. Naturally, the electrode is not connected to the machine, but it is made to appear as if it were. The child is assured that the treatment will probably be given three to four weeks. Only in few cases is a second treatment necessary."

That's all right if you happen to have a diathermy machine and a stock of gentian violet on hand, but any small town boy with a horse hair and a handy stump can do as well, if not better.

Huckleberry Finn had an elaborate procedure that entailed dead cats and midnight graveyards.

Some people still prefer rubbing the warts with buckeyes and paw-paw leaves. And there are some who claim that the warts must be held in stump water at night until a boat owl calls.

The genuine cure, and one respected by any man who grew up outside the benighting confines of a city, consists of taking a hair from the tail of a horse, soaking it in stump water and tying it around the wart. Before the hair rots, the wart will dry up and dry off.

And out of it come these pots, pans, utensils, receptacles, bags, sacks, packsacks, satchels, hampers, vessels, rucksacks and turkeys the latest kind of thing that is supposed to be wearing, in the name of fashion.

Now, most of the ladies do not fall for the new fashions. They just take a look at them. That is true. They even try them on. But ninety per cent of them, when they get home, put very slightly different from the one they had last year. And the result closely different from the one they had last year. And the result is something of the late Queen Mary in all women over thirty. They are all alike.

This is proven by the fact that as you walk the crowded downtown streets, you will see hundreds of women, but only one per block that is wearing the wearing pots or upside-down salad bowls on their heads. Of course, when you get into the specialized areas of teas, receptions, cocktail parties and other gatherings of a social sort, you will find the ladies intensify their whimsy or their shirtishness run free. But that is in the same category as not going sun up back to go hunting.

Let us hope that all the ladies who have put gruesome cockers on their heads this season will not forget to have some snapshots made of themselves in 1980.

Skeleton in Algonquin Park May Be That of Tom Thomson, One of Canada's Top Artists

TORONTO (CP)—An amateur artist who investigated an old rumor says a skeleton dug up in an unmarked Algonquin Park grave may be that of Tom Thomson, one of Canada's foremost painters, who died 39 years ago.

Official records say Thomson was buried near Dwen Sound, where he spent his early childhood. However, other reports say the body was never moved from its Algonquin Park burial place.

William Little, superintendent at the Ontario Reformatory at nearby Brampton, said Tuesday night he and three other men found the bones 10 days ago in a wilderness grave on a hill overlooking picturesque Canoe Lake. There was a hole in the skull.

The 39-year-old painter was officially reported to have been drowned in Canoe Lake in July and buried on a hilltop. The body later was ordered moved to Leith, near Owen Sound.

But Mr. Little said he had been told 25 years ago that Thomson's body was never transferred from its original grave beside a big birch tree.

CHECKING REMAINS

"There are people who say Thomson met with foul play," Mr. Little said. "We are not sure yet whether they are Thomson's remains. The attorney-general's department is checking."

Mr. Little said he attended that Ranger Mark Robinson, who investigated the painter's death, said the body was not moved to the church cemetery at Leith; that the undertaker hired to transfer the body took an empty coffin to the new grave.

The Globe and Mail says in a copyrighted story datelined Algonquin Park that the find may "answer the riddle" of Thomson's death. It adds:

"The death of Thomson . . . has been a mystery of the Canadian art world for nearly four decades."

Thomson's fame as an artist is widespread despite the fact he had been painting seriously for only three years before he died. Among his best known paintings are The Jack Pine, The West Wind, The Northern River and Bateaux. Much of his work was done in Algonquin Park, the terrain he loved most.

GUELPH MAN PRESENT

Discoverers of the body, he added on to Mr. Little, were Jack Eastaught, principal of Norseman public school in suburban Etobicoke, and Leonard Gibson and Frank Brought of Guelph.

Mr. Little said he didn't do anything about Robinson's reports "for years." He said he and the other men were on a sketching trip last week and decided then to "prove to our satisfaction that Robinson, who died last year, was wrong."

"We thought we might be able to throw a little more light on Thomson's death, and perhaps revive an interest in his painting," the men visited the site of a small burial ground on a hill near the lake. They found a stump of a birch that Robinson had described and two marked graves—one of a child who died 50 years ago, the other of a lumberjack.

The men found three depressions in the ground. They were about to give up after digging in two and finding nothing. In the third they hit upon a cedar board. After a little more digging they found the skeleton in a cedar coffin.

DOCTOR DOUBTFUL

Police were called and the attorney-general's department was informed. The bones were turned over to Dr. Noble Sharp of Toronto, medical director of the provincial crime laboratory. He said Tuesday night he still is examining the skeleton. The investigation may take two weeks.

"However, I would be very surprised if these were Thomson's bones," said Dr. Sharp. "The story is only local legend."

The doctor confirmed there was a hole in the skull, but from a cursory examination he did not think it was caused by a blunt instrument or a bullet.

"It is more than likely perfectly normal erosion," Dr. Sharp added.

Thomson spent many years in Algonquin Park. He lived at a friend's lodge. On July 8, 1917, his canoe was found at Canoe Lake. The paddles were lashed to the inside of the craft, indicating its owner may have been portaging the craft when something happened.

FALL ON ROCKS BLAMED

About 10 days later a body was found in the water. The head was bloody from a large head wound, the jury decided it was accidental drowning.

A year later the body was reported to have been moved to Leith. The Owen Sound Junior Chamber of Commerce earlier this year launched a campaign to raise $125,000 to finance a Tom Thomson memorial art centre.

Some Algonquin park residents think Thomson's death was not accidental. Some say he had two enemies in the area.

QUESTIONS IN BOOK

Author Blodwen Davies of Markham wrote in her book, "A Study of Tom Thomson, published in 1931:

"Who met Tom Thomson on that stretch of Grey Lake, screened from all eyes, that July noon?

"Who was it struck him a blow across the right temple—for was it done with the thin edge of a paddle blade?—that sent the blood spurting from his ear?"

Miss Davies, commenting on testimony at the inquest, wrote:

"No one remarked that only a living body could be bruised or could flow. Tom Thomson's lungs were filled with air, not with water . . . legend or fact—and says that he still lies on the brink of the hill overlooking Canoe Lake."

ONE-DAY TOLL: SEVEN

TOKYO (AP)—Traffic accidents killed seven persons in Tokyo Monday. It was the second highest day's toll this year. Eight were killed on New Year's Day.

Typhoid Outbreak Blamed on Well At Winchester

CORNWALL (CP) — Typhoid bacteria which contaminated the well at a hotel in nearby Winchester have infected five and possibly seven persons with typhoid fever.

"There might be more," said Dr. R. S. Peat, district medical health officer Tuesday, "but we hope not."

All drank water from the same well, which is believed to have been contaminated by run-off from a septic tank.

Dr. Peat said that none of the cases is believed critical, "but any outbreak of typhoid is serious."

It is the first such outbreak of the dread disease in Eastern Ontario in 20 years and is believed the worst since 1911 when an epidemic in the Ottawa area—52 miles northwest of here—infected 1,100 persons and killed 83.

BECAME ILL

Dr. Peat said that all seven persons drank water from the hotel well at Winchester, 15 miles north of here. Some of them were among 33 persons who attended a banquet there Sept. 9. Several others who attended the banquet became ill afterwards, but they apparently shook off the contagious disease before it developed to a severe stage.

Dr. Peat said the disease was not discovered immediately because it has a 21-day incubation period before its effects are apparent.

Two CBC employees who were at the banquet said in Toronto they were ill for two weeks afterwards. Commentator Don Fairbairn said he had three separate attacks of nausea, vomiting and intestinal upset.

"I thought I was going to die the first time," he said.

Mr. Fairbairn and his producer, Reid Forsee, were at the banquet in connection with their weekly show Neighborhood News.

SYMPTOMS RED RASH

When the disease has developed to more severe stages, its symptoms are a red rash on the chest and abdomen, internal upset and fever.

Steps are being taken to purify the hotel well and to check other wells in the area for contamination.

Dr. R. P. Hardman, Ontario health department epidemiologist who helped investigate the outbreak, said in Toronto that so far this year 35 cases of typhoid have been recorded. There were 46 last year.

FINNS VOTE RIGHTIST

HELSINKI (Reuters) — Finland has swung slightly to the right, according to results of municipal elections being counted today. With four - fifths of the votes counted, right-wing parties were polling 52½ per cent of the votes, compared with a little over 50 per cent in municipal elections three years ago. Most of their gains were taken from the Communists.

BUY SOVIET PLANES

BELGRADE (AP)—The state-owned Yugoslav airline has bought six Russian planes for domestic service, it was disclosed today. The airline had been operating with American planes only. The Yugo Press news agency said the new planes are of the Ilyushin-14 type.

PROBE ARMS SHIPMENT

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A large shipment of rifles and cartridges from Czechoslovakia to a local gunsmith is being investigated by the defence department and the treasury ministry. The shipment is said to consist of several hundred powerful rifles and thousands of shells.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Townsend, Donald Street, neighbors, accompanied the couple on the drive and attended the dinner.

Missionary Tells of Work In Mongola

Bridge Street Afternoon Auxiliary met with the Bridge Street Auxiliary for a joint thanksoffering meeting on Thursday evening, in the Sunday School auditorium.

The various reports were received and Mrs. C. Howie and Mrs. R. Warren were thanked for convening a successful birthday tea recently.

Mrs. C. E. Myers requested clothing for the overseas box. It was noted that the Missionary Monthly subscriptions are due. A rally was announced for October 13th at Bethel-Zion church, registrations at 9 a.m.; the guest speaker to be Miss Edith Clarke, B.A., of Mongola, Africa.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Finkle. The study this year is Paul's Letter to the Ephesians. A passage was read and members of the group. Miss M. Young, Mrs. Calnan, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Burrows and Mrs. Northcott answered questions. Psalm 96 was read.

Miss Ellen Briggs favored with a solo, "Love Never Faileth."

The offering was dedicated in prayer by Mrs. H. M. Ketcheson.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss M. Young introduced the guest speaker, Miss Florence Halliday, Toronto, a Mathematics and Physics specialist, who is from a missionary home and whose sister, Margaret Halliday, has been doing Christian educational work in Mongola.

Pictures were shown of the work in Africa, especially among girls. Some schools have been built and the girls are taught home economics as well as reading and writing. They, in turn, go out and teach others. It was stressed that in Africa denominations are not important — just the Christian church. They put small fees to attend these schools. Pictures were also shown concerning educational, medical, and religious work with lepers.

The missionary societies were urged to continue giving and praying in order to maintain their place, lest other forces replace them.

Mrs. Hale Downes thanked the speaker, following which tea was served in the ladies' parlor where all had an opportunity to meet and talk with Miss Halliday.

WEDDINGS

JEWSON—DOYLE

A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized by Rev. Father P. Moylan on Saturday, October 6, at 3 p.m., in the Church of St. Michael that of Lois Marie Doyle, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Bert Hughes, Latta, and William John Harrington, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Harrington, Toronto. Rev. F. J. Whitney performed the ceremony at two o'clock and decorations were in shades of yellow and white chrysanthemums, banked with ferns and palms formed a pretty background for the altar. The pews were marked with bows of white satin.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by A. A. Bonter, organist of the church, the bride moved slowly down the aisle, escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. She was radiant in a beautiful gown of nylon net and lace, fitted bodice, worn over a hoop, ended in a long circular sweep. The veil was arranged by a panel of lace at the front. The bodice, of embroidered net and lace featured a scalloped neckline and was buttoned down the back with seed pearl buttons. Her fingertip veil of nylon net, which had a large edging of lace, fell from a cap of lace, with a small tiara which was embroidered in seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, topped by a cluster of white roses and white satin streamers.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Hughes was her sister's only attendant. Her bridesmaid length gown featured a skirt of nylon net, with a fitted satin bodice and elbow-length sleeves. She wore a matching headdress to her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums with yellow streamers.

Glen Harrington, Toronto, was groomsman for his brother. The ushers were Lewis Aulthouse, Picton, and Wayne Jones, Sherbrooke, Quebec.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Gordon Bell of Trenton, Ontario, sang "O Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register, she sang "Because."

The reception which followed was held in the Quinte Country Club Inn, Bloomfield, which was entered through a white archway of streamers for the happy occasion. The bride's mother wore a charming dress of taupe brocade over satin with a band of burgundy velvet inset at the waist and a beige net at the back. She wore a matching hat with small veil and a corsage of tawny gold roses. The groom's mother was smart in a gown of blue brocaded satin with matching bolero, a small black velvet hat and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table, covered with a white cloth, was centered with the wedding cake and decorated in pink and white. The servers were Misses Barbara Foster, Thelma Dunning, Wilma Miller, Rev. Esther Wright and Audrey Hopkinson.

For travelling to points west, the bride donned a smart dress of aztec brown crepe with white collar, made on Princess lines and featuring a full skirt with bows at the waist and back. She wore a small hat of matching shade and a corsage of rosebuds. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington will reside in Belleville.

WALKER—STEWART

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized in the Cannifton United church, on Saturday, September 15, at 2 o'clock, when the Rev. W. R. Merrick, assisted by Rev. C. A. McCrea, united in marriage, Shirley Doreen Stewart, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Douglas Stewart of Cannifton, to Mr. Bruce William Stanley Walker, Tweedsville, R.R. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker.

Tall standards of yellow and white gladioli and potted ferns adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Harry Farnham, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. George Claire of Corbyville R.R. 1, cousin of the bridegroom, who sang "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her strapless gown of white Chantilly lace over satin and nylon tulle coming to points at back and front and highlighted by sequins and pearls, topped by a matching lace bolero having a Peter Pan collar and sheath-like sleeves trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. Her fingertip veil of French illusion bordered with silky-of-the-valley, was caught to a pleated tulle bonnet trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white Bible crested by a cluster of orchids and streamers, cut satin bows and streamers.

Miss Ruth Boyd, Belleville, R.R. 1, was maid of honor, attired in a strapless ballerina-length gown of French lace over satin of medium yellow, with bolero, having a Peter Pan collar. She wore a matching headdress and gloves, and carried a nosegay of Gloria roses, mauve mums and mauve and white gladioli florets.

Corporal Lyle Walker, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Stewart Lowe, Northern, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Ross Cole, Belleville, R.R. 6, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception for 110 was held in the church parlor which had been decorated for the occasion with yellow and orchid gladioli.

The bride's mother received wearing a rust coloured dress with navy accessories and a corsage of white gardenias, while the bridegroom's mother, wore a blue lace dress with rose accessories and a corsage of a white gardenia, assisted.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with a white linen cloth and centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by miniature bride and bridegroom. The base of the cake was white satin and nylon tulle centred with orchid gladioli florets, six white candles in crystal candlesticks and the bridal flowers added a pretty finishing accent.

Those who served included, Mrs. Bert Martin, Mrs. Lloyd Cain, Mrs. Stewart Lowe, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Manley Mitchell and Miss Joan Clarke, cousins of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Bancroft, Maynooth and points north around by Toronto, the bride chose a beige dress with matching duster, avocado green hat and gloves, beige purse and shoes and beige fur stole, with orchid and yellow mums. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Walker will reside at 164A Dundas Street East, Belleville.

Guests were present from Bancroft, Belleville, Cannifton, Tweedsville, Campbellford, Collins Bay, Foxboro, Kingston, Picton, Oshawa, Toronto and Warkworth.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a chest of silver; to the best man, soloist and ushers, leather key cases. The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a matching set of gold cuff links and tie clip; to the maid of honor, a gold compact; to the organist, brooch and earrings and to those who served, cups and saucers.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the guest of honor at a linen shower given by Miss Ruth Boyd at the home of her mother, Mrs. Alden Boyd, R.R. 5, Belleville. The hall was decorated with bells of yellow mums. Mrs. Alden Boyd, R.R. 5, Belleville, and Mrs. Jones, Sherbrooke, Quebec.

This --- and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Do you consider there is some possibility that 'T and T' may be accused of encouraging a spirit of sectionalism, when periodically we draw attention to the close and productive cooperation which exists in the Bay of Quinte district? We hope not. If it were rivalry it could be as harmful as would be the circumstance of healthy if all were sweet idleness. An overdose of the former or the latter would be neither desirable nor constructive. Last week, members of the B and P.W. club met at dinner as the guests of the Napanee group. There were women from Trenton, Picton, Belleville, Kingston, and as far away as Brockville. The guest speaker was a Canadian author from Gananoque.

Evelyn Purvis Earle, who wrote "Leeds The Lovely," spoke to us about the development of the influence and possible, of power in the world. Miss Earle did not deliver a laudatory list of accomplishments and platitudes. She pointed out that women must be aware of their responsibilities. In the speaker's opinion, a love and knowledge of books is the basis for our cultural growth. She also referred to promoting this growth on the shelves of women.

Miss Earle maintains that a library of some sort should be a must for every community, as the latest village. She contends that this is where the older women can be of help. Let them, with her family raised, and probably some extra time on their hands, she can offer maturity of judgment and guidance. The greater the number of readers, the greater will be the number of writers we have.

Miss Earle's concern seems to the mind what breathing is to the body, and while Miss Earle stresses the importance of reading, she is not one of the greatest writers and thinkers the world has produced, who never strayed farther than about thirty miles from his native town. She would be pleased to see a friendly manner which makes for relaxed thinking, as we passed at Miss Earle and Leeds because we were brought up to think and attended Brockville Collegiate.

Going Shopping?

Since we always make our shopping rounds on Monday for the purpose of gathering material for the section of your T and T column, we have little to offer today. But, Thursday, and/or a week when giving thanks is brought forcibly to the conscious mindfulness. Every Canadian housewife can be grateful for the Canadian Association of Consumers. This is a very practical reminder which encourages clear, practical thinking. The CAC works to protect the consumer to see that we Canadians get the quality what we pay for in money. Every single purchase is the recipient of the protection, the real benefits of this organization active in the interest of her welfare. The strength of the CAC is relative to the interest we in turn show and we can all indicate our thanks by becoming members by sending $1.00 to the Canadian Association of Consumers at National Headquarters, 137 McLaren Street, Ottawa 4, Ontario. When we end the shoping news with "Good Shopping", we could end each with "Conscious Shopping because of CAC." This is a group of Canadian women dedicating their time and efforts in the interest of every housewife.

Good Shopping!

We are in 'cheese month' when business and the dairy industry in particular promote the development of cheese manufacturing by encouraging greater consumption. T and T does not need to remind us that Canada produces one of the finest and oldest foods known to man. However, we wonder how many know that the first cream separator in Ontario was installed in a cheese factory in Prince Edward County in 1894. Throughout the ensuing 72 years, the cheese industry has grown until the whole Bay of Quinte district has become one of the largest and best cheese producing areas in the world.

T and T wishes to add what support it can to Fire Chief Vance's appeal and advice to home owners, in the form of the club leader, and in the interest of fire prevention, he has made practical suggestions that may be a good deal of help. It is said that when our fire fighters are first it means that property and life are free of the tragic destroyer. Cooperation with, and being heedful of, the men whose work is to protect pays off to the individual as the community.

Someone has written that power of a woman should never be underestimated. A classic example of female leadership was the case a few years back at the Mayo Clinic in the Andes where the United Nations was launching a vaccination campaign. A group of Silpi and Materials" discussed by Mrs. Carter Dale. "The Record Books" were also discussed.

The assistant leaders, Mrs. William Thomas, Mrs. Carl Chapman Dafoe, demonstrated how to take measurements.

The home-assignment was to equip a sewing box and begin the record books.

Coffee trees grew wild in Ethiopia before they were first cultivated by the Arabs centuries ago.

Club Activities

KEEN AGE CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church was held recently at the home of Mrs. R. Rowley, Bleecker Avenue.

The resident, Mrs. Gordon Davies, opened the meeting. A brief business period was conducted. All the members were asked to take part in a project, this being the making of a quilt. Each member will bring a piece to the sample.

The devotional program in charge of Mrs. Earl Stansfield who gave an interesting reading of the history of some old 'Thanksgiving' hymns. Then all members joined in singing these hymns led by Mrs. A. E. Cornish at the piano.

Miss Gloria Rowley founded with a couple of piano solos.

Mrs. H. W. Robinson conducted a fun packed program, with contests and prizes.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. R. Rowley for her hospitality.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

CARMEL HOMEMAKING CLUB

The first meeting of the Carmel Homemaking Club was held at the home of the club leader, Mrs. Carl Thompson.

The election of officers was held as follows: president, Jean Luxton; secretary-treasurer, Marilyn Whitmore; press reporter, Carolyn Thompson. The assistant to the president was "Help Well Dressed and Well Groomed."

The subjects discussed at this meeting were: the project "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed;" "The Artistic Girl" and "What Makes Her so." These were both taken up by Mrs. Carl Thompson: "Equipping a Sewing Box", taken by Mrs. William Rodberg; "Plan-campaign. A group of Silpi and Materials" discussed by Mrs. Carter Dale. "The Record Books" were also discussed.

The assistant leaders, Mrs. William Thomas, Mrs. Carl Chapman Dafoe, demonstrated how to take measurements.

The home-assignment was to equip a sewing box and begin the record books.

Ontario R.M.T. Assoc. Elects New Officers

The annual meeting of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association and Belleville was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Boyce, with Mrs. F. E. Hooton, the president, in the chair.

On account of the year's activities was given by Mrs. Boyce, secretary, also the financial statement.

Plans for the coming year were discussed and election of officers then took place, with Sister Mary Germaine presiding.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. F. E. Hooton; vice-president, Mrs. Emily Veley; treasurer, Mr. William Conner; program committee, Mrs. Ivan Townsend, Mrs. J. B. Herdman and Mr. Ernest Taylor.

The meeting concluded with a social half hour.

YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS MIGHT WORK TOGETHER ON THIS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married for two years, and we have a baby. We're arguing over almost any little thing.

I know some of it, at least, is my own fault, because I seem to be jealous of anything my husband wants to do without me, like going bowling with the fellows or to a meeting of his Lodge. It makes me mad that he can be free to go out like that when I have to stay home with the baby. I'd like to have some fun once in awhile in the evening, too. It gets very monotonous having to stay home all the time.

What do you suggest?

Mrs. S.L.

Dear Mrs. S.L.: If you really put your mind on it, I think you might be able to figure out away you could have fun with your own friends on the evenings your husband has fun with his. Now wait a minute. I'm not forgetting the baby. But if you can't afford to pay a baby sitter, and if you have absolutely no relatives who might be willing to help out this way, why don't you propose to a few of your friends that you and they plan to hit for each other, say a regular night each week—or even two nights, if there are enough of you to share the project?

Put your wits to work, get together with your friends and see if all of you aren't smart enough to organize such a plan and get it going. I believe that a few young wives who have baby-sitting problems could get out a lot more than they do if they would try to work out some such idea as this.

I'm sure that if you had had this much chance to get away from the house, it would do a lot to get you out of the arguing habit, most of which, no doubt, comes from boredom and frustration. Moreover you'd have a lot more to talk to your husband about and he'd enjoy being with you more. Probably at things are, all you have to talk about when he comes home is housekeeping and the baby. Get interested in something else and your husband will find you a much m y entertaining companion.

Be clever enough to arrange things on your own and let your husband see how competently you can handle your life. If you do, you're likely to find him suggesting—that you both go out together in the evening now and then. Stupid now, he's probably taking it for granted that you can't possibly go out with him because you must stay with the baby. If you solve that problem the way I've suggested, it's likely to open the way to the solution of others.

SUGGEST THAT THIS BOY ASK YOUR FATHER

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 16 years old and would like to start dating.

Recently, I was at a drive-in with some older girl friends and we met some boys. These boys are very nice, and one who is two years older than I am, asked me to go out with him on a double date with one of my girl friends and his friend. I had to refuse. But since then, I've met him twice accidentally, and both times he asked me to go out with him and both times I refused.

You see, my mother is dead, and I don't know how to go about asking my father if I can begin to date. I don't even know how to begin talking to him about this. I think he might approve of a couple date with my girl friend, since he likes her very much and lets me go out with her. I don't want to date behind his back. — C.

Dear C.: The impression I get from your letter is that you and your father are not very close and it's hard for you to talk over personal things with him.

The very best way for you to take this matter up is to ask this boy if he won't telephone to your father, introduce himself, say he met you recently and ask if he may take you out. Better still, he might call at your home, meet your father personally, and then ask him if you may go out with him. It be sister that he is a well-brought-up young man, who knows the respectful and courteous thing is to meet a girl's parents and ask for the privilege of taking their daughter out, I'm sure your father would give his permission.

LEATHER TRIM

By VERA WINSTON

Leather leads this season, fashioned as it is into exquisite coats for dress and sporty and practical casual wear togs. Nice, too, used as trimming as it is in this good wool jersey dress in clear red. The leather, black and shiny, makes smart piping detail with chevron-stripe effect at shoulders, hips and pockets, the bodice buttons to the waist where a self belt closes with adjustable button holes. A splendid dress with which to start the fall season, especially for smart but most dressy daytime wear.

Minimum Food Costs for Individuals

By Mary Moore

Wednesday has become "Bringing Down the Budget" day and from what I see in the letters on my desk you like the series so much we'll just have to keep it up.

One thing I notice in your letters is a constant cheerfulness. There are no dreary debates amongst you who lament their lot. Just because you have to operate on a limited budget is no cause for griping. All of you have that "let's-tackle-the-job" attitude.

I'm not announcing anything newer than about 4,000 years when I say that poverty is a great old disciplarian. It is folks who have experienced and coped with poverty that are the great and happy disciplarians and teachers of today.

In May of 1956, the Montreal Diet Dispensary issued a bulletin giving Individual Minimum Adequate Food Costs as recommended by the Canadian Council on Nutrition. I am going to reproduce part of it here because it will be a guide of sorts to you. But you will have to save this column if it is to make sense, and refer to next week's column in which I will give you a list of the kinds and amounts of foods used in this Pricing List. So remember, the following figures are the first of two sections calculating individual minimum adequate food costs. The Food Price List on which these costs were based follows next week October 17.

Age Group	Calorie Content	Protien Content	Daily Cost	Weekly Cost	Monthly Cost (See Note)
Mod. Active Man	2929	82 gms./	$.73	$5.11	$21.96
Mod. Active Woman	2349	66 "	$.84	$4.48	$18.18
Mod. Active Woman (pregnancy)	2687	97 "	$.79	$5.55	$23.85
Mod. Active Woman (lactation)	3220	103 "	$.82	$5.75	$24.71
Child 1-3 years	1371	53 "	$.41	$2.84	$12.20
Child 4-6 years	1632	56 "	$.44	$3.04	$13.09
Child 7-9 years	2085	67 "	$.54	$3.78	$16.17
Child 10-12 years	2434	71 "	$.58	$4.06	$17.47
Girl 13-15 years	2650	83 "	$.69	$4.80	$20.62
Girl 16-20 years	2932	93 "	$.71	$4.95	$21.28
Boy 13-15 years	2932	93 "	$.71	$4.95	$21.28
Boy 16-20 years	3558	113 "	$.86	$6.03	$25.82

Note 1—One ounce equals almost 28.35 grams.

Note 2—Just cast your eyes over that last line "boy 16-20 years." It isn't father that costs the most to feed after all!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP

What you say is your account of yourself. So watch what you say!

HER I-DON'T-BOTHER ATTITUDE WON'T WIN FRIENDS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

A friend of mine who lives in a distant state recently came to visit a relative of mine who lives here in the city where I live. The visitor-friend did not bother to telephone to me to ask me how I am, and I figured that if she were interested in me she would call me on the telephone. The relative with whom my friend was staying did not call me to come over to her house to see my friend, and now she is blaming me for not taking them over to my house or inviting them out. Did I do right or wrong? As a rule I do not bother with people who do not bother with me.

M.M.

Don't you think that everyone concerned would have been happier . . . you, the visiting friend and your relative . . . if you had umbent from your rigid and cold attitude, telephoned to your relative and her guest, and graciously and heartily invited them either to your house or to some entertainment you thought they would enjoy? By not taking the thought or making the effort to "bother" to be friendly or hospitable, you obviously didn't give yourself any joy or real satisfaction, and your cold-as-ice attitude certainly didn't endear you to your friend or relative You'll have more fun and happiness in life, I do believe, if you change your thinking and go forth to meet friendship with a warm handshake and a welcoming smile. Why not try it?

WAS IT CORRECT FOR HER TO RISE?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Last evening a friend of mine and I were at a very charming party at the home of a mutual friend. At one point in the party, just before the serving of the buffet dinner, the hostess brought a man to where we were sitting, and introduced us to him. I rose when he was introduced, but my friend didn't. Afterward she criticized me for rising, saying that a woman should not rise when she is introduced to a man. Who was right? — Sandra M.

If the hostess was a somewhat older woman than you two guests, then you were courteous to rise when she brought up the man to introduce him to you. As a matter of fact, you were being polite to rise, even if it were not strictly necessary. Why not rise If it seemed to you the gracious thing to do? It's true that a woman does not rise when a man is introduced, unless there seems some reason for her doing so, as here in courtesy to an older woman, or even in courtesy to your hostess. Also an important note, please: a man is introduced to a woman, so never say what you said in your question: "the hostess introduced me to him." Say, correctly, "the hostess introduced the man to us."

OVER 40? HERE'S HOW TO GET A HUSBAND

Political clubs make happy hunting grounds for the mature woman in search of a husband.

Let's face it, girls. If you're over 40 and are still maintaining the status of a bachelorette, it's tough to find a husband, isn't it? And sometimes you wonder why. You don't look forty, your figure is still slim and trim, you've given your complexion the best of care so it's still radiantly lovely, you dress smartly, your grooming is perfect, but still no man! Yet you've heard of other women marrying after 40, and marrying well, too. So what's the answer?

Well, according to one expert, the secret seems to lie not so much in the pains you take to keep yourself looking lovely, although that's vitally important, of course, but in the effort you make to find your man. This effort may sometimes make a complete change in your life, says Mariana Pribic, in the current issue of the Journal for Lifetime Living, but, she adds, if you're willing to make that change, you still have a good chance of getting a husband even if you've passed your fortieth birthday. If your job, for instance, throws you only among women, she says it would pay you to change to another, even for a smaller salary, if you get a chance to meet more men.

Night school classes are good places to make men friends, too, she adds. Choose those in which men are particularly interested, like photography, woodworking, languages and dancing. Investigate the hobby clubs in your community and join one which has a mixed membership. Many mature men are interested in politics. Volunteer your services to a local political club. Even if you're shy, you'll find yourself talking easily to other volunteers.

On vacations, don't try to buck the competition of glamour girls at popular resorts. Go where men go. Places that specialize in hunting, fishing and other sports are excellent. You may not be a sports enthusiast, but remember, the big game you're after is a husband!

Don't always go out with "the girls," warns Mrs. Prieto. Men are afraid of packs of females. Besides, as an older woman, you can quite properly go to dances or parties alone without feeling conspicuous, as a young girl would.

If you have the choice, try not to live with a female relative, or with your children, if you're a widow. Relatives tend to be extra critical of any men you might meet, long before the friendship becomes serious.

"One thing is certain," declares Mrs. Prieto, "You're not going to make male friendships if you sit at home and brood about your single state. You must put yourself in circulation!"

Women's Activities

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

Mrs. Percy Bateman was hostess to the members of Springbrook United church Woman's Association last Thursday afternoon.

Words of welcome were extended to all by the president, Mrs. C. Burkitt.

Mrs. H. Haslett, conducted the worship period with the theme being "Thanksgiving for the mercy and goodness of God." The Scripture reading from Isaiah 12 was read by Mrs. E. Bateman. Psalm 65 was repeated responsively. The theme thought, "The Goodness of God", was read by Mrs. Bert Spry.

The roll call was "A Harvest Hymn" and was well responded to by 33 members and three visitors.

The correspondence was read. It consisted of an invitation to a picture tea October 17 at Stanwood, also an invitation to a tea and bazaar on November 8, at Mount Pleasant. Reports from flower and fruit committees were given.

Mrs. F. Cosby, treasurer, gave a report of the bazaar which was held recently, showing a profit of $151.23. It was decided to send the lucrite bale to Bingham Memorial W.M.S. Hospital at Matheson.

Plans were completed for the group to cater to the Williams' Livestock Sale, October 22. Mrs. D. Fleming reported for the church decorating committee. It will purchase a new runner for the church aisle. A committee was named to make tiha purchase.

Plans for the anniversary supper to be held November 3, were made and the various committee appointed. This concluded a lengthy business period and a short program followed.

A duet was sung by Mrs. G. Bailey and Mrs. G. Bateman with Mrs. C. Sine accompanying at the piano. The topic "Social Services in the United Church," was given by Mrs. K. Thompson. The various "homes" that are supported by the United church were read and explained by Mrs. H. Beare. Readings were given by Mrs. O. Barton and Mrs. S. Meiklejohn.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. H. Beare. The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. McKeown, Springbrook.

Car Coat

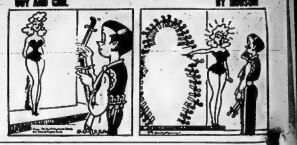
Coats that are equally at home in an open roadster or on city streets, no matter the weather, are practical and pretty, thanks to all sorts of interesting materials and fibres and deft styling. Here's one for instance that is as useful as it is smart. It is fashioned of embossed nylon, a downy soft material that is said to be cleanable with the aid of a damp cloth. Reversed it is perfect for city street wear since it has a reversible lining of orlon and wool mixture jersey. Good looking and striking in white with a red or black lining as well as in other color schemes.

Women of the Moose

On Thursday evening the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435, held its regular meeting in the Moose hall with Senior Regent Nellie Scrymgeour presiding.

The meeting was called to order by the senior Regent with officers, escort and chairmen taking part in the opening.

Recorder Grace Bartlett called the roll of officers, escorts and chairmen. Minutes, communications and notices were read by the recorder.



The Women of the Moose are sponsoring a "College of Laundry Knowledge in the Moose hall, 53 Victoria Ave., Belleville, one evening this week which will be interesting, informative and entertaining. There will be door prizes and useful gifts for everyone. Anyone wanting tickets call Junior Graduate Regent Mary Vandusen or Recorder Grace Bartlett.

A draw donated by Nora McQuaid was won by Irene Gamble. Tickets were sold by Coworkers Nellie Shandraw and Nora McQuaid. Proceeds of the draw were turned in by publicity chairman Nellie Burke.

The meeting was brought to a close by Sr. Regent Nellie Scrymgeour.

After the meeting cards were played and refreshments were served by Nellie Burke and her committee.

The next meeting on October 11th, will commence at 7.30 as the demonstration starts at 8 o'clock.

The Better to See You With

By PEGGY LIDSTONE

Home Lighting Specialist

The charm and comfort of your home depend, to a large extent, on the way that it is lighted.

The simplest room may appear luxurious if your lamps are well chosen and well placed. But bad lighting can make the most furnished room seem unlaviting.

There are two main types of illumination—general and local

The general lighting of a room should produce a softly diffused light. This should be augmented by local lights distributed where they will be of most use—at those places in a room where reading, writing or sewing is to be done.

It is neither beautiful nor healthful to look into a light that glares. No local light should be more than ten times as bright as the general illumination of the room.

Lamps should be low enough to group with your furniture, yet above your line of vision. They will be most attractive if they are all at the same height.

When your day has been hard and your only thought is to sink into a favourite armchair, that is the time to enjoy the soft, rosy glow of a G-E Deluxe Pink Bulb. These new bulbs supply a glare-ness light that flatters both faces and furnishings. They throw new light on the whole subject of how best to light your home!

You can buy G-E Deluxe Pink Bulbs in 60, 100 or 150 watts. They are also available in Tri-Light and Decorator shapes.

PYPS Enjoys Busy Schedule Fo: Convention Held in City

About 375 young men and women were delegates to the seventh annual Toronto and Kingston Synodical Convention of the Presbyterian Young People's Society, held over Thanksgiving weekend in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Church St., and Victoria Ave., in Belleville.

A full program made the delegates' stay in Belleville a very busy one. Discussion groups covered a variety of topics such as "The Place of Women in the Church," "Faith Healing," "The Christian and the Labor Union" and others. Knowledge Knooks provided leadership help to delegates. These included talks on public speaking, studying the Scriptures, preparing meditations.

On the lighter side, Saturday's schedule included a bowling tournament, a tour of the Trenton airport and a banquet complete with Thanksgiving turkey dinner.

Principal speaker of the convention was Rev. Calvin H. Chambers, B.A., B.D., of Thornhill, who in three addresses spoke on the convention theme "Prepare to Meet Thy God—Abide in Christ." Mr. Chambers told the young people that "we are created to have fellowship with God and to find the highest fulfillment of life in our surrender to His will. If Christ is to be born in us," said Mr. Chambers, "it will mean a change of life." He emphasized the fact that many people feel that to believe in and live for Christ will limit and confine their lives, and he pointed out that nothing is further from the truth, since "our Lord by His death opens up for us paths of service and love which he had never known before."

Mr. Chambers was born in Saskatchewan and educated in Alberta and British Columbia. He is a graduate of Knox College in Toronto and for the past three years has been minister at Thornhill Presbyterian Church.

ATTEND COMMUNION

Delegates attended an early Communion service, followed by the Thanksgiving service in St. Andrew's, conducted by the minister, Rev. R. D. MacLean, B.A., B.D.

Rev. Angus MacKay, missionary from India, outlined the work being carried on in the Jhansi field by the Presbyterian Church in Canada in Christian schools, medical and evangelistic work, and training of Indian Christians to preach the gospel to their own people. In referring to the rise of nationalism and the old religious beliefs in India, Mr. MacKay stressed the urgent need for the Christian church to increase its evangelistic work in India: Rev. Stephen Moti Lal, a native of India who is studying theology at Knox College, Toronto, stated that "mission work is not secondary but is the supreme task of the church," and asked that the young people remember the missionary work in their prayers.

The Presbyterian Young People's Society Synodical Executive for 1956-57 was elected and installed into office as follows:

Honorary president, Rev. William Bell of Bobcaygeon; past president, Peggy Graham, Toronto (formerly of Myrtle, Ont.); president, Ina Hill, Toronto; vice-president, Harry Hope, Toronto; corresponding secretary, Sheila Horsfall, Galt; recording secretary, Leslie Price, Toronto; treasurer, Ross Hill, Uxbridge; Mission study convener, Esther McLean, Toronto; worship convener, Johneen Beaton, Sudbury, fellowship convener, Neil Murray, Galt; evangelism and stewardship convener, Ada McNiven, Alliston; editor and publicity convener, Valerie Dunn, Toronto; leadership training director, Alan Powell, Toronto.

A Service of Consecration closed the convention Monday afternoon.

AGREE ON MAGAZINES

MOSCOW (AP)—The American embassy announced Tuesday the sale of 28,000 copies of the illustrated magazine, produced by the U.S. information agency, will begin Oct. 22 in the Soviet Union. Distribution of the first edition has been held up since July by disagreement over the number of copies to be sold and the amount of money to be retained by the Soviet distribution agency. An equal number of a magazine called U.S.S.R. will be offered in the U.S.

Approximately 100 Attend Anniversary

Avondale school was the scene of a lively party, Saturday night, when friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lough, gathered to help them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

The festivities began with a mock wedding to end all mock weddings. The knot was tied by Helen Jones, a plump clergyman. The bride (Lyle Jones), was strikingly attired in white satin, with red shoes and hair to match. His bouquet was a decorated rolling pin. The maid of honor (Earl Bush), looked unusual in a white flannel nightie adorned with a purple sash around his ample girth. On his long black hair perched a creation of multi-colored asters. With this ensemble he carried a basket of flaming red salvia—a technicolor spectacle to behold.

Myrtle Smith, as flower girl, wore a short taffeta frock bedecked with ribbons and enhanced by a gum-drop bouquet.

The groomsmen (Pearl Holmes), was neat in a natty pinstripe with a false nose.

Vera Robson, as the father of the bride, was colorful and determined as he strutted the college gym at the most reluctant bridegroom, (Margery King), dapper in a top hat and cut-away.

Before and after the ceremony, a quartet, composed of Doris Dennis, Ella Windover, Irma Reid and Shirley Griffith, attired as dudes of an earlier day, rendered suitable selections, aided and abetted by Evelyn Bird at the piano. At the close of this spectacle Mr. Gordon Smith photographed the bridal group and singers.

PRESENTATION

Betty and Stewart Lough were the recipients of a lustrous silver tea service presented on behalf of the gathering, by Bessie Bush and Florie Stewart. The happy pair each replied ably to the address read by Winnie Cameron.

The school hall was decorated with baskets of sumac tastefully appointed table centred with a wedding cake and candles.

The large crowd of close to 100 people, spent the remainder of the evening playing cards.

Most appetizing refreshments were served by the ladies of the community, under the convenorship of Irma Reid and Ella Windover. Every one was given a piece of the delicious wedding cake.

One and all declared the get-together to be a merry event. Many thanks go to the conveners.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Ellen Barker, HALTON CO. 4-H LEADER

"Do babies follow any standard behavior pattern during the first year?" asks a first time mother. According to a recent infant study, the results showed that babies, bless their "rugged individualistic" hearts, stubbornly refused to follow any uniform pattern whatsoever. Matter of fact, the variety of behavior patterns in infants was found to be so great that few comparisons, if any, could be made.

What better reason for reminding yourself that "it's unfair to compare." The all too common neighborhood pastime of comparing baby achievements can be bad for baby, upsetting for you. If you cherish baby for what he is—try to meet his individual needs, he'll be the happy, well-adjusted baby you want him to be.

Refreshment unlimited. That's the sum and substance of Gerber Strained Fruit Dessert—a luscious blend of plump, juicy apricots, mild orange juice and mellow pineapple juice—textured to a little queen's taste with just a touch of tapioca. Like all wholesome Gerber Strained Desserts it makes an ideal, not-too-sweet, end of the meal treat.

Suggestion box. This from an enterprising mother: "Even though socks and booties are small, they do take up a lot of washline space. I simply attach six or eight pairs to a wire hanger with clip clothespins and slip the hanger on the line."

Biting bit. Baby finding teething troublesome? Here's quick and soothing relief for aching gums. Gerber Teething Biscuits are smooth-surfaced to ease tender gums—extra-hard to provide really good biting satisfaction. Wholesome ingredients are blended and baked into a special shape for easy grasping. Barely sweetened so they won't spoil little appetites. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Canadian Universities Go Along With Aid Suggestion of P.M. Says President of Society

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Conference of Canadian Universities likely will go along with Prime Minister St. Laurent's plan to have that organization distribute federal funds in aid to universities.

President G. Edward Hall of the University of Western Ontario, who heads the conference, expressed the opinion Tuesday in London, Ont.

Mr. St. Laurent has said he is prepared to recommend that federal grants to universities be doubled to $10,000,000 providing the NCCU accepts the job of distributing it.

In having the funds distributed by an independent body it is hoped the province of Quebec will accept federal grants. Quebec has refused them in past years on the grounds that education is strictly a provincial matter and that federal contributions toward it encroached on provincial rights in the field and thereby threatened provincial autonomy.

ELATION AT UNIVERSITIES

Heads of universities across Canada expressed elation at the prospect of increased grants.

Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, said the increased aid would go particularly to increase medical facilities and help build additional staff to meet the wave of university enrolments.

Dr. Smith noted that the federal government had never attached strings to its university grants and had made no attempt to interfere with the courses or operation of the university.

Dr. Hall said the prime minister's suggestion that the NCCU distribute federal funds will be discussed when university representatives meet at Ottawa Nov. 12-14.

"The whole question will be discussed thoroughly and then we will be ready to meet with the government on any issues and details which remain to be settled."

MAY NEED CHARTER

There was a question, however, of whether NCCU would first have to seek a charter to become a legal entity.

Under the present plan, initiated in 1952, federal payments are made directly to universities. Quebec accepted its share in the first year but in 1953 rejected the plan because it said it meant federal interference in a field allocated exclusively to the provinces under the constitution.

Whether the prime minister's new distribution proposal would be acceptable to Quebec is not known. He said discussion of the matter with Quebec will not be necessary and that he will recommend his proposals to Parliament as soon as the national conference accepts the formula.

Msgr. Alphonse - Marie Parent, rector of Laval University, said in Quebec that the prime ministers proposal "deserves to be studied."

In Montreal, Dr. F. Cyril James, McGill University principal, expressed hope the prime minister's formula would enable Quebec universities to accept the grants.

Dr. Henry F. Hall, principal of Sir George Williams College, Montreal, termed the new distribution formula "very interesting."

University of Manitoba president H. H. Saunderson said in Winnipeg that it "should be possible" for a formula to be worked out which would be acceptable to Quebec province.

"I hope so," he said. "the money is badly needed."

President N. A. M. MacKenzie of the University of British Columbia said the prime minister's announcement was "most welcome." The extra $600,000 which UBC would get under the formula "would be like an infusion of new blood."

MARITIMES PLEASED.

Heads of Maritime universities expressed enthusiasm for the new grants.

"We are all for it," said Dr. Watson Kirkconnell of Acadia University.

Dr. A. E. Kerr of Dalhousie University said "all universities will be grateful," but asked that the proposed higher grants be adjusted to cover "the present inequity in the distribution." He said the present distribution "allows 10 different rates for 10 provinces with Nova Scotia universities far below all."

Earlier, Education Minister Dunlop of Ontario said he would support any plan of federal aid which would ease the burden of universities.

TORONTO (CP)—A record $10,000 was paid in New York Tuesday for a 12-penny black Canadian postage stamp issued in 1851.

An unidentified Canadian dealer bid $500 more than Toronto dealer J. N. Sissons, who paid $5,400 and $5,500 for two Canadian 12-penny black stamps last April.

The stamp was part of the Alfred H. Caspary collection being sold in New York. The stamp brought a high price because it was in excellent condition. It was as clean and crisp as though it had just come from the post office.

Four Missing May Be Stranded On Arctic Lake

EDMONTON (CP)—The RCAF today battled time and freezing temperatures in a search for a woman and three men, missing for 12 days on a flight through 300 miles of partially uncharted wilderness inside the Arctic Circle.

With full winter imminent and daylight hours diminishing, the biggest aerial search in years in the Northwest Territories tracked and re-tracked the tree-lined area —barrens north and timbered trees south—but find two light aircraft and their tiny party.

Temperatures in the Coppermine now range between zero and 35 above and the present 10 hours between sunrise and sunset will turn to total darkness in 10 weeks.

Nine RCAF aircraft have covered 60,000 square miles and logged more than 300 hours in a search for two civilian aircraft Sept. 28 on a 318-mile flight to Norman Wells, N.W.T.

FO Roy Booth, search co-ordinator at Edmonton, said the worst possibility outside of a plunge into Great Bear Lake was that the group is stranded on a small lake.

Missing are Pilot Dick Warner of Aklavik, N.W.T., and Edmonton and his passengers Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Hunter, formerly of Nanaimo, B.C., and Pilot George Gonzales of Argentina.

Miss New Zealand Will Not Parade In Bathing Suit

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) Honey-blonde Miss New Zealand has walked out on the Miss World contest because she can't face parading in a bathing suit. Anne Besides, she has hardly a thing to wear.

The reluctant beauty, 20-year-old Jeanette de Montalk, vanished from London two days ago. She was to have competed against girls from a score of countries next Monday for the title of Miss World.

A reporter found her living in a YWCA hostel here.

"I'm finished with it," announced the green-eyed young lady. "I do not want to parade in a bathing costume before hundreds of people. Furthermore, I do not own the sort of clothes to compete with some of the girls."

CBC Needs Authority Over Private Broadcasting Stations Chairman Tells Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC needs authority over private broadcasting stations to feed its national service through them unless its own facilities are to be extended to serve all Canada, CBC board Chairman A. D. Dunton said Tuesday to the royal commission on broadcasting.

He told the commission the CBC is not insisting on continuance of its regulatory powers but feels they are desirable for practical reasons.

In the opening day of the CBC's final submission in the long inquiry, Mr. Dunton said extension of CBC facilities to serve all Canada in direct competition with private operators would be the "only possible situation" if a separate regulatory board for broadcast were to be set up.

The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters—representing most of the private stations—has been urging the formation of such a board, to control both the CBC and the private operators. The control now is exercised by the CBC board of governors.

Mr. Dunton said the CBC thinks these two courses are open:

1. If there is to be a new overriding board, separation of the CBC and private stations into two compartments, with the CBC continuing its national service on its own.

2. Continuation of the "integrated service" now in existence, with the CBC having some control over private stations. It was not essential that the CBC have its present powers, but it would be desirable for practical reasons.

However, Mr. Dunton indicated he and the other governors would not object to some other body making general regulations, though the CBC felt it should have authority over network operations to get across the Canadian-angle programs of its national service.

The CBC chairman hit back sharply at the broadcasters' association for what he called "propaganda," "distortion" and "downright slipshod" attack the CBC in a campaign to have a separate regulatory board established.

Mr. Dunton said he thinks the CBC, if it were to provide a national service on its own, could manage things so there would be no additional net cost of owning extra transmitters—the added revenue would offset the extra capital outlays.

Chairman R. M. Fowler suggested that would mean the CBC acquiring present private TV stations which exist under the present single-channel policy.

Mr. Dunton agreed, but added there would be quite a few places where competing private stations would be justified on commercial grounds.

Chairman Fowler asked for the CBC view on such factors as controlling the character of programs use of Canadian talent and "a single-channel future."

"I think it more sensible in practice for one organization to be making these decisions, but I think another body could make general regulations," Mr. Dunton replied.

"Can you provide a balanced fare by regulation?" Mr. Fowler asked.

The CBC chairman said he thinks this would be very difficult.

"We feel that just written regulations can't go very far in getting people to put on good programs," he added.

Mr. Fowler asked whether there was any chance of "producing clarification in the public mind" of the CBC function to provide a "national service."

"I think there it some chance, but I don't know what to suggest," Mr. Dunton said.

TEACHER'S CAR KILLS TWO

SHINGLEHOUSE, Pa. (AP)— Two brothers, running hand in hand to catch a school bus, were fatally injured Tuesday when they were struck by an auto driven by a school teacher. The victims were Donald Maxson, 8, and his brother, Michael, 6. Police identified the teacher as Mrs. Edna C. Rupert.

PLAN EAR-SIZE RADIO

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thimble-sized radio receivers you can wear in your ear are in the offing. The devices, which will pick up only one station, were described Tuesday to the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers convention by Glean Schmidt, consulting engineer, who said the radios, powered by a hermetically sealed battery, could be mass-produced for $1.50 each.

Plowing Match Off to Slow And Cold Start

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP)—The annual international plowing match got off to a slow and cold but still hopeful start Tuesday on more than five square miles of autumn-colored land in Ontario county.

Although attendance suffered from a morning cloudburst and a chill afternoon wind, match officials said they hope the match will still turn into one of the best ever.

They said the fields to be worked over by the plowmen during the next three days are in good condition. Since most of the plowing events are on high ground, there is little 'chance of it being affected by any rain that may fall, they added.

More than 575 farmers, 13 from outside Ontario, registered for the 43rd annual match.

HOUSED IN TENTS

Housing the match, described by officials as the largest of its kind in the world, was a sprawling tent "city," with two miles of streets, a police force, fire brigade, first aid centre, electricity and running water.

Officials said they expect close to 100,000 spectators. Only about 9,000 of the 20,000 expected Tuesday turned out, mainly because of the cool weather, they said.

Entries were lower than expected because many farmers were still harvesting late crops. The outside entries, who will compete in the Canadian championships Thursday and Friday, represent British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The Ontario championships are scheduled today.

Harris Says Any Tax Cuts In '57 Budget Will Be Small

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris implied Tuesday that any tax cuts proposed in his 1957-58 budget will be small.

He gave the indication in a luncheon speech to the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association in which he argued the Liberal party is the only federal political party capable of maintaining national unity in Canada.

Mr. Harris said his political opponents, some newspapers and others have suggested several methods for disposal of any surplus he might have at the end of the current fiscal year next March 31.

One proposal was that a portion of the surplus should be used to reduce the heavy burden of taxation. However, he added: "It would be wrong in mind that I did reduce taxes a year ago last spring."

Mr. Harris said another suggestion is that part of the surplus be used to reduce the national debt. It was traditional, he said, to reduce the national debt in good times to enable the country to borrow when times were not so good. He added that reduction of the national debt also was a good method to combat inflation.

A third suggestion was that part of the surplus should be used to pay higher pensions and increase other social services. He said that the population is increasing and more persons are receiving family allowances and pensions. There were ever increasing costs in these fields.

Another proposal was that some of the surplus could be used for new services. He said the cost to the federal treasury of a national plan of hospital and diagnostic care in participating with the provinces would be $200,000,000 annually.

Mr. Harris said the "Liberal party has found the answer to national unity in the way no other party has." None of the three opposition parties in Parliament—the Progressive Conservative, Social Credit and CCF—had within them the means of maintaining national unity.

Journalist Son Of Churchill Wins Libel Suit

LONDON (Reuters)—Randolph Churchill, journalist son of former Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill, Tuesday was awarded damages of £5,000 ($14,000) with court costs because a Sunday newspaper called him a "paid hack."

In a libel action against the editors and publishers of The People, Churchill alleged the paper was actuated by malice against him because he attacked it, among others, in a campaign against "press pornography."

The defendants, who said Churchill was a "paid hack, paid to write biased accounts" in an article published during Britain's general election last May, pleaded fair comment on a matter of public interest.

A jury took three-quarters of an hour to decide the case in Churchill's favor. Witnesses Tuesday testified Churchill was "an utterly honest and fearless" journalist. One deputy editor said Churchill once vigorously attacked the Conservative government in an article, though the government at the time was led by his own father.

Fleeing From U.S. Russian and Baby Reach Britain

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP) — Stephen Alexis Chwastov, who fled from the United States to return to the Soviet Union with his young American-born daughter, landed in Britain Tuesday aboard the liner Queen Mary.

Chwastov and 2½-year-old Tanya left the liner with two men identified by dock officials as Soviet officials from London. The group boarded a boat train for the capital.

Tanya's mother, who now lives in Detroit, claims that the little girl is an American citizen because she was born in Philadelphia. She sought to prevent Chwastov from taking the child with him to Russia, but the father successfully evaded U.S. immigration authorities in New York and sailed to Britain.

Chwastov told reporters here that he intended to return to Russia and settle in Leningrad.

Chwastov who went to the U.S. five years ago as a stateless person, recently decided to return to Russia after his aged mother wrote him from her sick bed. The viet Embassy in Washington offered to pay for his passage and Tanya's.

POINT ANNE — Mr. George Tulk, Calgary, spent a day recently with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Genereaux. He also visited with his father and sister in Belleville, Mr. Frank Tulk and Mae.

Mrs. Jack Reid, Weston, had tea Monday evening with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Cox. She also visited with Mrs. W. Akey.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGee on the arrival of a son, born in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Bernard Fox has purchased the canteen from Mr. Sam Gurnick at the end of Point Anne lane on No. 2 Highway. They will be moving in soon.

Mrs. Harry Ellis is spending some time with her daughter in Oshawa.

Mrs. George Wright is who is ill.

Congratulations to the Point Anne ball team in winning the OASA provincial title.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. William Juby. Winners were Mrs. Lucille Lloyd, Mrs. Sally Lloyd and Mrs. Agnes Whalen.

After euchre Mrs. Juby served refreshments and a social time was spent.

Monday evening in the Point Anne Orange hall a miscellaneous shower was held for Mrs. Vernon Crawford (nee Joyce Cummings). The evening was spent in playing euchre. Winners were: Miss Maxine Hull, Mrs. Pearl Genereaux; consolation, Mrs. Audrey Chisholm; lone hand, Mrs. Barbara Branigan; lucky plate, Mrs. Lena Hull. After euchre Joyce was escorted to a seat on the platform where a table was laden with many lovely and useful gifts. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Bill Warren. They helped unfold the gifts after which Joyce thanked the givers and those who helped to have the shower for her. She also gave the ladies a hearty invitation to visit her and her husband in their new home at Belleville. The ladies were then asked to the tables which were decorated with shower tablecloths and flowers and laden with a variety of sandwiches, cakes and trimmings. After a pleasant evening spent together they all joined in wishing Joyce and her husband a happy married life and a long one together.

Deepest sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. William Armstrong and family in the sudden death of her husband, Mr. William Armstrong who passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital at London, Ontario, Wednesday. His death was due to an accident which they had on their way to London. Mr. Armstrong was employed as a chief clerk at the Canada Cement plant, No. 5, for several years before retiring and moving to Belleville a short time ago. He will be greatly missed as he was an active worker in all walks of life and especially in the Orange lodge. Friends of Mrs. William Armstrong were sorry to hear of her accident and will be pleased to hear she is feeling better and will be home soon from St. Joseph's Hospital in London. Friends will also sorry to hear about her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Shelley Williams who were in the accident also.

L.O.L. 2590 held its regular meeting on Monday evening in the Orange hall with a good attendance, with Bro. Danecourt Thompson worthy master, in the chair. There were several visitors present from Belleville. Bro. Earle Keene, deputy county master; Bro. Fred Prindle, county master, South Hastings; Bro. J. N. Bentley, past county master, and Bro. Lee Bradshaw, past county master, were called on and gave a few remarks for the good of the order and the members. Lodge was closed and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Denzel Akey is home from Belleville General Hospital. Sympathy is extended to her and Mr. Akey in the loss of their newborn baby (stillborn.)

KNOW YOUR PHARMACIST BETTER...

In almost every community throughout our land there is at least one man known to most of us as "our pharmacist". It is not by accident that he has been typified as a pleasant scholarly man, respected throughout the community or again as a cheerful, friendly man who continually goes out of his way to help others.

The very nature of his professional training, and the code by which he lives and works, casts him into one of these familiar moulds.

As pharmacists, we in I.D.A., over 500 members of the Independent Druggists' Alliance, are proud of the tradition of service which has been the history of our profession.

Both as pharmacists and as merchants we are aware of our two-fold responsibilities — to work hand in hand with your physician to alleviate sickness and suffering, and also to serve you, our customers, sincerely and honestly.

And so we say "get to know your pharmacist better"; You will find that your community drug store is the safe, logical and dependable place to buy drugs, medicines and other needs for health and beauty care.

Metras 'Mum' On Gael Game

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—While he praised Western's fine defensive play in the 6-3 upset victory over McGill Redmen on Saturday, Mustang head coach Johnny Metras is making no predictions on next Saturday's tussle at Kingston with Queen's, last year's winner of the intercollegiate football title.

"We looked good defensively against McGill," he said Tuesday of his young and inexperienced team. "And we scored when we got our big chance."

The first meeting with Queen's looks like a "tough assignment," he said.

Western bogged down offensively against McGill, but backfield coach Bill L'Heureux blamed that partly on the rain that came in the last half. Judging by their showing against University of British Columbia and Ontario Agricultural College, the boys can do a lot better, he believes.

Only major injury in the season opener was end Pete Maurice, a local product, who will be out for the season with a broken ankle bone. His place likely will be taken by freshman Don Stewart from Peterborough. He showed well in both the UBC and the OAC contests.

Lords to Try New Offensive

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Playing coach Indian Jack Jacobs is dressing 12 backfielders for Wednesday night's game with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, in an apparent effort to try new offensives and gain the first home victory for his London Lords.

The Dutchies lead the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Jacobs himself will start at quarter, and his relief will be the newly-acquired import Jim Hook. Jack O'Toole and Art Trithart will be the centres.

May Organize Junior B Loop In District

Plans were discussed for a new district O.H.A. Junior "B" league at a meeting held here last night.

Although nothing definite was decided, possible entries include Belleville, Kingston Canadiens, Peterborough, Queen's University and the Kingston Royal Military College.

Belleville has been without a Junior "B" League to operate a club for a number of years. Kingston Canadiens participated in the 1,000 Island League for the past several seasons while Peterborough had an entry in the Toronto District Big Ten league.

Organization of the O. H. A. Intermediate "C" Southern Section hockey league was also finalized at the meeting.

The league will be composed of Kingston Vimy, Napanee, Picton Army, Trenton, Frankford, Wellington and Cananoque. The Cananoque club will be an intermediate "B" team participating in the "C" league. They will enter the "B" playdowns.

A 24-game schedule will open on November 19th when the Gana will visit Vimy at Kingston. Each club will play four games with each of the other teams, two at home and two away.

It was also stated last night that the 1,000 Island League, in operation in the Kingston district for a number of years, has disbanded.

HILZINGER THROUGH

OTTAWA (CP)—Karl Hilzinger, Ottawa Rough Rider fullback injured in Monday's game with Montreal Alouettes, is through with football for the season and may be unable to handle his annual winter job as ski instructor at Mont Tremblant, Que., it was reported Tuesday.

Grid Electronics May Be Thing Of Future

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—Four years ago an imaginative admiral wrote a fiction story on how he believed Navy's football team upset Army by using signals expedited from the stands by a former star quarterback.

Admiral Dan Gallery's piece in the Saturday Evening Post was received as an amusing story at that time. Today, U.S pro football is astir over the electronic invasion of the gridiron.

After losing five of six exhibition games, Chicago Cardinals began to use a device to send instructions to players on the field. With the gadget, they upset Cleveland Browns and New York Giants and are on top of the eastern division of the National Football League.

Although they won't credit all their success to the "press box-to-field" operation, the Cardinals admit it has been a big help, especially on defence.

"We can spot the enemy's offensive alignment better from the press box," said assistant coach Chuck Drulis.

In beating the Giants Sunday, 35-27, Drulis and Charlie Trippi correctly anticipated 50 per cent of the Giant plays. Trippi also called numerous offensive plays, one of which set up a Cardinal touchdown.

There are no wires to the Cardinals' "sudipage," developed by the Philco Corporation. An electronic piece about the size of a silver dollar is installed in a helmet and wires are set in the turf encircling the field. The ground cables amplify the voice from the press box to the player who carries the device in his helmet.

Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and New York Giants are reported planning to install similar equipment.

Baltimore Colts, Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers are interested. Washington Redskins don't plan to use the gadget.

CAN BE JAMMED

The Cardinals' electrician admits there's little that stops the opposing team from jamming the signal and making the device worthless."

And the Philco people say anybody can buy the $79.50 helmet device—even opposing players—and pick up the signal.

League Commissioner Bert Bell says he doesn't care what kind of devices teams employ "as long as the game is conducted legally in a manner that fans enjoy."

"The way the rules are now," Bell said, "there is nothing to prevent the use of equipment that wires players with sound. It is up to the owners to decide against such devices, if they wish."

'Bums' Even Money To Repeat After 6th Game 1-0 Victory Over Yankees

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALL OVER!

By this time the 1956 world series has passed into history. Again two championship teams battled each other to the wire in a furiously fought seven-game contest. It has been a thrill-packed climax to the baseball season with both Brooklyn and Yankee fans running the gamut of thrills, suspense and nerve-tingling situations.

To the baseball world in general the thrill supreme was the sensational no-hit, no-run, "no-nuthin" perfect game pitched by the Yankees' Don Larsen. That will go down in the archives as the effort supreme of any world series pitcher. There were other heroes, too, not counting those, if any, of today's title-winning battle. There was Sal Maglie, gallant Dodger hurler who hurled a sensational first game and whose tastes in the fifth till was dimmed only by the magnificence of the Larsen dream game.

There was Mickey Mantle, Duke Snider and others who deserve accolades for outstanding performances. There was the immortal Case Stengel, the master-mind of the Yankees, who duelled brilliantly with his counterpart of the Flatbush Fusiliers.

To baseball fandom all over the world, and to the Brooklyn faithful in particular, Walter Alston is the gulding light of the Dodgers.

But there are those that differ. To the large coterie of Flatbush fans who worship the sensational "freudian-ologists" in Ebbet's Field a character called "Chooch" is the mental wizard.

"Chooch," we never discovered what the name is in English, is a barrel-chested product who doesn't just stand there in his "stannin-room seat." He masterminds every play, issues orders in a bellow and follows through with typical Brooklyn English.

"Chooch" and his buddies "stoot" well off to the left and up from our press-box seat in the first two games of the series. The wind was right for the "bum and his buddies" in the first tilt but we missed "Chooch" and his highly entertaining masterminding in the second Dodger win.

His only weakness was hoarseness along about the eighth inning when his bellow is reduced, to a croak but by dint of ears yes could "get" his instructions. This may account for all those sixth-inning homers Brooklyn pitchers were allowing late in the past season. They couldn't hear "Chooch's" well-meant orders.

But this red-hot Dodger stand-by did more than plot the "Bums'" winning course last Wednesday.. He confounded the Yankees by issuing them a scandalous set of instructions. To Mr. Skowron, the Yankees' first baseman, for instance:

"Kick it, ya Yankee bum ya, kick it. They shouldn't letcha wear the name No. 14 our Gittle boy wears. Kick it, ya bum."

Whereupon Mr. Gilliam of the Dodgers, hit the ball to Mr. Skowron and Mr. Skowron kicked it for an error.

"Chooch's" voice though reduced to a whisper held out to the very end unhappily for the Yanks. With Mr. Slaughter on first and one out in the ninth, Mr. Mantle came to bat. Cooch called his Roman nose, shrank his barrel-chest and commanded:

"Mickey Mantle, big man.. B-I-G man, hit inna double play, ya Yankee bum ya, hit inna double play, y'hear?"

Mr. Mantle did, and the ball game was over.

The Dodgers did not follow Chooch's instructions to the letter, and this made him cross. Thus in the first inning with Mr. Slaughter on base and Mr. Mantle up:

"Cmon Sal baby, Sal boy, fan this 82-banner bum, g'im ai ct-downer. (Strike one). Atta baby Sal boy, two more now . . . (POW, over the fence went Mr. Mantle's homer) . . . Sal, y'bum, pay attention . . . Waddaya doin'?"

We distinctly heard Cooch issue instructions to Jackie Robinson to hit a homer in the second inning.

"Inna seats wit' da next one, Jackie boy, inna seats, y'hear?"

Mr. Robinson obeyed orders and so did Mr. Hodges in the next inning.

"Gil, baby, Gil boy, ya booted one in da foist and them Yankee bums com up wit' two runs. Now's yer chance to make up for it, Gil baby. Belt one outta da ball park, y'hear?"

While inning his winning orders to the Dodgers, Chooch led the poor Yankees astray all the way. And he got personal with them and may have hurt their feelings. Whitey Ford, New York's starting pitcher for instance:

"Waddda funny-lookin' little fat guy for a pitcher, ya Yankee bum, ya . . . Whaddaya sweatin'? . . . The game is young yet. Hodges is a sucker for a nice little cotve. I'm only tryin' ter helpya. Throw him a nice little cotve. Gil couldn't hit it wit' a oar . . ."

Mr. Hodges hit the next ball into the seats. Again Chooch addressed Mr. Ford:

"Howda like that, ya Yankee wise guy ya? I tell him Gillie can't hit a nice little cotve and he t'rows him one. Har, har and a hearty har-har."

But "Chooch's" parting shot revealed he had at least a touch of respect for the Yankees, "Den Yanks can scare youse." he announced in a croaking whisper. "Take Mantlemile, an' dat Slaughter — dey're molder—and so's 'at ketcher Bearer. And tomorrow dey're pitchin' a guy named Larceny. Wow."

Robinson's 10-Inning Single Breaks Brilliant Mound Duel; Issue Rests With Newk, Kucks

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—The home-loving Brooklyn Dodgers were back in business today.

Tuesday's brilliantly achieved 10-inning 1-0 triumph, after a high-tension pitching duel between Clem Labine and Bob Turley, squared the world series at three victories each and made the Dodgers even money to repeat their 1955 success over New York Yankees.

The series between the two evenly-matched champions came down to the seventh and deciding game with the issue squarely in the hands of Johnny Kucks, New York's sophomore 18 - game winner.

Both pitchers were bring given a chance to redeem themselves although Turley was bet that neither manager would hesitate to empty his bullpen, which was expected to be filled with every available pitcher, including Tuesday's combatant. There's no tomorrow.

SEEKS FIRST WIN

This was Newcombe's second series start. The big Dodger was been accused, justly or unjustly, of not being able to win the big one, after shellacking in the second game. He pitched 8 2-3 innings in last Friday game with an 0-6 deficit. He was taken off the hook when the Dodgers roared back to win, 13-8. The Yankees 13-8 His complete series record is 0-1.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees chose Kucks after shilly-shallying between him and southpaw Whitey Ford. He finally decided on the young righthander rather than risk his ace in "the shooting gallery" that is Ebbets Field.

The schedule has one this year" Casey moaned, "my lefthander always comes down at Ebbets Field."

Ford pitched the opener in Ebbets Field, and lasted only three innings, bowing to Sal Maglie, 6-3. Kucks has not started, but has appeared twice in relief. He yielded two runs and three hits in two innings of the first game, and in the second game faced only one batter, giving up a single to Forrest Reese.

HOME-FIELD EDGE

The current series has followed the identical pattern of a year ago through the first six games. Neither the Dodgers nor the Yankees have been able to win in the other's ball park. This time the Dodgers have the edge. Last October the Dodgers had to travel the Yankees in Yankee Stadium to gain the first world championship for Brooklyn. This time the Brooks wind up playing the seventh game in their own back yard.

The Yankees have lost six games in a row at Ebbets Field since Oct. 4, 1953.

Tuesday's game, in some ways, was more thrilling even than Monday's, when the Yankees' Don Larsen stunned the Dodgers with the first no-hit and perfect game in world series history.

Unlike Monday's masterpiece, Tuesday's game was a scoreless affair until the last batter, Jackie Robinson, rocketed a screaming liner over Enos Slaughter's head to score Junior Gilliam from second with two out in the last half of the 10th inning.

Until then, Labine and Turley had waged a brilliant duel with neither permitting a runner to advance beyond second. Labine, pitching the longest game of his major league career, allowed only seven safeties, no bit longer than a double, walked two and struck out five.

Turley pitched the greatest game of his career in defeat. He walked eight, two intentionally, and struck out 11 batters, one more than any other Yankee hurler had famed in world series play.

Bullet Bob allowed only four hits, two legitimate and two on the tainted side. The fourth hit sent him down to defeat. It was made in a situation similar to one the 26-year-old fireballing righthander had safely skirted two innings before.

In the last of the eighth, Labine, a notorious wild thrower, opened with a high fly that dropped fair by inches and bounced into fair left field seats for a ground rule double when Slaughter held up after it appeared he had a chance to catch the ball. Turley erased the next two batters, issued an intentional pass to the lefthanded-hitting Duke Snider and got Robinson to end the inning on an infield popup.

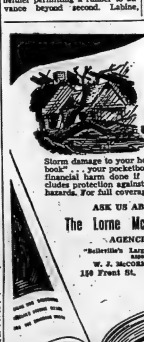
Turley found himself in a practically identical situation in the 10th. Unfortunately for him, he was unable to get a bad chance to a competitor as Robinson a second time. After Pee Wee Reese struck, Gilliam walked and Reese sacrificed. Again first base was open and Turley dictated another pass to Snider.

FOOLED SLAUGHTER

Again Robinson was the batter. Jackie jumped off a pitch and took the next one for a ball. Robinson hit the third pitch. It sounded like a shot from a cannon and traveled almost as fast. It started no higher than a few shoelaces and rose like a well-tagged golf ball.

The drive completely fooled Slaughter, who started in, and began to backtrack too late. The ball landed just short over his outstretched glove and crashed into the left field wall, bounding back. There was no use even picking up the ball. It was all over.

This was only Labine's second complete game of the year. Both triumphs were big ones. His first route - going performance was posted on next-to-the-last day of the season, but put the Dodgers one game ahead of the Braves.



1913 GAME RECALLED

The game was the second in series play which two pitchers were able to carry a scoreless deadlock for nine innings. In 1913, Christy Mathewson of the Giants and Eddie Plank of Philadelphia Athletics, then members of Famers went into the 10th inning before the Giants counted three times to win.

Until the fatal 10th, Labine appeared to be only Labine's brother than Turley. Three times the Yankees had runners first and second, once with only one out. That was in the eighth when, after Hank Bauer had fanned, Joe Collins doubled and Mickey Mantle was given an intentional pass. The strategy worked when Clem got Yogi Berra to raise an easy fly to center and the runners held out to Gilliam.

It was Labine's first start in a series game. The 30-year-old relief specialist had relieved in eight of them during four series. When he got his chance, he wound up with the second series shutout ever pitched in the cramped Brooklyn park.

A perfect game one day. . . A 10-inning shutout the next. . . What was there left for today?

'Swaps' Ruptures Blood Vessels In Workout

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Swaps, holder of three racing marks and a victory in the 1955 Kentucky Derby, pulled up lame Tuesday while working out on the Garden State Park racetrack.

X-rays showed the big California horse had ruptured a blood vessel near the ankle of the left hind leg—but there were no bone fractures as was at first feared.

Dr. George Palmer, Jr., track veterinarian, said the horse would be out of action for about four months, but co-owner Rex Ellsworth, informed of the injury at his headquarters in California, said he expected Swaps to be back racing within 60 days.

Swaps, who beat Nashua in the Derby run last year, was confined to a stall with no visitors permitted. The horse's injured leg was put in ice bags, and apparently was causing considerable pain.

The accident occurred as exercise rider Chester White was taking the colt on a planned six-furlong dash.

HALTS APPEARANCES

The accident apparently cut off any chance that the horse would run before eastern fans this season. It also was the second mishap Swaps had experienced since being shipped east. A recurrence of a boil injury kept the colt out of the recent $100,000 United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City. Next scheduled race for Swaps was to have been the $50,000 Trenton Handicap here Oct. 24.

Trainer Meshack Tenney said that as soon as Swaps can be removed, the horse probably will be sent back to California for rest and treatment.

Swaps, with 19 triumphs in 26 starts has earned $648,909 in winnings over a three-year racing career. He is owned by Ellsworth and John W. Galbreath, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates Baseball Club, who obtained a half interest a month ago.

Two Old Pros Trigger Goals In Habs-All-Stars 1-1 Tie

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice Richard and Ted Lindsay, two old pros with 26 years of National Hockey League experience between them, triggered the goals as the NHL All-Stars and Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions, battled to a 1-1 tie in the annual dream game here Tuesday night.

The 35-year-old Rocket, who has played in every one of the 10 all-star games, drilled the puck past Terry Sawchuk in typical Richard fashion at 14:58 of the second period. Richard pounced on a pass from Bert Olmstead 25 feet in front of the net and drilled a shot that Sawchuk had no chance to stop.

The All-Stars were a man short at the time, with Red Sullivan of the New York Rangers serving a holding penalty.

Lindsay, 31 - year - old Detroit winger who has played in nine all-star games, owned the score four minutes later, tagging a pass from Chicago defenceman Gus Mortson and beating Jacques Plante in the Montreal nets.

From then to the end of the game, the crowd of 13,097 was treated to a display of sound defensive hockey.

It was the third tie in an all-star game. The previous ties were when the first and second all-star teams, 'as selected by sports writers, met. Now the all-star team plays the Stanley Cup champions.

All three goalies—Glen Hall of Detroit and Sawchuk of Boston for the All-Stars and Plante for the Canadiens—turned in sound performances behind tight defences.

Plante handled 29 shots and the all-star goalies turned back 34—21 by Hall in the first half of the game and 13 by Sawchuk.

Gordie Howe, Detroit right-wing star, missed the game because of an ankle injury. He was injured during a Red Wing practice Saturday.

The All - Stars included Bill Gadsby, Lou Creighton and George Sullivan, New York; Jim Morrison, Hugh Bolton, Dick Duff, Ted Sloan and George Armstrong, Toronto; Nick Mickoski, Wally Hergesheimer and Larry Wilson, Chicago; Alex Delvecchio and Red Kelly, Detroit, and Leo Labine, Boston.

McFarlands Hold Workout Meet Kitchener Here Friday

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

"They're going to be all right." That was the packaged comment of playing coach Bep Guidolin after his senior "A" McFarlands skated off the ice following their initial "home workout" last night.

KEP GUIDOLIN

Other than that Bep had little to say. He would only comment on the individual players. "A little too early yet. I've got to get these fellows into shape — and they're going to be in shape before they play hockey."

The rugged good-looking coach who strips a mean 180 pull some twenty charges through strenuous paces in Memorial Arena while a large crowd of rabbits took in the ice calisthenics.

It was a strangely assorted bevy of puckchasers that dashed up and down the floor. At least to habitues of Belleville eyes. Few familiar faces were there. These included the Jones boys, Peter and Bobby, Keith MacDonald, Vern Goyer and Doug Murray. The "rivets" was in the nets at once and of the rink while a newcomer was trying out at the other end.

To this observer, at least, Guidolin gave plenty of evidence last night that he knows what this coaching business is all about. He is not content to merely skate up and down, blasting on a whistle and dropping pucks.

He mixes his player instructions with play combination while taking part in the play himself.

Bep said it was a trifle early to pass any judgment. He was concentrating on finding out who was what, who fitted in and with whom.

"When we play Kitchener Dutchmen here Friday night," he told this reporter, "I do not intend to get out there and do much playing. I want to get a first - hand view of my players and find out what they can do and whom they do it best with."

Guidolin's big blonde Lloyd Hinchberger in defence along with Jack Crawford and Gerry Odrowski out there were Willy Minard who appears to be a speedy tricky youngster not overburdened with size but who could be the sumbest bee of the squad. Brother Hilary was there as was Pete Payette. Others whom we have yet to meet were out there strutting their stuff. Three other players are expected to report tonight.

The McFarlands may have a problem in the goalie angle. Manager Jimmy Ross keenly disappointed over the Jim Shirley let-down, and evidence of the fierceness of competion in the player market, said last night that he expects a topflight goalie to report here from Montreal.

Meanwhile Guidolin will send the "Aitch - Jays" through strenuous paces every night this week when they meet the Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who carried Canada's colors in world hockey last year, in the first of a two-game exhibition series. The second tilt is scheduled for Kitchener Saturday night.

There seemed to be plenty of potential in the squad that worked out last night and it should give a good account of itself on Friday. However as Guidolin says, the squad is in the rough yet and "they're going to be all right" when the wrinkles are ironed out and the pieces fitted into the proper slots.

One thing is sure, they're going to play hockey while they're out there. Guidolin is not respecter of persons nor reputations. Records don't mean a thing with him. It's production here and now that counts.

The final meeting of the Eastern Ontario senior "A" loop brass takes place in Kingston tomorrow night instead of at Cornwall on Sunday as originally scheduled. The club magnates will straighten out any league problems which might arise — then all friendship ceases".

Bisons Whip Rangers 4-2

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Third period goals by Ed Slowinski and Chester Warchol gave Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League a 4-2 victory over New York Rangers of the National Hockey League Tuesday night.

Danny Lewicki and Bronco Horvath scored the win for New York. Other marksmen for Bisons were Wally Boyer and Harry Wilson.

Rangers were without centre Red Sullivan, winger Ron Murphy and defenceman Bill Gadsby, in Montreal for the NHL all-star game.

Colts Release Bernie Flowers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts, who wooed Bernie Flowers away from Canadian football, released the Winnipeg ex-guard to the National Football League limit of 33.

Flowers played with Ottawa in 1953 after being the second draft choice of the Colts. The Colts talked him into joining them after he spent two years in the U.S. army.

At Ottawa, coach Frank Clair of the Rough Riders said the club will not try to pick up Flowers because they would have to pay him a high salary guaranteed by Baltimore under a no-cut contract.

Riders tried to obtain Flowers earlier this year, but without success.

Argos Critical Of Official In Tiger Game

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Roks, president of Toronto Argonauts, has complained to the Big Four Football Union over officiating in Argonauts' game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats here Monday.

Ross said Tuesday night the complaint went to Cec McFaddin, a member of the union's board of reference. The board was set up several years ago mainly to handle fines and cases in which players are liable to league censure.

He told McFadden that the officiating was not as capable as it should be," Ross said.

He did not mention names but other Argonaut officials were critical of the job done by Jimmy Simpson, Hamilton sportsman who was judge of play at the Monday game.

ON HOLDING PENALTY

One play in particular angered Argonaut officials. It was a bad call against Fullback Freddy Black which set Argos back in their own end. On the play, quarterback Arnie Galiffa had completed a pass to halfback Dick Groniosky but was tackled into the Hamilton zone. The pass was called back.

Argonauts said there wasn't a Hamilton player within two yards of Black when the call was made. Simpson Tuesday night declined to comment on the complaint.

Meanwhile, Seymour Wilson, referee-in-chief, said in Hamilton he has directed the law to his officials regarding talking back to players.

Without mentioning names, Wilson said: "As far as I'm concerned, any official other than the referee who discusses a call with a player can be fired immediately. I have already told some officials about this."

He viewed a film of Monday's game, which Hamilton won 34-29. "I saw nothing wrong with the work of Simpson in that game. Many were calls which cannot be interpreted from seeing films and I will investigate these further."

MONTREAL COMPLAINS

Wilson also said he had chatted with coach Peahead Walker of Alouettes about a Montreal beef over officiating.

"He told me that he had 'no' more complaint against Simpson than against any official of the league." Wilson said.

Montreal is reported to have asked Wilson to send Simpson to future games in Montreal. Simpson has not been in Montreal for a'ls' since a game here.

Wilson also said there are "at least four officials who will be through this year if they don't show marked improvement. I have 21 men in the Ontario Rugby Football Union and others in the college league waiting for a chance to move up."

SAM SAYS HE'LL PLAY

MONTREAL (CP)—A knee injury suffered by quarterback Sam Etcheverry in Alouettes' game was described Tuesday as "only a bad bruise."

Etcheverry suffered the injury during the weekend home-and-home football series against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Dr. Gordon Young said he will have to wait until later in the week to decide whether Etcheverry will be able to play Saturday in Toronto. Sam said he will be in the game.

'Watch Canadiens' Loop Word As NHL Starts 40th Season

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League swings into its 40th season Thursday and the word around the league circuits is "watch Canadiens."

The powerful Montreal squad is going into the campaign without a rookie in the lineup. All the players are holdovers from last year's squad which finished a comfortable 13 games ahead of Detroit.

And that's where most observers think the Canadiens will wind up again—well ahead of the pack. The only players not back with the team are defenceman Butch Bouchard, who retired, and centre Ken Mosdell, sold to Chicago. Neither saw much action in the last part of the 1955-56 season.

The Canadiens will not see action opening night. The first two games have Toronto Maple Leafs at Chicago and Boston Bruins at Detroit.

The Red Wings are considered the main threat to Montreal's supremacy. League champions for seven consecutive years before Montreal broke the monopoly last season, they still have potent scoring punch in Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay, an outstanding defenceman in Red Kelly and a sound goalie in Glen Hall.

The other four teams are expected to battle it out for the remaining two playoff positions. New York and Toronto won the berths last season, with Boston and Chicago sitting out.

Toronto has instituted another youth movement, under new coach Howie Meeker.

The Black Hawks are still in the middle of a rebuilding program but figure to be better than the team which finished last. The Hawks also have a new coach in Tommy Ivan, former mentor of the Red Wings, who took over when Hall health forced Dick Irvin to retire.

Boston: The Blake is back in Montreal, Jim Skinner at Detroit, Phil Watson at New York and Milt Schmidt at Boston.

One of the individual highlights of the 1956-57 season will be the attempt by Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal to become the first player ever to score 500 goals. Richard, the greatest goalgetter the NHL has ever known, is within 40 goals of the 500. He got 38 in regular season play last year.

The man to beat in the scoring race is Montreal's Dan Belliveau, who won the title with 88 points last season and seems to be improving every year. Howe is expected to be his toughest challenger.

New York, which is idle Thursday, comes into action at Chicago against the Black Hawks Friday. Canadiens open their season Saturday at home against Boston.

World Series Notes

By ED CORRIGAN

BROOKLYN (AP) — Twenty-three-year-old Johnny Kucks got the most important assignment of his brief big-league pitching career today, starting for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the deciding game of the world series.

Was he nervous? "Boy, am I," he replied. "I'd be a liar if I denied it."

His opposite number, Don Newcombe, had little to say. "I'm ready," he grunted recalling, no doubt, that he has lost three series games to the Yankees but has been lauded by fans as always losing the important games.

Tris Speaker, serie visitor, said he regards Pevsner Reese and Gil McDougald, respectively, as the sparkplugs of the Dodgers and Yanks.

The subject of Sal Maglie crept into the conversation concerning the final game. "I won't use him unless he comes to me and says he can pitch," said Alston. "He's rarely in any use with just one day rest."

Quickie interview with Carl Hubbell, New York Giants' farm director, who pitched a no-hitter once himself: "Don Larsen's no-windup style is bound to be copied by a lot of pitchers. The batters can't tell when the ball is coming. It's hard enough to follow the ball but he rocks and rolls and you have to guess but when he's going to let it go."

Bob Turley, New York Yankees pitcher, appeared resigned to his fate when Jackie Robinson blasted his game-winning hit Tuesday. While most of the other players were holding their breaths wondering whether Enos Slaughter would get to the ball in left field, Turley started off the mound to watch the flight.

Brooklyn first baseman Gil Hodges is a gentleman from the toes up. . . One of the umpires said when he raises a call on Hodges he feels like bowing down and apologizing.

Labine's Win Sweet Revenge For '53 Defeat

By ED WILKES

BROOKLYN (AP) — Suddenly the 1956 world series, which started as a shabby slugging set, has become proud with pitching.

There was, of course, the perfect no-hitter by Yankee Don Larsen in the first game—something never done before in a series game and few times anywhere.

But how about the five-hitter old Sal Maglie pitched against Larsen? And how about that double nine-inning shutout by Clem Labine and Bob Turley, finally snared by Labine Tuesday as the Dodgers won 1-0 in the 10th?

"Let me tell you we've really seen some pitching the last two days," said Dodger manager Walt Alston. He was sitting in a chair propped against the wall of his padded dressing room-office under the Ebbets Field stands.

NOT MISSING CHANCE

He made a point of sitting in that particular chair in that particular position. "This is where I was sitting the last time we won (Friday)." He's not particularly superstitious as baseball men go, but he wasn't missing any chances.

"That Labine has done a wonderful job for us. And I guess I'll have him in the bullpen again today, maybe for a late inning if we need him.

"He has a good arm. I don't think it ever gets sore. During the season I must have used him four days, then maybe even six days in a row in relief.

"I don't guess he'd ever pound 10 innings before in the majors. I had him first at St. Paul and he did a good job for me in relief."

The 30 - year - old righthander gave seven hits, but only once did the Yankees put two together in one inning and that was in a two-out situation that followed Labine's getting Mickey Mantle to ground out. He walked only two—intentionally.

Turley, the reformed fireballer who has been picking up a few other pitches, gave up two hits in defeat, falling back once again on his fast ball.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel, upset and concerned by the defeat, kept repeating "You couldn't ask anyone to pitch any better than Turley did. What he needed was one rut and we couldn't get it for him."

Before last season, Turley was a discouraged, disillusioned almost-forgotten member of the Yankees' pitching staff.

But one defeat has changed all that and today the 26-year-old righthander is looking forward to next season with all the confidence in the world.

"The most important part of the game was that it made me believe in myself again," he said. "I didn't know what was the matter with me last season. I thought maybe I had lost my fast ball and never would have control. But now I know I'm as good as I ever was."

Did his new no-windup delivery, which he copied from Don Larsen, help?

"I think it's the reason I have better control," he said. "Jim Turner, our pitching coach, suggested I use it after he saw what it did for Larsen."

Jackie Feels 'Like Kid Again' Wants to Play One More Year

Larsen Still Hazy Over Dream Game

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP) — Twenty-four hours after pitching the first world series no-hitter and the first perfect game in 34 years, Don Larsen was red-eyed from lack of sleep and "still in a daze" Tuesday.

"I still can't believe it," the six-foot-four New York Yankee right-hander managed to say while admirers crowded around him for autographs.

Larsen said he got only about an hour's sleep and the fingers of his fan-ous pitching hand were numb from scribbling his name on scorecards, baseballs and match covers.

"I must have signed a thousand," he added.

NOW AN IMMORTAL

Two days ago the San Diego, Calif., resident was just another obscure pitcher with a reputation for high jinks. Today he is on baseball's pedestal—a pitcher who achieved a goal which escaped such greats as Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander.

He is set for television appearances at $1,000 a throw, endorsements and magazine stories.

It's estimated that Larsen's pitching feat will bring him $15,000 in color cash for TV appearances and endorsements.

Somebody asked Walt Alston, the Brooklyn manager, what he thought of Larsen's performance.

"Good," Alston replied.

"It couldn't have been better, could it?" the interviewer insisted, unsatisfied with the answer.

"Well, he could have struck us all out," Alston replied dourly.

CASE WAS STUNNED

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees knew he was in for thrilled by the feat that one of his coaches, Bill Dickey accused him of wandering around the dressing room too stunned to speak.

"If I was stunned by that," Casey said, "I was made speechless by one of the first questions shot at me in the dressing room.

"One of the reporters asked me quite seriously, 'Casey, is that the best game you've seen Larsen pitch?'"

TAKES FIRST STEP

WINNIPEG (CP) — University of Manitoba Students' Union has taken its first step towards returning to intercollegiate football, accepting a motion Tuesday to hold a student referendum later this month.

The referendum will call for a fee increase of $2 a student to subsidize Manitoba's entry in a four-team western league, if the proposal is accepted it still must be approved by the university's board of governors.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions need to attract only 35,452 fans to two remaining home games to become the first football team in Canada to draw 200,000 attendance during a league schedule. In six Western Interprovincial Football Union games at Empire Stadium this season, the Lions have drawn 164,167 fans, an average of 27,361 a game.

The doubles for takeout in bridge is a huge gadget for deference. It is an order for partner to bid something if there is no interesting bid. No better gadget do opponents have.

From the routine nationals you see here deal 26:

	NORTH
	♠J 2
	♥K Q 8 4
	♦K 10 5
	♣K Q 8
WEST		EAST
♠A K Q 10 8 5		♠9 6 3
♥J 3		♥9 7
♦3		♦J 10 7 4 3
♣5 4 2		♣10 9 7
	SOUTH
	♠7 4
	♥A 10 8 3
	♦A 8 6
	♣A J 6 3

This is the rule bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠	Double	Pass
2♥	3♠	3♥	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

When south and north reach game in hearts, west might try one of those worthwhile sacrifices. If he can hold it to a defeat of only two tricks it will be a save even if doubled.

In the rubber bridge for takeout. This asks partner to show any unbid major suit with four or more cards in it. This is what south says when he bids two hearts in answer to the double.

The bid in that particular spot does not promise a suit that is biddable. It is expected of a player who has any four suits, even if all of them are small and not even one has a face or honor in it.

When south now raises to two hearts it is not only an admission of good hand support. It admits a sixth trick (one trick more than in an opening one bid). South is no longer forced to bid.

However, the raise by north makes this request upon south: If he has not more than two tricks he should pass; but with more than two tricks, raise once for each trick in excess of two.

His two hearts over one spade was one raise. With his fourth trick he can raise once more. This is how the responder to a takeout double shows the number of tricks he has.

Accuracy is lost on those who will not see it.

At The Belle

The Last Wagon", CinemaScope Xtra, Teams Richard Widmark, Felicia Farr

A spell-binding tale of a group of desperate pioneers whose last resort for survival is to trust a man charged with murder to guide them through hostile Indian territory, is told in Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Last Wagon", now playing at the Belle Theatre.

This unique western drama, based on a story by Gwen Bagni Gielgud, stars Richard Widmark and Felicia Farr. In the full grandeur of CinemaScope and color by De Luxe, "The Last Wagon", as the title implies, is all that remains after an Indian outbreak on a wagon train in Arizona during the 1870s.

As "Commanche Todd", a white man raised by the Indians, Richard Widmark makes his first return to Twentieth Century - Fox since terminating his contract with that studio some two years ago to enter independent production. He is first seen as a sheriff's prisoner charged with murder, but when the sheriff is killed in the ambush, he seizes the chance to prove his innocence by leading the small group of settlers through the dangers and hardships of "leaving west".

Widmark's vis-a-vis is Felicia Farr, a beautiful actress who has appeared in four previous productions — "Jubal" with Glenn Ford and Ernest Borgnine being her latest — but this is her most important role so far.

The great outdoor scenes for "The Last Wagon" were filmed on location in Sedonia, Arizona, by director Delmer Daves. This site was chosen because it most closely resembles the historic, rugged beauty of the old west through which courageous pioneers made their initial passage to the gateways of the Pacific. It was here, too, that seven years ago, the famed director made the memorable "Broken Arrow." Now with the aid of the CinemaScope cameras, the expanse of scenic important part of America takes on a renewed appeal.

The William B. Hawks production also boasts a strong supporting cast headed by Tommy Rettig, Susan Kohner, Stephanie Griffin and Nick Adams.

The film deals not only with the hardships these passengers of "The Last Wagon" faced in 19th century. For has fashioned one of the ultime great western dramas which will join the ranks of such favorites as "High Noon", "The Tall Men", "Covered Wagon" and "Shane".

"The Last Wagon", now playing at the Belle is a real epic of the West which you should not miss.

OPEN SPACES

The Australian government estimates Australia can support a population of 25,000,000, nearly triple the present figure.

AT THE PARK — His body outlined by Apache arrows, frontiersman Jimmy Stewart awaits the Indians' next move in this dramatic scene from "Broken Arrow". Filmed in color by Technicolor, the Twentieth Century-Fox hit is now showing at the Park Theatre. It features Jeff Chandler and Debra Paget in its cast. On the same program "The Frontier Marshal", starring Randolph Scott, Continuous show Saturday. Doors open 12.30 p.m.

Movies Tackle Touchy Subject Of U.S. Govt. Loyalty Rules

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In its search for controversy to lure customers to the theatres, the movies now are tackling the touchy subject of the United States government's loyalty program.

Two films, being filmed by 20th Century-Fox, is largely the story of Abraham Chasanow, an executive with 22 years experience in the navy department. On June 25, 1953, he was handed a letter which told him he was suspended from duty "in the further interest of national security."

Thus began a nightmare that lasted more than a year. At least to account for the action, Chasanow fought against lies, innuendo and secret procedures before finally winning vindication.

STARS ERNEST BORGNINE

The story is being told with Oscar winner Ernest Borgnine as the wronged official and Ray Milland as his lawyer-defender. Produced by Herbert Bayrad Swope Jr., the film is being written and directed by Philip Dunne, scholarly-looking, talented screen writer (How Green was My Valley, David and Bathsheba).

One of the things in the real story are so dramatic that we can't use them," he says.

"For instance, there is the matter of the man's community rallying around him by his support. That would be too obvious, so we are showing that the navy instituted a review first, which is actually true."

WON'T USE ACTUAL NAMES

Dunne said that releases had been obtained from Chasanow and others connected with the case. But actual names won't be used.

"We don't want to identify those who spread the lies," Dunne explained. "Also, this allows us to take certain liberties with the story. For instance, we don't show the man as a lawyer, the reason being that people would think that he should be able to get himself out of trouble."

"I think the picture will have a good effect abroad," Dunne declared. "You can't just show America as being perfect. The best way to demonstrate our way of life is to point out a sore spot and then show how democracy heals it over."

WAS LEADING JOCKEY

LONDON (Reuter) — Michael Beary, 61, racehorse trainer and Britain's former leading jockey, died in hospital Monday night. Born in Ireland, he rode his first winner in 1913 and was still riding last year. He gained his only Derby success with Mid-Day Sun in 1937.

Sunday Evening TV Enriched By Opening of Omnibus Series

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday evening television entertainment has been considerably enlivened and enriched with the advent of Omnibus on the ABC-TV network.

For its debut, executive producer Robert Saudek and his staff made a wise and rather typical choice. Composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, who has developed into an interesting television personality, led us on an absorbing Odyssey of American musical comedy from its post-civil war birth to Dams Yankees and South Pacific.

It was a mildly serious look at a mildly frivolous subject, and that is typical Omnibus philosophy and technique: to reflect seriously on the amusing, and to ponder amusingly on the serious.

There is not really such a thing as poor Cole Porter music. There is only good to better. Porter music, as was pretty well demonstrated on Ford Star Jubilee (CBS-TV) last Saturday evening. And the better was sung by Dolores Gray, a girl who should be seen on television more often.

But what happened to Bing Crosby? His stilted script rendered almost unrecognizable this most unstilted of performers.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, Oct. 11, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Excellent indications for you today. Your planet, Mars, gives special impetus to all worthwhile projects, but be careful not to overemphasize your favored interests, to the exclusion of others.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Some good rays still linger from yesterday. Attend to tasks with sincere determination. Benefits may be gotten almost any activity; act with firmness.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — One of the finest planetary periods you will have for some time; Mercury rays, will be strongly benefic today and tomorrow. Tackle all work vigorously; live a full day every day.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Trades and work requiring mechanical skill are especially favored now. Be encouraged by the Moon's fine aspect, which continues into tomorrow, Poise is a must.

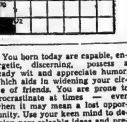
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your Sun has an insupicious position today; exercise extra care in work with machines, tools, water and electricity. Make the most of every worthwhile opportunity available.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Excellent influences from your planet, held over from yesterday, continue today and tomorrow. Diversify your interests, projects; synchronize work to a set pace.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Some days are better suited to a slower, steadier effort, with time out for more reflection, meditation. Today may be such a day, though important matters should not be slowed down.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Generous rays predominate. Share your happiness with others; help those who require a little lift. Perform usual duties with alacrity and efficiency. Be alert.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Vibrations akin to Scorpio now. Spread energies where they will do the most good; don't lose your sense of proportion. Contentment possible if you do your share. Good going!



December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Fine indications. Be observing. Don't spend too much time along one line but vary your approach. Look around for best propositions in business, selling contracts, etc.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Move with precision and good planning. Carry out assigned tasks to the best of your ability. Don't try to force matters. Pursue a normal course, and be tactful.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Don't anticipate trouble but be ready for whatever the day has to offer. You have the ability to rise above the usual; use it well. Attention to details will help over rough spots.

You born today are capable, energetic, discerning, possess a ready wit and appreciate humor, which aids in widening your circle of friends. You are prone to procrastinate at times — even when it may mean a lost opportunity. Use your keen mind to develop new saleable ideas and present them with a fresh approach. Libra is the Sign of many persons prominent in public life, in professions, politics, business, entertainment, writing. A touch of the wanderlust must sometimes be curbed. Control all desires prudently; set your sights on worthwhile objectives and let nothing deter you from attaining.

CANADA NOT AFFECTED

FREDERICTON (CP) — J. R. White- president of Imperial Oil Limited, said Tuesday that a somewhat lessened movement of oil tankers through the Suez Canal has had no effect on Canada's oil supplies so far. There is the likelihood of any effect as long as the present number of vessels can be kept in operation, he said in an interview. Little oil from the Middle East entered Canada ordinarily.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. Carman Milligan and family attended their son's wedding in Toronto, Saturday, September 29. Others who were in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. William McLaren, grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLaren, Mr. and Mrs. Don Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Macfarlane, Miss Marjorie Macfarlane and Mrs. W. Sherry, Belleville, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Weese, Wilfrid Vanenglish, Harold McMechan, Carl McMechan and Jack Fair.

Delightful weather made Saturday an ideal wedding day and best wishes are extended to Billy and his bride (nee Evelyn Burgess), this happy couple left for a honeymoon in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William McLaren returned to Rochester with Mr. and Mrs. Jim McLaren who were in Toronto for their nephew's wedding.

Messrs. Harold and Carl McMechan spent Sunday in St. Catharines with friends.

Billy English visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred English, Beamsville.

Mr. William McMechan had tea Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. Macfarlane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Boyle returned to their home in New Jersey the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille and family attended church service in Cannifton and had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pound.

The Scouts with their leaders enjoyed a corn roast at the quarry Wednesday evening.

A large number of Melrose ladies attended the Ladies' Aid Belle Hall Wednesday evening.

Members of Melrose W. M. S. held their October meeting at Mrs. Russell Macfarlane's home. Regrets were received that the president, Mrs. George Morgan, was too ill to be present. Miss Margaret Bailey, who is devoting her time to caring for Mrs. Morgan, was also absent. These faithful members are greatly missed from the missionary meeting and other activities in the community.

The girls' club held its meeting this week at the home of Patsy and Barbara Walsh, second line.

Mrs. Charles Bates, has been released from hospital and is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Gardiner, in Belleville.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was in her room this afternoon and I said to Hay mow is how I'm reeding, so please dont interrupt me unless it's important, she said, and I said, But Ma, I'm supposing I think it's important and you should too.

What you think you're old enough to distinguish between a silly observation and something important? ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, but Jamaiman suppose I still think it's a silly observation, what then?

Then it wouldn't be important as far as I was concerned, ma said, and I said, Oh, I dont matter any more, anyways.

Then for goodness sakes let me reed, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma it dont make any difference now because it's already in the morning and now it's too late, so what's the use?

All right, then forget it for last spakes, ma said. What did you say? Then I supposed I said, Oh dont matter any more, anyways.

Then for goodness sakes let me reed,

Three Powers Seek Solution To Suez Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) —The foreign ministers of Britain, France and Egypt met once again tonight to sift the tangle of plans and proposals for running the Suez Canal in search for at least a basis for further negotiations.

If they have made any progress is the private sessions in the office of United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold they refuse to say so.

Britain and France — despite rumors to the contrary — apparently are still strongly united behind their demand for control of the waterway under an international body.

Egypt, supported by Russia, has turned down all proposals which would not leave Egypt absolute master of the canal.

WITHOUT COMMITMENTS

After Wednesday night's meeting in Hammarskjold's heavily guarded office in the Secretariat of the UN headquarters skyscraper, Foreign Minister Christian Pineau of France said the parties have been "developing questions and answers without any hard commitments from either side."

Earlier Wednesday Pineau and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd issued a communique saying they see no complete agreement.

They will continue to work together for a solution on the "practical proposals" put to the 18-nations who met in London following nationalization of the canal by Egypt July 26.

The statement added: "Speculation in the press about British-French differences is without foundation."

STAND IS FLEXIBLE

However, a British spokesman said later that Britain is flexible on the question of canal operation provided there is an international group to ensure free access to the canal for all ships.

This is contrary to the decision of the 18 nations in the London conference. Their plan—on which the Anglo - French representation to the UN Security Council is based—proposed operation of the canal by a 7-to-11-member board body, provision of pilots, guarantee of use of the canal to all ships and payment of a "just" fee to Egypt.

However, such a view would be more in line with that outlined Tuesday by U.S. Secretary John Foster Dulles at the final open session of the Security Council.

FIRE KILLS FIVE

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—Mrs. Florence Talbot, a 60-year-old widow, and four of her children perished early today when fire swept their six-room home. Mrs. Talbot, a daughter and two sons were only 15 feet from the front door when they were felled by dense smoke. Another son was found in an upstairs bedroom, a short distance from the window.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) Synopsis: The weather is clear and cold over Ontario Wednesday night and Thursday as a ridge of high pressure.

An southerly winds bring warm air into the province from the midwest, a warming trend is indicated for the next 48 hours. An area of showers and thunderstorms has developed west of the Great Lakes and will move into Northern Ontario late today. By Friday night or Saturday it is expected to spread into southern sections of the province.

LAKENHEATH, England (AP) A U.S. military transport plane with 59 aboard vanished over the eastern Atlantic today on a flight to the Azores and ships started a far-flung search.

The missing craft, a giant C-118 Liftmaster of the military air transport service, was carrying 49 air force officers and 4 air force enlisted men back to the United States after duty in England. Also aboard was a nine-man crew of three officers and six air enlisted men.

The four-engined plane, military version of the civilian DC-6, left this American base, 60 miles north of London, at 6:26 p.m. (1:26 p.m. EST) Wednesday on a 1,200-mile hop to Lajes air force base in the Azores.

It was last heard from at 9:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EST) when it was approximately 180 miles southwest of Land's End, Britain's most westerly point.

The U.S. 7th Air Division in London said a signal reported to be an S O S, that was picked up by search planes, was a garbled version of messages between freighters discussing the search operations.

British and American military authorities launched a massive search of the entire ocean area from England to the Azores on the presumption that the plane is down somewhere in the Atlantic.

By noon today the planes engaged in the search had swelled to 20. Including three air-sea rescue launches, 26 bombers flying at high altitude and sailing radar in an effort to pick up some clue.

Even Winner Was All Wet On This Bet

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP)—Chuck Parsons, a 20-year-old world series bet, stood on a plank ready to pay off Tuesday in the Saranac River after the final game.

ISRAELI TROOPS DESTROY JORDAN POLICE STATION

Raid Made as Reprisal For Slaying of Farmers

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli forces wiped out another Jordan police station on the border in a month, in a seven-hour artillery and hand-to-hand battle that ended early today.

Official accounts from both sides said 46 were killed and 25 wounded before a United Nations cease-fire ordered finally brought firing to a halt at 5 a.m.

The Israelis said their forces attacked Kalkilya on the border, a mile inside Jordan and 62 miles northwest of Jerusalem, as a reprisal for the slaying of two Israeli farm hands.

The Israeli forces engaged in fierce hand-to-hand fighting, grenade battles and bayonet charges before they blew up the post with TNT charges and withdrew to their base across the border, informants said.

An artillery exchange across the border followed.

USE BOMBERS

Jordan informants said the Israelis first attacked about 10 p.m. with armored cars, bazookas and artillery and with the support of bombers.

Israeli sources said Jordan sent a regimental Royal Kilija army attack started, but it ran into an Israeli blocking force and did not reach its goal.

Maj-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of United Nations truce supervision finally prevailed on both sides to observe his cease-fire call after the Israelis withdrew.

A Jordan military spokesman in Amman said Khlat Kilija was turned to his capital this morning by United Nations truce supervision forces during the battle.

In Beirut, Lebanon, there was considerable speculation that Hussein, whose throne is already shaky might launch a major attack against Israel. While the raid was still going on, the 20-year-old king flew to Amman for fresh appeals to his Arab neighbors for help.

COUNTRY RESTLESS

With unrest mounting in his small kingdom, Hussein faces a critical month. Next May 30 is election day, when Jordan army officers are openly predicting there will be riots at the once powerful Arab Legion who now command only the 20,000 man Jordan army. Any hint of a successful or national guards, poorly trained and equipped, with rifles and Sten guns.

The army, formerly the Arab Legion, numbers 30,000 men and they are well trained and equipped. Hussein Bedouin dares to expose his only main fighting force depends largely on pressure against his throne.

DESCRIBES SONG FEUD

LODI, N.J. (AP)—Mrs. Nancy Adamo, 40, testified Wednesday she and Natalina Lepore left their homes because she's an Elvis Presley fan and Miss Lepore's favorite singer is Pat Boone.

Her husband, Anthony, said she struck him. Magistrate Frank Carbonaro dismissed both assault charges.

Doctor Says Half Women Regularly Transformed Into Irritable Witches

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At least half of all women are regularly transformed into tense, irritable "witches," raising hob with their husbands, children, bosses, and friends.

And if they only knew why, they could all take drugs to avoid it and make life happier all around, says Dr. Eric Hertzman of the university of Southern California.

The "witch" physical change is caused by hormonal changes coming every month, and the "witch" lasts for three to six days. It is known as pre-menstrual tension, and probably contributes to divorces.

"It's a very serious problem—and completely unnecessary, because it can be prevented," Dr. Hertzman declared, reporting on a three-year study of 200 women. He said the best drug he found for the condition is neobydrin, a mercurial compound which speeds elimination of excess water.

BRITAIN'S FASTEST RADAR FIGHTER

The high tail assembly and twin exhausts of Britain's Gloster Javelin give the all-weather fighter a far-sweptwing appearance. Claimed to be one of the world's most powerful and extensively equipped to be one of the world's most powerful and extensively equipped attackers, the Javelin has the latest in radar for day and night operations. Toronto Moves Steadily Closer To Montreal in Population

OTTAWA (CP)—Toronto, Canada's largest metropolitan community, is steadily moving closer in population to the country's biggest, Montreal.

The year's census-takers found that Metropolitan Toronto, on the strength of phenomenal suburban growth, had increased 8.4 per cent to 1,347,925 persons in the five years since it was counted at 1,117,470 in 1951.

Metropolitan Montreal increased 5.7 per cent to 1,620,272 persons to hold its first place, up from 1,- 395,600.

The figures were reported today by the bureau of statistics in an interim census report which also showed that Vancouver and Winnipeg still had third and fourth places among Canada's population centres at the count last June 1.

Today's report on the first national census ever taken on a five-year-interval basis was incomplete. It did not show totals for such centres as Halifax, Quebec, London or Edmonton for which counts are not yet tabulated. Before this, the census was taken every 10 years.

It highlighted, however, the dominant fact of Canadian city growth—the booming rise of the suburbs.

Montreal City proper grew 7.1 per cent in the five years to 1,- 094,448 from 1,021,520. But the rest of the metropolitan area packed ahead by 21.6 per cent to 526,479 from 371,980.

The City of Toronto itself in fact lost population, down two per cent to 662,000 from 675,754. But the rest of Metropolitan Toronto surged up by a massive 33.3 per cent to 685,925 from 642,716.

Scarborough Township, east of Toronto, showed itself to be possibly Canada's fastest-growing big community with a rise of 147 per cent to 208,687 from 84,282. North York is Canada's biggest township at 168,612.

Vancouver City proper expanded by 4.3 per cent to 384,833. Metropolitan Vancouver was up by 24 per cent to 638,813 from 530,736.

Winnipeg City grew by 8.5 per cent to 256,663 from 235,710. The metropolitan area was up 13.7 per cent to 409,887 from 354,080.

Ottawa City's population was 6.5 per cent higher at 219,000 compared with 202,044. The area covered in the metropolitan census was extended this year, and had 333,- 269 persons—up 14.8 per cent from 290,227. The same area five years ago.

The bureau, for its own purposes, also extended metropolitan boundaries of Hamilton, Windsor and Victoria.

Hamilton City rose 10.7 per cent

Toronto Police Question 27 In Boy's Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today they have questioned 27 persons in connection with the slaying of Gary Morris, 9, whose body was found Wednesday in a lonely waterfront area.

All suspects had been released. They included a 15-year-old boy who said he was in the district where Gary disappeared Saturday. Police took a mould of his teeth and said they would be compared with teeth marks found on Gary's thumb.

Meanwhile Mayor Nathan Phillips scheduled a meeting with Chief Constable John Chisholm to discuss the possibility of posting a reward for the boy's slayer. Detectives Wednesday swore out a warrant for murder against an unnamed person.

Mayor Phillips appealed to parents to keep children at home after dark and to instruct them against approaching strangers.

Gary was slain by someone who hit him on the throat and kicked him, causing a ruptured liver, police said. His body was found fully clothed in dense underbrush, four days after he had last been seen by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morris, when he left home to go to a movie.

He was found by police who searched the beach area after a playmate, Billy Hicks, 8, said he had seen an older youth giving Gary a ride on a bicycle, apparently headed for the beach.

Chief of detectives Archie McCathie said the boy apparently had not been a victim of a sexual attack. Cause of death was said to be asphyxiation, probably from injuries caused by someone biting and choking the boy. Police Inspector Rimmer called it "a pretty clear case of murder."

HAIL TEACHER WHO WRESTLED CRAZED GUNMAN

Woman Stabs Madman Holding 96 Hostage

TERRAZIANO, Italy (Reuters) A woman teacher who wrestled with one of two mad gunmen before police burst into a school to free 96 pupils and staff whom they was holed today as the heroine of the tense barricading episode.

For six nightmare hours Wednesday the men held everyone at bay, trussing up teachers and shooting threats to blind the children with acid and telling the police to "keep off with explosive" unless given a sum of 300,000,000 lire (about $480,000).

Two armed policemen finally broke in, climbed to the top floor and challenged the gunmen, Arturo Sampaio, who 15 days ago came home on leave from a criminal lunatic asylum, and his brother, Pasquale.

The police were answered by a burst of fire.

GUNNER KILLED

Both brothers were wounded in the struggle and were taken to a hospital. A 25-year-old workman, Ezzio Zennaro, who knew the school layout and was guiding the police, was killed by gunfire during the storming of the building.

The teacher, Miss Paola dei Caratore, paved the way for the police invasion when she flew suddenly at one of the men and ripped his knife away from him and stabbed him in the head.

This distracted the other's attention from the children long enough for police make their break then.

One group of police scaled a ladder to the first-floor level of Zennaro, who had climbed as additional ladder to distract attention while the rest of he vaulted into the school hall.

SHOT TWICE

A policeman, Alfredo Cepitelli, was left behind him, and with the aid of the teacher overpowered the gunman. He was shot twice in the head and once in the neck.

Meanwhile, a crowd around of police was smashing its way into the hall after a burst of machine gun fire from the other side of the lock. Cavalo quickly surrendered.

Sampaio, who also had had listened panic-stricken to the gunfire from outside, surged through the school shouting that intended to lynch Arturo as he was carried out on a stretcher.

Police, to quell the mob and protect their prisoner, said he was dead.

HELD HOSTAGES

The brothers had driven up to the school on a motorcycle early in the morning.

They hustled the children, aged 6 to 10, into the playground into the school hall and tied up three teachers.

A woman who was passing the school entered to investigate, but left when Sampaio fired a shot over the brothers when she fled to give the alarm. Two passers-by helped her out of range and police were called.

Montgomery Calls on Free World To Set Up Single Fighting Service

LONDON (Reuters)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery has called upon the free world to set up a unified defence system and set up a streamlined master plan immediately for the fight against communism.

Montgomery, deputy supreme allied commander in Europe, said Wednesday the situation is "critical." The time has come, he said, to establish a single fighting service under one supreme director able to do away with the present "complicated mobilization machinery of the various countries" and said he does not believe it would work in nuclear war.

"The idea of a single service has been suggested many times. Personally, I favor it. But it would not be accepted today. However, if we have another war I believe we would end up with a single service for two services — the quick and the dead."

Frenzied Mobs Of Chinese Pillage, Riot In Hong Kong

Crown Colony Packed With Refugees From Red China

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Ninety Chinese were killed in suburban Hong Kong tonight in a savage battle that started when pro-Nationalists attacked the offices of two pro-Communist labor unions.

This brought the two-day death toll from rioting in the mainland suburb of Kowloon and at Tsun Wan, further inland, to 102.

Authorities said that unlike the previous battle, the new outbreak were caused undoubtedly by fighting between the two factions, with neither police nor British troops involved.

The bloody battle began when a band of supporters of Nationalist China broke into the two union offices, seized the furniture and archives and set them ablaze. Troops later arrived in and took control of the entire area.

British troops and police battled with riot guns, tear gas and fixed bayonets during rioting and pillaging on Kowloon.

Foreigners, British and their families, and police stations were the chief targets of the mob. But the mobs also attacked and looted criminates looting and pillaging.

Hundreds of persons were hurt, including a British police officer badly burned when a mob set fire to their car. The flames badly seared the taxi driver.

Some of the mobs stopped cars and extorted money from the occupants.

ORDER CURFEW

After dusk, the troops and police appeared to be slowly bringing the mobs under control. Authorities ordered a curfew for Kowloon's 1,500,000 people from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. and said it might be extended if necessary.

Kowloon is the gateway to Hong Kong island itself, where 1,600,- 000 persons live, free of rioting and unmolested free of trouble.

Two Chinese were killed when police opened fire on a mob in one of Kowloon's main streets. Another Chinese in a mobile truck driven the Kowloon police headquarters was killed by a direct hit from a gun shot.

Two Chinese were bayoneted and six others injured when troops received minor injuries in the battle at the police station. Several police officers and British troops scattered the crowd.

BAYONETS USED

Spotter planes hovered overhead as the British Tunnmies charged with fixed bayonets against the furious thousands trying to overrun the building. Troops threw several exploding tear gas grenades mingled with the shouts and screams of the crowd.

The rioting began Wednesday, finally died down at dawn, and then erupted again about noon in the Shan Shui Po area of Kowloon west Kowloon. They began near a government-owned housing estate where refugees from Communist China wanted to paste Chinese Nationalist flags to celebrate Oct. 10—the national day of the Nationalists.

A Chinese housing official refused permission. His house was sacked and his furniture was burned. This touched off a full fledged riot.

Eight factions were treated in hospital and dozens of others were given first aid.

At the height of violence, the crews of three United States Navy ships in the harbor were kept aboard.

Property damage from burning and looting was estimated in the millions of dollars.

Pro-Nationalist extremists quickly gathered recruits from among the many thousands from the regent Britain's recognition of Communist China and the crowded housing conditions which the tremendous influx from the mainland has brought to the colony.

As the mob swelled and spilled out over the country, its anti-foreign and anti - Communist hysteria mounted. Two schools and Hong Kong's biggest bakery were burned, scores of automobiles were damaged or set afire, stores and food shops were looted and a Chinese theatre and two banks beaten or stoned.

At the riot's peak, an estimated 20,000 persons were involved. Conservative calm, was restored by darkness, but the Kowloon Shui Po sector was seen many smouldering.

Hong Kong island meanwhile remained calm, and its teeming population was only slightly stirred by unusual.

Acting governor E. B. David called out the troops when the mob, foiled in an attempt to overrun the Shan Shui Po police station, marched on the Kowloon police headquarters. At least four battalions were called up, including a units of Nepal's tough gurkhas.

Three Powers Seek Solution To Suez Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) —The foreign ministers of Britain, France and Egypt met again today to sift the tangle of plans and proposals for running the Suez Canal in search for at least a basis for further negotiation.

If they have made any progress in the private sessions in the office of United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold they refuse to say so.

Britain and France — despite censure in the United Nations — are still strongly united behind their demand for control of the waterway under an international body.

Egypt, supported by Russia, has turned down all proposals which would limit to Egypt absolute control of the canal.

WITHOUT COMMITMENTS

After Wednesday night's meeting in Hammarskjold's heavily guarded office on the top floor of the UN headquarters skyscraper, Foreign Minister Christian Pineau of France said the parties have been "developing questions and answers without any hard commitments from either side."

Earlier Wednesday Pineau and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd issued a communique saying they are "in complete agreement."

"They will continue to work together for a solution in the spirit of the principles set out" by the 18-nations who met in London following nationalization of the canal by Egypt July 26.

The statement added: "Speculation in the press regarding Anglo-French differences is without foundation."

STAND IS FLEXIBLE

However, a British spokesman said later that Britain is flexible on the question of actual canal operation provided there is an international group to ensure free access to the canal to all ships.

This is contrary to the decision of the 18 nations at the London conference. Their plan—on which the Anglo - French resolution before the UN Security Council is based—envisages operation of the canal under an international body, provision of pilots, guarantee of free access to all nations, and payment of a "just" fee to Egypt.

However, such a view would be more in line with the proposal put forward Tuesday by U.S. State Secretary Dulles at the final open session of the Security Council.

FIRE KILLS FIVE

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—Mrs. Florence Talbot, a 50-year-old widow, and four of her children perished early today when fire swept their six-room home. The mother, a daughter and two sons were only 15 feet from the front door when they were felled by dense smoke. Another son was found in an upstairs bedroom, a short distance from the window.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Sydepsis: The weather was clear and cold over Ontario Wednesday night and frost was widespread in all regions.

As southerly winds bring warm air into the province from the midwest, a warming trend is indicated for the next 48 hours. An area of showers and thunderstorms has developed west of the Great Lakes and will move into Northern Ontario early today. Friday evening showers are expected to spread into southern sections of the province.

LAKENHEATH, England (AP) A U.S. military transport plane with 59 aboard vanished over the eastern Atlantic today. Scores of planes and ships started a far-flung search.

The missing craft, a giant C-118 Liftmaster of the military air transport service, was carrying two air force officers and 48 airforce enlisted men back to the United States after duty in England. Also aboard was a nine-man crew of three officers and six enlisted men.

The four-engined plane, military version of the civilian DC-6, left this American base, 80 miles north of London, at 6:26 p.m. (1:26 p.m. EST) Wednesday on a 1,200-mile leg to Lajes air force base in the Azores.

It was last heard from at 8:36 p.m. (3:36 p.m., EST) when it was approximately 180 miles southwest of Land's End, Britain's most westerly point.

The U.S. 7th Air Division in London said a signal, reported to be an S O S, that was picked up by search planes was a garbled version of a message between freighters discussing a fire at sea.

British and American military authorities ordered a gigantic search of the entire ocean area from England to the Azores on the presumption that the plane is down somewhere in the Atlantic.

By noon today the planes engaged in the search had logged up to 90, including three six-engine U.S. B-47 jet bombers firing at high altitude and using radar in an effort to pick up some clue.

ISRAELI TROOPS DESTROY JORDAN POLICE STATION

Raid Made as Reprisal For Slaying of Farmers

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli forces wiped out another Jordan border police station, the fourth in a month, in a seven-hour artillery duel that was finished over the United Nations cease-fire demand finally brought firing to a halt at 5 a.m.

The Israeli army said forces attacked Kalkilyah station, a mile inside Jordan and 62 miles north of Tel Aviv, as reprisal for the slaying of two Israeli farm workers.

The Israeli forces engaged in fierce hand-to-hand fighting, grenade throwing and bayonet charges before they blew up the post with TNT charges and withdrew in their base across the border, israeli command said.

The artillery exchange across the border followed

USE BOMBERS

Israeli spokesmen said the Israelis first attacked about 10 p.m. with armored cars, bazookas and machine guns and with the support of bombing planes.

The spokesmen said Jordan sent a regiment to Kalkilyah after the attack started, but it ran into the Israeli trenching and did not reach its goal.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief United Nations truce supervisor, finally prevailed on both sides to end the cease-fire call after the Israelis withdrew.

A Jordan military spokesman in Amman said King Hussein returned to his capital this morning after personally directing Jordan forces during the battle.

In Beirut, Lebanon, there was considerable speculation that Hussein, whose throne is already shaky might launch a reprisal attack against Israel. While the raid was still on, Radio Cairo in Egypt was sending out fresh appeals to his Arab neighbors for help.

COUNTRY RESTLESS

With unrest mounting in his small kingdom, Hussein faces the critical election in 11 days. Moreover, some pro-Nasser army officers are reportedly grumbling. These are men of the once powerful Arab Legion who lost their command to tier outposts manned by a handful of national guards, poorly trained and equipped only with rifles and Sten guns.

The army, formerly the Arab Legion, numbers 20,000 men and they are well trained and well equipped. Whether Hussein dares to expose his only main fighting force dissatisfied largely on pretext against his throne.

Doctor Says Half Women Regularly Transformed Into Irritable Witches

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At least half of all women are regularly transformed into tense, irritable "witches," complete with their husbands, children, bosses, and friends.

And if they don't know why, they could all take drugs to avoid it and make life happier all around, says Dr. Erle Henriksen of the university of California medical school.

Their trouble is physical, caused by hormonal changes connected with every other week period, he said. The spells last a few to six days. It is the premenstrual tension, ovulation, and ends when menstruation begins.

The hormonal changes make their bodies swell with stored water, which apparently produces pressures on nerve centres in the brain. Symptoms include irritability, depression, anger, quarrelsomeness, insomnia, headache, depression, nervousness, vague discomforts, swelling of the feet and ankles.

BRITAIN'S FASTEST RADAR FIGHTER

Claimed to be one of the world's most powerful and extensively equipped attackers, the Javelin has the latest in radar for day and night operations. It carries guided missiles, four machine guns and flies at 50,000 feet at over 600 miles an hour. (Central Press Canadian)

Toronto Moves Steadily Closer To Montreal in Population

OTTAWA (CP)—Toronto, Canada's second largest metropolitan centre, is steadily moving closer in population to the country's biggest, Montreal.

This year's census-takers found that Metropolitan Toronto, on the strength of phenomenal suburban growth, had increased by 20.6 per cent to 1,347,902 persons in the five years since it was counted at 1,117,470 in 1951.

Metropolitan Montreal grew 14 per cent to 1,535,327 persons to hold its first place, up from 1,- 285,400.

The figures were reported today by the bureau of statistics in an interim census report which also showed that Vancouver and Winnipeg still hold third and fourth places among Canada's population centres at the count last June 1.

Today's report on the first national census ever taken on a five-year-interval basis was incomplete. It did not show totals for such centres as Halifax, Quebec, London and Edmonton for which counts are not yet tabulated. But for this, the census had been taken every 10 years.

It highlighted, however, the dominant fact of Canadian city growth—the booming rise of the suburbs.

Montreal City proper grew 7.1 per cent in the five years to 1,- 094,448 from 1,021,520. But the rest of the metropolitan area was ahead by 32.9 per cent to 590,879 from 372,880.

The City of Toronto itself in fact lost population, down two per cent to 662,598 from 675,754. But the rest of Metropolitan Toronto surged up by a massive 53.3 per cent to 685,809 from 441,716.

Scarborough Township, east of Toronto, showed itself as probably Canada's fastest-growing big community with a rise of 147 per cent to 139,083 from 56,292. North York is Canada's biggest township at 168,612, up by 86.3 per cent from 85,297 five years ago and topping cities such as Windsor.

The picture of city growth being outstripped by suburbs is repeated in other metropolitan areas reported on today. They include Winnipeg, Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor and Victoria.

Winnipeg City proper expanded five per cent to 361,952 from 344,853. Metropolitan Vancouver was up by 24 per cent to 638,813 from 520,728.

Winnipeg City grew by 8.5 per cent to 256,683 from 235,710. The metropolitan area was up 15.7 per cent to 409,587 from 354,069.

Ottawa City's population was 6.5 per cent higher at 215,113, compared with 202,045. The area covered in the metropolitan count was extended this year, and had 335,- 191 persons—up 14.6 per cent from the 292,476 in the same area five years ago.

The bureau, for its own purposes, also extended metropolitan boundaries of Hamilton, Windsor and Victoria.

Hamilton City rose 10.7 per cent to 237,749 from 208,321. Its metropolitan population is 325,238—up 14.4 per cent from 284,272. Victoria City grew 12.5 per cent to 61,- 618 in the same area five years ago and up 16.7 from the 1951 figure of 259,683.

Windsor City rose by only 4 per cent to 120,536 from 120,049. Its metropolitan population is 184,045 up 12.5 per cent from 163,669.

Toronto Police Question 27 In Boy's Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today they have questioned 27 persons in connection with the slaying of Gary Morris, 9, whose body was found Wednesday in a lonely wooded area.

All suspects had been released. They included a 19-year-old boy who said he was in the district where Gary disappeared Saturday police took a mould of his teeth and said they would be compared with teeth marks found on Gary's throat.

Meanwhile Mayor Nathan Phillips scheduled a meeting with Chief Constable John Chisholm to discuss the possibility of posting a reward for the boy's slayer. Detectives Wednesday swore out a warrant for murder against an unknown person.

Mayor Phillips appealed to parents to keep children at home after dark and to instruct them against approaching strangers.

Gary was slain by someone who left him on the throat and kicked him, causing a ruptured liver, police said. His body was found fully clothed in dense underbrush, four days after he had last been seen by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morris, when he left home to go to a movie.

He was found by police who searched the beach area after a playmate, Billy Christie, 8, said he had seen an older youth giving Gary a ride on a bicycle. Gary's body was found by Christie.

Chief of detectives Archie McCathie said the boy apparently had not been a victim of a sexual attack. Cause of death was said to be asphyxiation, probably from injuries caused by someone choking Gary's throat. Police Chief John Nimmo called it "a pretty clear case of murder."

Montgomery Calls on Free World To Set Up Single Fighting Service

LONDON (Reuters)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Wednesday urged the free world to reorganize its entire defence system and set up a streamlined master plan immediately for the fight against communism.

Montgomery, deputy supreme Allied commander in Europe, said Wednesday the situation is "critical" and "things have come, he said, to establish a single fighting service under one supreme chief responsible to take prompt decisions in a nuclear world war.

Britain's Second World War military chief was delivering a lecture on The Panorama of Warfare in a Nuclear Age at the Royal United Services Institute in London.

"I believe the situation today is critical," he said. "Either we plan realistically for the future and survive a nuclear war—or we drift along, planning from year to year and using ad hoc methods to meet the disasters.

"Instead of wasting effort on developing tactical air forces, we should devote this effort to providing the weapons the free world really needs, that is, short-range missiles, the guns and bowitzers now amply provided almost everywhere."

He condemned what he called the present "compilation of the defence budgets of the NATO countries" and said he does not believe it would work in a nuclear war.

"The idea of a single service has been suggested many times," he said. "But it has never been accepted today. However, if we have another war, I believe we would end up with a single service . . . or services — the quick and the dead."

HAIL TEACHER WHO WRESTLED CRAZED GUNMAN

Woman Stabs Madman Holding 96 Hostage

TERRAZZANO, Italy (Reuters) A woman teacher who wrestled with one of two mad gunmen before police burst into a school where 96 children held as hostages was hailed today as the heroine of the tense barricading episode.

For six nightmare hours Wednesday the men held everyone at bay, trussing up teachers and shouting threats to blind the children with acid and "blow the place to bits with explosive" unless given a sum of 200,000,000 lire (about $320,000).

Two armed policemen finally broke in, climbed to the top floor and challenged the gunmen, Arturo Sampaio, who 15 days ago came home on leave from a criminal lunatic asylum, and his brother, Osvaldo, 22.

The police were answered by a hail of bullets.

GUIDE KILLED

Both brothers were wounded in the struggle and were beaten by the bodyguard, 25-year-old workman, Sante Zennaro, who knew the school layout. Before the police arrived, he was shot to death during the storming of the building.

The teacher, Miss Paolo del Castore, paved the way for the police invasion when she flew suddenly at one of the madmen, ripped his knife away from him and stabbed him in the head.

This distracted the other's attention from the children hostages and police made their break then.

One policeman climbed a ladder to a first-floor window. Zennaro, who had climbed an adjacent ladder to distract attention, was shot as he vaulted into the school hall.

SHOT TWICE

A policeman, Alfredo Ceppitelli, burst in behind him, and with the help of the wounded policeman, Arturo, who was shot once in the head and twice in the arm, overpowered the madmen.

While another squad of police was smashing its way into the hall after a burst of fire from a chine-gun fire shattered the lock, Osvaldo Sampaio surrendered.

The crowd of parents, who had listened panic-stricken to the gunfire, scrambled and surged through the police cordon and tried to lynch Arturo as he was carried out on a stretcher.

Police, to quell the mob and protect their prisoners, said he was dead.

HELD HOSTAGES

The brothers had driven up to the school in a scooter during recess in the morning.

Zennaro, 25, a bachelor, aged 6 to 12, from the playground into the school hall and tied up three teachers.

A woman who was passing the school heard the shooting and was shot in the leg by one of the brothers when she tried to help the teachers. Two passers-by helped her out of range and police were called.

Frenzied Mobs Of Chinese Pillage, Riot In Hong Kong

Crown Colony Packed With Refugees From Red China

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Ninety Chinese were killed in rubberstone Hong Kong tonight in a savage battle that started when pro-Nationalists wrecked the offices of two pro-Communist labor unions.

This brought the two-day death toll from rioting in the mainland Chinese New Kowloon and at Tsun Wan, further inland, to 102.

Authorities said that unlike the battle, the new casualties were caused entirely by fighting between the two factions, with neither police nor British troops involved.

The bloody battle began when the supporters of Nation alist Chiang Kai-shek tore the two union offices, seized the furniture and archives and set them ablaze. Police later moved in and took control of the entire area.

British troops and police battled with riot guns, bayonets and tear gas against the frenzied looting and pillaging on Kowloon.

Communists, leftists and their property, and police stations were the chief targets of the mob. But there was also considerable indiscriminate looting and pillaging.

Hundreds of persons were injured, including a Swiss couple who were beaten when a mob set fire to their taxi. The flames incinerated the taxi driver.

Some of the mobs stopped cars and extorted money from the occupants.

ORDER CURFEW

At dusk, the troops and police appeared to be slowly bringing the mobs under control. Authorities ordered a curfew for Kowloon's 1,500,000 people from 7:30 p.m. to 10 a.m., and said it might be extended if necessary.

The order did not apply to Hong Kong island itself, where 1,000,000 persons live. The island—Victoria—remained free of trouble.

Two Chinese were killed when police opened fire on a mob at one of Kowloon's main intersections. Another Chinese in a mob trying to storm the Kowloon police headquarters was killed by a direct hit from a tear gas gun.

Two Chinese were bayonetted and an eight-year-old Chinese boy received minor injuries in the battle at the police station which lasted 45 minutes before troops scattered the mob.

BAYONETS USED

Spotter planes hovered overhead as the battle raged. They charged with fixed bayonets against the furious thousands trying to overrun the building. The whoomp of continuously exploding tear gas grenades mingled with the shouts and screams of the crowd.

The rioting began Wednesday, finally died down at dawn, and started again about noon on the Sham Shui Po sector of northwest Kowloon. They began as anti-Communist demonstrations against the opening of a tenement where refugees from Communist China were housed by Chinese Nationalist flags to celebrate Oct. 10—the national day of the Nationalists.

A Chinese bousing official refused permission. His house was wrecked and his furniture was burned. This touched off a full-fledged riot.

Eight Britons were treated in hospital and dozens of others were given first aid.

At the renewal of violence, the crews of three United States Navy ships in the harbor were kept aboard.

Property damage from burning and looting was estimated in the millions of dollars.

Pro-Nationalist extremists quickly gathered recruits from the ranks of the mainland refugees who resent Britain's recognition of Communist China and the crowded housing conditions which the tremendous influx from the mainland has brought to the colony.

As the mob swelled and spilled out over the colony, its anti-foreign spirit — Communist frenzy mounted. Two schools and Hong Kong's biggest bakery were destroyed, scores of automobiles were overturned and set afire, and the shops of Chinese tailors looted and burned, and dozens of Europeans beaten or stoned.

At the riot's peak, an estimated 20,000 Chinese were involved. Comparative calm was restored by dawn, but by noon the Sham Shui Po sector was once more seething.

Hong Kong island meanwhile remained calm, and its European population went about business as usual.

Acting governor E. B. David called out the troops when the mobs rioted in an attempt to overrun the Sham Shui Po police station, centre in the Kowloon police headquarters. At least four battalions were called up, including units of Nepal's tough gurkhas.

For weaving no instructor has been selected as yet.

There is still room in all classes for anyone wishing to register and this may be done by calling the Recreation Director's office at WO 3-1403. Unless more register for these classes, many may be cancelled.

Legion Builds House to Rent For $25 a Month

Thanks to a current project of the Deseronto Branch of the Canadian Legion, some deserving veteran of World War I, from that town or immediate district, is going to be able to rent a brand new bungalow with three-piece bath and forced air oil furnace—all for $25 per month.

The bungalow now under construction near the theatre on Deseronto's main business street, is to a great extent a co-operative effort on the part of Legion members. The bungalow, a pre-fab job with four rooms and bath, but sized basement and all furnace, was constructed largely by donated labor of Legion members. Only work hired was the excavation, duct work for the furnace and some plumbing.

The house has been under construction since October. Now the utilities are about to be connected, and the bungalow will be ready for occupancy early in November.

According to Dr. D. C. McVicker, Legion president, rental applications will be received and screened by a board of Legion members with World War I veterans being given first consideration. If there are no applications from World War I veterans, applications from veterans of the Second Great War will be considered.

Jail Inmate Refuses to Testify He Saw Suspended Chief in Marmora Cafe Day of Robbery

Police Chief Charles Lockwood, 33, of Marmora was committed for trial by jury yesterday afternoon on a charge of theft from the mails. Lockwood appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills for part two of a preliminary hearing which began last week at Hastings County courthouse in Belleville.

The chief is charged with stealing $8,500 in American funds from the Marmora post office on August 15.

Bail has been reduced to $10,000 property from $30,000.

An inmate of Hastings County jail here testified yesterday that on September 29, while he and Lockwood were walking in the jail courtyard, the chief had asked him where he had been on August 15.

"I said I was on my way home to New Brunswick. Lockwood said I'd be a perfect witness for him. I was to say I saw Lockwood in a Marmora restaurant at noon on the 15th if I was brought to court," said 31-year-old Joseph Lavoie.

The younger prisoner said that he and the chief had discussed the subject "three or four times" and at first he agreed to go along with the suspected policeman's plan, but later refused.

Defence counsel Arthur Fair asked the witness: "Did you not tell Mr. Lockwood you recognized him because of an axle case that you were involved in last winter that had involved police officers?" Mr. Lavoie gave a flat denial saying that he was already serving six months for false pretences "and why should I perjure myself and stand to get an additional five years."

Lavoie told the court that he had left Trenton at about noon on August 14 bound for Moncton, N.B., and had lunched at Kingston that day in the afternoon. On the 15th he was well on his way home.

Mr. Fair asked Lavoie if he denied telling Lockwood that he had seen him in a Marmora restaurant on August 15. Once again the witness said he had told the accused no such thing.

TAKEN TO ROAD

O.P.P. Corporal Douglas Sears, who arrested Lockwood on August 29, testified that on September 6 the chief had requested a meeting with the crown attorney and investigating officers. Later in the day, after the chief had again been remanded, he met with Crown Attorney John A. Pringle, C. I. I. Inspectors Vern Whiteley and Robert Wannell and Corporal Sears. During the interview Lockwood volunteered to lead police to some of the money. He was then taken to Marmora; but before going in the police car, the chief took him to the Marmora - Deloro road a few miles to the east of Marmora.

Here it was, continued Corporal Sears, that Lockwood had previously told them that on August 15 in the afternoon he had been out driving and had spotted a car parked on a sideroad. Lockwood went over to the parked vehicle but as he approached it sped away. He gave chase but lost the car. He then returned to the sideroad because he had seen something thrown from the car as it raced away. Scouring the shoulders of the road Lockwood had told police he found an opened bottle of whiskey and further along he located a blue canvas 10-dollar bills, which he placed for safe keeping in his wallet along with some of his own money.

Lockwood pointed out an evergreen branch lying on the road which he said he had placed there as a marker on August 15.

On August 24 Lockwood went back to the sideroad and found a bag containing $5,000 in small dollar sum of U.S. money.

Corporal Sears told the court Lockwood had told him that he was aware an American 10-dollar bill, even in small shipments of cash, had turned up at a service station.

When Lockwood was taken to his Marmora home by police cooperated with police by unscrewing a panel in his desk, revealing a cigar box which contained $3,000 U. S. bills of various denominations. Some of these bills had been in the Toronto-Dominion bank's proposed shipment.

SAID HE WAS SCARED

At that time, said the witness, the chief was asked why he hid the money. He replied that he had been scared and referred to a case, which had involving police officers and stolen money.

Later on the afternoon of September 6 he mentioned by Inspector Wannell, Lockwood cried and said: "I'm glad the boys found no more money in this building."

Third Crown witness, O.P.P. Corporal Reg. Rackham, said that he had lunched at Kingston Service Club in the afternoon. On the 15th he was well on his way home.

Mr. Fair asked Lavoie if he denied telling Lockwood that he had seen him in a Marmora restaurant on August 15. Once again the witness said he had told the accused no such thing.

Elim Church Accepted Into Fellowship

The Elim Baptist Church, Coleman St. in the Belleville became a duly recognized Baptist Church in the Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Churches on Tuesday.

Rev. M. R. Hall, home mission secretary of Toronto, was elected moderator. In the afternoon session the pastor, Rev. Eric Strain, B.A., B.D., gave an outline on the history of the church and reported that the four new members, with five baptisms and a Sunday school of fifty-four members. Mrs. Ethel Hurlbut, treasurer of the church, reported that over $1,000 had been received from the congregation in the nine months of this year, and many hundreds of hours of free labor were given by the membership on the building. The building and property is estimated to be worth $20,000. After a question period the meeting moved to recognize the church.

In the evening Rev. Strain, the pastor, the Rev. Eric Strain, was set apart to the ministry in the Baptist Church with the laying on of hands and a dedicatory prayer being offered by Rev. S. Michell of Oshawa. The charge to the pastor was given by Rev. H. Cairns of Picton, and the charge to the church by Rev. E. Corbitt of Whitby. Rev. J. R. Armstrong, editor of the Fellowship Baptist, gave an inspirational message on "The Work of the Church."

Copper was served to all the visiting messengers and pastors by the ladies of the church in the newly renovated rooms over the church auditorium.

EXTREMISTS UNDER FIRE

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Communist and right-wing totalitarian organizations in Argentina have been brought under strict government control by a decree issued Wednesday after a meeting at government house attended by President Pedro Aramburo. According to the preamble, the decree covers "all organizations which openly or under disguise respond to ideals opposed to democratic freedom and to the republican system."

Operation Necessary To Save Child

An operation at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., to patch a hole in his heart, will be necessary to save Larry Bell, shown here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell, Deseronto, from dying, an early death. established a "Danny Bell Heart Fund" to pay costs of the operation for the 18-months-old boy.

'Danny Bell Heart Fund' Opened by Deseronto Legion

The Deseronto Branch of the Canadian Legion and the people of that town and district have joined hands in a fund raising effort to save an 18-months old Deseronto boy from an early death.

Danny Bell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell, has a hole in his heart the size of a 25-cent piece and unless the condition is corrected doctors say the boy cannot live a normal life.

Cost of the operation at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., and incidental expense will be approximately $4,000 and this is the goal of the "Danny Bell Heart Fund" which has been started by the Deseronto Canadian Legion.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, family physician for Mr. and Mrs. Bell, has known of the boy's heart condition since his birth but to save time he did not tell the parents until four months ago.

Danny would have been visits to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, where an operation at the Mayo Clinic was recommended.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Bell took their small son to Rochester, where he was examined by consultants who recommended the operation not be done until Danny is two years old.

When a child is at least two years old there is better chance for success, doctors say. Danger in chance is given as better than 80 per cent. the parents quoted Rochester doctors as saying.

While the Bells were in Rochester the Deseronto Canadian Legion undertook to assist and their return on Thanksgiving Day they found the "Danny Bell Heart Fund" had been started. President of the Legion is Dr. D. C. McVicker, personal physician of the ailing boy and friend of the Bell family.

Sunday the "Danny Bell Heart Fund" was announced in all the Deseronto churches. A house-to-house canvass in Deseronto is planned while the campaign will be extended to cover the Deseronto district and nearby Tyendinaga. Boxes bearing the fund name will be placed in all places of business in Deseronto. Service clubs have promised support.

At 18 months Danny appears quite normal despite his serious heart condition. He is beginning to talk and has been walking since he was 10 months old. In fact he has even escaped a cold which according to Dr. McVicker would be extremely dangerous for one in his condition.

But time is rapidly catching up with Danny. Doctors say two years Danny's health would be seriously impaired and early death would be possible.

The Deseronto Canadian Legion and residents of that town hope their "Danny Bell Heart Fund" will mean a normal life for Danny.

National Ballet Company Will Give Performance Here in November

Canada's largest touring theatrical attraction, the 63 dancers and musicians of the National Ballet Company of Canada will visit Belleville again on November 10th in the Collegiate auditorium. This news, released by Mrs. R. H. Tanner, director of the National Ballet Guild, and president of the Belleville branch, will remind many of the dazzling display given by this company last fall, when they played to a capacity audience. Since then, the National Ballet has completed extensive tours both in Canada and the U.S., with a special mid-summer visit to Washington which drew enthusiastic acclaim from the critics.

At a meeting held recently to formulate plans for this visit, it was decided that ticket prices should be kept at last year's level, namely $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50, with all seats reserved. Mail orders, accompanied by cheque or money order and stamped self-addressed envelope, should be sent at once to P.O. Box 91, Belleville. Tickets ordered in this way will be sent out on October 16th, on a first come, first served basis. The business side of the visit will again be in the hands of Mr. Don Thomas, with Mr. Jules Abramsky serving as treasurer. The publicity committee, headed by Mrs. R. H. Tanner, comprises Mrs. J. Haig, Miss Peggy Blakely, Miss Mary Moult, Dr. Joan Bromhill and Mrs. R. Knox. Mrs. Cecil Miller is looking after the preparation of the program and social arrangements are being arranged by Mrs. Alan Sprague, assisted by Mrs. R. B. Somers. Mrs. R. Finlayson heads the team of ushers, while Mr. Robert Tanner is acting as general convener.

The company's program will be climaxed by a performance of the brilliant Fourth Act of "The Nutcracker" danced to Tchaikowsky's enchanting and familiar music, which will be played by the company's own orchestra, a group which made such an impression last year. The program will include two other ballets, "Les Rendezvous," a charming new addition to their repertoire, choreographed by Frederick Ashton, chief choreographer of the world famous Sadler's Wells, and an all-Canadian Ballet "Jack-in-Green," a jazz ballet with choreography by Brian MacDonald, of Montreal. Once again Celia Franca, Lois Smith and David Adams will head the list of world famous dancers who in six years have won an international reputation.

Youth Remanded Until Nov. 1st

Angus Thompson, 18, of Crookston, charged with criminal negligence, leaving the scene of an accident and careless driving, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills here this morning and was remanded in custody until the renewal of $10,000 property bail was arranged. Bail was set Saturday as a result of a hit-run accident on the Madoc-Foxboro county road one mile north of Halloway, which claimed the life of 83-year-old Herman Woodcock, R.R. 2, Bancroft, the previous night.

A local man who decided to poke his brother in the face at Sulphide Siding, Trenton, last Saturday, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and on being convicted was fined $10 and $15.50 costs with the option of spending seven days in jail.

A man who at one time was employed in the supply hangar at RCAF station, Trenton pleaded guilty to stealing a couple of rolls of paper valued at $125 from the supply depot. The magistrate enlarged the case to October 18 to see if bail will happen to other people involved.

GERMAN COAL SCARCE

BONN (AP) — West Germany faces a severe shortage of coal for household heating this winter, coal industry officials said today. Larger imports from the United States, Belgium and Holland are essential to keep the home fires burning, they said.

Obituary

MRS. MARTHA L. WELSH

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Louisa Welsh was held from the Thompson Funeral Home, Highland Avenue, on Wednesday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. George Dyson, assisted by Mr. Kenneth Stewart. During the service Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foster sang a duet, "Good Night and Good Morning," while a solo was sung by Mrs. Donald Holbert, "Sunrise."

The bearers were: Arthur, Melville, Frank and Charles Dickens, Mack and George Sarles.

MRS. ONESIME FORSTELL

Following an illness of four weeks, Mrs. Agnes Forstell of Stirling, died in the Belleville General Hospital, early this Thursday morning.

She was born in Plainfield 83 years ago, being the daughter of John and Ann Mrs. James Woods and had resided all her life in the Stirling community. The late Mrs. Forstell was a faithful neighbor, made a wide circle of friends who will sincerely regret her death.

She was a member of St. James the Minor Church at Stirling and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John (Alexie) Smith, Belleville, six grandchildren and six great grandchildren. She is the last of her family. Her husband, Onesime Forstell died some years ago.

Mrs. Forstell took an active interest in her church when health permitted and was a member of the Catholic Women's League and the Rosary Society.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of Gordon H. Thrasher. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JACKIE T. BIRCH Trenton

The funeral of Jackie T. Birch, 61 McGill Street, Trenton, was held in St. George's Church, Trenton, on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 2 p.m., with Rev. K. Blackburn officiating. Interment was in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

Mr. Birch died suddenly in Toronto General Hospital in his 70th year on Sunday, Oct. 7.

Bearers were Eugene Refouse, Barry White, Gerald Steenburg, Albert Gale, Gordon Cole Sr. and James Smith.

Mr. Birch is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Birch, and a brother, Timothy, at home. He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Long, Trenton and Mr. Alfred J. Birch, Atlanta, Georgia.

He was born in Vancouver and had been a resident of Trenton since 1933. He also lived in other British Columbia points.

Mr. Birch was a grade 10 student at Trenton High school and was an Air Cadet in the Trenton squadron and was also a member of the A.Y.P.A. of St. George's church and the Bible class of that church.

He rested at the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton.

Dr. A. Carey To Speak Here

Dr. Archibald Carey, C.S.B. of Detroit, who will speak this evening in Queen Elizabeth school auditorium, MacDonald Avenue, on the topic, "Christian Science; How Prayer Heals," is a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Dr. Carey received the degrees of A.B. and LL.B. from the University of Michigan, and his LL.D. from the Principia College. He entered the legal profession in Detroit, becoming senior member of a firm engaged largely in the practice of corporation law. Retiring from his law practice, he became an authorized teacher of Christian Science, and has lectured in many countries from Alaska to Argentina, and from Europe to South Africa and Australia.

Westinghouse Laundromat Used To Make Pickles

It may never replace the paring knife, but the Westinghouse laundromat will take a lot of dirty work out of cucumber pickling.

The company stumbled on this unique use for its automatic washing machine when some 30 women from across Canada wrote Westinghouse to say they had used their laundromats to prepare cucumbers for pickling. Tonight, October 11th, at the Capitol Hall, the Hamilton company's new laundry equipment show, "College of Laundry Knowledge," will be demonstrated to women how it is done.

According to one official touring with the show—"It's easy. All you have to do is dump your cucumbers in the machine and sit back while the laundromat does its dirty work. They come out clean and spineless."

Sponsored by the Ladies of the Moose, the Westinghouse show is an audience participation program for revenue. The audience members are still the winners but in this quiz the audience asks the questions.

• Tickets will be sold by the Moose organization and all of the income derived from the sale goes into the treasury of the group to foster local welfare work. When those holding tickets enter the door, they will be given entries valued at approximately two dollars, and the ticket stub gives them a chance at approximately $150 worth of door prizes. These include radios, toasters, steam irons and other gifts. At the end of the program the washer and dryer used in exhibition will be auctioned.

In one demonstration, five filthy towels will be placed in the machine with one never-used towel. A panel of women selected from the group will be asked to pick the one towel that came from the group after they have been washed. It's a neat trick if they can do it.

Everything from grease-stained garage coveralls to permanently pleated nylon slips can be washed, it is claimed, in the demonstration a cupful of sand is thrown in for good measure. After the washing cycle is complete, some one from the panel, wearing new white gloves, will be asked to run her hands over the inside of the machine to find the sand.

During the demonstration comes the all important question period when members of the show will answer any questions on automatic washers. The auction will follow. (Advt.)

Deseronto Boy Mauled by Dog, Fear Rabies

A police dog from the Mohawk Indian Reservation is under observation for rabies following his attack on a ten-year-old Deseronto boy which resulted in 23 stitches having to be put in his face and shoulders.

Douglas Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Chapman, was mauled by the dog Monday night outside his father's restaurant and was taken to the local hospital for treatment. After the stitches were in place the lad was allowed to return home.

It was reported that the dog which mauled the lad had not been inoculated for rabies when the inoculation program was carried on last spring.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — A renewed interest in the stock market today failed to produce any definite trend in prices during morning trading. Prices edged ahead in most sections but the range was narrow.

The industrial index added one-half point but western oils and base metals were virtually unchanged from the previous index close.

Industrial gains ranged to 1⅛ points, led by B.C. Power, but were mostly confined to fractions.

Canadian Westinghouse lost 1 points.

Coldstream climbed 35 cents and traded more than 200,000 shares in the first two hours. Other copper and junior stocks had gains ranging to 20 cents.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 17-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon, EST, today. Wednesday's noon rate 97 13-32 cents. Pound sterling 2.71 7-8, up ¼.

Parents Protest Mass Strapping

OSHAWA (CP) — A deputation of four Oshawa parents will meet school authorities to discuss the strapping of 22 school children by a Grade Six school teacher last week.

The teacher, John Korbelac, and a representative of the Ontario Teachers Association will be asked to attend. Written complaints from parents will be presented.

The pupils were strapped for not doing their homework. Murray Wilson, meeting chairman, said a petition will be circulated among the parents asking for resignation of the teacher if satisfactory results are not obtained at the meeting.

Salvation Army Band To Present Pre-Congress Festival

The Salvation Army Band in Belleville has been highly honored in that it has been asked to participate at the National Congress in Toronto on Saturday, October 20th. This is to be the first National Congress in Canada in ten years, when officers from coast to coast will be meeting in that city. Commissioner Edgar Dibden, the Army's Chief of Staff, from London, England, will be the special speaker. On October 13th, the Saturday preceding this event, the Band will present a special pre-Congress Festival in the Salvation Army on Pinnacle St. Admission is free and all citizens in the district are invited to attend. The Bandmaster of this very fine band is Bandmaster Jack Green and the Corps Officers are Captain and Mrs. Cal. Ivany.

Eisenhower Denies Rift Over Suez

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today there is no rift between the United States and its European allies on Suez policy.

Eisenhower told his press conference that reported dissatisfaction with the United States' Suez policy in Britain and France is a result of a misunderstanding which he hopes will be cleared up soon.

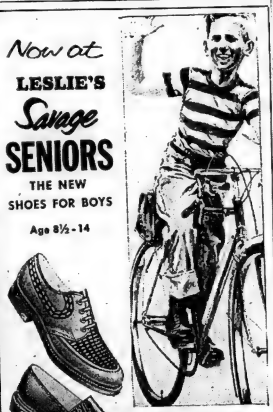
K of C Members Hear Talk on 'Columbianism'

The regular bi-monthly meeting of Belleville Council, 1008, K. of C., was held in the clubrooms, Front Street, on Tuesday. Grand Knight B. Hurley presided.

After the regular business was conducted the worthy lecturer, Bob Collins, called on D.G.K. Paul Mercier to introduce the guest speaker, District Deputy of No. 4 District, Bro. W. P. Kinlin of Peterborough Council.

An old Tweed boy, Mr. Kinlin spoke briefly of his acquaintance with Belleville and went on to extol the forethought of the founder of Columbianism.

Rev. Father McGivney, who in 1876 started the order for the main purpose of aiding the widows and children of deceased members. With that in mind the K. of C. was established and has grown from hundreds to millions of dollars of protection for members and their families.



K. of C. by its sponsored advertisements has also drawn millions of enquiries and thousands of converts. Their Columbian squired program for teen-aged boys has been the means of keeping many possible juvenile delinquents off the streets and engaged in worthwhile projects, and sport of all kinds.

In conclusion, Bro. W. P. Kinlin thanked the Belleville Council for the opportunity to address them.

Bro. K. Burkett offered a vote of thanks to the speaker and introduced Bro. Joseph Cassidy of St. Catharines, who invited one and all to visit the council chambers there at any time.

The meeting closed with a social evening.

British Bomber Drops Baby Bomb In Atomic Test

MARALINGA, Australia (Reuters) — A British jet bomber swooped over this desert atomic testing ground today and released Britain's first operational atomic bomb.

It exploded in the air with the force of more than 10,000 tons of TNT only seconds after the plane had screamed up and away.

The first of the tests in the current series was from a steel tower, and the second at ground level.

Only one more weapon—another tower burst—remains to be fired to complete the series.

A Valiant bomber will drop a hydrogen bomb at least 1,000 times more powerful than today's "baby bomb" in tests at Christmas Island in the Pacific next year.

A BILLION DOLLAR INDUSTRY

Some interesting facts were recently disclosed by the National Dairy Council of Canada in a booklet "Dairying — a Billion Dollar Canadian Industry." This industry employs one out of six or two and a half million Canadians, it reports.

Canada's milk production in 1955 (the latest statistical year) totalled 17.3 billion pounds or 387 million quarts. It would require a tank 100 feet deep, 100 feet wide and five miles long to hold Canada's milk supply.

Improved feed and breeding is reflected in an average per cow production of 5,223 pounds, an increase of 23 per cent since 1931. The milk cow population totals 3,312,000 head — almost one cow for every five Canadians.

Quebec leads production with six billion pounds. Manitoba with a billion has the highest per capita production.

During 1955, 54 per cent of the milk was produced from May to September, 24 per cent from January to April with 22 per cent in October, November and December.

The amount of liquid milk required to make the various milk products is 2.58 pounds to fill one quart, 23.4 pounds for one pound of butter, 11 pounds to make a pound of cheddar cheese, 17 pounds for one gallon of ice cream, two and one-third pounds for one can of evaporated milk and eight pounds for one pound of whole milk powder.

Percentagewise 10 per cent of the total milk production is used on the farm, 8 per cent for concentrated milk and ice cream, 6 per cent for cheese, 31 per cent for liquid milk and 45 per cent for butter.

Last year dairy products ranked first as a source of cash income to farmers furnishing over 10 per cent of the total.

The consumer's dollar for milk and milk products is spent in the following proportions: fluid milk and cream, 40 cents; chocolate drinks, 2 cents; butter 27c, canned and powdered milk 5c, cheese 11c, and ice cream 5c.

During the past five years, creamery butter production has increased by 24 per cent to 317 million pounds of which 63 million are stocked.

Butter consumption in 1955 was 20.6 pounds per capita—30 cents less since the advent of oleomargarine.

Quebecers, who consume just over a pint of milk per day, are the largest milk drinkers and British Columbians the smallest with just over half a pint.

The use of fats that fluid from which Canadians obtain 58 per cent of their calcium requirements has risen 90 per cent in the past 17 years compared with the average food purchase rise of 123 per cent.

Canadians show an equal fondness for cheddar and process cheese, consuming 43 per cent of each. The other 14 per cent is for fancy cheeses mainly from foreign countries which has doubled since 1950 while Canada's export of cheddar cheese has declined by 86 per cent since 1940.

Per capita consumption of ice cream was 16.7 pints. A total of 407 million cones were sold. Vanilla accounted for half the sales, in 50 flavors. Just over a billion pounds of milk or three per cent of total milk production was used for ice cream.

Canada is second only to the United States among the nine major countries manufacturing evaporated milk and in the last year Canadians consumed per capita.

Bakeries with 25.8 million pounds were the largest commercial users. Canada had a record export of 16.1 million pounds to 42 different countries.

Although Canadians, consuming 1,037 pounds of all milk products annually, are ranked as the fifth highest dairy consumers in the world, this is only a fraction of the potential if the minimum amounts of milk recommended by medical authorities was drunk.

Dairy processors and distributors will spend $5,000,000 this year advertising with a view to realizing some of this huge untapped market.

JUST EVENING THINGS UP

In Hesterfield, England, all the girls are frothing with indignation.

It seems the city council has installed amber-colored street lights. The girls say that these make their rosy cheeks appear a jaundiced yellow and their red lips a poisonous purple.

This they regard as unfair to Cupid.

It does not seem to have occurred to anybody that these amber lights are just balancing the scales which, for generations, have been unfairly weighted in Cupid's favor.

Remember the popular song of not long long ago—"Moonlight Becomes You."

TONO-BUNGAY TRIUMPHS

The Soviet News Bulletin, published by the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, reports that an exhibition "dedicated to the 15th anniversary of the death of H. G. Wells, well-known British novelist and author of fantastic novels," has been opened at Moscow. The stands, it reports "display the novels and stories of Wells and his publicism." The books of "this fantastic novelist" it says, are very popular in Russia. "Wells' novels" have a circulation of more than five million.

The publication of Tono-Bungay over "Outline of History" will leave many of Wells' admirers in the English-speaking world speechless.

ILL-FORTUNE

The richest man you'll ever know
Can buy the costliest of raiment
And never any worry show
When comes the final day for payment.
If window shopping he should be,
He can afford what he may see,

If life is merely owning things,
The rich man lives his days at ease,
Since having all that money brings
He merely has himself to please.

But passing time will soon seem flat
To him who does no more than that.

Tis good to win a pot of gold,
But there are other things to gain.
Man must have friends when he is old,
Since young he cannot long remain.
The fortune many think they need
May leave them very poor, indeed.

Popcorn in the Old Days

By John Cook in the Christian Science Monitor.

They brought some colored popcorn home from the store the other day, and it turned out to be very pretty. It came in bags up one green and red and blue and yellow, in clear bottle so you can see what's in it. The bags had signs, "Certified Pure Food Coloring." I suppose it's the same thing. When the shell bursts in popping, the inside of this corn is just as white as the other, but the outside is dyed specks from the certified pure coloring. It was a little more appetite factor, and the grocery-man said it was moving well.

I began to reflect on popcorn, a subject of long standing, and I am forced to admit great strides have been made.

Popcorn, in my life, was originally something you planted in the field farthest from the garden, because it grew around in all sorts of ways crossing. In those days it was prudent and even necessary to keep your ears of corn, because seedsmen were not so plentiful and money was dear, as they are now. So you didn't run any risk of having popcorn on the sweet-corn ears. Indeed, it was public issue. We grew a little white popcorn which didn't mature too early in the season and we'd scarcely get our seed back. This was different from the kind of yellow corn, too—Grandfather said one year in ten was all you could expect, and more often the ears of men have hybridized and selected, and the crop is fairly sure, now. But there was always enough for at least a winter, and if we ran short we'd have to send for more next year. Some years we'd grow so much we could sell some, and still pack away enough for four or five years' home popping.

All you did, to sell some, was pack the ears in bags and take them to the store, where the storekeeper gave you credit on your bill. Today's local store won't buy anything much from a farmer, but we do deal with the warehouse in a far city—my favorite example a sweet cider packed in Rockfield, stock-like glass bottle, and reshipped back to Rockfield again where somebody sells the chain store pay four cents a gallon more than it would cost them at the cider press. Besides, popcorn would have to be packaged, tinned or bottled, whereas the old grocer simply sold it loose, but on the cob. I remember one year he had a barrel, stock-like glass bottle with a plate laid across the top for a counter, and he exhibited his popcorn in it; but usually a plain wooden box was good enough. You bought popcorn expecting to shell it off.

I suppose the technique of shelling popcorn has been lost. Real high-class folks had a corn sheller, a hooded device to deal with ordinary corn off the cobs. It had a place to feed in the ears and as they twisted one way in the mechanism a great corrugated wheel made a fine scale at it rubbed off the kernels. The cobs and the corn then went into the same box, but you could pick the cobs out all right. Anybody who had one of these could do pretty well with it. Otherwise you took two cobs in your hand and rubbed them together, shielding the action with your palms so the kernels wouldn't fly all over the house. Two cobs were generally more enough for a single session of shelling. At times we used to shell both yellow and popcorn with the nayest from the ear between the muzket. We'd stretch it across a box, sit with a box between the end down, and saw the cobs up and down on the edge.

Shelling popcorn preceded popping it each time. This was before stoves and heaters, instead of husking the ears at harvest time, we'd merely peel the husks back and then twist them together. This made a strand of popcorn, and we'd hang a number together and loop them over a wire between attic rafters. The mice couldn't get to the popcorn, we popped better if it was cold, and in the winter we had to go up there and twist off two ears and come down for popping.

Our original popper, I've heard tell, was a sieve with a wooden rim to it. It was a little hard to manage because of the legs, but it worked. Then came a long-handled sieve with a long handle, which was still in use when we came along. The crane was pulled ahead in the fire-place, and a pothook hung on. Then the handle of the popper was put through the pothook, and you could agitate the popper over the coals. Later the same popper was found to be equally useful on top of a stove.

When Grandmother would hit a high note in singing, or when Grandpa would behave yourselves, after supper I'll make cornballs," we knew in a few minutes ourselves. We'd shell the corn, pop the big wooden bowl full, and then stay to pick out all the old maids. (This meaning of old maid is not in the dictionary for a reason.) Sometimes Grandmother used to tell of something she had seen on a visit—which was a joke, because cornballs and store teeth are incompatible. It's like a dog with a dish of taffy. Then the rich effluvia of old-fashioned molasses candy would start to boil in the house, and while we stirred the popcorn with long-handled spoons Grandma would pour the syrup most slowly over the bowl, so every kernel got coated with it. She'd butter her hands and form the balls, and we'd have a big chicken platter they'd be put in the shed to cool — the tongue-test. Then she first for a week because all the doorknobs were sticky. poor wretch who broke her plate

Railways Pay For Accidents

St. Thomas Times-Journal

In Tuesday night's paper we read reports of two railroad crossing accidents, and the other was that in St. Thomas, in which the driver of a car luckily escaped with slight injuries, and the other was that of a loaded oil truck colliding with a locomotive at a crossing in Port Arthur. In Fraile in which the truck driver was killed, the locomotive of the train crew died from burns and another was severely burned, and the last case mentioned the train was completely destroyed by fire. The latest case of this kind was that published by the passenger traffic department of the Milwaukee Road, which says that the company is resolved of responsibility by the Interstate Commerce Commission for a truck-train crash at the Duplainville grade crossing, in which the driver of the truck was killed. In that light or heavy, the railways, which might be held responsible for parties in crossing wrecks always have to bear the cost. The parties crossing with the railroad would never begin to pay for the damage they cause.

A few days before the Duplainville accident, J.P.Riley, president of the Manufacturers' Association for better understanding of a railroad's predicament in protecting itself, its passengers and the motoring public. He explained that railroads have to oppose many demands for more elaborate crossing safeguards simply because motor companies must remain solvent to maintain their own profits.

It is the public, says the Hiawathagram, which has created automobile grade crossing hazards because more people are crossing tracks at higher speed — too many of them without due caution. On most lines fewer trains cross highways. Warnings are better. Train speed is no considerable factor. Riley suggests the obvious necessity of taking care of their own lives, drivers should keep in mind that every accident of which they are the cause involves the railways in losses that may amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars, and bring death or injuries to a large number of other people. Primarily it is the car driver's responsibility to exercise care in crossing. The old warning, Stop! Look! Listen! is still paramount.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOOD COMPANY

One of the cheapest cravings within me's mind is that for good company. Dr. Johnson once called it "good talk." Montaigne put it this way: "I say with Epicurus that a man should consider less what he eats than with, whom. No sauce is so delicious to me and no dish so gratifying, as good company."

I dislike eating alone, but it is preferable to that of eating with people whose company is of no conversation! Good talk at the dining table is as essential for good digestion as rightly-seasoned food. Good company is very important at meal time. The best of food and the most good literature is most gratifying and stimulating when we give and take from good company.

Serving on Federal jury, traveling on trains and ships and visiting special friends have always brought me into good company. People talk interestingly when not on parade. Then it is that they are relaxed and the mind is in good tune. No matter where, we are, or where we go, we look for good company to round out the day.

I have passed up many a meal because I had not a good companion to be with me in the consideration of eating it! How dependent we are upon others, even for even when they are none too good company. We want somebody near, and we want some one to talk to, have with us someone who is conversant with our mannerisms.

Each one of us needs the stimulant of other minds. We get this from the reading of good books, but nothing can be superior to the company of people themselves. That is why the investment in a friend is beyond all other investments, for its dividends never cease.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

And Spit Through Your Teeth?

A reader who had coronary thrombosis a year ago says the doctor advised him to quit smoking, and he did. But the doctor said nothing about chewing tobacco. Now this reader nails me with his query:

"In my case is chewing tobacco harmful, even a mild tobacco?"

Well, sir, I wouldn't—

Let me put it this way. If the theories advanced, assertions made and conclusions drawn by numerous medical authorities and toxicologists are correct, a blend-enamelled chew of tobacco should flatten the subject before he can spit. The chemists find various kinds of tobacco contain from 1% to 4% of nicotine, and the toxicologists state that two drops of nicotine placed on the tongue or rubbed on the gums of a small cat or cat will kill the animal in two minutes.

Most of not all the nicotine in tobacco is destroyed by combustion when one smokes pipe, cigar, or cigaret.

The yellow stain on fingers or handkerchief, commonly ascribed to "nicotine" is not from nicotine but from tar. Pure nicotine is colorless.

Current and classical medical literature furnishes many authoritative reports of poisonous effect of nicotine or tobacco, but unfortunately the chewing tobacco (authors) regularly peddled their poison by rebashing the reputations of their predecessors, and so it is difficult to separate the wheat from the chaff.

"In man, death has followed the use of tobacco as a 'pediluvic,' the application of an infusion in skin disease, the introduction of fumes into the rectum for worms, the plugging of a wound with a quid of tobacco for hemorrhage, the swallowing or inhaling the spray of nicotine in insecticides. A soldier committed suicide by swallowing cigarets. The lethal dose of nicotine for an adult is 4 grains, but death has been reported from 1 grain."

Quote the two most standard textbook has it. All carefully further—you can't gain anything on anybody. Yet if you are not here in the ways of medical authorities, you are likely to get an impression that such hearsay is evidence.

It is not my intention to deny any of these legends of the poisonous effects of tobacco or nicotine. I merely observe that it seems strange that I have never encountered a case of serious or fatal tobacco or nicotine poisoning in country, city, or hospital practice, and it seems equally strange that there is such a paucity of reports in current medical literature of tobacco poisoning or nicotine poisoning from chewing tobacco.

Even the injurious effects of smoking, I believe carbon monoxide—are less than is commonly believed.

If you must chew something, books by rebashing have become habit yourself offensive to other persons? Chew wheat, or pitch, or if these methods are unsatisfactory, chew gum.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT FELLOWSHIP OF PEACE

Seventeen hundred years ago a Christian named Cyprian, leader of believers in the African city of Carthage, wrote a letter to a friend named Donatus. This is what he said:

"This seems to be a cheerful world, Donatus, when I view it from this fair garden under the shadow of these vines. But if I climbed some of the mountains, and looked out over the wide lands, you know very well what I would see. Brigands on the hills and pirates on the seas, in the amphitheaters men murdered in place applauding crowds, under all roofs misery and selfishness and cruelty. It is a picture of that declaration, and incredibly bad world. Yet in the midst of it I have found a quiet and a holy people. They have discovered a joy which is a thousand times better than any pleasure this world knows. They are despised and persecuted, but they have found the secret of living well. These people, Donatus, are the Christians—and I am one of them."

Being able to rise above life—above sorrow and pain and discontents, its cares, and its despair From the beginning Christians have found the secret. This Jesus said that He came in order that His followers might have life and might have it more abundantly; and He has made good on every article of that declaration.

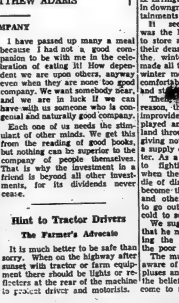
"These people, Donatus, are Christians—and I am one of them."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The real test of a good restaurant is not in the cooking but in the housekeeping. The most prosperous restaurants not only in this country but in all countries including the famed Paris and provincial French dining places are those in which somebody out in front is just as proud as the chef is behind. It really is quite amazing how well be: can a good housekeeper be a bad cook? Or better, can a bad housekeeper be a good cook?

One of the most famed Paris restaurants has a style about it that at all. Its dining rooms are plain to the point of severity. The tables, chairs, the walls, silverware, are honestly to the point of peasantry. No art is involved either in pictures, curtains, vases, flowers. It does not even pretend to any such sort of thing. It is wholly unpretentious. But, oh, it is spotless. And however crowded it becomes in the course of the busy luncheon hour or the hectic long evening dinner hours, it remains spotless. Every elderly, spare woman in charge of the dining rooms seems to be quiet. She walks quietly about, watching every move of her staff, and her sole function, and her sole interest, is housekeeping. Every dish shines. Every utensil glows. Never is anything spilled. The instant a spill is spilled, it is removed. You can go in at ten p.m. and find the whole place as fresh and spotless as it was at six p.m. And I suppose the secret of the success of this kind about the best restaurants in the world.



But in France or Britain as in Canada and the United States, the average restaurant is a fairly dreary looking place after the first flush of freshness or disappears of a housekeeper being the boss, there is a manager. And managers do not have the same interest in housekeeping. They have other interests. They have to contend with temperamental chefs and waitresses, menus, supplies, heating, etc., and these sometimes down the line in their list is cleaning up. I have noticed that the difference between a housekeeper and a manager is sometimes one different sense of time from all other senses. A housekeeper wants things tidy all the time, not after.

The owner of a justly famous New York restaurant explained to me to his housekeeper, a middle aged woman named Lady. He informed me she was the highest paid person on his staff.

"Yes, sir," said the owner. "And she's the chef's wife."

Scouts, Cubs Will Observe Apple Day

Once each year the Belleville Boy Scouts and the Wolf Cubs have their Scout Apple Day, when they appear before the citizens of Belleville with their gaily decorated baskets of apples and tags. This year Apple Day will be observed on the late afternoon and evening of Friday, October 12th and all day Saturday, October 13, when the Wolf Cubs will also call on every house in Belleville. Throughout the year the boys are trained to be proud of the Scout movement, and the uniform that they wear indicating their membership. The boys are also taught to work for what they get and to consider payment for any service rendered as secondary to the opportunity for that service. On Apple Day they are not primarily selling apples but selling the Boy Scouts Association and by their example the ideals for which it stands.

All the work in the local Boy Scouts Association is voluntary and the receipts from the Apple Day are spent in the purchasing of any necessary camping equipment, providing transportation to various Scout and Cub meets, and in general helping to defray any expenses in carrying out the Cub and Scout program, after being assured that the boys themselves have done as much as possible to raise funds through the various projects which they organize and work for. There are very few homes in Belleville which directly or indirectly have not some interest in the Boy Scout movement, as it has now grown to a membership of over 800 boys and leaders in this city alone.

These boys meet on various nights of the week in 19 different groups in various meeting places as well as taking part in rambles, hikes and camping expeditions outside of their regular meeting nights. The achievements of the various Apple Days in Belleville clearly indicate the citizens' appreciation of the Scouts and the same recognition is looked for next Friday and Saturday when the 1956 Scout Apple Day is being observed.

Ready for Trial Run

Jim Bruce (right), hydrometeorologist from the Conservation Branch, Department of Planning and Development, watches as Gordon Fraser, Lands and Forests radio operator, fills the inking device of the Fretz type recording rain gauge ready for its trial run at Tweed. The rain gauge, first of its kind between Toronto and Montreal, automatically records precipitation. (Photo by the Moira Conservation Authority.)

New Type Automatic Rain Guage At Tweed Meteorological Station

First of its kind between Toronto and Montreal, a Fretz type recording rain gauge has been installed at the Ontario Lands and Forests radio and meteorological station at Tweed.

Unlike the normal rain gauge which is read at 12 or 24 hour intervals, the Fretz type gauge shows the exact time when the precipitation has occurred, a feature said essential if the runoff is to be related to other climatic conditions and temperatures.

The Conservation Branch of the Department of Planning and Development, in co-operation with Conservation authorities and Meteorological Service of Canada, is conducting hydrometeorological studies of many Ontario watersheds and the Tweed rain gauge was installed to assist in these studies. The studies are intended to discover the relationship between various climatic conditions and the runoff of precipitation for, different types of watershed conditions.

The Fretz type rain gauge automatically records the amount of rain or snowfall for a seven - day period. The accumulated precipitation is then emptied and a new chart inserted.

Records produced by the device will be analyzed and with data from other meteorological stations in the watershed and readings from river gauging stations, will gradually enable the Conservation Branch to forecast river flow from climatic conditions.

This is said important both for flood control and in the conservation of water for use in the low flow periods during the summer.

If flood conditions are forecast it may be possible to empty dams before the abnormal precipitation occurs thus enabling them to hold back greater quantities of flood water and reducing flood levels below them.

Already the Moira River Conservation Authority has built a dam on the Moira at Deloro and controls the Lingham Lake dam on the Black River. As additional dams are constructed or taken over, the Authority will require accurate runoff forecasts in order to operate its dams to produce best results both in time of flood and in low flow periods.

The combination of weather conditions which produce flooding in Belleville are complex, but the additional information which will be accumulated through these studies will help in forecasting floods and in operating the control dam proposed for construction north of the College Street bridge.

It is hoped to provide even better climatic data by setting up meteorological stations at other points in the watershed not adequately covered by existing stations.

Sons of Jacob Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Charming Tea, Bazaar

Blue and white formed the color motif for a most charming tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon in the new Sons of Jacob Synagogue, Victoria and Bleecker Avenues, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. I. Shulman; Mrs. M. Levine; Mrs. A. Lipes and Mrs. S. Safe, whose gracious welcome did so much to make of the afternoon a most happy one.

The tea and bazaar was a memorable occasion as it was the first time the Jewish ladies had their own place of appointment, of which they should be justly proud.

On entering the Synagogue a vista of blue and white booths, each artistically arranged, met the eye, and the lovely tea room with its evergreen archway, intermingled with fruits and flowers, and its garland of leaves and pink flowers, running from tall, white standards of evergreen sprays which divided the little guest tables from the emporium, was delightful.

SYMPHONY IN BLUE AND WHITE

The tea table was a symphony in blue and white, emblematic colors of the Auxiliary, centring the Battenburg lace cloth were white Shasta chrysanthemums, mingled with sprays of British Columbia huckleberry, bearded spikes of blue barley beads, and tiny button blue mums, flanked by tall, ornate, silver holders with flickering, knotted, blue candles, and silver serviettes. Silver trays containing dainty, open-faced sandwiches and little confections added a lovely note.

Those who presided at the silver services included: Mesdames L. Freedman, A. Bennett, J. Albert; H. Kaye; K. Lindenberg; L. Polish, and M. Salz; while those who served were: Mrs. B. Taylor; Mrs. T. Schwab; Mrs. S. Lipson; Mrs. M. Tuchmyer; Mrs. J. Maser; and Mrs. S. Safe. Convening the kitchen were Mrs. B. Yanover, and Mrs. B. Nemtin, assisted by Mrs. H. Coppel.

The homebaking booth, which extended across the entire auditorium was convened by Mrs. F. G. Gitelman and Mrs. J. Abramsky, assisted by Mrs. Desbert, Mrs. G. Albert, Mrs. S. Rose, Mrs. R. Freeman, and Mrs. A. Lesser.

As a background to the homecooking booth, a black ming tree with pink blooms adorned the wall, and complemented the array of delicious cakes, of all kinds, buns, sweet loaves, date squares, lemon, apple, blueberry pies; cinnamon rolls, coff kuchen; cookies, preserved fruits; jams, jellies; marmalades; little cup cakes filled with whipped cream, and angel cakes, some in colored icings, and some plain, but others dotted with whole red cherries. Each article was a work of art in itself, and was as good as it looked. This booth was highlighted by a black vase of multi-colored gladioli blooms. Mrs. H. Yanover and Mrs. L. Spiegel convened the jams and preserves.

LOVELY APRONS

Near to this was the apron booth, a mecca for the Christmas shopper with its bevy of breath-taking aprons; in fancy cretonne with panels of mauve and blue; others in yellow patterned, over with black flowers and twisting black vines; pretty little utility gaudy and colorful bath towelling aprons; dainty, crocheted dolphin mats with rose centres; children's aprons and smocks. Convening these were Mrs. Kunner, assisted by Mrs. Kamel and Mrs. R. Goldberg.

Another table, which drew many patrons, was that of the knit goods, in charge of Mrs. B. Goldberg, assisted by Mrs. K. Shulman. Among the lovely articles was a white shawl with scalloped edges; little baby jacques in pink, blue, white and mauve; bonnets; mitts; a black shopping bag with appliqued red dahlias; socks in all shades; little woolly French poodles; sleeveless sweaters; dressing gowns, and tiny handkerchiefs.

FLOWER BOOTH

The flower booth was pretty with its tiny, white, picket fence, and white net valance and blue streamers. Mingled amid the evergreen cedar boughs were many little plants, African violets, wandering Jew; silver speckled philodendron; foliages; begonias and fern. These were convened by Mrs. L. Yanover, assisted by Mrs. L. Jourard.

A container of grab-bags was in charge of Mrs. G. Marshall.

The "white elephant" booth held about everything one could imagine: indoor copper vase; flower holder in grape pattern silver; costume jewellery; Chinese pictures; Chinese figurines; creams and sugars; cups and saucers.

Other articles included candleholders; cups and saucers and plates; books; note cards; tablecloths; silver egg cups; electric iron, peppers and salts and a multitude of useful gadgets. Convening these were, Mrs. A. Black, Mrs. M. Miro, with Miss B. Tobe; Mrs. A. Lippet and Mrs. M. Levine assisting.

A delicious angel cake with shredded cocoanut and drips of chocolate, baked by Mrs. B. Yanover, was convened by Mrs. H. Simrod and won by Mrs. B. McDaid, 278 East Dundas St.

The doll and trousseau were in charge of Mrs. N. Albert and was won by Mrs. Hugh Murray, 399 Bridge Street East, and the door prize was won by Mrs. E. Wilkie, of 112 Bridge Street. This was donated by Mrs. A. Mazer.

The nursery was also provided with Mrs. F. Goldberg, Miss D. Shulman, Miss B. Black and Miss M. Rose as baby sitters.

Mrs. L. Medoff was treasurer for the afternoon, while Mrs. L. Lipson acted as secretary, and Mrs. S. Spiegel as "pick up".

A most delightful and charmingly arranged tea and bazaar bringing much appreciative thanks to the convenors, Mrs. I. Shulman, Mrs. L. Yanover, for the pretty decorations; and to Mrs. J. Yanover for the finely appointed tea table, as well as to those behind the scene whose willing aid meant so much to its successful conclusion.

Plan to Brand Auto Hubcaps In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Auto hubcaps, like calves, are going to be branded in this part of the West, says the Los Angeles police commission.

The commission Wednesday approved a plan to stamp hubcaps with tiny licence numbers. This would help reduce the $1,000-a-day loss to car strippers, the auto theft detail said.

$200 Taken From Safe of Service Station

Using a pair of truck tire irons to pry open the door of a safe in the office of the Osterbout Shell Oil at Church and Foundry streets, safe robbers Wednesday night escaped with cash amounting to about $200.

Police said that entry to the upstairs offices was gained through forcing open a door, following which the office safe was attacked with the heavy tire irons. The irons were left at the scene of the break-in.

City police on their night patrol discovered the break-in shortly before midnight with following investigation revealing the opened safe.

Otherwise police reported a comparatively quiet night with little more than routine calls.

A Bridge street resident complained her house had been entered through an unlocked kitchen door some time around nine o'clock with a rooster's purse containing $40 taken from the kitchen table. Nothing else was taken.

Two family squabbles were reported, while yesterday a North Front street resident reported a young bull loose on the street. The animal had gotten away from the sales barns north of the city and was picked up in a truck by the owner.

Cara, Greg Butler to Play Two-Piano Recital

TWO TALENTED YOUNG STARS, A BRILLIANT MUSICAL FUTURE PREDICTED FOR THEM, WILL APPEAR IN A TWO PIANO RECITAL FRIDAY, OCT. 12 IN THE BELLEVILLE COLLEGIATE AUDITORIUM.

They are Cara and Greg Butler, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler. Displaying signs of exceptional promise, the young pianists have attracted widespread attention everywhere they have appeared.

Showing an early tending towards musical things Cara and Greg began to study under Miss Leona Riggs. They remained under her gifted tutelage until she retired from teaching. Then they studied under Mr. William Connor of this city for a year and a half. In September, 1951, Miss Mona Bates, eminent Canadian pianist and pedagogue, heard Cara and Greg in audition and accepted them as her pupils. It is rare to find artists so equally at home in solo and ensemble work. Greg has been called "a master of the piano." Cara has been termed "exquisite." One is astonished at her great full tone from such a slender frame. As a two piano team they have received unusual praise from some of the provinces most demanding music critics.

The Key Club and its young members are to be congratulated for bringing these young artists before the Belleville public again.

Their Recital Will Be On Friday, October 12,

At The Belleville Collegiate Auditorium

Hospital Aux. Regrets Member Leaving City

Mrs. J. Lennox Smith expressed the keen regret of all the members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary upon hearing of Mrs. W. C. Mikel's plans for leaving Belleville. Mrs. Mikel expects to attend the annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario in Toronto this month after which it is her intention to join residence with her daughter, Mrs. F. M. Jeffrey of 283 Sheldrake Blvd., Toronto.

Mrs. Smith, after announcing Mrs. Mikel's departure, said: "I would like, on behalf of the auxiliary, to wish you health, happiness and Godspeed in your new home."

49 YEARS' SERVICE

"As you know," Mrs. Mikel replied, "I have been connected with the hospital for 49 years. When I look back on the workers of the Women's Committee days of station I have great admiration for them and have never worked in an association with more harmony."

She continued to speak of the beginning of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary saying she considered the women of the city outstanding in their work. Referring to the hospital room that the Women's Hospital Auxiliary is furnishing in her honor, Mrs. Mikel said, "It has honored in my lifetime means a great deal to me."

The president added that Mrs. Mikel had been a tower of strength which the auxiliary had been most grateful.

A letter was read from Miss M. Peart, director of nursing, in which she expressed the appreciation of the student nurses for the donation of $150 from the Women's Hospital Auxiliary to be used for athletic and recreational activities. It was also decided to make payment of the bursaries for four student nurses.

As the new wing of the hospital is to be officially opened on October 17th, the Auxiliary meeting was held on the second Tuesday and it was decided to have the November and December meetings also a week in advance.

FASHION FIESTA

Reports on the Fashion Fiesta at the Masonic hall in November at which tea will be served in the afternoon and coffee in the evening sounded inviting and interesting.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle spoke of plans for the Coffee Shop nearing completion.

The Opportunity Shop, Mrs. L. B. Fenger stated is continuing to be busy. She emphasized the regularity with which low-cost articles sold and asked for donations of old dishes and pots and pans as well as articles of clothing. "A Christmas Table" is being planned and anything suitable for this table will be most welcome.

Mrs. E. L. Scott gave a graphic report on the puppets which she and a number of Auxiliary members are making for the little patients in the hospital. Extra puppets such as clowns, rabbits, pussy cats and monkeys were on display. Proceeds to be sold to defray the expenses of the puppets given to the hospital.

VISIT EXPECTED

LONDON (CP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are expected to visit London this fall, and The Associated Press says there is a possibility the Duchess will be received by the Queen. This lacks official confirmation.

WEDDINGS

HOLLIDAY—ORMOND

Bridge Street United church was the scene of a pretty October wedding on Saturday, October 6, at 1.30 p.m., when Carolyn Gladys Ormond of Brockville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Ormond, became the bride of Robert Thomas Holliday of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holliday of Weston. The Rev. Harry M. Davis, B.A., officiated before a background of greenery and tall baby chrysanthemums and ferns.

Mr. Alec Hodgins, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. W. Burgoyne, who sang, before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. William G. Ormond, the bride was radiant in a charming bridal gown of lace and net in ballerina-length, having a matching lace bolero jacket with pearl-studded standup collar and long sleeves pointed at the wrists. She wore a lace-edged coronet of seed pearls and lace-edged tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of red roses centred with white baby 'mums backgrounded by lace, with satin streamers.

Mrs. Ivon Cadwell, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was gowned in coral rose lace and net in ballerina length, with matching bolero jacket. She wore a small matching tulle hat and gloves, and carried a bouquet of blue and white 'mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Betty Holliday, sister of the bridegroom, wore a ballerina length gown of light blue net and lace having a moulded bodice and the skirt yoked studded with tiny rhinestones. A small matching tulle hat, and gloves completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums.

Little Christine Holliday, five-year-old sister of the bridegroom as flower girl, was sweet in her frock of sheer, dotted white nylon over pale blue taffeta, trimmed with pale blue roses. She wore a matching bandeau of tiny blue roses, tulle leaves and carried a miniature bouquet of white and pink 'mums.

Mr. Joseph McWilliams of Windsor, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Ronald Ormond, of Camp Borden, brother of the bride; and Mr. LeRoy St. Clair of Windsor.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Fenis, and where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing pearl rose crepe and lace over taffeta, with navy hat and accessories, and corsage of blue and white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in pale grey lace over pink taffeta with pink hat and navy accessories and corsage of pink and white carnations.

The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with dahlias, and ferns, while white and heliconia adorned the archway. The bride's table was pretty with its hand-embroidered cloth, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom under an archway, and clouded about the base with white tulle accented at intervals by little red roses.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Buffalo, Niagara, Detroit and Windsor, the bride chose a three-piece tweed ensemble in beige tone with carmel tan shoes, and purse, turquoise blue hat and gloves. Upon their return, the young couple will make their home in Belleville.

Guests attended from Windsor, Preston and the RCAF Station, Trenton.

HOWARD—ANDERSON

Standards of pink and white gladioli adorned the chapel of St. John's Anglican church, Madoc, on Saturday, September 15, at 3 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Miss Mary E. Glovetti united in marriage, Ellen Mary Agnes Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson to Roy Gordon Howard of Belleville, son of Mr and Mrs. Fred Howard.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her Chantilly lace and nylon illusion net bridal gown, fashioned with fitted pleated bodice having a bolero type jacket of matching lace and lily-point sleeves. The fingertip veil was secured by seed pearls and colored sequins. The ballerina-length skirt was enhanced by a wide motive of lace dotted with seed pearls and irridescent sequins. She wore a tiara of seed pearls, and fingertip veil of nylon net and carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses and stephanotis and satin streamers knotted with rosebuds.

Mrs. M. I. Fenemore, attended her sister as matron of honor, attired in a waltz-length gown of pink nylon net over taffeta with matching headdress, gloves and shoes. Miss Freda Daley, in blue nylon net and lace with matching headdress and lace jacket, gloves and shoes, was bridesmaid. Both attendants carried nosegays of pink carnations and white pom 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Carman Howard and the ushers were Mr. Wayne Parks, both of Belleville.

For the reception in the parish hall, the bride's mother wore navy lace with pink and navy accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother, wearing navy and lace with matching accessories, and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses, attired.

The bride's table, appointed with damask linen, and centred with a three-tier wedding cake, with a miniature bride and bridegroom, was flanked by tall, white candles, baskets of gladioli, and the bridal bouquets, which lent a lovely accent.

Those served were, Mrs. William Norman, Mrs. George McQuaid, Mrs. Arthur Parks, and Miss Margaret Norman. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Llewell, in which the bridegroom responded.

Travelling to Niagara, Buffalo, Rochester, Watertown, and the Thousand Islands, the bride chose a powder blue box style suit with navy and white accessories, corsage of roses. Mr. and Mrs. Howard are residing in Belleville.

Guests were present from Belleville, Bloomfield, Millbridge, Wellington and Gananoque.

ASHBURY—FREEMAN

Christ church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, October 6, at 4.00 p.m., for a pretty, autumn wedding, when Archdeacon J. R. Cleverdon, rector of the church, united in marriage, Verna Joan Patricia Freeman, of Belleville, niece of Mrs. Fred Mott, to Dale James Ashbury, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ashbury.

Bridegroom's Chaplain was Arthur Culloden, both of Belleville, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club, where the bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and misted about the base with tulle. The bridal bouquets lent a pretty nuptial accent.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Fred Mott, received, attired in dusty rose crepe and lace with feathered black and white hat, matching accessories and corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore British navy crepe with navy accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip by motor through the United States, the bride chose a two-piece ensemble in powder blue and grey with black accessories, and corsage of red carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Ashbury will reside in their new home, 19 Johnson Street, Belleville, upon their return.

Guests attended from Montreal, Toronto, Barrie, New Liskeard, Gananoque, Kingston and Napanee.

A pantry shelf shower honoring the bride, was given by Mrs. Earl Wilson, with Mrs. Jack Stewart as co-hostess, at the home of the former by a party, with Mrs. A. Acerra, as hostess, at St. George's Sunday school, where the bride-to-be was presented with a bridge set of table and chairs by her friends and neighbors. She was also entertained at a dinner party at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, by her co-workers of the Income Tax Office, when she was presented with a gift from her staff coworkers. Also at a trousseau tea, given by her aunt on the mountain Road, Belleville.

GRENT—WICKEY

A lovely, double-ring, autumn wedding was solemnized in Bushnell Congregational church, Detroit, Michigan, on Saturday, September 22, when Dorothy A. Wickey, of Detroit, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Colvin, of Scarsdale Road, Detroit, became the bride of Raymond Ghent, also of Detroit, son of Mrs. Orvil Ghent, of Belleville, Ont., and the late Mr. Ghent. The Rev. W. Forsythe, pastor of the church, officiated. Miss Alice Ashworth with tall standards of white stocks, chrysanthemums, and candelabra.

The church organist provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Leslie B. Colvin, was lovely in her bridal gown of ivory-rose Chantilly lace, featuring an appliqued, of pearl motifs on white silk taffeta fashioned on princess lines, having a molded bodice with sabrina neckline and short sleeves of matching lace. A crown of seed pearls held her double-tier fingertip veil of silk tulle illusion, and she carried Amazon lilies and white stephanotis.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Marjorie DeMaris, of Detroit, Michigan, as matron of honor; Mrs. Natalie Braden of Lansing; Miss Patricia Null of Detroit, and Miss Doris Clark of Cleveland, Ohio, as bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in aqua chiffon over aqua taffeta, fashioned with rounded necklines, moulded tucked bodices with short sleeves, crushed cummerbunds, and waltz-length skirts. They wore matching headbands, and carried pink Sweetheart roses and shattered carnations.

Little Cathy DeMaris, niece of the bride, was flower girl, frocked in aqua chiffon over aqua taffeta with matching headband, and carrying a nosegay of pink Sweetheart roses and shattered carnations.

Mr. Kenneth Mullins, Toronto, attended the bridegroom, and Messrs. Mel Schalhamer of Jackson, Michigan; Clifford Ghent of Windsor, brother of the bridegroom; and Philip Wickey, of Michigan State University, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the Detroit Yacht Club which was banked with ferns, white stocks, and white chrysanthemums. There were the guest tables, seating 200. The bride's mother, Mrs. Calvin received, gowned in imported French silk peau de soie in mauve. The matching accessories, broke and bracelet length sleeves were of hand-embroidered Alencon lace in matching shade. She wore a corsage of Cymbidium orchids, and matching shoes and hat.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Orvil Ghent, wore embroidered satin in Dior blue with navy accessories, and corsage of Cymbidium orchids.

The bride's table was richly appointed with white damask and centred by a tiered wedding cake, flowers and the bridal bouquets.

For the two-week wedding trip to Nassau, the bride chose a green suit with beige hat and orchid corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Ghent will reside in Detroit.

Previous to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at several showers: one of which was given by her sorority sisters of Michigan State University in affiliation with Alpha Delta Sorority.

Recent Bride Feted by Co-Workers

A delightful surprise shower was given Miss Carolyn Ormond previous to her marriage at the home of her parents, 277 Albert Street, when the ladies of Zeller's staff presented her with a bevy of lovely, miscellaneous gifts.

The tea table was prettily appointed with shower cloth, centred by a large doll bride and bridegroom loaned for the occasion with the compliments of the Woolworth Company.

The evening was spent in bingo, and the making of several brief speeches.

Refreshments were served completing a most enjoyable event.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S UP TO YOU, NOT YOUR FRIENDS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a 32-year-old woman and have been a widow for a year and a half. Since my three children are all married and live in other parts of the country, I have no interests of my own and am very lonely.

It seems to me as though most of my friends don't understand just what a lonely life I have. Of course I'm invited out to dinner at their homes off and on, but one feels more lonely to be in the home of a happily married couple.

I want to meet some one my own age who would be a congenial companion. Can you suggest a way I might do this?—Mrs. J.H.

Dear Mrs. J.H.:

Of course a widow of only a year and a half is still very lonely. But that doesn't mean she need be without interests, as you say you are.

It means that, by this time, she ought to have made at least some sort of a beginning at getting new things and new friends into her life, and she can't expect the friends she already has to do that all for her. She has got to get to work and do it for herself, for to exercise the initiative to fill an empty life is a large part of the cure for loneliness.

The chief mistake you, and many others like you, are making is in concentrating on the desire to meet "some congenial companion" your own age. To dwell too much on what you would like is what usually keeps a woman with a life to remodel from achieving new happiness sooner. And by new happiness I don't mean necessarily by a second marriage. I mean a fresh interest in life.

What you and, again, many other women in your situation, fail to realize is that, just because you're now alone, you have an opportunity and freedom for new experiences and new activities such as you probably never had time for while you had your husband to take care of.

What you should do is to sit down with pencil and paper and list the things you like to do. Then look around your town for ways to turn those likes into constructive activity.

These are days when such ability any woman has can be put to use; when the things she likes to do best can be made to count, both in the way of finding more happiness for herself and in bringing it to other people. I suggest you adopt as your motto some words written by a wise man long ago: "Those who bring happiness to the life of others cannot keep it from themselves."

A happy second marriage for a widow is an eminently desirable thing. But no woman should 'do herself the injustice of spending her time hunting for one. There are far too many fascinating things out of which she would cheat herself that way.

Moreover, curious as it may seem, new romance always seems more likely to appear when a woman isn't definitely looking for it; when she has almost forgotten that she so wistfully and eagerly desired it. The reason for this, of course, is that by entering wholeheartedly into the new activities she finds for herself, she generates a fresh fund of enthusiasm and vitality that inevitably attracts other people to her.

And if no romance should come? Then she has already out-witted loneliness so effectively that her life seems satisfactorily full and interesting even without it.

NOTABLY NEW

A BOLD black and white herringbone tweed tells the fabric story of this weary, versatile greatcoat. This topper has many new features to mark it as the latest thing, features such as a large, drapable collar and a double-breasted front that fastens almost to the knee, not forgetting the flounced back above the box-pleating back belt. The sleeves taper to narrow wrists with buttoned detail from very deep armholes.

BEAUTY

By MRS. QUI VIVE

THE NEW LOOK IN BEAUTY

A new shade of lipstick seems to change a woman's whole personality.

This season's feeling of elegance in fashion would not be quite complete without a "new look" in beauty, and most cosmeticians are going out of their way to give us the proper foundations, powders, rouge and lipstick to harmonize with the styles which were all the rage circa 1912. Most of them are quite enchanting and offer vivid contrast to the sun-tanned look we sported all summer long. For the new look is, of course, the "fair look" and it is achieved with soft shades of rose in every item of the make-up kit.

One of the complete new lines in the rose tone is named to honor King Edward VII himself and from make-up base to lipstick, is flattering to practically every type of woman. The new skin tone is achieved through the use of a filmy, velvety and delicately-tinted foundation, chosen in a shade lighter than usual. When this liquid make-up base is blended across throat and face, it covers up unevenness in skin coloring, tones down a too pinky skin and brightens a sallow or darker one. By color-controlling the complexion, it permits the lipstick, which is a rich, vibrant rose, to be worn with delightful effect by almost every woman.

Liquid rouge is suggested for a pale, sallow or dark skin and to make dark circles less conspicuous. It should be blended in light-

Soup Pot Days Are Here Again

By Mary Moore

Whenever I give you a recipe for homemade soup I receive such pleasant "thank you's" that it is a great temptation to keep on with the soupy talk. This time nobody can accuse me of fishing for compliments for nearly everybody need but bones of some kind left-over from Monday's Thanksgiving feast.

HOMEMADE SOUP
(From Thanksgiving Dinner bones.)

As soon as those bones have been picked white by ravenous raiders or by you, out comes the soup pot and in they go, covered with cold water. Whether they are turkey, chicken, duck, beef, lamb, or veal simmer them covered until any scraps of meat left on them fall off. Let stand until cold. Skim off any fat. Strain, and pick out any pieces of meat and return them to the broth. To approximately 1 quart of this bone broth add 1 very finely chopped small clove of garlic, 2 tomatoes peeled and chopped or 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-3 cup each chopped onion, finely chopped parsley, and celery, sliced carrot, macaroni alphabets (or their equivalent in a little macaroni product), 1 tablespoon (or 3) pot barley and rice, 2 or 3 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, and 2 chicken or beef bouillon cubes. Simmer until all vegetables are tender. Taste to see if it needs more seasonings. Note: You can serve this as a main course dish if you make interesting additions in the oven and pass liberal amounts of fine grated old Cheddar or Parmesan cheese, to sprinkle over it, French fashion.

I have to apologize for not keeping a promise to the sesame seed addicts last week. I said I would give you

SESAME SEED SNACKERS

These take the place of little water crackers on which to spread cheese or other spreads for evening snacks or parties. Mix together 1-2 cup sesame seeds, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne pepper. Cut in 1-3 cup cold butter or margarine. Add about 2 tablespoons ice water (just enough to make dough of piecrust consistency) and mix in with fork and shape into ball. Roll out to 1-8 inch thickness and cut into small rounds with 1 1-2 inch cookie cutter. Place on greased cookie sheet. Pat more sesame seeds on top of each. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes until set but cold. Before removing from pan, and while still hot, sprinkle with salt. These may be kept in covered tin and reheated before being served. This amount makes five dozen— and barely enough for a party for 10 or 12. Cheese "dips" are wonderful with them.

Note—I made the first batch of 1956 Christmas Fruit Cakes today.

QUEEN TO SEE BALLET

LONDON (CP)—Queen Elizabeth will attend an evening performance of the Moscow Bolshoi Ballet, now appearing in London. She will see "The Fountain of Bakchasrai," a four - act ballet with music by Boris Asafiev, Oct. 25.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WHEN WE ACKNOWLEDGE AN INTRODUCTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that you always advise that one should say "How do you do" when one acknowledges an introduction. However, isn't there something more original that one may correctly say? It does seem rather dull to me to be inquiring about the health of a person one is just meeting. Any suggestions about this? — Rita F.

A "most important suggestion for you: Don't try to be "original" when you acknowledge an introduction. "How do you do" is the correct thing to say, for always-correct thing to day, if you want to show you know what's what. And if you want to add a gracious touch, add the person's name. . . . "How do you do, Miss Robbins" . . . and say your words with a grace and a cordial smile. Rather than spend effort to think of something "original," spend that effort on how you say these words.

I'll grant you that, at the moment of introduction, you haven't any real concern with how the person's name. . . . actually this "How do you do" is not a question about the person's health, but is simply a standard formula of civility. We should, I think, all be grateful that there is only one one Introduction—acknowledgment . . . "How do you do" . . . to have to use with complete confidence that it is correct.

WHEN BOUILLON IS SERVED IN CUPS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When bouillon is served in a bouillon cup, at luncheon for example, should all of it be sipped from the spoon? — Wondering

No . . . that's a too-long procedure. Take the first two or three sips from the spoon, to test the heat, and then drink the bouillon from the cup, as you would drink tea.

River Valley Institute Names Delegates to Area Convention

STIRLING — On Thursday, October 4th, 21 women attended the regular meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. Miss Flossie Rosebush was co-hostess with Mrs. Jack Bush at whose home the meeting was held.

The rooms were resplendent with autumn flowers and maple leaves, the view up the Trent River was beautiful. Four visitors from Frankford and Stirling were welcomed. They were Mrs. Walter Morrow, Mrs. Don Terry Mrs. William Wilkins and Mrs. C. Payne.

The president, Mrs. Roy Bush, opened with "O Canada," The Lord's Prayer and "The Mary Stewart Collect." She read two poems, "Looking Pleasant," and one in honor of Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Thomas Hanna gave a full report. The thread and needles chart sent by Mrs. MacPhatter, was received in time for the September meeting. Those who were absent will receive their's at a later date.

Two members voiced thanks, one for anniversary cards and the other for a box of gifts sent when she was ill. The subscription to "The Countrywoman" is to be renewed.

Plans were made for the usual Hallowe'en party at the school October 26 with prizes for the children. Refreshments will be served. A committee of six was appointed: Mrs. R. Coonelly, Mrs. W. Ashby, Mrs. H. Morrow, Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Roy Irven and Mrs. Peter De Bruyn, to complete the arrangements.

It was decided to have a special appreciation night honoring the school trustees for River Valley community at the school Friday evening November 2. The committee in charge will be the November entertainment committee, Mrs. Ed Hazzard and Mrs. John Kane, also the president and secretary, Mrs. Roy Bush and Mrs. Thomas Hanna.

Thanks were expressed to Mrs. Vernon Harry and the other members who attended Chatterton W.I. last week. Ten dollars was donated to the canvass for the remodelling of Stirling arena.

A letter was read from the catering club assistant voicing thanks for the gift received.

The group decided to renew the two subscriptions as the 1956 Christmas gift to our Friendship Link Institute in England at a cost of $6.30. The members of Abbots Leigh W.I. thoroughly enjoy the Canadian magazines and they find recipes and articles most helpful.

The 19th annual area convention will be held in Belleville Collegiate October 23 and 24. Transportation will be provided with one delegate for each day. The theme is "In our nation today, our achievements tomorrow." The delegates and alternates appointed are: Mrs. Vernon Harry, Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Will Ashby, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Thomas Hanna, Mrs. Roy Irven and Mrs. Don Donoboe.

The A.C.W.W. convener, Mrs. Don Donoboe, read an article entitled, "Rural Youth Today," which stressed the need of fresh footsteps to assist in carrying on the great work.

The Friendship Link secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, passed around pictures of her pen pal, Mrs. Evelyn Coombs, her home, "Glenn Cottage," and the pool at Abbots' Leigh, a picture of the president, Mrs. C. Cotterell, and her home, "Myrtle Cottage," and a program of Abbots' Leigh W.I. She read extracts from letters received which gave a descriptive account of "Members' night" in April, when everything is kept secret. The competition was "dressing an egg." Mrs. Coombs dressed hers in cotton wool to represent a kitten.

May 19 a music festival was held at Weston Supermare in which all the institute choirs in Somerset took part. Six hundred women practised in blending their voices for many hours and at 5 p.m. they presented a children's cantata in two parts, entitled "The Enticing Green," by Christopher Le Fleming. The description of this event was of interest.

Mrs. Coombs is making a scrap book from poems sent from Canada for the sick and older members to read and is calling it "The Canadian River Valley Scrap Book." The English people especially enjoy "Just Folks" by Edgar Guest. Several books will be made if enough poems are sent over. Mrs. Coombs and her husband are "Campanologist", or bell ringers and they have rung bells in many churches in several English counties.

Mrs. MacMullen also told the group a personal item of news and said people in Canada should be grateful for the privileges they enjoy in this land, without any restrictions.

England has had a wet season. The gardens are saturated with water and moss has appeared and it was still raining the end of September.

Mrs. Ralph Utman presided over the program which had been arranged by Mrs. John Kane and Mrs. Philip Conley, based on "Music."

During the program Mrs. Utman and her mother, Mrs. Walter Morrow, of Frankford, played two piano duets, "First Regiment March," and "Off To Camp."

Mrs. Don Donoboe introduced Mrs. William Wilkins of Stirling and she gave a timely message on music appreciation. She said, "Anyone can enjoy music without any knowledge of notes, as everyone has a distinct sense of rythm."

Each individual has his own preferences, whether it be current popular tunes or symphonies. The popular music is familiar to all and there is a great difference between vocal music and instrumental. She gave definitions of grand opera, classical and other musical terms and read a poem, "Train up thy mind."

Mrs. Will Ashby expressed thanks for the message and presented Mrs. Wilkins with a small gift provided by Mrs. Phil Conley.

Mrs. Roy Bush outlined the motto, "The world's full of beauty and its days are filled with music." She read a poem, "The Cricket's Call," by Helen B. Anderson. She said Institute women worked for 25 years before they were able to convince the "powers that be" the necessity of having music taught in the public schools of Ontario. In the discussion period it was pointed out that "if you can get children interested in good music they will not become delinquents. In this day and age people do not listen to the music of nature as was customary in bygone days." It was felt that classical music is always with people while popular tunes die a natural death.

Mrs. Jack Bush conducted a musical contest. The winners had the honor of singing "Down by The Old Mill Stream." Mrs. William Ashby read a poem entitled "Old Folk Songs."

Miss Marion Carlisle voiced thanks to the hostesses, to all who had contributed to the program and to the lunch committee.

The meeting closed with "God Save the Queen." Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a delightful chat.

Carmel Church Supper Is Very Successful

RAWDON—Wednesday evening the women of Carmel United church in Rawdon township served their usual bountiful fowl supper to over 300 people in jubilee church hall.

The tables were decorated with bouquets of asters and marigolds and were laden with various salads, pickles, cranberries and fruit jellies.

At 6.15 p.m., the first sitting of 120 people took place. The servituers then served platters of hot and cold chicken, hot chicken pie, hot vegetables and escalloped potatoes. The second course was pie of all varieties and then more pie and each person was loud in his praise of the meal.

The guests were in attendance from Oshawa, Eldorado, Belleville, Corbyville, Foxboro, Campbellford, Rylstone, Salem, Marsh Hill, Murray township, Mount Pleasant, Bethel, Wellman's, St. Paul's, Stirling; St. John's, Stirling, and St. Andrew's, Stirling, River Valley district, Frankford, Hoard's, and other points.

Music between sittings was supplied by Mrs. Arthur Pyear, Carmel, Miss Betty McConnell, Mount Pleasant, Messrs. B. Sills and C. Thorne, Belleville, Mr. M. Sills and Miss Donna Sharp, Campbellford.

Following the supper a short program was enjoyed in the church with Mrs. Pentlar, the Rev. A. Packman as chairman.

Mr. Charles Thorne, Belleville sang several selections which included "Irish Melodies," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "Bless This House." He was accompanied on the piano accordion by Mr. Bruce Sills, Belleville. Mr. Thorne also rendered several violin selections with Mr. B. Sills accompanying on the accordion.

The Campbellford artists included Miss Donna Sharp, piano and three of her majorettes dressed in white costumes with red and gold trim. The girls were the Misses Jeanette Baker, Joan Sharp and Darlene Lloyd. They demonstrated baton twirling.

Mrs. Eric Holman, Campbellford, was the elocutionist and rendered four selections, two of which were "A Composition on a Cow" and a poem "How He Died."

Mr. Marshall Sills, Campbellford, delighted the audience with music on his marimba with Miss Sharp giving piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear played for the assembly singing of a few hymns.

The audience enjoyed the program and the evening was successful, despite the fact that there were two other suppers that same evening and a fair during the day.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

EGGLETON W.M.S. and W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — The October meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow Thursday afternoon, October 4, one week earlier than usual as the Belleville East Sectional Rally is being held on the regular date.

The president, Mrs. Maurice Clancy, presided over a program, which had been prepared by Mrs. Fyrde Stapley and Mrs. Sharon Frost.

Mrs. Clancy spoke a few words of welcome to the visitors, Mrs. Harlow read for the Thanksgiving Scripture lesson, Psalm 100 and also gave the commentary on the hymns.

Two readings were given, "A Harvest Festival," read by Mrs. Robert Danford, and "Gratitude or What Have We To Thank God For?" read by Mrs. Clarence Flickett.

All enjoyed the solo, "Sweeter As The Years Go By," sung by Mrs. Maurice Clancy. Mrs. Clifford Lanning gave a reading, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?"

Hymn, "When All Thy Mercies, O My God," was sung, after which the minister, Mr. Dyson, offered prayer. Miss Joyce Stapley read a poem, "Holiday Weather."

Mrs. Carl Bridges, the W.A. vice-president, then took charge for the business end. Invitation from West Huntingdon W.M.S. was read inviting the members of Eggleton W.M.S. to their bazaar on Tuesday afternoon, October 16, at West Huntingdon United Church.

Arrangements were discussed for as many as possible to attend the rally of the Belleville East Section of the Belleville Presbyterial, being held October 11 at Bethel - Zion United Church. Plans were discussed regarding the bake sale, which is to be held in Stirling on Saturday, October 27.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley offered her home for the November meeting and Mrs. Gordon Nelson was appointed to prepare the program.

Motion was made that the bill for the linen cloth, purchased by Mrs. Carl Bridges for the Communion table, be paid.

Two more invitations were read, one from Moira W.A. inviting the members to attend their bazaar on October 31 and another from Mount Pleasant W.M.S. to attend their bazaar on November 7.

Thursday afternoon, October 18 was the date set for the meeting.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. W. Jeffrey opened her home on Wednesday afternoon for the October meeting of the Bayside Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Clifton Rush, second vice-president, presided at the meeting. The theme was "A Dwelling Place of God." Mrs. Everett Nicholson read Ephesians 1:22, and Mrs. Leonard Young read Ephesians 4:4-8 and 11-16.

Mrs. Rush, Christian stewardship secretary, read, "Uncomfortable Thoughts at Harvest Time," and "Saga of Moose Woods Reserve."

The systematic giving offering was taken and subscriptions taken for the Missionary Monthly Magazine. Subscriptions will be completed at the November meeting.

The meeting was closed with the singing of "We Plough the Fields and Scatter," and the Mizpah Benediction.

bers to meet to clean and decorate the church for the anniversary services, which are to be held October 21.

An interesting paper prepared on the chapter from the study book, "Our Oldest Canadians," was given by Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

The roll call by Mrs. Gordon Nelson showed 14 adults and two children present.

Mr. Dyson read portions from letters received from his son-in-law, who is stationed in India-China, describing the people and some of the conditions there.

Mrs. Clancy thanked Mrs. Harlow for opening her home, the program conveners and all who had assisted with the program, and expressed pleasure that Mr. and Mrs. Dyson could be present at the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and all enjoyed a social time.

BEDTIME STORIES

By VERA WINSTON

ALTHOUGH the stores seem to be concentrating on the long nightgown in their new-season advertising, the college crowd still prefers the shortie type. Mayhap, though, when the cold weather really gets going, the longies will move in. But for the moment, such delectables as a shortie gown in challis seems to be the thing. This one, in printed rayon challis, pastels on white, in the usual stylized floral design, has smocking and embroidery to dress up the yoke, and there is openwork embroidery at the collar and sleeves. The sides are slit, nightshirt fashion.

Rosicrucian Chapter Formed Here

The Supreme Grand Lodge of the International Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, has authorized the formation of a local chapter to serve its members in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and vicinity. According to Wilkie Orr, Trenton, local spokesman for the Order, the new chapter makes a total of more than 125 Rosicrucian chapters in this jurisdiction.

The newly appointed local officers are: Wilkie Orr, Master; Audrey Hart, secretary; Helmut Schuetten, guardian.

Mrs. Leonard Hart, 36 Oriole Park, Belleville, secretary of the newly organized chapter, states that the Rosicrucian Order is not a religious society, but is a philosophical movement devoted to the study of the sciences and the laws of nature as found expressed in man. The traditional history of the order places its establishment in 1250 B.C. during the reign of Amenhotep IV, Pharaoh of Egypt. The order first came to America in 1694 A.D., and settled near what now is Fairmount Park in Philadelphia.

In San Jose, the Rosicrucian Order, patron of art and science, maintains a Science Museum, a Planetarium, an Egyptian, Oriental museum, and an extensive art gallery. It promotes field and camera expeditions to archeological sites in remote corners of the world.

Bi-monthly meetings will be held in Prince of Wales School, Belleville, on the second and fourth Tuesdays at 8.30 p.m.

Don't irritate child's intestines with "too-strong laxatives"
Relieve at last his shocking Children's Own Tablets for your child's protection — he cringes! He pleads! He begs! He spits!
Then using harsh laxatives that may irritate the tender walls of your child's intestines, causing cramping, griping, or weak, uncomfortable bowels. Large, harsh, salt-base laxatives are often no help for children. Now, at last, there's a gentle, yet thorough laxative made by the famous Medical science that at last developed Children's Own Tablets — a chocolate-coating for children's needs — but strong enough . . . not harsh! Made by the makers of Syrup of Figs and Castoria. Children's Own Tablets today! Buy them by the makers of Syrup of Figs and Castoria. They are not the same to your child's intestinal problems.

Women's Institute

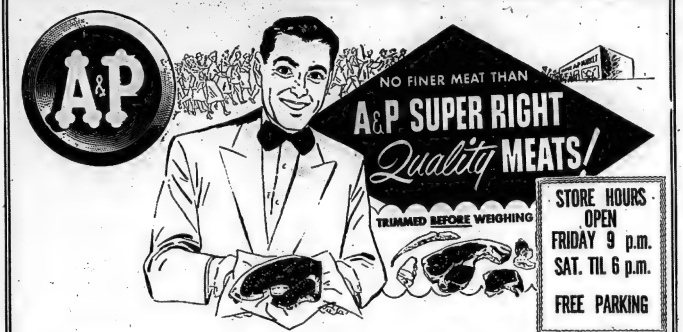
SYLSTONE W.I.

On Thursday afternoon, October 4, Mrs. Ernest Irwin, was hostess to the Sylstone Women's Institute of which she is convener for Public Relations and Community Activities. There were 15 members, and six visitors and 12 children in attendance.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, acting president. The roll call was answered by "Sing or Say a Conversetta", and was well responded to with only three members paying the five cent fine imposed for failing to answer.

Mrs. Alfred Akins was chosen to be the second leader for the girls' club.

An invitation was received from Seymour East Women's Institute to attend its Extension Service Short Course on November 22.



Mrs. Lily Anderson and Mrs. Fred Barnum were chosen to be delegates to the 30th annual Women's Institute Area Convention to be held in Belleville Collegiate, October 22 and 23.

Mrs. Charles Stewart relieved Mrs. Irwin as convener owing to Mrs. Irwin's duties as hostess and was in charge of the balance of the program. Mrs. Carl Clancy of Wellman's Corners, was introduced by Mrs. E. Irwin and gave an interesting account of a trip taken by Mrs. Clancy and her husband, some time ago to the West Coast, via United States. Her talk was well illustrated by snapshots and picture post cards and held the interest of all. Mrs. Stewart extended the thanks of all the women present to Mrs. Clancy and called on Mrs. Fred Barnum to introduced her niece, Mrs. Kenneth Oddie, who conducted an interesting and instructive demonstration on "Etching Aluminum". She also showed some copper work she had done. A tray which she finished during the demonstration was donated to the Institute by Mrs. Oddie and was won by Mrs. Wilfred Spencer in a draw. Mrs. Spencer voiced her surprise at being so lucky and thanked Mrs. Oddie and Mrs. Clancy for being so generous with their time and talents.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and refreshments served by the hostess and the lunch committee.

Single Channel TV Policy Will Be Investigated

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on broadcasting was expected to dig today into Canada's single-channel policy for television.

CBC board Chairman A. D. Dunton, in his third straight day as a witness, was to discuss "the economics of broadcasting" a subject bearing on the government policy of one TV station per viewing area.

Commission Chairman R. M. Fowler said Wednesday the commissioners want to go into the economics question today, leaving examination of Mr. Dunton on some other points until later.

TV policy now is based on having six major cities reserved for the CBC alone, with single private operators allowed in Montreal and others. Economic factors have been given as a main reason.

DISCIPLINE

In his second day of testimony before the commission Wednesday, Mr. Dunton indicated approval of a previously-expressed suggestion that penalties be imposed on CBC stations for infractions of CBC regulations and rulings.

At present, there is only the extreme penalty of a station licence suspension, which never has been imposed.

Mr. Dunton said he would agree there should be intermediate penalties between that and what some witnesses have described as a "slap on the wrist," but he could offer no proposals as to what the penalties should be.

He expressed objection to fines and to bringing station operators into police courts, as some witnesses have advocated. These methods seemed "foreign" to the way broadcasting has worked so far.

But he added that the CBC board of governors feels it would be useful to have some type of intermediate penalty.

VIEW OF APPEAL

Mr. Dunton also told the board Wednesday he does not see how private broadcasters can effectively be given the direct right of appeal from rulings of the CBC.

The government agency had the responsibility of putting across a national broadcast service and needed supervision over private stations to go along with this authority. In the final analysis, the private stations could appeal to Parliament, to which the CBC delegated authority.

"We haven't been able to think of anything," he said when Mr. Fowler asked for any ideas on how an appeal tribunal might be established.

Mr. Dunton took issue with the contention of spokesmen for the private stations that it is a practical impossibility for them to set up networks of their own. He said that, as far as the CBC is concerned, they now have ample opportunity to establish regional networks.

Good Long-Term Markets for Next 5 Years for Coal

OTTAWA (CP)—An official of Canada's largest lignite coal producer says there are prospects of good long-term markets for that fuel but the next five years will be "rather rough."

Malcolm Brody, managing director of Western Canada Coal Co., Brandon, Man., told the board of transport commissioners Wednesday that the coal mine operators must have co-operation on freight rates from the railways if they are to meet the competition for markets from other fuels, particularly expanding natural gas service.

If coal operators could hold their prices down, they could keep gas out of some markets. But "they must have the co-operation of the railways in meeting the challenge from oil and gas."

He made his statements in support of western coal producers' plea for exemption from any freight rate boost the board might grant the railways. The board is hearing the railways' application for a general rail freight rate increase of 15 per cent with a flat raise of 25 cents a ton for coal shipments.

During the hearing Commissioner Leonard J. Knowles, 69, suffered a heart attack and was taken to hospital, where his condition was described as serious.

FRIENDS BEAR TWINS

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP) — Two women who lived in the same house and were good friends gave birth Tuesday to twins. Auburn Memorial Hospital said Mrs. Carl F. O'Connor and Mrs. James Minker, who live in the two-apartment house, gave birth to twin daughters. Mrs. O'Connor was quoted as saying they "hoped something like this would happen."

Off-Duty CNR Man Stopped Possible Serious Rail Accident

TRENTON, (Special.)— An observant off-duty CNR expressman prevented what could have been a serious railroad accident east of here Thanksgiving day.

On Monday, at 5.15 p.m., Henry Lents, general clerk with the local express service, out for a drive, noticed a fire burning on the westbound track near the crossing on the second concession of Sidney township. On closer examination he found a bed of red-hot coals had already burned out three ties under the rails on the mainline and was spreading to others.

Quick to notify the telegraph operator on duty at the Trenton junction expressmen Lentz learned later F. Yateman at Glenwood Place, relieving section foreman, was to make a hurried job of replacing five ties damaged by the burning coals. Train No. 15 loaded with holiday passengers westbound out of Belleville at 7.48 p.m. was not delayed because railroaders working feverishly against time had new ties in place with minutes to spare.

Carelessness has not been mentioned as the reason for the fire starting on the mainline but a fireman dumping ashes from the firepot of a standing engine could have unknowingly caused a conflagration and possible major railroad disaster one railroader noted.

A company official observed Lentz's alertness and quick thinking was an example to be heeded by everybody particularly during Fire Prevention Week.

FOUND NOT GUILTY

At Brighton Wednesday night, Eugene Wesnor of Trenton, the driver of a car involved in the highway death of six-year-old Joanne Little, September 20, was found not guilty of negligence by a coroner's jury investigating the cause of the accident. The eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Little, R.R. 4, Trenton, died from injuries after she was hit on No. 2 highway in front of her parents' place on her way home from school west of Trenton.

Coroner Dr. H. J. Truesdil of Brighton, presided. Crown Attorney H. R. Deyman of Cobourg, questioned the witnesses.

The jury deliberated 30 minutes before bringing in the "not guilty" verdict.

WILL HOLD COURT

A special court sitting before Magistrate T. Y. Wills will be held this evening at the Trenton court house where charges against a number of Trenton youths involved in a street brawl more than a week ago will be heard.

The disturbance occurred outside the Quinte Hotel with an estimated 40 persons involved. Close to 15 charges were preferred by police.

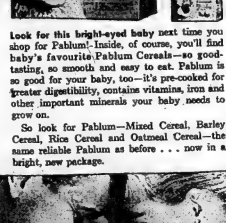
Help Build Up System Now By Taking Syntona

If you feel tired, worrsout and nervous; if you suffer with indigestion, gas, heartburn and sour acidity — take a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound, the medicine which has helped thousands of men and women suffering this same way.

MRS. CELIA WOODS



Mrs. Celia (Woods, 3861/2 Richmond Street, London, Ontario, said recently:

"I was subject to dreadful headaches and my nerves were all on edge. Many nights I could not sleep. Food that I ate gave me trouble with heartburn and a full, heavy feeling rising in my stomach. I felt completely rundown and my condition was serious.

"Recently I read about Syntona and it helped me. In the first genuine relief I've had in years of suffering. It relieved the pain and soreness in my head and knees, my nerves are calmed down, headaches do not trouble me as they did and I am able to get a good, sound, refreshing sleep. Also I've been worn-out feeling in good shape. I feel better and have more energy throughout the day."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Delan the Druggist.

HAIL TEACHER

Within an hour, 200 policemen had surrounded the school, bringing armored cars and the fire brigade. A crowd of anguished parents strove frantically to break through the police cordon. Weeping mothers cried: "Give us our children!"

BEHIND CHILDREN

Osvaldo had barricaded himself in a school hall, threatened the terrified children with his sub-machine-gun. Whenever he appeared at a window, he screened himself with three children, and police were afraid to fire.

Scraps of paper fluttered from a school window. On each, the captain: "Give us the 200,000,000 lire or we will have no mercy on the children."

A local priest exhorted them over the loudspeakers to surrender. He was shouted down by one of the men who said:

"I have four kilograms of TNT explosive and a bottle of acid. If you don't give me the money I will blind the children and blow the whole place to bits."

FALL PLOW FERTILIZER PAYS

- Saves time during next spring's rush
- Saves extra handling costs
- Saves winter storage

When you're busy next spring, you may have no time for that extra fertilizer application so many crops need. Seeding may be delayed or your fertility level may be low. Don't rely on planter treatment alone. Many high-producing crops need extra nutrients in addition to fertilizer banded near the seed, and Plow Down fills this need.

C-I-L Plow Down Fertilizer pays all ways!

It increases soil fertility . . . increases yields . . . increases profits. Because fertilizer is placed deeper, right down in the moisture zone, plants make deeper roots, resist dry weather better.

Five Special CIL Plow Down Grades

Here are five special Plow Down grades suitable for most soils and crops: Triple Ten CIL 6-12-12, CIL 0-20-20, CIL 0-20-10 and CIL 20% Super Phosphate. Be among the first to profit from Fall Plow Down.

Hitler's Sister Busy Writing Her Memoirs

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, (AP)—Hitler's sister said today she is writing her memoirs to set some of the record about her family straight.

"And the readers will forgive me if I abstain from depicting my brother at all costs as a wicked character, just for the sake of profit," she told a reporter.

Paula Hitler, 60, whose name was changed to Paula Wolf on Hitler's orders in 1936, was interviewed at her home in this alpine resort city.

Hitler probably will be declared dead officially later this month by a Munich court. Miss Wolf said she hoped she will then be allowed to take possession of a trunkful of Hitler keepsakes, including some water colors he painted, his First World War decorations and a Nazi party badge.

Report British Capture Six Top-Rank Rebels

NICOSIA (AP) — British paratroopers combing the Cyprus mountains were unofficially reported to have captured six hard-core Greek Cypriot rebels. Two were said to be on the "most wanted" list, with a price on their heads.

British officials refused to confirm or deny the report which filtered through the sealed – off search area in the Kyrenia mountain ranges along the island's north coast.

The reported capture of six important members of the EOKA underground battling for union with Greece came from unofficial Greek sources. They were also published in the Greek – language press.

Some sources said British forces also have seized an important cache of rebel arms, some of them loot from an EOKA raid on a police station.

50 VETERANS IN HIDING

MANILA (AP) — The Daily Mirror says 50 Japanese Second World War stragglers have been discovered in the mountains of Mindoooro Island, south of Luzon. The Japanese, believed to be the remnants of a garrison which slipped out of Maniloba in 1945, were discovered when floods drove island residents to the mountains, the newspaper said.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS CHEER PRINCESS AT MAURITIUS

Animal Trainer Killed by Bear

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — While his fiancee tried desperately to save him, a 28-year-old animal trainer was killed Tuesday night by a 500-pound performing bear.

Paul Lemery was attacked in the cage of one of four bears he had been training for television appearances. Hans, a European brown bear, pinned Lemery to the floor and clawed and bit him.

Lemery's fiancee, Sheila Rodriguez, 23, outside the cage, prodded a seven-foot pole and beat the bear repeatedly. She then tried unsuccessfully to lure the bear with sugar.

Screams by Lemery and Miss Rodriguez were heard by Robert Belleville, 38, operator of a store near the trailer where the bears were kept in three cages. He seized a .35-calibre hunting rifle, ran to the door of the trailer and fatally shot the bear in the head.

Lemery died en route to a hospital.

REVIVE LEGEND OF DEAD ARTIST

Bones found by William Little, above, amateur artist and superintendent of the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, have re-opened the story of Tom Thomson, Canadian artist, whose body was discovered on the shores of Canoe Lake, Algonquin Park, in 1917. Little, following the directions of a local forest ranger, found the bones which he sent to a medical doctor for examination.

Tom Thomson, above, has been a legend in Ontario's Muskoka area for 30 years. Many believe he was murdered in spite of the official verdict of accidental death. (Central Press Canadian).

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Thanksgiving service was well attended at Wallbridge church, Sunday morning. The junior choir with their young voices sang a beautiful anthem "We Thank Thee O Lord," which all enjoyed. Mrs. James Sine at the organ and the Rev. Mr. McMullen gave an inspiring sermon and communion was administered.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison accompanied Mr. and Mrs. J. Palmer to Algonquin Park, recently and spent a couple of days there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketchason and family of Guelph, spent Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. L. Ketcheson and brothers, Douglas and Griffin.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Robert Fisher of Barrie, spent Thanksgiving with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sine and attended church service Sunday.

Miss Ella Phillips of Hamilton spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. F. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris were dinner guests Sunday evening with their nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker of Belleville.

Mr. Almon Moore spent a couple of days with friends in the village this week.

There will be no service at this appointment as anniversary services are being held at Stone church. Also the pot-luck dinner will be Wednesday, October 17, at this church hall, Wallbridge.

Mr. V. Moore has returned home from Belleville General Hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Stirling

STIRLING — Miss Mary Hulin was officially presented with a 25-year service award last week for her work as assistant postmistress at Stirling. Mr. Mackintosh, Ottawa, was in town and made the presentation.

Grand Patriarch Earl Fox and Mrs. Fox are spending three weeks visiting I.O.O.F. lodges across Ontario. They expect to begin their tour in Sarnia.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher attended the reception Wednesday evening, October 3, at the Queensway Hotel, Trenton, in honor of the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carley, of Melville, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Williams.

Mrs. L. Rodgers, president of West Hastings District, attended Uniondale W.I. and gave an address on her recent trip. A birthday cake was made and cut in her honor.

A number of Rebekah members gathered at the new lodge hall on Thanksgiving and arranged the dishes and the regalia in their new cupboards. The hall is nearing completion and it is hoped to have the furnace installed at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bush of Wyandotte, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Vandervoort, River Valley, spent an evening at the old homestead with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush while they were holidaying in Ontario. George is president of Down the River Federal Savings and Loan Association in Wyandotte.

Mrs. Eric McCoy, Madoc, commenced her duties of teaching a large class of pupils in the public school auditorium due to the increased enrollment of children. Pupils from grades 5 and 6 will occupy this new classroom. The two upper rooms had an enrollment of 89 pupils which was too many to teach properly so this arrangement was chosen as a way out of the dilemma.

Mrs. Charles Hoard of Hoards spent a day last week with her daughter, Mrs. Jack Bush, Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parcels and family, Marmora, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hanna and Billy, Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson spent the weekend in Norwood with their parents.

Mrs. Claude Pryor and Miss Ollie Davidson were guests at the Pond-Stone wedding and reception last Saturday, Mrs. Pryor provided the wedding music at Sidney Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson are holidaying with Mrs. John B. Thompson and attended Carmel fowl supper.

Mrs. E. W. Rowland of Peterborough, has been visiting friends in the village.

Mrs. Mary Vandervoort is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. George Bush at Wyandotte, Mich., and also visiting relatives in Toronto.

DRESSED TO SEE, AND BE SEEN BY, PRINCESS MARGARET

Rockets Aimed Into Sub-Arctic Sky Will Have Noses Covered With Recording Instruments

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Rockets will streak into the sub-Arctic sky here this fall in pursuit of planetary experiments aimed at studying the earth and its surrounding gases at heights never examined before.

The experiments will be launched near this joint Canadian-United States military base in northern Canada, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, late this month or early in November. They are being conducted by Canadian and American scientists in connection for the International Geophysical Year which starts on July 1957, and runs for 18 months.

During that period, rockets similar to those which will be fired into the ionosphere this fall, will have their nose covers packed with delicate recording instruments.

The work here will form part of a co-operative scientific endeavor to find out everything possible about the universe beyond and the earth in particular. About 40 countries will participate.

ACCESSIBLE SITE

Twelve miles east of this historic fort is the west coast of Hudson Bay, the multi - million-dollar rocket-firing site is nearing completion. It is known as one of the North American centres for the International Geophysical Year because it is readily accessible and lies within the Arctic auroral belt where northern lights can be easily seen.

A strange "science fiction" structure, shaped like an inverted funnel, poked through the trees into the sky above the trees. Concrete-lined pipes to carry water, sewage, steam and heat and electric power have already been planted around the cone.

Miles of road have been laid through muskeg. Hundreds of cubic yards of concrete have been poured for foundations of scientific equipment.

The base is being built with money from the U.S. defense construction fund has been estimated at more than $4,000,000. American scientists will direct the rocket-flights while Canadian scientists will record observations.

PEACEFUL MISSION

In charge of rocket firing is Lt.-Col. L. G. Smith of the United States army ordnance corps, named to handle the project two years ago after the U. S. accepted Canada's invitation to study the Arctic. And he emphasizes the peaceful nature of his mission.

"These are rockets and will have nose cones where the scientific instruments are placed. You have warheads on guided missiles. This is a scientific program entirely."

Under Lt.-Col. Smith are officers of the United States army, navy and air force. Needed to instrument and launch the rockets will be a permanent crew of 105 persons.

In the tests this year Aerobee and Dan rockets, fueled with high-grade alcohol, will roar at 3,200 feet a second—roughly twice the speed of a .303 calibre bullet—into the sky. Their destination will be the ionosphere, the upper region of rarified, ionized gas between 25 and 250 miles above the earth which reflects radio waves in long-distance communication.

The first sounding rocket will be launched early in the International Geophysical Year. About 80 of the 30 - foot Aerobees and 14-foot Dans are expected to be fired in the 18-month period.

TINY LABORATORY

Each will have its own miniature physics laboratory fitted inside the head end. The instruments will measure density, temperature, pressure and wind velocity at heights never studied before. They will also record the effects of the sun's light at high altitudes, the northern lights, cosmic rays and the earth's magnetism.

The Aerobee, 15 inches in diameter, is designed to carry 150 pounds of scientific equipment 100 miles into the air or a 120-pound load up 200 miles.

A range safety officer will make sure no rockets run wild. The second a rocket strays from its projected course, he will press a button that will cut off the rocket's fuel and bring it to earth. Under normal flight, projectiles will come out of the sky to land 30 miles from the tower.

Col. Smith says "dead" rockets will not have to be recovered for the experiment to be a success. Most of the information will have been transmitted to observers on the ground during the flight. However, efforts will be made to recover those which had numerous instruments.

The scientists will also attempt to determine the composition of the upper atmosphere above the range of sound ballons.

IMPORTANT PROJECT

Dr. O. M. Solandt, former chairman of the Defence Research Board of Canada, and now assistant vice-president of research and development for the Canadian National Railways, visited the rocket site recently. He called it "one of the largest and most important of all projects in IGY."

"It will involve the knowledge and measurement of a wide range of physical conditions in part of the world where it has never been measured before," he said.

Dr. Solandt, the Geophysical Year, originally called the Polar Year, pointed out that the first set of geophysical readings were taken co-operatively over the entire continent. Scientists decided then to hold another Polar Year 50 years later. This time scientists took readings at Baker Lake, Churchill Inlet and Eskimo Point, all in the Northwest Territories, north of Churchill.

However, great advances in the technique and accuracy of geophysical readings required scientists to advance the third Polar Year. They decided to hold it in the International Geophysical Year.

Doctors Report Adlai Stevenson In Good Health

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower's health has been in the news for months, but today the health of his Democratic opponent for the presidency entered the United States election campaign.

Adlai Stevenson's press secretary, Tyler Fritchey, told reporters he was releasing an "excellent" medical report on the Democratic candidate because "we've had a number of queries from newspaper men about Governor Stevenson's last examination."

The report, dated Oct. 2 and signed by Dr. Leander W. Riba of Chicago, says a physical checkup of Stevenson July 19 revealed a "normal blood count and urine, negative x-rays of the chest and urinary tract."

Dr. Riba's statement was dropped into the temporary press room of the Roosevelt Hotel in Portland, Ore., while reporters were busy writing summaries of the advance text of Stevenson's speech at the Municipal Auditorium there Wednesday night.

Reporters' queries, Fritchey said, were prompted by a question Vice-President Nixon once asked while he was answering one on Eisenhower's health at a recent press conference. After commenting on the president's health, Nixon added, "By the way, I wonder how Mr. Stevenson's other kidney is today?"

Seaway Project at Half-Way Mark of Five-Year Schedule

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—At the halfway point in its five - year schedule the St. Lawrence Seaway project has entered a new phase—the erection of structures.

Until now, work done has been mostly excavation, but concrete structures now are rising at Iroquois Point, St. Lambert lock and Cote St. Catharine lock.

Much excavation remains to be finished however, including miles of channel in the shallow rivers and overland in the Lachine section. Dredging of the seaway at Montreal harbor and the channel in lakes St. Louis and St. Francis will take two more years.

Captains guiding their freighters down the St. Lawrence River from the Great Lakes see evidence of the new phase of seaway construction as the massive concrete bulk of the New Iroquois lock's approach wall shines white in the sun.

The $8,470,000 lock—one of five the seaway authority is building—is due for completion early in 1958. About half the 4,500,000 cubic yards of excavation needed for it has been completed, leaving a gaping hole 100 feet wide, 90 feet deep and thousands of feet long.

Meanwhile, the lock's upper entrance wall daily grows longer and higher as a lowering, 275-ton gantry crane swings concrete by the 10-cubic buckeful from trucks below.

The concrete comes from a mixing plant built beside the excavation to provide the more than 600,000 cubic yards needed to build the lock.

The 47-foot-high entrance wall is about half built. When finished, it will be more than 3,000 feet long. It is six feet wide at the top, broadening gradually to 34 feet at the base.

One of its functions will be to serve for mooring ships waiting to enter the lock on their way downstream.

Work on the two locks rising in the Lachine section—the $7,107,000 Cote St. Catherine lock and the $7,460,000 St. Lambert lock—involves a different method of placing concrete.

At Cote Ste. Catherine, tall, slender gantries are built across approximately one-yard capacity fixed to the end of cables suspended from long booms. Trucks bring the concrete from a nearby mixing plant and it is poured from the truck bodies into the buckets which are lifted over the forms and the concrete poured.

At St. Lambert, two methods are used. The approach walls are built by pouring concrete into the forms from spouts on the rear of trucks. Concrete for the lock's monoliths is placed by a machine called a stacker — a long pipe leading from a travelling conveyor belt that brings the concrete from the mixing plant.

The project's next phase is mechanical and already, Canadian factories are making lock gates, electrical equipment, lock operating machinery and other mechanical installations for the seaway.

Jets Collide, One Man Saved From Chill Lake

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — One United States Air Force pilot was rescued and the search for a second was pressed through the night after their jet fighters planes collided and they parachuted into the chilly waters of Lake Michigan late Wednesday.

Lieut. Kenneth Hughes, 21, was pulled from the 54-degree water three hours after the planes smashed together 3½ miles east of this shoreline community.

Missing is Capt. Carlton Berry, 38, father of four children.

It was noted by the air force that if Berry remained "more than five hours" in the water he was in danger of death from exposure.

"To think I used to long to be a castaway with a blonde!"

Stevenson Upset Not Impossible Say Dopesters

WASHINGTON (CP) — Just a month or so ago you'd have been hard put to find a political dopester rash enough to go out on a limb and predict that Democrat Stevenson might — just possibly might — beat out Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency.

Today, less than 30 days before the Nov. 6 U.S. election, limbs and bald dopesters abound are with said dopesters aboard are sprouting out in all directions and they don't even seem to be worried about someone coming along behind and sawing them off.

They aren't saying, of course, that Stevenson, who lost out to Eisenhower in 1952, will lick the popular Republican president this time. Many of them still consider Eisenhower unbeatable but they are conceding that an upset by Stevenson is not impossible, which is a big change in observer sentiment over a short span of four or five weeks.

RURAL RUMBLINGS

The change in the political betting springs from a surprisingly vigorous Democratic organization, an unusually large pre - election registration of Democratic party voters in key areas, rumbling or discontent in the farm belt and the sharp Democratic swing that decided he had better step up his campaign schedule and get out and beat the bushes for votes.

The outcome depends on the post-election analysis of the electoral vote, that weird and complicated method of electing a president which baffles outsiders looking in on a U.S. election and which confuses Mr. and Mrs. Voter, too.

For a president is elected not by the number of votes a candidate gets in the country as a whole but on the number of electoral votes controlled by the individual states he wins. Each state has a number of votes in the electoral college as it has members of Congress — a number who wins a majority, however small, of the popular votes in a state does all the electoral votes as well.

There are 531 electoral votes, with 266 needed to win.

BOOTS SOLID

In assessing Stevenson's chances the dopesters figure it this way:

At this stage of the campaign, most observers concede the great bulk or 345 votes in the 11 solid states—Pennsylvania's 21, Ohio's 25 and Michigan's 20 — and he would be in.

Contour Plowing Results Shown

BROOKLIN (CP) — Part of the site of the International Plowing Match being held near here was shown Wednesday as proof of the success of employing contour plowing to counter soil erosion.

Some hillside fields on the farm of Heber Down, on and around whose farm the match is being held, were used as a demonstration lot seven years ago by agricultural experts.

They plowed the fields along the hillsides instead of up and down and put in grass drainways to carry off excess rain. The program has been continued since then.

Thousands of farmers visiting the match today viewed the results of the program, which Mr. Down says is a complete success.

"We followed the program laid down by the experts," he said. "We're very pleased with the results. The loss of topsoil has been stopped almost completely."

Before the contour plowing was started, he said, loss of topsoil from erosion amounted to a ton a year for every acre.

During the experimental plowing sites was one of the highlights of the day. In the plowing competitions, Hush Baird of Blackwater won the open class championship and Cyril Heynes, of Emerson, Man., the visitors class.

Battle Against Tuberculosis Among Eskimos Being Won By on Spot X-Ray Survey

OTTAWA (CP) — A medical shore team has returned from weary days and nights of treating Eskimos in isolated regions of the eastern Arctic with evidence that the battle against tuberculosis among the northern natives is being won.

Much credit for the downward trend appearent in this summer's x-ray survey of the Eskimos goes to a system of developing film on the spot, then sending stricken natives out immediately to sanatoria for treatment. This was inaugurated last year.

Dr. I. F. Kennedy, who headed the health department team aboard the northern patrol ship CD. Howe during the last half of its three-month trip, said some 2,000 Eskimos were examined on the 8,000-mile journey.

He had not studied their medical records in detail yet, but it was apparent the incidence of TB had declined to something under five per cent. Last year about 2,-000 Eskimos were examined and showed an incidence of about eight per cent.

WILLINGLY TREATED

He said the inroad into the number of TB cases among the Eskimos apparently is caused by the fact that those with the disease now are removed at once.

Also, Eskimos were more willing for treatment in hospitals in southern Canada this year compared to almost 200 last year, Dr. Kennedy said.

When an Eskimo was found to be suffering from TB or, infrequently, some other ailment that could not be treated on the scene, it was the doctor's job to persuade the patient to accept treatment.

Dr. Kennedy said three planeloads of Eskimos went south last year for such treatment were flown back this summer. The fact they had already returned had become known in many areas and had considerably made it easier for the Eskimos to accept the necessity of leaving their homes and families.

"They are sensible people," he said. "Once they understood the need for outside treatment, they accepted the fact and often made arrangements to leave within 15 or 20 minutes."

GENERAL CHECK

Dr. Kennedy noted that while Eskimos seem more prone to get TB than southerners, they at the most never turn up with cancer or heart disease. At each of the camps and villages he visited this summer, he had found the Eskimos generally healthy and well-fed.

The doctors examined the Eskimos for other ailments as well as TB. Dr. Kennedy said that everyone was inoculated for immunization against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, smallpox and polio. They were given second shots of polio vaccine, having got the first last summer.

If their teeth needed filling or pulling, it was done on the spot. And if might be noon or midnight. Dr. Kennedy said that with the season so short, the examinations were carried out whenever the ship reached an Eskimo settlement.

BIRTH ON POLE

CARLETON PLACE (CP) — A cat scaled one of the tallest telephone poles in this Ontario valley town and there gave birth to three kittens. The cat, which belongs to their deaths from the 47-foot pole. The three kittens and mother were taken down by public utilities commission men who went to the scene with an extension ladder.

This is not so much a problem in the far north, where it is daylight all summer. But in southern sections, except for moonlit nights there were difficulties. At Fort Chimo, in southern Quebec on Ungava Bay, for example, the tide is the highest in the world, rising 60 feet from its lowest point, Dr. Kennedy said.

ARCTIC BEACHES

There were times when the tide came in before examinations could be completed and the party had to spend the rest of the night shivering on shore. On other occasions, when it was not possible to have the Eskimos gathered together beforehand, Dr. Kennedy and the interpreter—Elijah Mikatrik from Moose Factory on Hudson Bay—were flown over the area in a helicopter from the C. D. Howe.

"Then we would send the Eskimos we found back to the ship by helicopter," he said. It was quite an experience at times, looking for Eskimos in the northern wastes by moonlight. It was even worse on nights when the moon didn't shine.

Dr. Kennedy, a native of Cumberland, Ont., said whenever tides and shore conditions allowed it, the Eskimos were taken aboard the C. D. Howe for examination there. Otherwise, the medical personnel went ashore in barges with the necessary equipment, including facilities to develop the TB x-rays on the spot.

There were three doctors, a dentist, an x-ray technician, an Eskimo girl acting aide and the Eskimo Bay interpreter in the party throughout the trip, although medical personnel changed every month or so.

Dr. B. Sinclair of Halifax stayed on the whole trip. So did Dr. Harry Hamilton of Bradford, Ont., a dentist at Lady Willingdon Indian Hospital in Brandon, Man., and an x-ray technician, Fred Woodhouse, from the same hospital.

Three radiologists serving at various times were Drs. Harry Hamilton; R. Lynn, Saskatoon, and C. J. Dougherty, Sudbury, Ont.

BRIGHT LANDMARK

Smaller Canadian Cities Keep Pace With Big Ones in Growth

OTTAWA (CP)—Some of Canada's smaller cities are keeping pace with the big centres—and at times outstripping them—in growth—in the country's steady population rise.

Galt, for instance, gained 23 per cent in the five years up to last June 1, rising to 23,615 partly on the strength of an increase in area.

That was the picture drawn today by the bureau of statistics in a further interim report on its census taken last spring—the first national count ever taken on a five-year basis, the last nearly the census was made every 10 years.

Today's report was only a partial list of Canada's communities. The final tabulation is expected to show the country's population at or near the 16,000,000 mark, compared with 14,009,000 at the last census.

Today's findings showed that while big cities might add their tens of thousands of people, some of the smaller centres proportionately were doing as well or even better.

Their rates of growth surpassed those of some big cities hemmed in by suburbs. In the same period Montreal expanded 6.5 per cent; Vancouver five per cent, Winnipeg 8.5 per cent and Hamilton 10.7 per cent while Toronto city shrank two per cent, although their suburban areas were among the fastest-growing parts of the country.

About 450 cities, towns and villages were in the bureau's list today. More than half of them showed population increases.

But the situation was different for another 600 municipal districts, township, improvement districts and the like in the country, more than half had population declines.

Among Ontario cities in the report, Oshawa rose 20.7 per cent to 50,136 from 41,545 and Fort Arthur increased 16.4 per cent to 37,582 from 31,161. Lesser gains were made by Belleville, up 4.6 per cent to 20,403 from 19,519, and by St. Catharines, up 3.8 per cent to 39,415 from 37,966.

Here are some other figures for Ontario, with the 1951 census count in brackets:

Fort Frances 8,216 (8,038); Port Erie 24,857 (7,575); Kenora 10,153 (6,695); Lindsay 10,035 (9,603); Midland 8,037 (7,200); Newmarket 7,258 (5,350); Orillia 14,107 (12,-116); Port Colborne 13,877 (8,275); Preston 8,350 (7,619); Smiths Falls 8,907 (8,441); Trenton 11,349 (10,-085).

FRANKFORD

Lions Club Holds Supper Meeting

FRANKFORD.—The Frankford Lion club held its supper meeting in the community hall, and visitors for the evening were, Paul Jones, Charles Barker and W. Graham Jr., of the Trenton Lions club.

The meeting opened on a musical note, with Lion Art. Wynn leading a sing-song and Lion E. J. Madill at the piano.

The Lions all enjoyed a bountious meal of turkey, served by Lionel Wilbur Hare.

Following supper, business for the evening began with the minutes of the previous meeting read by secretary Boyd Williamson; committee reports for the night started with the canvass for the blind, and chairman H. J. Madill reported that over $100 had been received. Chairman for Ladies' Night, Lion Art Sills and his committee, Lions George Halsall, and Clint Cooper, report plans are near completion and a good time for all is predicted. Ladies' night will be held on December 5, in Lions, and at that time a draw will be made for $1,000 in cash: 1st prize $700; four urizes of $50 and four prizes of $35.

COMMITTEE FORMED

A committee for renovating the kitchen in the community hall was formed, with Lions Clinton Cooney, George Halsall and Ray Morton to serve.

The finance committee of the arena was directed to investigate the possibility of renting the Building.

The club voted to have the Legion ladies cater to the Lions' supper meetings for the season.

The Lions decided that they could not hold a Hallowe'en party for the children this year, due to other obligations.

Lion president, Arnold Sitckle, was in North Bay, last month, presiding over the annual convention of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Automotive Fleet Associations', of which he is president. Lion Arnold is also national president of the Canadian Postmasters' Association, a body of over 8,000 postmasters and assistants, across the Dominion of Canada. A busy man indeed.

Lion Jim Johns, District Governor of A3 and his organization, which includes Deputy District Governor Region 10 H. D. Goddard, Bowmanville; Deputy District Governor Region 11 R. Spencer, Brighton; Zone chairman Region 11, Zone 10, Ruhn Lambert, Oshawa; Zone chairman, Region 11, Zone 10 N. L. Obee, Norwood; Zone chairman, Region 11, Zone 11 W. R. Whitley, Trenton; Zone chairman, Region 11, Zone 11 E. A. Thompson, Kingston; all have 34 clubs in their district, and it extends from Ajax on the west to Brockville on the east, and to Algonquin Park in the north.

Lion Jim has visited Maynooth, Westport, Port Perry, Brockville, Coboconk, Whitney and he attended Kingston Lions 20th anniversary; at which Past International President, Walter Fisher of St. Catharines, was guest speaker. He also attended the Bancroft "Ladies' Charter Night", this being the 11th year. Guest speaker at this meeting was International Councillor W. H. Martin, who was also presented with a Past District Governors' ring for his outstanding work and the credit he had brought to the Bancroft club.

At the end of the evening, District Governor Jim Johns presented Lion George Reith with his scroll of membership.

The next supper meeting will be held on October 18th.

West Huntingdon

(W.M.S.)

FIRE BURNS COTTON

GAINESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Fire roared through two warehouses Tuesday, destroying 7,500 bales of government-owned cotton worth an estimated $1,125,000. The blaze for the time threatened a wide area of the city, including a gasoline storage area. Firemen said it was completely under control before daybreak today, but that the cotton probably will smoulder for days.

DESERONTO

DESERONTO

Firemen's Ball Well Attended

DESERONTO. — An extremely large crowd was in attendance last Friday night to help celebrate the annual firemen's ball. The hall had been tastefully decorated by the members of the local volunteer fire department, which contributed considerably to the feeling of good fellowship which prevailed throughout the evening.

Balloons, bats, horns and blowouts distributed by the firemen added much to the hilarity.

The attendance prize of $50 was won by Francis Miles of Napanee, and the door prize, a silver tray, was won by Myrna Palmer of Ajax.

Various spot dances and a jitterbug contest were additional features of the night.

The music for the event was supplied by the "Dixie Five."

West Huntingdon

WEST HUNTINGDON — The Thanksgiving holiday brought a number of visitors to this town and all were thrilled with the beauty of the forests and trees. A number of anniversary services were held in the neighborhood churches; in the United Church the supervising minister, Rev. George Teskey of Ivanhoe, assisted Mr. Dyson with the communion service and also gave the sermon.

Mr. Bob Donnan left on Monday to enter the Pentecostal Bible school at Peterborough.

FIND BODY OF TORONTO BOY ON LAKE SHORE

The body of nine-year-old Garry Douglas Morris was found in bushes on the Lake Ontario shore a mile and a half from his Toronto home. Hundreds of police and citizens searched the area the day before his body was found and police suggest his body was placed there after the original search. (Central Press Canadian).

Catholics Freed From Obligation On 4 Holy Days

MONTREAL (CP) — Roman Catholics in two Quebec archdioceses were freed Wednesday of the obligation to abstain from work on four of six holy days. Attendance at mass still is mandatory for the six.

The changes affect Montreal and Quebec archdioceses but they are expected to be adopted throughout the province. Each archbishop or bishop may decide. It was disclosed here.

Provincial labor department officials said the changes probably will affect thousands of workers through revision in collective labor agreements. Most now in force provide for time and a half or double time on holy days.

Roman Catholics in Quebec—but not elsewhere—had been obliged previously to attend mass and abstain from work on Christmas, New Year's, the Epiphany, Ascension Thursday, All Saint's Day and the Feast of the Immiate Conception.

The regulations remain unchanged for Christmas and New Year's.

Elsewhere in Canada, a Toronto church spokesman said Wednesday, workers must attend mass on holy days but are not required to abstain from work if it is part of their regular employment.

The revisions were granted by the Vatican following application by Canadian archbishops and bishops. They were announced here by Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, and at Archbishop of Quebec City by Archbishop Maurice Roy, Primate of All Canada.

One labor leader, Roger Provost of the Quebec Federation of Labor, said he feels that holy days will remain work-free ones because attendance at mass remains an obligation.

Holy-day observance here was involved in a court case that reached the Supreme Court of Canada. A Montreal by-law ordering stores to close on holy days was declared invalid by the Supreme Court last year.

BISHOP "ACQUITTED"

BUDAPEST (AP)—The Hungarian government in a brief communique Wednesday announced that the Hungarian Supreme Court had reviewed the case of Lutheran Bishop Lajos Ordass and acquitted him. The bishop was convicted of black market currency dealings in 1948 and sentenced to two years in prison. Church leaders say now that he has been fully rehabilitated. He will be named professor of theology at the Lutheran Academy here.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop's head started to bob while he was reeding his paper after dinner, and ma said, Stay awake, William, you know that always spoils your night's sleep. Anyway, I have news for you will wake you. I have news for you that will wake you up. I passed Reeta Lemmon on the street, downtown this afternoon, she said.

Who the dooce is Reeta Lemmon' pop said, and ma said, Why, the famous character actress in the movies, of course. Everybody was terning around to stare after her. Just to think, she was in my class in school. I must of told you I went to school with Reeta Lemmon, she said.

So you must, pop said, and ma said, I could of made myself the center of public attention by stopping and talking to her, but I had too mutch consideration for her feelings. I meen she has grown so fritefully old looking she would of been sure to notice how shocked I was by the change. Really, William, I meen actually, I shulduely didn't recknoize her, ma said.

You mean you know exactly who she was without quite recknizing her, pop said, and ma said, Dont be silly, I meen I couldn't possibly of reckonized her if I hadn't been seeing her constantly in the pictures for the last 20 years. Besides, she has grown very vain. She should of been wearing glasses, but evidently she's too proud, ma said.

How did you dope that out? pop said, and ma said, Because she passed right by me as close as I'm talking to you, and she looked me strate in the face and she didn't know me. She must be as blind as a bat without glasses, the poor woman, and why should you think that's funny? ma said.

Pop just laffing without saying.

Your hands will tell tales if you don't protect them while gardening. To avoid grimy nails, dig fingers through cake of softened soap to fill in under nail tips. Stains then cannot penetrate and soap is easily washed out. Nails can become stained even when wearing gloves. Be sure, too, to apply lotion or cream before putting on gloves.

WHITBY DISTRICT

Mission Band Elects Officers

WHITBY DISTRICT — The Sunbeam Mission Band convened at Quinte View school Friday afternoon. The election of officers was held with the new officers being installed by the leader, Mrs. Leonard Young. The officers for 1956-57 are: president-Larry Bilham; secretary Mary Miller; treasurer, Vicky Glydon; and program convener, Joanna Gainforth.

Larry Bilham now presided over the meeting, opening with a Bible scripture by Larry Bilham, Joanna Gainforth, Carol Linn, Vicky Glydon, Bobby Caves, Carol Goosen, Lorne Mallory, Peggy Ackerman and Cathy Dale.

A worship service was conducted by Vicky Glydon, Joanna Gainforth, Cindy Jones, Debbie Glydon, Bobby Caves and Larry Bilham. All members joined in singing, "Can a Little Child Like Me," and repeating a prayer of sharing with others.

The offering was taken by the treasurer, Vicky Glydon, and dedicated by the leader. All joined in singing, "When He Cometh" and the worship service was closed with prayer by the leader.

Lorne Mallory read, "My Teacher." It was decided to ask the mothers to attend the thankoffering meeting Friday, October 26. The offering this year is to help primary schools and the work of the church in Korea.

After a short quiz on the previous chapter, Mrs. Young gave the story of "The trip across the city." from "The Boy With The Busy Walk."

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Mr. Roy Harry spent Wednesday with his son, Vernon, at Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Terry, Mrs. F. Ketchesson, and Mr. Twiddy attended Johnstown anniversary Sunday morning and had dinner with Mrs. G. C. Stickle and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle.

Mrs. Arnold Harry is home from Trenton Memorial Hospital where he had an appendectomy.

Johnstown Church held a successful fall anniversary Sunday, with the Rev. Mr. Beach of Belaway as guest speaker at 11 a.m. The church was beautifully decorated with fall flowers. Quiet music was played by the organist, Mrs. Glenn Stickle. The choir rendered singing "Holy, Holy, Holy". Psalm 705 was read and the choir rendered "Jesus Is Real to Me."

The lesson was found in chapter 2 of Jeremiah. The choir sang "Take Jesus with You", with the solo part taken by Miss Marion Bush.

The Rev. Beach took as his topic "Building a Future". He said "One reason the Christian religion is the best there is, is because there is a future to it. If you read your Bible you had better read it so as to apply it or there is no use reading it at all." The Rev. Beach mentioned that he wasn't so sure that the faith of Christians today would have stood up in Jeremiah's day. When people get angry they try to take it out on someone else and so it was with the king at that time. Jeremiah was put in prison because he had prophesied that Babylon would fall and that he would one day live in peace in his land. Some people, after having such a thing happen to them, would say "O what's the use!" but not Jeremiah. He was so sure of what the Lord had told him that he bought a lot while still in prison with armies standing all around it. Kagawa lived in a hut in Japan to be able to help the poor people of his land and suffered many hardships, one of being disinherited. "Where there is no vision the people perish".

People get out of patience so easily when things go against them but they should go forward. Some think material things matter so much in this life, but a few bombs could destroy those in a few minutes. Jesus Christ should be the foundation of our Christians day. People are rich in this country if they but know it. The things each person has been dreaming about are not impossible, so thank God for the dream.

The service at 7.30 p.m. was taken by the Rev. G. A. Puttenham with the Rev. Mr. Bryce, the English church padre of 8 R. D. being guest speaker. The Scripture reading was found in chapter 13 of St. John. A duet was sung by Miss Marion Bush and Miss Gail Lohnes, "Listen, He Calleth Thee". The choir presented the anthem, "Who is the King of Glory"? The Rev. Bryce's topic was "And the disciples were first called Christians in Antioch". He said: "There was always a time when children had a case of hero worship, even the grownups are prone to it. In those days the name 'Christian' was a word of derision, but the disciples loved their Lord so much, they bore the humiliation and some of them lost their lives by following Christ. The Christian is one who has accepted Christ as his counselor and personal Savior. We all make mistakes but the invisible companionship of Jesus goes along with the Christian wherever he may be. The power of the invisible Christ is as strong today as it ever was if we only avail ourselves of His companionship. Do more parents would give themselves to their boys and girls, there would be less juvenile delinquency."

When the Rev. G. A. Puttenham asked the Rev. Mr. Bryce to take this service, the latter said "What will your congregation say when they see a Church of England minister coming in to talk to them?" The former replied, "The Church of England's sins are the same as the United Church's sins." The Rev. Mr. Bryce said, "We should do this more often. It would draw the churches closer together."

Casey Genius in Clown Garb At Head of Yankee Circus

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP) — Genius in the garb of a clown—that's Casey Stengel.

The 1956 world series produced a plethora of heroes, but one stood out above the rest — the grey-haired old codger with the crooked grin and the sharp-hammer baseball brain.

The baseball world hails catcher Yogi Berra, who blasted three home runs and overtook the great Lou Gehrig as the world series runs-batted-in leader of all time. Gehrig had nine; Yogi has 10.

Fans salute Don Larsen, who pitched the first perfect game in the classic, and his mound mates, Bullet Bob Turley and Johnny Kucks, who helped limit the free-rattling Dodgers to seven hits and a single run in the last 26 innings.

But Casey lost winks—and keeps on winning championships.

MARKED SIXTH

When Yogi blended two home run blasts with Kucks' superb three-hit pitching for a 9-0 victory in the seventh and final game Wednesday, it marked the sixth championship for the doubletalk master from Glendale, Calif.

When the series opened, the smart men said the Yankees didn't have the pitching to match that of the Dodgers and Casey would have to bat around .300.

When the Yankees' top ace, Whitey Ford, was shelled in the first game and seven of Casey's moundsmen paraded to the hill in the 13-8 rout in the second game, the questions were bandied:

"How did the Yanks ever win a pennant with a putrid pitching staff like this? Who can Casey pitch next?"

Casey refused to be shaken. He won at Yankee Stadium with Ford, Larsen and Bob Sturdivant to go up 3-2 in the series.

Stengel was criticized for starting the 46-year-old Enos Slaughter in leftfield, but Slaughter's hitting was one of the features of the opening games.

DEFIES PERCENTAGES

In the final game Wednesday Stengel, as often is his wont, defied percentagers, benched leftfield hitting Joe Collins and Slaughter and put in righthand hitters Bill Skowron at first and Elston Howard in leftfield against the righthand pitching Don Newcombe.

"Has Casey popped his lid?" someone asked disbelievingly.

Skowron hit a bases-loaded home run and Howard poled a homer and double to give an odor of rare perfume to Stengel's weird strategy.

Stengel, the millionaire, remains the clown prince of the champion Yankees but coaches and players alike jump when he barks. He's the master.

He has three of the finest and highest-paid coaches in baseball in Frank Crosetti, Jim Turner and Bill Dickey. Jim Turner and Frank Crosetti. But to them Casey is boss. His word is final. And his hunches—he plays hunches rather than percentages — seldom go awry.

Stengel still likes to come to his dugout bench early and hold court for newspaper men, who edge as close as possible lest they miss a gem of his homespun philosophy. Some of Casey's sayings are pointed. Some are controversial. Some are stupid.

The Case answers them all with understanding and without rancor.

"You have a right to ask that, son," he may say to an eager young reporter whose question has drawn laughs from the older hands.

Now what for baseball's crease-fac. I miracle man?

"Guess I'll go home and hide out a while—I was gone to Japan and Europe most of last winter, he said. "I'd like to take it easy."

And how about trying for championship No. 7 in 1957?

"Well," said the Case, "I ain't worrying about my job."

RIDERS AFTER NOBBY

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Rider football club officials Wednesday talked with quarterback Nobby Wirkowski, placed on waivers by Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four.

Varsity Blues Change Lineup

TORONTO (CP) — Both Larry Zeyst and Harry Wilson will be running Toronto University Blues when they meet McGill Redmen in Montreal next Saturday, but coach Dalt White can't decide which to start.

White has been forced to juggle his lineup by an injury to regular quarterback Ed Skrzypek in the Senior Intercollegiate football opener with Queen's University Golden Gaels last Saturday. Zeyst took over in the last half in the 7-7 tie game.

"Zeyst looked very good running the team against Queen's," White said Wednesday night, "and I don't think there's much to choose between him and Skrzypek." But he is high on Wilson too.

"After all, he was good enough to be first-string the last couple of years," White said. Wilson missed Saturday's game with an injured shoulder.

Varsity will also be missing first-stringers Nick Bruchovsky and Larry Stacey. Guard Bruchovsky is out with torn knee ligaments while end Stacey has a sprained ankle. Half Peter Mair is still bothered with a bad ankle and will not dress.

YANKEE BATTERS HAVE THEIR DAY

For the second time in the final game of the World Series, New York Yankee catcher Yogi Berra crosses the plate after hitting home runs to be greeted by batter Bill Skowron and the Yankee bat boy. (Central Press Canadian).

Mustangs Meet Queen's Saturday

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — After three wins and no losses to date, head coach Johnny Metras of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs said Wednesday he will stick with sophomore Art Turner as his No. 1 quarterback when Western invades Queen's at Kingston Saturday in the Intercollegiate football opener there.

Turner, who comes from Toronto, took over from John Girvin near the end of the 1955 campaign when the latter became ill. This season he has started all three Western games, with Bruce Ford, Frank Cosentino and Bill Gray also taking a crack at the spot. Gray turned in his uniform a week ago, for reasons not announced.

Metras said Cosentino, highly-regarded signal-caller from Hamilton Cathedral, was being dropped to the Intermediate Colts for further seasoning, but Ford will be dressed for the Queen's game, or the Queen's tussle, halfback Wally Delahy will be dropped in favor of a fifth guard. Clark Pulford, other guards will be Remo Copat, Ron Irwin, Bruce Ward and Pete Campbell.

Metras hopes the boys will be "up" for the Saturday contest after losing a two last year to Queen's, her losing a two last year to Queen's, which took the college title. So far Western has beaten the University of British Columbia and Ontario Agricultural College in exhibitions, and upset favored McGill 6-3 last Saturday in the home opener.

OBITUARY

DIED:—In Ebbet's Field, Brooklyn, N.Y., after a brief illness, Dodger Hopes, ageless. Hopes succumbed while in apparent good health, following a savage assault at the hands of the fiend, the "Furriery" from across the East River. The corpse was laid away in the Gowanus Mausoleum until spring when it will be taken to Vero Beach, Florida, for revival. The Chief Berra was a Yogi, accompanied by eight other "moulderers" from the Bronx.

It is all over. The world, and Brooklyn, can now settle down to the normal occupations of life. But the cracker-barrel confabs and arguments will last long into the winter for the world series just ended has furnished more argumentative material than any in history.

It had its heroes and its goats. Its champs and its chumps. It's comedy—and tragedy.

There will be many questions asked and answered. And a lot will die unanswered. Many of the pre-season "experts" will retire into their dens and lairs with countenances of shiftish hue. A lot of their predictions backfired and boomeranged. Some were cock-eyed.

An early here, who later emerged a semi-goat, merely through circumstances, was the aging Barber of Niagara Falls, Sal Maglie. The sensational Sal buried the pesky Yankees to the dust in the opener after being the victim of a Mantle two-run homer.

Then came the dream game. Don Larsen, who had been a Dodger victim in a previous battle, emerged with a world record, the perfect game. It was the seventh in baseball history recorded the first to go down in world series archives.

Sinister Sal, the blue-jawed first game hero, came up with another sterling mound effort, a five-hitter which embraced Mantle's game-winning two-run circuit smash. But his effort went prematurely unnoticed in the glamor and fierce spotlight of Larsen's pitching wizardry.

The Dodger back-room clan predicted the Yankee pitching would not stand up against their heavy artillery. And for the first two games it looked as though they were right. The Silver Fox of Yankeedom, Ole Case Stengel shifted and shuffled his mound corps. He had faith in the veterans and hope in the youngsters.' Neither let him down after the first two setbacks in Ebbet's Field.

Now comes the argumentative question. What happened next? Did the Yankee hitting corps suddenly find itself, or did the Brooklyn sluggers go into a slump?

The records state that the Yankees outhit the Dodgers 56 to 42 over the seven-game stretch. The Dodgers blasted 29 of their 42 in the first three games, the Yankees doled out them to 13 clouts during the next four battles. Meanwhile the Yankee bats hit fairly consistently, the game record being 9-12-8-7-5-7 and 10. It was evident that the Brooklyn blockbusters were not the potent clubs in the last two games in their Ebbet's Field backyard that blasted the Yankee hurlers for 21 smashes in the opening pair of tilts.

There was tragedy, too. Perhaps the most tragic figure of the series was the Dodger ace, Don Newcombe, a 27-7 hurler during the season, but who lost his pitching magic in the series. Newk has yet to win a world series game. Sentimental fans may have found a lump in their throats as Newk walked slowly, head bowed, from the mound in the early innings of yesterday's game. Here was heartbreak pictured dramatically in the slow-sizzling tail figure.

Individual brilliancy was evenly shared by both clubs. The fielding of Duke Snider and Mickey Mantle, two of the game's two home-run sluggers, was sensational at times. Snyder, perhaps, was a disappointment at the plate. He failed in the clutches not a few times while his rival the Mick shone in this department.

All-in-all the series had more than its share of thrills. It extended to the seven-game limit with the expected tremendous seventh tilt climax proving somewhat disappointing especially to the Brooklyn faithful.

But the Yankees are the new world champions, a title not strange to them, nor to their loquacious manager, Ole Case. It was the seventh world title in eight seasons for the Silver Fox, a feat not likely to be emulated by any managerial brains for years to come.

However, the Brooks did not exactly let this department down. After all they accumulated enough runs over the seven game stretch to bring the office pool to the much-depleted wallet of this reporter. A fair return on our Brooklyn-New York investment of a few days ago.

HOCKEY

Friday night the McFarlands senior hockey club make their competitive debut here against the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, last year's Allan Cup champions and Canada's representatives in the world hockey tournament. The Dutchies carry pretty much the same club as that which won last year's honors and it should be highly interesting to see how this city's new entry stacks up against such opposition. Coach Bep Guidolin is drilling his charges hard for their initial encounter in nightly practices and it is hoped a large crowd of the faithful will be out to see the boys make their Belleville debut. Game time nine o'clock.

Dutchies Blank London Lords

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Celeri and Billy Graham, the most potent scoring combination in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union series, appear certain to give Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen the league championship this year.

The two combined for eight points Wednesday night as the Dutchmen remained in first place with a 14-0 victory over fourth-place London Lords before 6,000 fans.

Quarterback Celeri passed to halfback Graham for the first touchdown, kicked a single in the third quarter and set up Wally Jenkins' touchdown in the fourth with a 19-yard run. Graham's attempt to convert his own score was nullified by a holding penalty, but he succeeded on Jenkins'.

Lords threatened only in the first quarter when quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs tried a field goal from the 24-yard line.

Berra, Kucks Pace Champions In 9-0 Blank of 'Bums'; End of Road for Old Pros

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—At least it came quick, clean and decisive, like a pile - driver crashing through an old beaten wall, so that when the end finally came most of the pain had worn off.

That's the best that can be said for Brooklyn today after its crushing 9-0 defeat by the new world champion New York Yankees in the seventh and final game of the 1956 world series.

The worst that can be said about the Dodgers' biggest humiliation in 44 series games with the Yankees is that it gave further evidence of a possible change in Brooklyn personnel next year.

In sharp contrast, the Yankees demonstrated in the series that they will be stronger than ever—a frightful thought for the rest of the American League. The spine-tingling work of such young pitchers as Johnny Kucks, Tom Sturdivant, Bob Turley, Don Larsen and Whitey Ford, practically assures the Yankees of a powerful pitching staff to go along with the team's solid hitting and tight defence. Pitching is the one chink in the Yankees' mighty armor this year.

FIVE COMPLETE GAMES

Young Kucks' brilliant three-hit shutout Wednesday climaxed a astounding skein of pitching performances by Yankee hurlers in one of the most dramatic four-bouts in series history.

Unable to turn in four consecutive complete games at any time during the regular season, the Yankees came through with five completions by five different pitchers.

In the last three games, Yankee pitching formed the National League team's only chance to earn hits and one run. Among them was Larsen's historic perfect performance in game No. 5. It's something the Dodgers never will be able to forget, remind them of their own league.

The merciless rout of the Dodgers, after their all-out struggle against the Yankees following on the heels of a nerve-wracking pennant fight with Milwaukee Braves and Cincinnati Redlegs, might have marked the end of the road for some of Brooklyn's "old men." This once powerhouse aerial way was held to a .195 batting mark in the seven games.

E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, the club's general manager, hinted so only hours after the series had become a memory.

"You can bet some changes will be made," he said, "but we're not going to become panicky. We have a whole winter to think things out. Fortunately, we've got a few crops of promising youngsters coming up, some of whom appear ready to step into fast company."

Bavasi didn't single out any individuals but there was no doubt he was referring to such oldsters as Pee Wee Reese, Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella, Carl Furillo, Sal Maglie and Gil Hodges. The latter, at 32, is the youngest of the sextet.

Only Snider, with two singles and Furillo, with one, were able to fathom the curves, slider and fast balls hurled at the Dodgers by the 23-year-old Kucks. In the meantime, Don Newcombe and Roger Craig, two of the five Dodger hurlers, were pulverized by a ferocious Yankee attack that included four home runs, two by Yogi Berra, another by Elston Howard and a final bludgeoning grand slammer by Bill Skowron.

Easily the most frustrated of all the Dodgers must be Newcombe, the big righthander who just can't seem to win "the big ones." For the second time in the series, the Dodgers' 27-game winner, a lower of strength all season, was blasted from the hill with an attack as savage as it was sudden.

Newcombe lasted a bit longer than he did in the second game of the series when he was driven from the mound with a barrage of base hits that gave the Yankees a 6-0 lead in less than two innings.

This time big Don lasted three innings. Until he was lifted with nobody out in the fourth, Newk had been clubbed for five runs on as many hits. Four of them came as a result of Berra's pair of two-run homers.

Newcombe, who had lost three other decisions in as many starts in previous world series, finally was sent to the showers after throwing a home run ball to Howard in the fourth. Skowron's base-clearing wallop came off Craig in the seventh after the tall right-hander had filled the bases with two bases on balls and a single to Billy Martin.

RECORD FOR YOGI

Berra's four runs batted in gave the sturdy receiver a total of 19 RBIs for the series, breaking the record of nine set by Lou Gehrig, another Yankee powerhouse, in 1928. His nine series homers ranks Yogi fourth among the all time leaders. Only Babe Ruth, with 15, and Gehrig and Snider, with 10, hit more.

If it hadn't been for Larsen's unprecedented no-hit masterpiece Monday, Kucks would have been the pitching hero of the series. The lean, lanky side - armer stopped the Dodger hitters cold. He struck out only one but had the Brooks beating the ball weakly into the dirt all afternoon. Only two balls, both caught by Howard in left field, reached the outfield besides the three singles.

The surprising result is that Kucks, an 18-game winner during the regular season, had sent service only in relief prior to Wednesday.

Manager Casey Stengel, hoarse but happy after the victory, paid tribute to Kucks' performance and added praise to the rest of the staff.

"The young fellows — Kucks, Sturdivant, Larsen and Turley—have come of age," he said. "I knew they'd have to do the job if we were to win and I thought they would. They couldn't pitch in Ebbet's park (Ebbets Field) last year and I got beat. It was different this year."

Stengel had let himself in for possible second-guessing, shaking up his lineup for the final game. He benched first baseman Joe Collins and left fielder Enos Slaughter, a pair of lefthanded hitters, for righthanders Skowron and Howard against the right-handed Newcombe. That's a violation of all known rules of percentages. But, as has happened so many times for Casey before, the replacements came through handsomely.

It was the Yankees' 17th championship in 22 attempts and their sixth over Brooklyn in seven series.

Nobody Believes Him

This Guy Meeker Is Serious Says Leafs Will Finish 2nd

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Now they'll be many guffaws, but coach Howie Meeker persists in his suggestion Toronto Maple Leafs could finish second in the National Hockey League race this season.

Few experts in the big-league circuit give Leafs much of a chance of doing anything, let alone pushing aside such clubs as Detroit Red Wings or New York Rangers for second spot.

Leafs' coach bases their predictions on the club's unimpressive showing in exhibition games. Leafs won four and tied twice in six engagements. Their last victory was a 6-0 decision over Buffalo Bisons of the American League. Still they showed little class.

However, the 31 - year - old Meeker figures young legs and enthusiasm will make up for what Leafs lack in experience. He declares:

"Sure, we're going to have to get some more toughness out there on the ice, but I think we'll be all right.

"There'll be some rough spots early in the season but young legs and enthusiasm—which we have—are a terrific substitute for experience. They can make for some tremendously exciting games."

Meeker, freshman Leaf pilot, and other experts have just about conceded that Montreal Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, will capture first place again this season. But Howie feels second spot is wide open.

He will see Leafs—one of the youngest clubs in league history—open their home campaign against the defending champs Oct. 13 in Toronto. In their only other game, Chicago Black Hawks meet the Wings at Detroit.

Right now the Wings and Rangers are rated as top contenders for second spot. They finished 2-3 last season. Rangers appear to have improved since then.

Leafs finished fourth last year, but they have several rookies who could produce surprises.

Dreariest among the youngsters is goaltender Ed Chadwick, international in five games with Leafs last year. He replaced Harry Lumley as netminder. Other newcomers include defencemen Bobby Baun and Al McNeil, both up from Toronto Marlboros, junior - Memorial Cup champions last season.

Bruins, fifth in the 1955-56 season, are running into a rash of injuries. should improve this term. Says general manager Hap Emms:

"I think we're a better hockey club than we were at this time last season. I thought we looked pretty good but those injuries killed us. We're in better shape now and I don't think we'll have to worry about getting hurt."

Newk Was Mad, Left Park Before Game End

By ED WILKS

BROOKLYN (AP) — The world series is over and lost, but right-hander Don Newcombe had another tough judgment facing him on the plane that carried the beaten Brooklyn Dodgers on the first leg of their trip to Japan.

Newcombe, worried by personal troubles as well as his series "flops," said "nuts to the trip to Japan" as he left Ebbets Field Wednesday after being shelled by New York Yankees. The end, and Newk's fourth world series defeat without a victory since 1949, had come in the fourth inning and he had dressed hurriedly, leaving the park before the game was over.

Buzzie Bavasi, Brooklyn vice-president, snapped "There'll be trouble if he don't" when told of Newcombe's comment.

Newk has signed a contract like the other players and it he doesn't show up there'll be a matter for the commissioner (Ford Frick) to handle."

NEWCOMBE UPSET

Newcombe's early departure, a repeat of his action after being knocked out in the fifth inning also rilled Bavasi, in angry tones he reported when two Dodger aides telling them after they informed him of the turn of events. "He's supposed to be here."

Newcombe left the park, along with a wife and two children, and went to his parents' home. Then, alone, he had gone to his Colonia, N.J., home for a few minutes, only to leave again. Through the night his whereabouts remained unknown.

"I don't know where he went," his wife, Freddie said. "He said he was going to be out all night. He left the car in case I needed it."

Mrs. Newcombe said she never had "seen Don in this state of mind in the 11 years we've been married. He's been in many moods, but never like this. He just wasn't himself."

OTHER TROUBLES

It isn't only his series failure which has bothered the Dodger ace—a title he earned by leading the majors with 27 victories in the regular season. There are personal worries, too.

"I know Don," said his wife. "It isn't just the ball game. It's other things, personal things. The adoption papers are coming through now on our son."

The Newcombes, who mark their 11th wedding anniversary this Saturday, have two children, Jennifer, adopted, The boy is Gregory Joel, 18 months. Their little girl is Evil Yolanda, 6 months.

"Don has been terribly worried. He came home from the final game and said 'Honey, I brought along a sleeping pill. I've just got to get some sleep tonight.'

"He took the pill, but he didn't sleep a bit."

Added to the troubles worrying Newk, the 30-year-old Newcombe is a pending court action brought by a parking lot attendant, who alleges Newcombe punched him last Friday. The attendant, against whom Newcombe is considering a defamation of character suit, reportedly made a reference to Newk's early departure from the game. Bavasi said a club attorney would seek postponement of the case today.

Rough Riders Switch Players

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders Wednesday night released guard Pat Canasmenia and re-called tackle Milt Graham, on the injured list for the last four weeks, for their Big Four football game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday.

The switch means that import Frank Swoboda will return to his old guard position on the Riders line. Canasmenia, import from Southern California who was released early in the season, was recalled when Graham suffered an elbow injury in a game against Montreal Alouettes.

Sweeney, from Xavier University, filled in at tackle for Graham Saturday and a lineman end with Colgate University.

Meanwhile, quarterback Hal Ledyard, who suffered a twisted ankle at Montreal Monday, was back on the practice field Wednesday night, limping a bit. He is expected to be ready for Saturday's game in Hamilton.

Coach Frank Clair said he has not abandoned all hopes of acquiring end Bernie Flowers, who played with Riders three seasons ago. Flowers was cut by Baltimore Orioles Wednesday.

JOCKEY BARRED

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state racing commission Wednesday barred jockey William T. Jewell, II, of Windsor, Ont., from all tracks for two years.

Jewell pleaded guilty at a hearing before the commission to a charge of possessing two batteries which could affect the speed of action of race horses.

In The Dressing Rooms

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP) — Crusty Casey Stengel took his sixth world series championship in stride Wednesday, praising Don Bess and pitcher Johnny Kucks, and hinted with a sly wink he'd be back to try No. 7 next year.

Joe McCarthy, who also was with the Yankees, is the only manager to win seven world baseball championships.

"Well, as you fellows know, my contract was for two years and it ends this year," the grizzled, gray-haired skipper said in the hubbub of the Yankees' victorious dressing room.

"I'm not talking about next year yet, but I'll let you in on a secret— I'm not worried about where I'll be next spring."

ALMOST DEFINITE

Co-owners Del Webb and Dan Topping and general manager George Weiss were among the first to elbow their way through the throng of reporters and photographers to shake Casey's hand.

"We haven't talked about it yet, but I feel sure Casey will be back in 1957," said Webb.

"The job is his as long as he wants it," added Topping. "I feel sure Casey will be back."

Stengel, independently wealthy with more at stake than baseball players, has indicated several times he may retire from baseball to meet his wife's request.

The centres of attention in the Yankee quarters, however, were Bess, a rampant, were Berra, the shrewd little catcher who called the two-run homer that put the 9-0 victory over Brooklyn on early ice, and Kucks, the 23-year-old right-hander, who pitched a magnificent three-hit shutout.

Dodgers power was so throttled in the final three games that the defeated world champs were able to get only seven hits and one run.

Berra said he hit his home run for his mother, Mrs. Pauline Berra, in a St. Louis hospital after having a leg removed.

"I talked to mom Monday night," the Yankee catcher said. "She asked me to hit a home run yesterday. I tried my darndest but I couldn't do it. So I got two today."

Somebody asked if Yogi knew that these home runs gave him the record of runs batted in by a single series—a total of 10, beating the nine-run mark set in 1928 by Lou Gehrig, also of the Yankees.

"Gosh, is that right?" Yogi exclaimed. "Naw, I didn't know it. Why, I'm right proud of that."

Kucks, a boyish 23-year-old, said he fooled the Dodgers with a fast ball that sank and a curve.

"After we got that 4-0 lead on Yogi's two home runs I was able to relax a little, but I didn't want to take any chances. Casey and pitching coach (Jim Turner (Yankee coach) kept telling me to keep the ball low. I did."

CLEAN WINNERS

The Yankees, old hands at this business, took their victory and ensuing celebration and without any sophomoric yelling and shouting "They run right into the dressing room single file, as serious-faced as if they had been beaten.

Only Billy Martin, the peppery second-baseman, said anything.

"What's everybody so nervous about," he cracked. "The darn thing is over."

Stengel was pleased with two things more than with other—the success of his righthanded batting strategy and the comeback of his young pitchers, Don Larsen, Bob Turley and Kucks.

NEWK HAD STUFF

The Yankees all said Don Newcombe, the Dodgers' losing pitcher had good stuff, but that they had bypassed it with his fast ball.

"For some reason, Newcombe throws the kind of ball I like," said Yogi. "I hit a high fast one the first time and a low outside pitch the second time."

Kucks was happy about the manner in which he was able to end the game.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's "old pro" who broke up Tuesday's scoreless thriller in the 7th, swung at the third strike and Berra, dropping the ball, had to throw him out at first.

"It was a fast ball and it really sank," Kucks said. "That was the greatest kick I've ever had in baseball."

Quinte Seniors Defeat Picton

Quinte Seniors handed Picton High School a decisive 38-13 victory yesterday afternoon at Picton for their initial victory in the COSSA senior rugby grouping.

Belleville opened the scoring early in the game when speedy Jim Green stole the ball from Picton's quarterback and raced 45 yards for a touchdown.

Q.S.S. added to their total in the second quarter with Dick Pierce and Ross Walmsley scoring majors and George Musgrove adding one convert.

Leading 16-0 entering the third quarter, Quinte upped the margin with a rouge and a major by John McLaurin before Picton scored. Jack Purtelle raced 40 yards for the loser's initial T.D. A passing play to Lockwood gave Picton another major after a Quinte fumble.

A 25 yard pass and run play, Monday to Eric Beeby, which was converted, widened the difference. Dean Kemp and Jim Green later scored another pair of touchdowns near the game's completion for the 38-13 score.

Series Figures, High Spots

NEW YORK (AP)—Figuring the world series:

Yogi Berra wound up the series' top slugger. The Yankee catcher compiled 10 total bases in 25 times at bat for a vearig mark of .400.

Mickey Mantle was next with a .367 mark on 15 total bases in 34 trips. Gil Hodges topped the Dodgers with .222.

In the last five games, the Brooks had only one run and 18 hits and struck 148 times for an average of 1.2 runs and 4.2 hits a game and a collective batting percentage of .142.

Billy Martin of the Yanks emerged from the series with the highest lifetime batting average among the players on both clubs. In six games Martin has had 35 hits in 89 trips for .333.

Gil Hodges went hitless in his last 11 times at bat after collecting seven safeties in his first 18 trips. He finished with a .368 average, tying Snider as the Dodgers' No. 1 man.

Scenes and quotes from the dressing room after the Yankees had beaten the Dodgers Wednesday:

When the assembled writers and photographers marched into the Yankee dressing room, Casey left outside trying to fight his way in but Johnny Kucks, the pitcher of 9-0 whitewash, had to serve Infielder Tom Carroll pleading to "let me get to my locker or I'll have to go out like this." He had just come from the shower.

Casey Stengel holding court in the corner for more than a dozen scribblers, each one trying without too much success to keep track of his oratory. "So I decided that I'll more or less let Kucks pitch. It needs someone to hit a long ball And that Collins, I didn't want to bim out because he's hitting, see. That first-baseman of theirs (Jim Dodgers) how he can make those plays. " and on, and on, and on.

Jackie Robinson, the first Dodger to say a word in the winner's clubhouse, shook hands all around and had a few words for everyone.

Big Don Newcombe, the loser must feel as though he hasn't a friend in the world. When the name was announced as the starter, he was booted, and when he went to the showers, he was booed.

A record no one cares about: Lyall Smith, sports editor of the Detroit Free Press and his official scorer, caught a foul in the press box, giving him two for the series.

Hank Bauer just missed tying a record most titles at bat in a series. He officially went to the plate 32 times and the mark for a seven-game set is 33 jointly held by Bucky Harris and Edger Rice of Washington.

By twice blanking the Brooks in seven games, the Yankees hung half as many shutouts on them as National League clubs were able to do in 154 games during the season. Chuck Murray Dickson of Louis, Bob Buhl of Milwaukee, Johnny Antonelli of the Giants and Brooks Lawrence of Cincinnati were able to turn the trick.

BROOKLYN (AP)—Hitting the high spots in the Yankee-Dodger world series:

Greatest Thrill—Don Larsen's perfect no-hit, no-run, no-walk, no-error job in the fifth game.

Most Runs Batted In—Mickey Mantle's blow deep into the bleachers in right centre field at Yankee Stadium in the fourth game.

Saddest Ballplayer—Don Newcombe trudging toward the Dodger dugout after Elston Howard's home run in the fourth inning of the seventh game.

Greatest Hero Pella—Yogi Berra giving Larsen a hearing after Don's perfect game.

Greatest Fielding Play—Duke Snider's tumbling catch of Berra's soaring liner in fifth game.

Most Important Catch—Mickey Mantle's running backhand catch of Gil Hodges' drive that kept Larsen's game perfect.

Oddest Fielding Play—Andy Carey-to-Gil McDougald-to Joe Collins to Jackie Robinson's attempted tag in the Larsen game when the ball bounced off Carey's glove to McDougald's shoe rifle shot to first just nipped Robinson in the second inning.

Most Dramatic Hit — Jackie Robinson's pinch-hitting single in the 10th inning of the sixth game.

Wildest Inning—The second inning of the fourth game when the Yanks scored five to take 6-0 lead and Brooklyn came back with six to tie.

Greatest Pitching Duel — 6-0 battle between Bob Turley and Clem Labine for nine innings in fifth game, finally won by Labine 1-0 in 10th.

Strangest Strategy—Casey Stengel benching two lefthanded batters against righthanded pitcher for two righthanded batters in seventh game, Result Bill Skowron hit a grand slam homer and Elston Howard hit a homer and a double.

Shortest Stay — Tommy Byrne after throwing home run ball to Duke Snider in the second game.

Playhouse 90 Presents Second Show of Season on Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Playhouse 90, the first weekly 90-minute drama program to be televised, presents its second show of the season on the CBS-TV network this evening. If tonight's offering, Requiem for a Heavyweight, develops the promise held forth by the program's debut, Playhouse 90 is well on the way to demonstrating that 90 minutes can be much better than an hour of TV drama.

"It would be easy to adopt a highbrow view that Forbidden Area, the program's first show last week, was an implausible and over-inflated melodrama. Several usually astute critics have said that it was. But I found it first-rate, absorbing television entertainment.

Forbidden Area concerned a carefully plotted Russian sneak attack on the United States, with its initial step the grounding of Strategic Air Command bombers. The suspenseful build-up to the detection of the plot was at times harrowing. Rod Sterling's script, in maintaining suspense and pace, was as faithful a dramatization as television possibly could offer of the Pat Frank novel.

MORE CONVINCING

The significant aspect of Forbidden Area, however, is the fact that it could not have been dramatized as convincingly in 90 minutes as in the 90 minutes it received on Playhouse 90. The TV drama maintained two parallel story lines: Of the Russian spy posing as an air force enlisted man at a bomber base, and of the high-level Washington intelligence group which was supposed to spark command decisions.

Two story lines are not necessarily better than one. But before the advent of 90 minute TV drama the stories have generally been confined to one line of development—and often a truncated line at that. Ninety minutes at least means greater freedom to develop story ideas. And that is progress.

The Kibitzer

Ordinarily, many bridge fans who can stand me at all get all they want of me once a week. So, they consider their reading of my kolm to Sundays only.

For the next few months, however, they may wish they were daily subscribers as well. What is so special about my stuff as of now? The hands played in the last international championship.

Each day will appear a deal played in that great match. Each day you will read some feature that relates to the contest, including the conventions used.

Without saying more about this today, here is deal number one:

NORTH

This was team of four play; credit given for bidding honors. In room one a pair from the Swedish team played north-south; a pair from the American team played east-west. Their bidding went so:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	4 ♦
Double	Pass	4 ♥	All pass

In room two the Swedish pair sat east-west; American pair north-south. Their bidding went like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	4 ♦
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Neither side was vulnerable. Four hearts made for a score of 420 points. At four diamonds doubled the contract was defeated by three tricks, 300 for honors the loss was 400.

Thus, the Swedish team won in both rooms on the first deal in the finals that consisted of 256 deals. How many of these deals will be shown in this series depends.

You may get fed up on them.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Oct. 12, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mercury and Venus, well aspected, offer fine encouragement for research, experiments, science, armaments, new discoveries generally. Also a productive day for schools, home interests, difficult tasks.

April 21 to May 21 — (Taurus) — Stimulating rays to aid your specific talents and interests generally. Your Venus is splendid aspect; also Mercury. Don't worry about anything. Your best is all that is needed.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — You, too, have promising influences, with activities and interests pertinent to your everyday life especially sponsored. The arts, research in science, advertising advance.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — There are no hazards apparent now so don't make any. Be your conscientious, helpful and amiable self and you can have generous results for your efforts. Enjoy some relaxation, fun.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — While the day may not be wholly responsive to all your desires you are surely in for much good, perhaps some pleasant surprises.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Some things that must be done now. Do them! And without strain, rush or anxiety. And what cannot be done today, do later. So long as you do first things first.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — The sort of day in which you can successfully make fresh approaches to old matters.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Fair-to-good aspects. How you conduct yourself, and the things you choose to do will determine the success of your day. Eat sensibly.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — A middlin' sor of day sandwiched between two better-than-average ones. Do your best to improve your chances. Be agreeable, but don't compromise principles; smile.

December 23 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Among the many activities favored for advancement are economic learning, efforts through conservation and legislation, construction, masonry, plumbing, etc., and taxation work.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Double - check in all important matters. Understand them thoroughly, discern carefully, think before you answer. What of it day.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Don't depend wholly upon intuition or someone's saying so. Be sure of facts. Be a positive maker and do-er, not a negative one.

Don't is susceptible to incoherence.

You born today are endowed with independence, a sense of justice, courtesy, good reasoning, keen perception and charity toward the underprivileged. You would make a remarkably able judge, doctor, manager, children's supervisor, farmer, actor. You enjoy the luxuries of life, but do not overindulge in them, and do not dissipate your various resources. You may tend to forget those "rainy" days. You have a natural attachment to group interests. Birthdate of: Geo. W. Cable, American author.

SACRIFICE

WE BELIEVE that for a fast deal that you could get a real good buy on this two-storey brick and stucco home, close to downtown. There are four bedrooms, a living room, dining room, fireplace, a dining room, a den, kitchen, full bath and a half bath. Priced at $12,900. This has real investment potentialities. You tell us how much you would pay.

$3,900.

THIS MAY BE the best time to buy a cottage. Next year will be the move in the spring. This one is just 1 mile from the city. (Pete's Point).

COLEMAN ST.

3-STOREY SOLID BRICK. Ideal for rooming house. Only a step from Front St. The owner is moving out of town and will appointment and then make us an offer. Listed at $9,500.

$5,400.

OVER THE BAY. On the highway. A real home with 1-bedroom bungalow with a view. Lot is 200 ft. deep and the taxes will be $22.

BRIDGE ST. EAST

A REAL FINE 2-STOREY BRICK home. Built just a few years ago and complete with all the landscaping, curtains, screens, etc. You would, for sure, pay much more for this home even being new without all the extras. We simply could not build it for the cost but we would have to have your offer. It has three bedrooms, a full family-size dining room.

$6,100.

2-BEDROOM OLDER TYPE home. Close downtown. With a garage. Taxes $136. The lot is 66 by 132. It's vacant.

$13,900.

A LOVELY HOME IN THE Cannifton area. Only a few of these homes in the city should have. Three bedroom. The view from the den is superb — overlooking a valley and a lovely lake. Can we drive you out to see this home?

25-Man Crew Rescued After Freighter Sinks

CUXHAVEN, Germany (AP)—The 1,733-ton Swedish freighter Rybolm sank in the Elbe River estuary today after being in collision with the 3,621-ton French vessel Slotteville during a dense fog.

The Rybolm's crew of 25 was rescued.

The Rybolm was en route from a Canadian port to Hamburg. The French freighter was bound for Rotterdam.

Ask Resignation Of Fire Chief

LINDSAY (CP)—Council Tuesday night asked the resignation of Fire Chief Alex Wylie, accused at a public inquiry last week of drinking before going to a fire and of "dumping" on his men without reason.

Council voted 8 to 1 for the resignation after Chief Wylie said of all the firemen could spread out all the firemen could spread out all the department's pumper and he himself could only operate it at 70 per cent efficiency.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
NOTICE OF ROAD CLOSING
In the matter of the Municipal Act and in the matter of the proposed closing of part of Concession 1 in the Township of Thurlow to stop-up and close an allowance for highway.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to the Municipal Act that the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow proposes to pass a by-law to stop-up and close part of the road allowance between Lots 23 and 24 in the First Concession of the Township of Thurlow in the County of Hastings, more particularly described as follows:

ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of Thurlow in the County of Hastings and Province of Ontario, being composed of all that part of the road allowance between Lots 14 and 15 according to Registered Plan No. 21 for the Township of Thurlow lying to the Northerly boundary of Registered Plan No. 21 and to the Southerly boundary of Registered Plan No. 21 and to the Southerly boundary of Registered Plan No. 21 and to the South

Landy Quits 5,000 Metres

MELBOURNE (AP) — John Landy, who has run six of the world's ten fastest miles, pulled out of the Australian Olympic 5,000 metres tryout Wednesday and declared he might not run in the trials at all.

Landy doesn't have to worry about making the Australian Olympic team, however. He has been assured by the selectors that he will be automatically entered in the trials. His concern now is getting into shape to run in the Olympic Games here Nov. 22 to Dec. 8.

Landy has been bothered by sore tendons for several months and a few weeks ago he said he regarded the 5,000 metres trial as a sort of test of the condition of his legs for the Games.

Sidney Twp. Council

The Council of the township of Sidney met on October 1st, pursuant to adjournment on September 3rd. All members were present.

The minutes of the September meeting as read were adopted.

A large delegation waited on council members relative to different developments which are taking place in township. Each presented to council their problems.

Mr. J. Lewars of the F. A. R. McFadden Co. presented semi-annual auditor's report, which was accepted.

At 2 p.m. Court of Revision heard appeals against 1957 assessment roll.

Council members thanked Mr. Cecil Geen, Hastings County assessor for being present for Court of Revision.

South Hastings Educational Association made its annual appeal for funds, to assist the development of the educational program in Sidney township schools for which a grant was given.

Road voucher No. 10 for $2650.26, relief voucher No. 9 for $425.49 and October pay sheet were ordered paid.

Council adjourned to meet at Orange Hall, Wallbridge, on Monday, November 5th, at 1 p.m.

—J. W. Bailey, clerk.

Distress Signals Keep Alive Hopes For Lost Airmen

Think SOS Signals Come From Rubber Life Rafts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Egypt and Britain were reported unofficially today to have made conciliatory moves in a private talks here on the Suez Canal dispute. But France seemed on the point of breaking off the discussions.

The British, French and Egyptian foreign ministers held their fifth private meeting today on the canal crisis with United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, president of the UN Security Council, said that 11-nation body will hold a private session on the canal controversy tonight and perhaps a public session Saturday.

A usually well informed diplomat said that in the talks so far Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi has agreed Egypt would cooperate in some operation with the Suez Canal Users Association set up by the users' conference last month in London.

DROPS INSISTENCE

The diplomat, who asked not to be identified, said British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd has dropped Britain's insistence on international operation of the canal and agreed to Egyptian operation provided international safeguards are set up to guarantee freedom of navigation through the waterway, necessary improvements and reasonable tolls.

Another source claiming to be familiar with the British position said they were willing for Egypt to hire the canal pilots and collect tolls provided the Egyptians first have made up the canal company's and assigned the pilots to individual ships. All ships would have to be fixed in accordance with an international treaty Egypt would sign.

Of this report a British spokesman would say only, "Bits of it are wrong—but I'm not going to tell you which bits." Earlier reported details of the London conference proposals for international control of the canal—basis of the Western Big Three's position in the Suez dispute—were "not incorrect."

In contrast to these reports of British and Egyptian moves toward agreement, Pineau said the talks sponsored by Hammarskjold have "not yet" made any progress. He said he is leaving for Paris Saturday afternoon.

PROTEST TAX

COPENHAGEN (CP — Danish movie theatre owners have decided to approach the government again to do something about the entertainment tax which has caused a "blockade" of American films. If months go by, it is claimed here The tax has made it impossible for the theatre owners to pay 40 per cent of their gross to pay 40 per cent of their gross as film rental as requested by American film distributors.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Cloud covers most of Ontario this morning and afternoon, points in southern Ontario. and the Georgian Bay region. have received light showers.

The weather is quite warm in the mid-western states and the warm air is pushing gradually northward and eastward causing the extensive cloud bank over the Great Lakes area.

A cooler air mass has stretched eastward across the entire Rocky Mountain area and is beginning to advance into the Prairies. The outlook for the weekend is for somewhat similar to-able weather. Saturday will be warm, but the easter air may reach as sometime Sunday.

LONDON (AP)—Radio distress signals coming from north of the Azores spurred hope today for survivors of a giant transport plane missing in the Atlantic with 58 U.S. servicemen aboard.

The U.S. Air Force ordered an all-out aerial search for the source of the messages, heard by at least five transatlantic airliners Thursday night and the air force base at Lajes, in the Azores.

It was believed the string of S O S signals might be coming from portable transmitters on rubber life rafts carried by the missing C-118 Liftmaster of the U.S. military air transport service.

The air force estimated the signals were coming from a point approximately 150 miles north of the Azores.

The transport vanished Wednesday night on a flight from the air base at Lakenheath, England, to the Azores, en route to the United States. Aboard were 39 U.S. Air Force men returning to their Lajes base and 19 others on the transport's crew of nine navy men.

The position from which it was estimated the S O S signals came was more than 800 miles beyond the missing plane's last reported position. But an air force spokesman said the aircraft could have made contact with the ocean liner radio control tower at Shannon airport and flown on toward its destination before going down.

The Liftmaster carried four 20-man life rafts, each equipped with a portable transmitter.

A spokesman said the S O S signals were not signed and "we don't know whether they came from the missing aircraft or not." He added: "We're going to search that part of the Atlantic so thoroughly a fly couldn't hide in it."

The search is a new American, British and Portuguese planes from the Azores, Scotland, England, France, Germany, Malta, Iceland and North Africa. Global Relay Station will monitor the ocean at high altitude, using radio.

Young Toronto Couple Perishes In Cottage Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Michael Ball, 28, and his wife, Sandra, 17, were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their weekend, rebuilt chicken house—in nearby Richmond Hill.

Police said Ball's body was found in bed; his wife's body lay near the cottage's back door.

The young couple moved into the cottage about a month ago. Ball was a printer's apprentice with the weekly Richmond Hill Liberal. His wife was a high school student last year.

Police said the blaze started from an overheated stove or a burning cigaret.

Iraqi Troops Move To Jordan May Bring Crisis

Hussein Requests Aid To Stabilize Country

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. government officials say the turbulent Middle East is threatening to explode a new crisis.

King Faisal of Iraq is due to send about 2,000 troops into Jordan soon at the request of his cousin, Jordan's King Hussein, to help stabilize that country in advance of Oct. 21 parliamentary elections.

The United States and Britain have given at least tacit approval in the interest of preventing a possible collapse of law and order in Jordan, but officials here are by no means certain what the end result will be.

Israel is said to have advised the United States it cannot view with indifference what it regards as the potential military reinforcement of the Arab state with which it has the longest common border. It has been fighting along the Israeli-Jordan frontier in recent days.

EGYPTIAN ATTITUDE

The reaction of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, architect of the Suez Canal dispute, is unpredictable. Nasser long has hoped to become the leader of all the Arab countries over Jordan and the Arab world generally.

Russia is said to have appealed to Faisal about new military aid shipments into Jordan. Diplomats reported Iraq's plan is to limit its help to border-control brigades totalling about 2,000 men. According to the plan, these troops would move into eastern Jordan, well away from the Jordanian border with Israel. They would have the task of guarding oil pipelines which carry petroleum from the rich Iraq fields to the Mediterranean. They would also be on hand to help control any uprisings within the country.

Jordan has been caught in the cross currents of Middle Eastern politics resulting from a power struggle that involves primarily Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Iraq. All three have designs reported to have been spending heavily in Jordan to advance their interests similar and sometimes conflicting purposes.

CONFIDENCE SHAKEN

The apparent result has been to shake Hussein's confidence in the ability of his government to control the country without outside assistance.

The United States and Britain are reported to feel that in the light of the Jordanian situation, troop movement is a good thing. France has had reservations about the possible impact on Syria, with which she has long maintained friendly relations, and United Nations efforts to suppress fighting between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

N.S. BACKS AGREEMENT

HALIFAX (CP) — Provincial Treasurer R. M. Fielding said Thursday night Nova Scotia would like to enter into a new tax-sharing agreement with the federal government. But provincial officials have advised Ottawa they are prepared to open negotiations only on the basis of commencing on Oct. 31. Premier Robert Stanfield has also said Ottawa story which provided for separate negotiations, and on Saturday several provinces have indicated their willingness to enter the new tax-sharing plan.

Great Risks but Also Great Prizes For Britain in European Free Trade

LLANDUDNO, Wales (Reuters) Harold Macmillan, chancellor of the exchequer, told the Conservative conference today there are great risks but also great prizes in the policy of Britain joining a European free trade area.

"We must soon decide whether to enter on discussions with our European friends," he said, addressing the party's annual conference.

The chancellor said at first sight there seemed only the two alternatives:

"We might stay outside it altogether, but that would involve a loss of advantage to our exports to European markets, and if this European Union grew too strong it might endanger our exports to their markets.

"Or we might ourselves join the Common Market and form the core of our preferential system in the Commonwealth."

Macmillan continued: "We have been looking for a way out of this dilemma—a way of associating with the new initiative in Europe in such a way as to avoid the disadvantages and to seize the opportunities."

This, he said, might be a plan to organize a partial free trade area to include as many European countries as possible and—to preserve the Commonwealth structure—free agricultural products. He stressed the government has not reached final decision.

Earlier, in the debate on economic affairs, Duncan Sandys, entering a European free trade area was criticized.

J. A. Paul, of South Kensington (London) Conservatives, called on the government "to avoid idealistic and impracticable European free trade entanglements."

Britain, he said, would run the risk of mass unemployment "purely and simply into the scheme, since the other countries would be her competitors.

It recommended that speed limits on provincial highways be increased to 60 from 50 miles an hour and that it be made even lighter on foreign-licensed highways.

Items listed by the brief as those which should not be purchased by property taxes were education, social welfare, health services, civil defence, subsidization of housing, indigent and unemployment relief, administration of justice and roadways.

It called for proper solution to the problem of municipal finance in separate those services which are municipal in character and those services which are provincial in the municipality.

"In other words, the major part of the municipality's revenue is derived from taxation of property there was no conception that school costs would grow to the extent where they take up 30 to 40 per cent of a municipality's revenue.

"There was no knowledge at that time that the problem of highways and streets would grow to be so expensive and extensive. It might properly be suggested that the revenue accruing from the operation of motor vehicles was almost entirely to the benefit of the senior governments."

Change in Tax Structure Asked by Development Assoc.

TORONTO (CP)—The Eastern Ontario Development Association today called for correction of the present tax structure which bears unfairly on industry.

In a brief to the Ontario government presented today to Premier Frost and members of his cabinet the association said there exists a desperate need for some way of collecting revenue from other than property owners to pay for services such as education.

Either a method should be found by which everyone pays for these services or they should be paid for by the federal or provincial governments, which have a wider taxation basis, the brief said.

The biggest single problem facing municipalities is finance, said the brief, and it is a frightening that we can foresee a very dangerous situation in the future."

The development association represents municipalities and various development and promotional organizations in the Eastern Ontario area.

The brief also urged firmer administration of the section of the Municipal Act which prevents municipalities from offering fixed assessments as a means of attracting industry.

"There is reason to believe that this practice persists," it said.

It asked for extension of the highway system in Eastern Ontario. It suggested that this be financed by making toll roads of the super highways as the Queen Elizabeth Way and the proposed expressway through Toronto.

6 Young Poles Jailed for Part In Poznan Riots

POZNAN, Poland (AP) — Six young Poles were jailed today for terms up to six and a half years for part in the June Poznan riots. Two others were acquitted and a ninth received a suspended sentence.

The sentences were pronounced in Poznan trial No. 3 of so-called "criminal elements" involved in the "bread and freedom" riots which began June 28.

The relatively-light sentences—on charges which could have brought the death penalty—strengthened the widespread belief here in Poland that the Communist government may abandon trials of more than 100 still to be brought to court.

The men sentenced to imprisonment today faced a variety of charges in a 23-page indictment, including firing at the Poznan security police headquarters, attacking soldiers and army tanks, freeing prisoners and looting.

A packed courtroom—including observers from the U.S. and British embassies in Warsaw—heard Judge Waclaw Zembrowski pronounce sentence, rejecting a defence application that judgement should be delayed to allow new evidence.

Driver Did Not Keep Lookout Claim of Jury

TORONTO (CP) — An Azilze Court jury Thursday awarded a truck driver and his employers $13,576.86 for damage caused to a Canadian Pacific Railway engine when they collided with a truck.

Frank McKeown of Peterborough was severely injured in the head-on crashing accident Nov. 11, 1954. The engine's air brakes were severely damaged.

Counter claims by McKeown and Consolidation Company (Canada) Ltd., were dismissed when engineer Herbert Fuller testified he sounded the engine's whistle and bell as he approached the crossing near Peterborough.

McKeown said he neither saw nor heard the train. The jury found he did not keep a proper lookout.

Convict Soviet Woman of Theft Then Release Her

Discus Champ Makes Surprise Appearance

LONDON (AP)—Nina Ponomareva, Soviet Olympic discus champion, was convicted today of shoplifting five cheap hats from a London department store but was given an absolute discharge on payment of three guineas costs.

Within an hour of her appearance Miss boarded the Soviet ship Molotov, which was scheduled to sail later in the day for Russia. She carried no luggage.

The verdict was handed down by Magistrate Cecil Wilson in Marlborough magistrate's court after the famous athlete made a surprise appearance in the dock on charges.

She took the stand for 55 minutes and flatly denied stealing the hats. She said she bought them.

Nina's defence counsel suggested Soviet authorities so much that they cancelled a Moscow flight and held meet in which Nina was to be competing.

The defendant called Nina's arrest a "dirty provocation."

Nina did not appear in court on Aug. 30 and Wilson issued a warrant for her arrest. The next day she reappeared, presumably into the Soviet Embassy which has diplomatic immunity.

HERE TEMPTATION

In giving his decision the magistrate said: "I am sure that the frailty of human nature and the hats at C. and A. Modes displayed provided a considerable temptation to a number of women. I think the fact she had been fined or discharged if I discharge her absolutely on payment of three guineas costs."

He said he found the case against her proved.

Defence counsel Mervyn Griffith-Jones told the court that Nina and the Soviet Embassy ever since she did not show in court Aug. 30. "She has in fact not been a free woman," he said.

Griffith-Jones indicated Nina was close to Russia at the "earliest possible moment." He said: "She ought to go back either by plane or by the Soviet ship Molotov leaving London later today.

FAVORED TO WIN

Nina is a favorite for the 1956 Olympic games which open in Melbourne next month. She won the event in the 1952 Helsinki games and was the maiden name of Nina Romaschkova.

The 27-year-old athlete is an attractive figure in a fawn raincoat, lipstick and a green beret. She wore no jewelry. Her luncheon recesses. She said she had no religious beliefs and said she was married but would tell the truth about the incidents of Aug. 30 when she was in the dock unsimplifying.

Nina testified she paid £1 for four leather hats and got change over £1 for a red woollen hat.

The store detective, Miss Ann Hall, testified earlier that Nina had not paid for the hats which she produced as evidence.

NO EMOTION

Nina heard the decision without a show of emotion. She turned to the translator as he explained the magistrate's words in Russian, then looked straight at Wilson and began to walk away.

The translator, however, had not finished. He asked the translator to get Nina back to the dock during the sudden commotion as she was about half way out of the court. Nina broke into understanding smile and came back.

Raid Hong Kong Refugee Centre, Hold 460 Suspects

Riot Deaths Over-Estimated, Toll Now 26 Dead, 176 Hurt

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Special police squads, aided by two observation planes, tonight rounded up 460 suspected rioters in the biggest raid since violence broke out in this crown colony two days ago.

At the same time, authorities announced that previous estimates of 43 dead in the riots were high and "it now has been established that they amount to 26 dead and 176 injured."

The announcement added that Kowloon, mainland Chinese suburb where the riots began, was quiet today.

The centre of the disturbances has now shifted to the outlying districts of Tsun Wan in the west and the Clear Water Bay road area in the east," it said.

The police raid was directed at a Chinese resettlement centre which accommodates 40,000 refugees.

Thousands of refugees watched in sullen silence from the top floors of the six-storey centre as 500 policemen arrived in trucks and quickly surrounded the section.

Another strong force of police swooped on a trouble area nearby. Kaitak airport lighting and arrested 29 persons. They were handcuffed and led away in trucks.

In heavily guarded Kowloon court today, 179 persons rounded up earlier were charged with rioting and ordered held without bail for another hearing Tuesday.

The night curfew imposed by British authorities Thursday night was lifted briefly to allow the population to buy food. A curfew gain set briefly in a Kowloon market place, but scattered when police fired three tear gas bombs at them, according to reports.

The worst rioting in Hong Kong since the Second World War was touched off Wednesday when anti-Communist refugees from the mainland were prevented by Communists from flying from celebrating the national day of Nationalist China.

A demonstration soon turned into a riot between refugees and the Communists. In the savage street fighting a Swiss police official was shot dead and attacked in Kowloon and a bank and fire station were set on fire.

Wednesday night's fighting was the worst. It started after 3 p.m. when the Tsun Wan area near the border of Communist China after British authorities prevented the ceremonies.

A shouting group of Nationalist sympathizers broke into two Communist labor union offices and started smashing furniture, fixtures and equipment. Communists in the intruders and the fighting spread through the offices and into the streets.

Police troops rushed to the area and took control, but not before 30 of the rioters were injured.

Police Thursday denied reports that British troops opened fire at one time during the riots or bayonetted any of the rioters.

Food prices soared in Kowloon today as black marketeers moved in to profit from the disorders. Under British military intelligence officials went to Tsun Wan village this morning to investigate the riots. A request by (foreign correspondents to accompany the officers was turned down by British authorities on the ground the situation "remains tense."

Diefenbaker Will Likely Stand For Leadership

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) John Diefenbaker said Thursday he will announce tonight at a social gathering here whether he will be a candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

The 61-year-old lawyer and member of Parliament for Prince Albert, generally given an excellent chance to succeed George Drew should he put forth his name as a candidate for the position, said in an interview:

"In my own home place and among my own people I will make up my mind and make my decision public. I think it only right that I should do this in such a manner."

Mr. Diefenbaker gave no hint as to which way his decision will go. He said it is "time for an announcement" on his stand.

He announced last month because of ill health and a national convention at Toronto during the first week of Dec. 10 is to pick his successor.

Mr. Diefenbaker's name has been the most prominently mentioned among potential candidates for the post. The others are Donald Fleming, Ottawa finance minister, and Davie Fulton, member for Kamloops, B.C., both Cabinet ministers.

He will announce next week whether he intends to be a candidate.

Left-Wing Intellectual Says Canada One-Class Nation Depending on U.S.

LONDON (CP)—Seen through the eyes of a left-wing intellectual, Canada is an underdeveloped country, with a one-class society dominated by the United States and living at the price of economic domination by the United States.

This description comes from R. S. S. (Dick) Crossman, a Labor member of Parliament and a well-known figure in Canadian political circles, in a book on labor tour. Referring at one point specifically to Canada, Mr. Crossman writes in The New Statesman and Nation.

"Here is a colonial territory, with a white settler population and virtually no natives; an underdeveloped economy but with an indigenous class of peasants or a massive influx of immigrants to provide the cheap labor for its new industries. A race-conscious Western democracy (Germany or Switzerland by nally banned), combined with a savage climate, is making sure that this industrial revolution does not create an urban proletariat.

"In Western Canada everything is middle-class and a home-owner, or aspires to be so; and this means that the labor machine can take the place of cheap labor.

It also means that the industrial revolution must be financed by foreign capital, since no Canadian pensioner or insurance fund is exercising wage restraint to provide the capital. . . . Canada is the one country in which a provincial governments are showing skill in getting a "fair share of the golden eggs" without sacrificing the American geese away. In this atmosphere, Canadian capitalism, unwilling to frighten possible investors by talk of nationalism, is busy doing some drastic re-

Big Potatoes, Carrots Picked in Halloway Garden

When George Stone of Halloway saw some mountainous hills in his 3¼-acre garden earlier this week he did not think of the old saying: "There's gold in them thar hills". Instead, he hoped he would find a few potatoes.

Indeed, he did only find a few. One hill bore 17 Sebagoes — the largest being only two pounds, nine ounces — and a few others were picked in last weigh. An adjacent mound produced 19 spuds which, when weighed, were run pretty close to a few pounds.

As he got over the shock of finding such big potatoes he continued along the rows of vegetables until he came to the carrot patch. Mr. Stone grasped a feathery carrot top and gave a mighty tug. The carrot did not budge. He gave another hold. The earth split slightly. With an irresistible pull, shoulder muscles knotting to the breaking point, the carrot-mantle jerked free of the sandy loam. What a monstrous carrot! Although not weighed the carrot felt like it tipped a few pounds. Several similar carrots were later exhumed.

Mr. Stone is not a full-time farmer. He spends his working days as a turnkey at Hastings County jail and finds leisure hours lifting spuds from his garden. For the past eight years he has done this. Mr. Stone bends to the back-breaking task of yanking his year's crop of carrots.

Perhaps some kind-hearted person would lend him a block and tackle.

E.J. Courneya Injured in Truck Crash

TWEED — E. J. (Ted) Courneya, proprietor of the Tweed-mute Hotel here, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Thursday evening following a truck-trailer crash on Highway No. 7.

Mr. Courneya suffered a fractured leg. X-ray examination in the hospital this morning revealed no internal injuries.

The accident occurred two miles east of Actinolite, near a road-side restaurant called "Jim's Drive-In", shortly after seven o'clock.

It was stated that Mr. Courneya was driving behind a car and a large loaded truck-trailer. Nearing the restaurant the trailer slowed down and allowed the car to pass. According to police the driver of the trailer turned in to the restaurant, not noticing the light truck drive - by Courneya.

The lighter vehicle crashed into the rear end of the trailer, passing almost underneath it. It was almost completely wrecked.

Mr. Courneya was rushed to hospital where examination revealed the fracture. He was alone when the accident took place, driving home after a business trip.

Ernie Gurnett in 40th Year Of Service With Ontario Hydro

ERNIE GURNETT

Those who have known E. G. (Ernie) Gurnett and his work here since 1903 as manager of the East Central Region of the Hydro Electric Power Commission will appreciate the sphere of a conference which was held this month celebrating his 20th anniversary at the same time its Central manager recorded his 40th year of service with this department of the Ontario government.

Mr. Gurnett's whole professional career has been spent with Ontario Hydro. Since he joined only six years after the first power was delivered, there are few if any other members of the Commission better fitted by experience to appreciate the growth and expansion of this public service.

A native of Owen Sound, Mr. Gurnett received his early public and high school education there. Immediately after graduating with a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Toronto in 1916, he entered the Hydro Commission in the municipal engineering department, Toronto.

During the following 23 years, Mr. Gurnett progressed with the Hydro's expanding operations being appointed chief engineer for the eastern region with headquarters at Ottawa in 1937.

He was made manager of the Eastern Region in May last, after the vote in 1940 to fill the position of the late L. G. Dandeno.

Throughout this period Mr. Gurnett has directed the day-to-day operations of the Hydro's distributing system in extended territory from Pickering to Gananoque, north from Lake Ontario to the limits of the Algonquin Park; also encompassing country areas adjacent to the rural system in Belleville. The permanent and temporary personnel under Mr. Gurnett's jurisdiction numbers 500 but on occasion is extended to as many as 750 employees.

Mr. Gurnett's home, during plants in this region, with a total capacity of 40 kilowatts, is at Glen Ivy Gardens, Chenaux and other suppliers of power on the Ottawa River and Quebec North, is the principal guest of the Quebec Power Commission.

Pioneer Engineer

Mr. Gurnett, who is a member of the Professional Engineers Association of Ontario, the Engineering Institute of Canada, and the Quarter Century Club of the Ontario Hydro, has taken a keen interest in civic affairs.

A natural ability to think on his feet, to express himself clearly and make good friends are included among other attributes leading to current presidency of the Rotary Club here.

In his leisure hours Mr. Gurnett finds relaxation and creative satisfaction in such hobbies as making violins and cutting and polishing gem stones. His work in the latter field, known as lapidary, shows considerable mastery.

Mr. Gurnett's interests are shared by Mrs. Gurnett, whose talents find expression in ceramics and amateur painting.

Mr. Gurnett's reaction to life in Belleville is perhaps typical of former big city dwellers who find they can find the "good life" in smaller places.

"When the Hydro Commission decentralized its operations and opened branches outside of Toronto, I must admit that most of the outgoing staff, including myself did not particularly relish the thought of living in smaller places. Now, however, while we retain fond memories of that city, I believe most of us would be equally reluctant to return."

DELIGHTFUL PLACE TO LIVE

"Belleville is a most delightful place to live," Mr. Gurnett continued. "A city of this size offers a great many advantages compared to those of larger centres.

"Here, for instance, shopping is a great many more friends, secure people in many capacities and gets to know them far more intimately. I believe a fuller and more satisfying life can be found in the smaller community."

Mr. Gurnett's colleagues regarding Belleville are echoed by his two children, Allan, 17, and Elizabeth, 14.

Mr. Gurnett admits that his children may be more attending BCIVS, like thousands of other young people in smaller communities may be forced to seek fame and fortune in one of the bigger centres of industry. But, as one who has been through the mill himself, he concludes that the ideal situation is one where it is possible for youth to fulfill its highest ambitions in small communities where good living abounds.

Fire Equipment of Three Eras Shown in Fire Dept. Parade

Fire fighting equipment of three eras was combined in a Fire Prevention Week parade staged by the Belleville Fire Department in the downtown area last night.

Included in the parade which passed down Front street, along Bridge, Pinnacle and Bridge streets and back up Front street, were 11 pieces of equipment from the local department, along with a horse-drawn pumper of the 1900 era and a rest cart from the late 19th century period.

Possibly attracting the most attention was the horse drawn gasoline pumper recently acquired by the Campbellford area for the occasion. It was hauled by a team of white horses secured from the north of the city.

Personnel of the fire department marched in the parade, which also saw three locally owned vehicles take part. The ambulances were owned by the John R. Bush Ambulance Service, Thompson's and Pinkston and Luscombe.

Riders on the fire fighting equipment included Fire Committee Chairman Alderman Frank Grandame, and Ex Fire Chief William Lynch.

The parade was headed by the Quinte Highland Pipe Band and Fire Chief Gordon Wills in his official red chief's car.

Fire drill at all the city schools is being timed by members of the fire department, while Fire Chief Vance is giving talks on fire prevention at all schools. Inspections of plants of business, factories and institutions are also being carried out in the interests of fire safety.

Elementary school children in the city and also in some schools in Thurlow are taking part in a fire prevention poster and essay contest, closing date for the essay petition is Oct. 19th, the poster and essays to be judged later and prizes awarded to the winners.

Boy Must Live Rest of Life In Darkness

ATLANTA (AP) — Five-year-old Johnny Fair knows now that he must live the rest of his life in darkness.

Johnny's cancerous right eye was removed Monday in two parts after the last eye was taken out in an effort to stop the spread of the malignancy.

Thursday his mother, Mrs. Bessie Fair, took him home with the bandages changed and the doctor decided it was time Johnny knew he would never see again.

"The eye was sick and I had to take it out to make you alive," the doctor said. "When I take this bandage off, don't open your eyes because you won't be able to see, Johnny. You won't need your eyes to see again, but you'll be all right."

"Okay," said Johnny. He didn't try to open the eye and he didn't ask any questions.

GRAVE HAZARD

Although the annual toll has been decreasing, 836 coal miners died in accidents in West Germany in 1935.

Obituary

MRS. ARTHUR SWAINE

Former resident of this city, Mrs. Jessie Isabel Swayne of Cobourg, died in Cobourg General Hospital Thursday evening.

Born in Hastings County she had lived most of her life in Grimsby and following her husband's retirement as section foreman there lived with her daughter in Belleville for three years before going to Cobourg where she was a member of the United Church. Her husband, Arthur Swayne, pre-deceased her two years ago.

She is survived by four sons, Fletcher of Port Credit, Percy of North Bay; John of Iroquois Falls and Norman of Grosse Point, Michigan, and three daughters, Mrs. Eddie (Annie) Maguire, Cobourg; Mrs. Sandy (Janet) Martin of Peterborough, and Mrs. William Fallowfield of Belleville.

County Council Sells $220,000 In Debentures at 99.50 With Interest Rate at 5¼ Per Cent

Approval for $220,000 in debentures for the Central Hastings High School area to be sold to the Canadian Bank of Commerce and associates, was given this morning by the last of the United Counties councillors at a special meeting held at Shire Hall to deal with the matter.

The county will receive $99.50 for the debentures bearing an interest rate of 5¼ per cent.

The special meeting of council was called at the request of Thomas Beatty, chairman of the Centre Hastings High School Board who, in view of rising interest rates, felt it would be good business to sell the debentures as soon as possible.

The money will be used for construction of high school additions at Tweed, Madoc, and at Marmora. Six rooms are to be added to Tweed high school and four each at Madoc and Marmora. Construction of gymnasium additions is now well underway with board members hoping the structure will be ready for occupancy by Christmas.

Mr. Beatty noted that the accommodation in the Tweed high school, where there is serious overcrowding.

Six tenders for the purchase of debentures were received by the county with the Canadian Bank of Commerce group submitting the best offer tendered by Anderson and Company at R. A. Daly and the Bank of Commerce.

Toronto Man Pleads Guilty In Cheque Case

John Mosier, 31, Toronto garage worker, was remanded by Magistrate G. Y. Wills this morning for sentence on October 19 for passing a worthless cheque on Sept. 28, 1935, to buy a car in Belleville.

Mosier has a list of convictions dating back to 1951 on charges of non-support, false pretences and theft. He denied the theft conviction.

He bought a car, on sale at $100, from a city used car dealer 4 years ago and drove it until the motor broke down. Then Mosier abandoned the auto at the Belleville bus terminal. He doesn't know what became of it.

Mosier pleaded guilty to the charge.

On Tuesday two teenage boys from Victoria, Ont., near Simcoe, pleaded guilty to carrying concealed weapons. Today Fred John Cody, 18, also pleaded guilty to passing a forged cheque in a Belleville taxi firm. His friend, Walter Ray Cronk, 16, pleaded guilty to forging the cheque on a Simcoe bank branch. The cheque was made payable to John Cody and signed by Henry Woods. It was for the sum of $22.80, not $22.80.

They were remanded in custody until October 16. Both youths are wanted at Simcoe on a charge of auto theft.

When city police apprehended the lads at a local stand, after they had been transported to Trenton, where they tried to pass the cheque on the cab driver, Cronk was found to be carrying a spring knife and a starting pistol which shoots blank cartridges. Cody was carrying a hunting knife and a starting pistol as well.

Three men charged with being drunk in charge of a car, disposed of this morning. One of the men got three months in jail; another was fined $13 or, in default of payment, six days; and the third gunner is starting on a 10-day jail term, providing he can't unearth $13.

HEAVY TRAFFIC TOLL

Last Year's Skates Often Cramp Style

Young and old will soon be hunting up last year's skating equipment for the opening of the skating season at the rinks.

Among many of the younger folk, however, parents find that won't fit on this season's feet — and pinched toes and corns result from doing nothing with skating.

If skates won't fit, or there's a growing member of the family to outfit, Booth's can help you without strain on the budget. You can purchase from their complete line of C.C.M. skates in all size ranges from tots to men, young and old. There's no down payment to make and you may pay as little as 50c a week. We also carry a complete line of hockey equipment for both pro and beginner.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was thoroughly mixed in slow trading today during morning dealings.

Industrials showed a slight dip from the previous close. Base metals were one-half point higher while western oils lost more than one-quarter of a point.

Dominion Steel gained 1¼ points among industrials. Ogilvie lost 1¼ points.

Hudson Bay and Consolidated Smelters gained ½ among senior base on metals but Noranda was off a point and International Nickel ¾. Temagami lost 25 cents in coppers.

Western oils were quietly traded with prices moving in a narrow range.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 17-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon, EDT, today. Thursday's noon rate 97 15-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.71 7-16, unchanged.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter steers and heifers were active with top grades of steers 25 cents a hundredweight higher than last week's close at the public stock yards this week.

Cows and bulls were firm. Calves were $1-2 higher. Hogs were steady, sheep and lambs unchanged.

Receipts of cattle were some 1,400 head less than last week and 1,200 head more than the same week in 1955. Western cattle receipts were 220 head, an increase of 100 head over last week. Western stock calves were nonet 700 head more than last week and 1,232.

There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers as compared with two carloads last week. There were no exports to the U.S. An estimated 2,000 head will be passed at the close, all for placements.

Improved demand, coupled with a short week and lighter receipts sent cattle scaleward more actively than any time in the last three weeks. Top quality steers were in good demand and 25 cents a hundredweight higher than last week's close.

Heifers and yearlings sold steady and active. The dressed beef trade was reported more active.

Prices

Choice steers $21-22, several loads of high choice ranging from $22.25-22.75; good steers $19.50-20.50; medium $16.19; common $12-15; good heifers $18-18.50, with choice to $19; one extreme top at $19.50; medium $15-17; common $13-15; good cows and bullers $8-13; choice dry-fed yearlings $23-24; odd top to $24.25; good fed yearlings $20-23; medium $17-21; good cows mostly $11, sales to $11.50 in limited numbers; common $9-10; canner and cutter cows $7-9; good heavy feeder bulls $13 a hundredweight, common and medium light bulls down to $8.

Replacement Cattle: Demand for this class was improved with most of the sales ranging from $16-17 a hundredweight. However, good stockers sold up to $18 and in some cases $20, stock calves to $21; stock heifers were numerous and sold from $13-16.

Calves: This class was active throughout the week with good and choice grades gaining $1 a hundredweight and common and medium grades selling $2 a hundredweight higher. Good vealers $23-26, numerous choice at $25-26.50; cull calves $17-22; common $10-16; grass calves sold for slaughter $9-13.

Hogs: Grade A $30.50 a hundredweight, some $18; stags $13 on a dressed-weight basis.

Sheep and Lambs: Lambs were steady with buyers sorting out heavy lambs at a discount of up to $3 a hundredweight. Good and wethers $20 a hundredweight, some long-haul loads at $20.50; bucks were discounted $1 a hundredweight, cull lambs down to $15; feeder lambs $15-17. Supplied kinds at $18; sheep $3-$3 a hundredweight according to quality.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

The egg market was firm with offerings light for a good demand.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture, Ezra, in fibre cases, graded A large 60-61; A medium 47; A small 32; B 42; C 26. Wholesale to retail A large 65-66; A medium 52; A small 3.7; B 41; C 32.

Recital Tickets Available at Door Of BCI Auditorium

For the benefit of those who have not purchased tickets for the Butler piano recital tonight arrangements have been made whereby they can be purchased at the door of the BCI auditorium.

It is reported that the sales of tickets have been good but there will be a supply available for as long as it lasts.

The program is one which should have a wide appeal to music lovers, particularly so since the artists are the talented son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ormonde Butler, well-known and popular residents of Belleville.

Old County Bridges Pose Knotty Problems

What to do with old bridges in the county road system which are not built to carry present day loads, is a question to be pondered by some members of Hastings county council.

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, at this morning's special session of county council, said that for the second time within three months a county bridge in his village was closed to traffic because of damage resulting from overloading.

"I'd just like to know if the county has any plans about what it is going to do with these old bridges," the reeve stated. "Load limit signs apparently mean nothing."

Councillors discussed the possibility of heavy trucks being rules off of roads where there are old bridges of limited capacity. However, they were in the dark as to the legality of such a move.

Reeve Graham said he would like to see the Tweed bridge open for light traffic, as with the bridge closed completely, residents were caused considerable inconvenience.

Heavy trucks have been in the habit of using the Tweed county bridge in favor of the high level bridge a short distance up the river because of a sharp V-intersection leading to the Sulphide road from north of the highway bridge.

Earlier in the summer the Tweed county bridge was closed for a period after damage from over-loading, while again last week it was damaged and had to be closed.

House Trailer Turns Turtle, Blocks Highway

BANCROFT (Special) — A 40-foot brand new house trailer blocked traffic on Highway 62 for almost two hours yesterday afternoon when it toppled across the road. The driver of the tow truck was not injured.

Driver of the tow vehicle, Arnold Saviant, of Peterborough, told provincial police that he was hauling behind up a slight grade when a fast moving gust came over the brow of the grade, forcing him to swing on to the shoulder. The trailer jack-knifed, and ended up blocking both traffic lanes.

A hole was punched in the side of the trailer and some paint was scraped off. Further damage reported to the vehicle had to be born away the wared hitch.

O.P.P. Constable J. C. Hawkins investigated.

Y's Men Hear Talk on Workers And Automation

The Belleville Y's Men's club officially welcomed Don Stanton into their ranks at a meeting in a beautiful candlelight induction ceremony. The induction service was led by President Ken Denton and assisted with a prayer led by Oscar Wager. The induction team, composed of Oscar Wager, Verry Wright, Hugh Watson, Jim Pierson, Harold Bankier and Cam Hitchson, impressed the new member, and reminded the older ones of "the duty that accompanies every right."—the motto of the Y's Men's club. Tuneifulness of character, loyalty to the YMCA, world mindedness, and enthusiastic activity were further emphasized. After the ceremony, club members individually congratulated Don.

The speaker of the evening, G. R. A. "Tony" Mason, personnel superintendent of the Northern Electric Company, was introduced by Bill Barry, Mr. Mason's subject was "Automation and the Worker." Mainly to satisfy his own personal curiosity, Mr. Mason has done considerable research on what he calls "our foremost social problem." Mr. Mason traced the history of mechanical computing machines, from the abacus to our present day electronic brains which can manufacture products ranging from automobiles without a single human touch.

Automation is nothing new, Mr. Mason explained, but simply further industrial revolution aimed to reduce the labor content of any product. The labor content will be drastically reduced, while production will increase enormously, of course many more technicians and engineers will be necessary to maintain and repair the these electronic marvels.

The social implications of such a revolution will be a great one which accompanied the Industrial Revolution, Mr. Mason feels that it is inevitable, and that ultimately an increased standard of living will result.

Mr. Mason was thanked by Burt Flindall, and presented with a memento of his visit by President Scott Denton.

RAISE GAS PRICES

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The latest gasoline price war in this district appeared near an end Thursday, with two companies announcing increases for Friday. A major dealer in quoting a fuel said first grade would rise four cents to 35.9 cents per gallon. One large oil company will announce its price for comparable gasoline four cents to 37.9 cents.

Frank Turcotte Given 4 Years

HAMILTON (CP) — Pleading guilty to a charge of assault with intent to injure, Frank Turcotte, 36, of Brantford, was sentenced today to four years in the penitentiary by Magistrate John E. Robinson.

Turcotte was arrested shortly after an attempted holdup last month at the Royal Bank branch in suburban Stoney Creek. His accomplice, an older brother, took his own life in the basement of his Aldershot home after the attempt.

On a second charge of car theft, Turcotte received a year in jail, concurrent with the penitentiary term.

Quebec Sailors Tell How U.S. Ship Saved Them

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)— The story of a dramatic sea rescue was told here today after the Quebec motor vessel Lady Cecile was towed into port with her crew safe after being helplessly adrift earlier this week.

Cargo agent A. Dupuis of Saint John, N.B., told how a United States Navy ship finally got a tow line aboard after several attempts as the 400-ton Cecile, laden with aviation gasoline, was drifting perilously close to the rocks on the rugged Labrador coast. The USS Fort Mandan, a landing craft medium ship, gave up its tow to the Canadian Navy's Arctic patrol vessel Labrador, for the last leg of the trip to this port.

The Cecile's engineer, Guit Monday in gale and the Mandan arrived Tuesday just in time to save her from crashing ashore.

"We were all set to take to the lifeboats just before she reached us," said Dupuis.

"I had been talking on the radio to the Mandan, acting for the skipper who can't speak English, when she came up to us. I looked out the porthold and she seemed almost on top of us as a lone was thrown. We missed it. So the Mandan raced in a tight circle around us and came up alongside again.

"This time we caught the line, hauled it aboard, and made it secure. Man, were we happy when she poured on the power and got us clear of that shoreline that we knew wasn't too far from us there in the dark."

Stevenson Says Dulles and Ike Deceive Nation

WASHINGTON (CP) — Adlai Stevenson set out on a flying campaign through California today while President Eisenhower stayed home to "organize the quiet" of 190 persons he will face tonight in a television show.

Before setting out on his tour the Democratic presidential nominee for the Nov. 6 election took a swat at Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles.

He accused the president of "inaction" and "neglect."

"We have had enough of inaction and self advertising," he said.

He said at Oakland, Calif., that "when we lose ground abroad we are assured that all is well." He added: "I don't think" the public likes to be lulled by Mr. Dulles and President Eisenhower that "American prestige 'has never been higher'—when it is manifestly untrue."

FIRST MENTION

It was the first time he had mentioned Dulles by name in campaign speeches during the tour of Washington, Oregon and California.

But he has criticized other cabinet officers, saying they represent "the rich and the powerful and care not about the common man except at election time.

Stevenson made his latest attack on the Republican regime in a speech for a rally Thursday night before he broke camp for his swing south to Fresno, Long Beach and San Diego.

With him were three governors, George Leader of Pennsylvania, Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, as well as secretary—Hubert R. Humphrey of Minnesota and Albert M. Gore of Tennessee.

ANOTHER BID

In Washington, Eisenhower today makes another country-wide bid for votes on television and radio.

This latest appeal in Eisenhower's re-election campaign will be in a novel form. While House Democratic leader Sam Rayburn describes it as an "impromptu, entirely unrehearsed press conference" where about 100 "cross-section Americans" will put questions to Eisenhower on various issues.

The panelists to take part have been invited to Washington from all areas of the U.S. by the National Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, an organization whose primary objective is to rous the voters of independents and dissatisfied Democrats.

Meanwhile, an aide described Eisenhower as highly pleased by the announced decision of Republican Adlai Stevenson Clayton Powell Jr., a New York Negro Democrat, to support Eisenhower and to form a national organization to work for his re-election.

Ontario Plowman Wins Crown for Fourth Year

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP) — A young, sunburned Ontario farmer has been crowned king of Canada's plowmen at the international plowing match.

Hugh Baird, 22, of Blackwater, won the title Thursday after an all-day contest under a brilliant autumn sky with 11 other plowmen. The victory entitles him to represent Canada at the world plowing match to be held in the United States next year.

In second place was Douglas Reid of Brampton, Ont. However, he will not make the trip to the world match as Canada's second representative, since both cannot be selected from the same province. In his place will go Stanley Wills of Cornwall, P.E.I., who was third.

FOURTH STRAIGHT

The win continued Ontario's domination of the match's major crown. It was the fourth consecutive year an Ontario farmer has plowed to the title.

Match officials said the championship trials attracted what may have been a record crowd. Complete figures were not available, but they estimated that about 4,000 persons crowded into the match, being held on several farms near the village of Brooklin, northwest of Oshawa—about 2,000 more than on the previous estimated record day.

They said, however, there is little chance that attendance by way as the match ends will raise total attendance close to the record of 150,000. Attendance up to Thursday night totalled 70,000.

Thursday also saw the completion of the horse-plowing competition. The title was won by Karl Watson, a 37-year-old carpenter from Forest, Ont.

He said he has not farmed actively since 1941, but enters plowing contests because he likes farming and horses.

Cost-of-Living Bonus Paid to 22,000 Workers

OSHAWA (CP) — General Motors of Canada today announced increases in the cost-of-living bonus paid to 2,000 employees in plants in five Ontario cities for the final quarter of this year.

Th; bonus is increased one cent to 10 cents for hourly-rate employees and $5 to $50 for the quarter to eligible salaried employees.

Under union contracts GM reviews the cost-of-living bonus paid to employees every quarter.

The increases, necessary because the consumer price index issued by the federal government was 119 on Oct. 1 against 117.8 in June, are effective from Oct. 15.

Receiving the increase will be employees at General Motors of Canada Limited at Oshawa and Windsor; the McKinnon Industries Limited at St. Catharines; Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited at Toronto and General Motors Diesel Limited at London.

SUGGESTS CUTTING WHEAT PRICE

The Canadian Bank of Commerce, in its current "Commercial Letter," says that a sharp drop in the world price of wheat could result if heavy world carryovers continue to mount. Never before, it says, have world wheat surpluses reached such "truly astronomical proportions."

The Bank warns that the burden of any big decline in the world price for wheat "must inevitably fall heaviest on the farmers of countries like Canada." It questions the validity of ideas underlying attempts to resist, in agriculture, "those economic forces which have resulted in contraction of other industries in recent years, such as coal, textiles, and deep-sea shipping."

The Bank's suggested remedy is that Canada "exert its power to move the world price downward, in response to the prevailing economic pressures, from its present level of about $1.75 ± bushel to the International Wheat Agreement minimum of $1.50 a bushel."

While this would lower farm income for the immediate future, it would produce beneficial long-term effects, in the Bank's opinion. The Bank says that this would "decrease world production and begin to shrink the world surplus." As to the contention that lower farm income would restrict economic activity of manufacturing areas, the Bank's letter says that "it may be seriously questioned whether the farm income is still a major determinant of national prosperity" in Canada.

At the same time the Bank warns that adjustments in the world price level should be gradual and says that the overall decline need be "no more than fractional." Indeed, though the Bank's proposal will certainly meet with stout opposition in farm circles, the Bank's whole argument appears to be that it is preferable to accept a slightly lower price now than to risk an extremely sharp break in the price at a later date.

Nothing has been said for the Bank's argument, though, there are some other factors which should be considered. Firstly, while there may be a lack of effective demand for all the wheat the world produces, there is considerable doubt whether there is not an active need for every bushel. In other words, there are hungry people who cannot afford to buy wheat at the present price. This would be used as an argument in favor of a reduction in the world price—but it should be noted that there is no proof that the world is producing more wheat than it can, only more than it can sell.

Secondly, crop yields vary from year to year. A few years of bad harvests could change the picture tremendously.

Bearing this in mind, it might be well to consider the advisability of combining the Bank's suggestion for a reduction in the world wheat price with a proposal more than once advanced by agricultural economists meeting under the auspices of the United Nations—the establishment of a world "food bank" which would serve a triple purpose, providing food in times of scarcity, guarding against a sharp break in prices in years of surplus and preventing an exorbitant rise in prices when world harvests are poor.

COMPULSORY CAR INSURANCE

On February 1st of next year a new law goes into effect in New York State, requiring residents to carry public liability and property damage insurance on their automobiles.

This leads the Kingston Whig-Standard to outline the pros and cons of compulsory car insurance which, it points out, is now in force in Britain and some other European countries have had similar laws for years. So have some other American states besides New York.

"Compulsory car insurance," the paper concludes, "seems logical, if not actually necessary."

It then proceeds to outline the argument advanced by opponents of compulsory insurance. "In democratic theory," it says, "insurance is not compulsory. It is not by something out of which private business makes a profit. Private profit can be eliminated only by a state-operated insurance plan. Neither the insurance companies nor the Government looks with favor on a government insurance scheme."

There is, however, one flaw in the reasoning of opponents of compulsory insurance, the paper says. It is not, in fact, compel anybody to purchase insurance, any more than anybody is compelled to drive a car. If a motorist chooses to drive a car, he must have it equipped with adequate lights and brakes. Nobody complains that this law compels persons to buy something out of which private business makes a profit. There is no philosophic principle behind the requirement that a car have proper brakes and lights and a law requiring the same car to be adequately covered by insurance. If a man does not want to carry insurance he does not do so -- but if he does not he should not be allowed to own a car.

The Whig-Standard says that, "New York State has taken the bull by the horns," in that "there is no state insurance plan, yet the state has ordained compulsory car insurance."

New York State, it seems to us, is right.

The argument that a compulsory insurance law would open the way for insurance companies to make exorbitant profits will not hold water. Competition is supposed to take care of situations like this. If competition between private companies did not play its traditional role, there is still another safeguard. Ontario already has at least one co-operative insurance organization and if the rates charged by private companies got too far out of line co-operatives would be able to do a booming business and keep costs within reason -- and any law making adequate car insurance as necessary as adequate lights and brakes.

COLUMBUS

In fourteen hundred ninety-two
This very day,
Columbus and his hardy crew
Could "Land, Ho!" say.

The skipper dreamed of pearls and gold,
And thought he knew
A route by maps and charts untold
And shorter, too.

What matters was he wrong or right!
He crossed the blue.
Perhaps much worse had been my plight
Had he stayed home.

He had no notion I'd be born

World Quest for Power

By WERNER BUEDELER in UNESCO Features

The population of the world is steadily increasing. When you have finished reading this article, then will be approximately one thousand more people living on Earth than there are at this moment. In 1954, 2,853,000,000 people inhabited our planet; it is estimated that, by the year 2,000 A.D., world population will have increased to a total number of 6,400,000,000.

All these people must be fed, and they must be given the means of leading a life which is worth living. Obviously, that there must be an ample supply of energy to manufacture and drive the industrial machines which will produce the goods they need for a decent level of existence — clothing, fertilizers, medicines, etc. — and the agricultural machinery for increased food production.

There are three facts which formed the background for the Fifth World Power Conference held in Vienna, Austria, in June, when more than 2,000 experts met to discuss power and the increased requirements of the world. Some of them came only to listen, while others delivered papers. Vienna hoped to find a solution for the pressing power problems of the underdeveloped countries. The projects put forward at the meeting were to be immediately for raising the standard of living almost everywhere.

• • •

Energy today is derived from a number of natural resources, coal, oil, water power, etc. There are large reserves of all these resources in the world, but they are by no means limitless. Further, some of them are found abundantly in places where man cannot make much use of them. In other areas, there is a shortage of the same commodity. Coal, for instance, is contributed in part over-abundantly. Actual supplies of coal within the earth's crust to a depth of a kilometer (1 lies too deep below the surface to be mined economically. Demand is increasing relatively rapidly, and the time will come when coal will be too valuable to burn coal because we shall use it almost exclusively in the chemical medicines, synthetic foods, furniture, clothes and a thousand other products.

In 1953, 58.2 per cent of the world's power production (2,853,000,000 was derived from pit and brown coal. Petroleum and natural gas contributed 24 per cent to the total power, and energy derived from hydroelectric installations made up 1.8 per cent.

By 2,000, however, the energy demands of the world will have increased three and a half times, and in the course of what has been estimated that eight times as much power will be needed. It is impossible to increase production of energy to this extent from natural resources alone. Such needs can be met only by the discovery and development of coal and oil deposits, and by finding other natural source of power which can be exploited. Coast lines appear to be energy from rivers and lakes and several projects for gigantic waterpower installations are envisaged in various parts of the world.

• • •

China, for example, is engaged in tapping the power of its numerous waterways of her country, the Yangtse River. The project described during the World Power Conference, involves the construction of a dam which will prevent the disastrous floods experienced in the past and will produce 110 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity each year—some 35 per cent of the total power consumption of the highly-industrialized Federal Republic of Germany!

Perhaps the greatest reserve of power is hidden high in the Himalayan mountains, in the form of snow and glaciers. According to the calculations of a well-known Austrian physicist, by building a series of reservoirs in the valley along the Tsangpo River through it, a total power of 300 to 330 billion kilowatt-hours of electrical energy per annum could be created. Once harnessed, its potential energy would be sufficient to produce 150 to 330 billion kilowatt-hours of electrical energy per annum. This energy would not only benefit the population of Tibet, but would also interest the aluminum industry of Assam and Bengal. With this additional energy, the industry would be capable of producing by the year five times as much aluminum as the whole world does today.

• • •

Even if such major schemes are completed, however, it would not mean that the world's hunger for power would be satisfied. Many European countries experience energy shortages which they are endeavoring to overcome by drawing on what are known as unconventional power resources.

Here, without a doubt, atomic energy takes the lead. The United Kingdom has developed a ten-year plan for the utilization of atomic energy for producing electricity. Under this program, twelve nuclear power reactors with a total capacity of 2 to 3 million kilowatts were to be completed in 1965. Technological progress in recent months, however, has already outdated this plan. During the Conference in Vienna, British scientists announced that, thanks to recent technical advances, 18 atomic power reactors can now be constructed within the same period, with a total capacity of 3 to 4 million kilowatts—about one-sixth of the entire electricity production in the United Kingdom in 1954. By further extension of this program, Britain expects by 1975 to produce as much as 15 per cent of its power, electricity from the atom.

Development of atomic energy in the United States, a country which owns other substantial energy resources in coal, oil and water, was described by an American scientist. He told the conference about smaller reactors of various types which are planned for use in less populated rural areas where needs are limited.

• • •

Though atomic energy is of paramount interest in many countries, it does not prevent nations from seeking other economical power resources. In Russia, scientists are endeavoring to exploit, on a large scale, energy from the sun. Two types of solar generator are envisaged: small units for the production of fresh water for irrigation, and domestic power for cooking, heating, etc., and large solar thermodynamic projects such as pumps for water supplies, sea-water desalination, and for generating power for multiple uses.

Valuable research has been carried out at the Krishnanovsky Power Institute, near Moscow, and Levy in Armenia. In 1955 an experimental solar electro-generator was constructed, using a parabolic mirror 6 feet in diameter, which has a capacity of 1 kilowatt. The transformation of the sun's heat collected by the mirror into electricity is based on fundamentally conducting materials.

The USSR is now planning a much larger generator which, when completed, will be two or three times that size, with a total capacity of 1,200 kilowatts and will be the largest solar power in the world. Series of mirrors with a combined area of 21,530 square feet is to concentrate solar heat onto a water boiler. The heat energy will then turn the water into steam at a rate of 11 tons per hour to drive a turbine and generator. Already a solar machine has been constructed in the Soviet Union which each day converts one hundred litres of salt water into fresh water.

• • •

In France, an attempt is being made to produce energy from resources of the ocean. On the river Rance, in Brittany, French engineers are building the first tidal power plant to operate on an industrial scale. The position of the tides will be utilized by this plant to produce 342,000 kilowatts of electricity annually, and if successful, a far bigger project will be undertaken which would increase the country's electricity power output by one-third.

Another French project being carried out at Abidjan, on the Ivory Coast, West Africa, makes use of the difference in temperature between water on the surface of the ocean and water from the depths—in this area a difference of 75 degrees—to produce by operating a generator is placed over a steam compressor which operates between a vacuum evaporator in which the surface water boils spontaneously, and a heat exchanger in which steam condenses when entering in contact with the cold water brought up from the depths of the sea. When completed, this power station will have a capacity of 3,500 kilowatts.

The Abidjan project is particularly interesting in that it concerns one of the many underdeveloped countries where power resources are limited, and where they are urgent. It is in these regions that scientific research on energy problems can provide the most striking results.

Dangerous Tractors

Sherbrooke Record

One of the most needless causes of the slaughter of the innocents and one that is growing at an alarming rate is the practice of allowing youngsters who are not yet in their teens to operate tractors. Two or three times every week, news wires carry stories of a boy or girl—six, seven or eight years of age—being pinned beneath one of these machines and being crushed to death.

THE GREAT EXPERIMENT

The North American experience in democracy is by all odds the most amazing circumstance in world history.

Think of it for a moment. This vast territory, occupied only by a few hundred thousand aborigines, continued probably for centuries to be an empty continent until the United States alone, 200 times as many people now live in this area as lived here when the Indians owned the land. The same, to a lesser degree, is true in Canada. It is as if the great destiny which presides over human affairs was waiting for an opportune time to stage on this vast area a pageant of freedom, in which the partici-

Hollywood Remakes Hits

Brockville Recorder and Times

It has almost reached the point where movie-goers over the age of thirty can't remember a dread-fully familiar — a great many of which are either admitted, or attempted duplicates of earlier hit movies from the late 1930's or early '40's. The whole Hollywood is running out of ideas — or do the movie-makers feel that these days people are so nervous they want the new crop of stars should be used in the hope that how they can interpret the part?

One of the highly heralded "remakes" is "Around the World," a new version of "Waterloo Bridge." For those who remembered the original film of the story of London during the first World War, the new story was a bit of a disappointment. While Leslie Caron and John Kerr were too clear for complete enjoyment of the picture. There was no similarity between the two performances was the fact that both female stars were required to begin colored trench coats!

Another "remake" which came the comedy "The Birds and the Bees," starring George Gobel which turned out to be a remake of an old comedy originally starring Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland and Charles Colburn, the latter of which escapes us momentarily. No matter, the point made that this film was based on a successful comedy of some 15 years ago, yet the situations were practically identical.

There is no law which says a new version can't be based on an old hit — but it becomes a bit confusing to the audience who may not remember the original films, but have probably seen them again only recently as "late movies" on television.

Psoriasis and The Iodin Ration

Reader thanks me for recommending the iodin ration for psoriasis, says he has been on the ration for six years and that in the past two years he has had no sign of psoriasis, his gums have stopped bleeding, and he is no longer bothered with a sinus trouble. He doesn't say whether he beats his wife or smokes in the woodshed.

From a quick once-over of the literature I gather that we are not just as capable in the treatment of psoriasis as we were in the days when some people didn't mind whether or what I ated to teach.

About three out of every hundred cases of chronic skin disease are psoriasis. Characteristic are the sharply defined red patches covered with silvery white scales, especially behind the elbows and over knees and outer surface of legs. Psoriasis runs a chronic course of years or years of a lifetime, marked by remissions and relapses from time to time. It is rarely seen to occurs at a particular season, or if it occurs at a time when the individual is using medicine, diet, vitamin, or bath that purports to be curative. It is hardest to write a testimonial that far outlasts the remission.

In this instance the reader remained on the iodin ration for three or four years before his psoriasis cleared up, his gums stopped bleeding and his sinus trouble ceased. I don't know whether the iodin had anything to do with these changes, but I know it can do no harm in any case. The same faithfulness to the ration is remembered by many many readers, despite my constant admonitions, regard the iodin ration I recommend as medicine and hesitate it, if at all, for a few weeks only — in other words I say "try" it, as they think, and drop it when the test proves negative. The iodin ration is like meat and potatoes, bread and cheese, or apple pie and cheese. You can't expect to get the full benefit of it unless you keep eating it regularly from now on.

Because of the characteristic remissions and relapses it is difficult to gauge the effect of any particular remedy for the silvery scale disease. In my own experience the most effective remedy seemed to be thyroid extract. Today I believe that iodin ration is a safe substitute for thyroid feeding.

The cause of psoriasis is unknown. It is certainly not contagious or communicable. Some physicians believe it is inherited, but this is conjectural. Climate is not a factor, although in many cases it seems to be worse in winter than in summer.

Itching gums and sinus trouble, mentioned by the reader, have no particular connection with psoriasis.

CONFIDENCE

I am wondering what kind of a man Mr. Khrushchev is. He has manifested no confidence in anyone or anything. I recall a line in the Authorized Version of the Bible, which reads: "For men the height of wisdom is to take things as they are, and look upon the rest with confidence."

I can endorse most of this statement, but I am sure that there are many things that need to be reformed. We should forward each day and year, however, with confidence and hope. I want the time to come when there will be no more wars, with a true confidence in the fellowship of peoples and among all nations. What a world this will be when nations give their hand—and keep it!

Everything in life seems to be built about confidence. The farmer plants his seed and looks forward with confidence that there will be rains to give him good crops and markets that will welcome his produce. The student, a trip by air, train, or personal car, and we have confidence that we will reach our destination safely.

God helps each one of us to bank upon Him with a good supply of personal confidence, for we need it every day of our lives. We need it in our great confidence in ourselves, in others, and in our Creator. We must have faith, courage, and a steadfast faith. Then the way ahead will always seem attemptable, ready for mastery.

Our confidence in others is a valuable asset. It is something that cannot be bought. It's like integrity—and keep it. No one and knows no change. How safe and how we feel when we have gained the full confidence of a friend, or those with whom we deal in business!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Quite an uproar developed in the couple of Poles, who were carrying on a loud and excited discussion in their language in the seat immediately behind him, so to the back of the bus.

Letters to the editor flooded the local newspapers and various societies and organizations devoted to freedom, liberty and other hot causes, debated the question involved.

Most of us are free, when sent or otherwise disturbed, to get up and in the seat behind us gets on our nerves, to move to another seat. But the driver of a bus can't do that. So the only thing he can do is move the distraction. Most of us are familiar with the argument for the quiet of silence. Ben roistering and skylarking in the back seat of our cars. Many of those who engaged in the recent debate figured that what the bus driver objected to was the foreign language down the back of his neck. My own opinion is that if two frishmen were carrying on an excited discussion about something else but driver was interested in, such as race horses or prizefighters, the driver would not only listen but might occasionally horn in on the debate. But to hear an excited argument right behind your ears not one word of which you can understand is a different matter into the same category as small children rioting in the back seat or a dog incessantly scratching and howling to be let out. It is a free country. And this country was founded on freedom, one element of which is freedom to object to distractions in cities and towns. It is free, too, among us is going to define what distractions are and what are not hundreds of times have I moved my seat not only on buses but on trains, on ferry boats, steamers and even in waiting rooms when two or more persons have conversing voices moved within hearing. The generally observed rule in public places and public conveyances in this country is to pipe down and not disturb others. But there are those who not only ignore the rule and find entertainment in enjoy having the audience the public affords, and make the most of it. If this were not true, why do they talk so loud, much louder than is necessary for their companion to hear?

My final reaction to the bus driver controversy is to thank heaven I am not a bus driver, and to take a more friendly interest in the men who move us so efficiently from place to place despite distractions.

'Miss Supertest' Will Seek Unlimited World Record Sat.

Canada's queen of the nautical raceways, "Miss Supertest II," will seek the world's record for unlimited class hydroplane speedboats on Picton's famous course on Saturday.

The crack speedster will roar over a measured mile on the Adolphustown Reach at the crack of dawn tomorrow, and in event of bad weather will make the attempt on Sunday.

A year ago the boat, owned by J. Thomson of London, set a new Canadian and British Empire record for propeller driven craft by racing against the measured mile at 155 mph. Unfortunately she struck a submerged object and damaged her hull so badly she required major repairs. Her top speed during trial runs was recorded at 170 miles per hour.

Bad luck has continued to dog the boat during the 1956 racing season. After a successful start in the Picton International early this summer when she beat several highly rated American boats, and established a course record of 96 miles per hour for the three heat 15 miles course, she was considered a strong challenger for the Harmsworth Trophy emblematic of the world's top speedboat honors. In trials before the race she damaged a sponson and although winning one heat is generally conceded to have been below racing form.

Later in the summer, racing for the President's Cup in Washington Miss Supertest II was far in front when she again hit a submerged object which ripped her sponson, forcing her out of the race.

According to Jim Thomson, It takes at least two years to reach peak performance with an unlimited class boat—design modification, balance of weight and motor adjustments all have to be proved by actual trial and error. Given the right wind, weather and water, Miss Supertest II will give a good account of herself, he feels.

Dan Foster of Detroit, will drive the boat in its assault on the world record this weekend. Bill Braden, of Hamilton, regular driver of Miss Supertest II will be acting as consultant. Chief Mechanic Bruce Wells of London, will head a team which includes Victor Leghorn and Douglas Wimperis of the same city. Rolls-Royce representative, W. Turner will also be on hand.

The mile trial is being held under the sanction of the Canadian Boating Federation. R. R. Findlayson, commodore, will act as referee; J. Cole of Picton, will supervise the official timing.

Chances for Establishment Of Two Stations in One Place

OTTAWA (CP) — The chances are hopeful for the establishment of two television stations in centres where there now are only one.

The CBC has made it clear it will not object to this change in first-year government policy—with certain qualifications—and a recommendation to this effect could come from the royal commission on broadcasting.

However, no action may be expected before the royal commission report comes down, likely early in the new year.

Federal government policy now restricts all Canadian viewing areas to a single TV station except for Montreal and Ottawa, where there are English and French stations. Six major cities are reserved for the CBC, and there are 28 private broadcasters elsewhere.

As the commission neared the end of its five months of public hearings—likely to end today—CBC board Chairman A. D. Dunton said Thursday he feels the time has come to abandon the single channel policy, on certain conditions.

A major condition, the CBC chief said, should be that in any centre with two TV stations, one should be operated by the CBC. he also listed such qualifications as the second station being compelled to meet certain broadcast standards and carrying a major content of Canadian programs.

Apart from these money - absorbing factors and on the purely dollars-and-cents standpoint, the CBC chairman listed several cities to which he said he would think a second station now would be economically practicable.

He mentioned these, at a guess, as Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and "possibly" Regina. The situation in the Maritimes would have to be studied.

Mr. Dunton said some Southern Ontario areas very likely could support second stations, though there were at present no VHF (very high frequency) channels available there—the type in use in Canada.

In an interview later, he said Ottawa—now with a French and an English station — probably would be a borderline case for a third. It has not an available VHF channel.

The commission also heard Thursday from CBC general manager J. A. Oulmet that the government corporation hopes to extend television coverage over about three years to another 10 per cent of the population, bringing this up to 95 per cent.

The capital cost would be $13,000,000, at the rate of some $4,300,000 a year that would take care of amortization charges. The CBC now spends about $20,000,000 a year on TV.

Mr. Oulmet also expressed the hope the CBC would be able to get off to an early start in color television, not too long after it "gets off the ground" in the United States. He looked for the U.S. development some time this year.

"I don't think we can wait," he said.

Once color got rolling in the U.S., he said, Canadians would be demanding it. But from a standing start it would take the CBC six months to be ready for transmitting U.S.-produced color programs and between one and two years to produce and distribute its own programs in color.

Greener Thumbs
BY JOYCE SMITH

"Children of the gods" was the early name of Japanese (Kasupheri) Iris, and seeing them in bloom, one can almost take the name literally. The flowers are huge, flat, exotic and in a rainbow of colors. Grown from fibrous root stock, they should be planted shallowly (3 inches) in very damp, rich, acid soil, in sunny spot. Mulch well over winter (Where ground freezes, mulch after freezing).

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Ray F. Turley, Belleville, Ontario, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Marie, to Flight Lieutenant Donald George Atkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Atkinson, Saskatoon, Sask. Marriage to take place Saturday, November 10, 1956, in Roman Catholic Chapel, RCAF Station, Trenton, Ont.

* * *

Carl O'Neill returned to Regiopolis College, Kingston, on Monday evening, after spending the holiday weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl O'Neill, 20 Mikel Avenue.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skeggs, Grier Street, were in Kingston yesterday, attending the funeral of the former's brother, the late Mr. Arthur Skeggs, from the Cullin Funeral Home, with interment in Cataraqui cemetery.

Weddings

MILLER—MACDONALD

Gladioli and marigolds formed a colorful setting in Stockdale United church, on Saturday, September 29, at 2.30 p.m., for a very pretty wedding when the Rev. C. Clarke of Frankford, united in marriage Shena Burbidge MacDonald of Frankford, R.R. 1, daughter of Mr. Davis MacDonald, and the late Mrs. MacDonald, to Gordon William Miller of Glen Miller, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Miller.

Mrs. Harry MacDonald rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. William Pitcher, who sang "O Perfect Love," and "As I Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. George MacDonald, the bride was lovely in a gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice with low-cut neckline, and lace jacket having long sheath-like sleeves lily-point at the wrists, and floor-length skirt of lace accented by inserts of lace net. She wore a rhinestone-studded headdress with fingertip veil and carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses with white streamers.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Edith MacDonald, as maid of honor, wearing yellow nylon over taffeta fashioned with fitted, shirred bodice, having three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a matching headdress and shoes, and carried a bouquet of mums in shades of yellow and bronze backed by green lace.

Little Sharon MacDonald of Stockdale, niece of the bride, was flower girl, dainty and sweet in white nylon over pink taffeta with matching headdress and gloves. She carried a tiny bouquet of white mums centred by a single red rose.

Master Freddie Chapman of Trenton, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer, dapper in his navy blue suit.

Mr. Gene Plumton of Frankford, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Carl Wood of Belleville, and Mr. Harry MacDonald of Frankford, were ushers.

The reception was held in the Sunday school room of the church, which was attractively decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers, and bouquets of gladioli and marigolds. The bride's table was prettily appointed with white linen centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked by pink candles, and the bridal bouquets.

The bridegroom's mother, receiving navy gabardine with matching accessories, and corsage of pink carnations, received the guests.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, the bride donned a beige ensemble with cocoa-brown accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests attended from Belleville, Picton, Frankford, Stockdale, Plainfield, Corbyville, Ameliasburg, Glen Miller and Elmsbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside in Belleville.

WTA Urged to Hold Educational Standards High

The Belleville Women Teachers' Association met in Lattimer's tea-room for its first regular meeting.

Following an enjoyable dinner, the meeting was called to order with the president, Mrs. Emery, presiding. Mrs. Emery extended a welcome to all, and especially to the new members.

The minutes of an executive meeting of September 24, were read and approved and the treasurer's report received.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by the president, after which Miss Phyllis May and Miss Margaret Hillis rendered a very delightful duet, "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman" by Offenbach.

Mrs. Emery gave an enlightening report of the annual meeting of Federation pointing out that the highlight of the Federation's year was the keynote address delivered by Sir Ronald Gould, at the annual dinner of P.W.T.A.O. He advised Federation members to hold fast to their educational standards. "Make sure they are not lowered no matter what the provocation," Sir Ronald also pointed out that "all the burden of education should not fall on teachers. Parents still have the all-important task of working with the teacher for the well being of the child."

Kiwanis L.A. Plans Future Activities

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary was held at the centre on Thursday. The president, Chris Logan, welcomed the members after the summer vacation. The minutes of the June meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report was given.

A Kiwanis rose was presented by the president Chris Logan to Nancy Fozard, for the wonderful job she did in organizing the Tag Day which was a great success.

Monthly conveners volunteered to take over the Hobbycraft and the bazaar will be held later this month at the Kiwanis Centre.

The president asked everybody to give generously especially to home cooking.

Pictures were shown by Marjorie Fuke and Peggy Drysdale of their trips to the West and San Francisco which were enjoyed by all.

A vote of thanks was extended by Elsie Punchard.

Reports were given by the Red Cross and Sick conveners and thanks were extended by the president to Elsie Punchard for her bulletin and to Kay Craig and her committee for looking after the refreshments.

Refreshments were served.

White Fabrics Were Once Hard to Get

Men who grumble at women's constant demands for the "impossible" can thank the ladies for the white shirts they're wearing. Without womanly persistence a hundred years ago, white fabrics might be so rare as white mink.

If a lady of 200 years ago could peek into modern bedroom drawers full of gleaming white hankies, white lingerie and white blouses, she would be spellbound with envy. To her, the possession of even one white garment was a mark of social prestige.

In those days the process of bleaching fabrics was so long and tedious that only a privileged few could afford the finished product.

For instance, in order to have a white sheet to sleep on, the material first had to be steeped in alkaline lyes, then washed and spread on the grass for weeks. After repeating this process five or six times the same material was subjected to a bath of sour milk or buttermilk for a few days, washed and again spread in the sun. This procedure continued until the material was as white as "could be expected."

WAS NOT PRACTICAL

Although this elaborate method of bleaching was quite the usual one for many years, it was hardly practical on a large-scale basis and the result would not hold a candle to the "whiter-than-white" fabrics of today.

However, practical or not, women insisted on more and more white garments. And leading men in the chemical industry give credit to the persistent little lady, for her incessant demands for more white in her life brought about the birth of modern bleaching techniques.

Early in the last century, the search for more efficient bleaching methods brought to light many new chemicals. These turned out to be seldomly useful to industry and formed the nucleus of the heavy chemical industry of England for many years.

The development of these efficient bleaching agents such as sodium perbarate, chlorine and hydrogen peroxide opened the way for the truly white fabrics we have today. No longer are white goods a novelty—miles of white garments flutter from clothes-lines every Monday morning. And according to the soap makers, it has now become a matter of prestige to display the whitest wash in the neighborhood!

Guiders Hold First Meeting Of Season

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Guiders, the first of the season, was held recently in St. Andrew's Church hall. There was a good attendance of Guiders. The U.S.S. welcomed her new Badge secretaries, Mrs. W. M. McCormick, Mrs. C. H. Luck and Mrs. A. A. Mathews, were warmly welcomed.

Mrs. Lewis spoke briefly about various aspects of testing for Brownie and Guide badges and was of considerable help to all the Guiders in answering their queries in this regard.

Mrs. Atkins, captain of the new Ranger Company now being formed for girls 15 years of age and older, also gave a short talk about Ranger work. The program for these older girls sounds as though it would appeal to them a great deal.

Flying Officer and Mrs. L. F. Byrne are shown signing the register following marriage in St. Patrick's Church, Montreal, Quebec. sims and ideals, the girls themselves plan the projects and activities they will undertake, and with the sympathetic and enthusiastic guidance of Mrs. Aitkin, the group should soon be flourishing.

Plans were made for the coming year, including a "Training Class" for both Brownie and Guide Guiders. This is to be held Saturday, October 13th, at St. Thomas' Parish House and will be of great help to both new and experienced Guiders. The trainers are sent from Toronto and have a wealth of experience and inspiration to offer.

The business part of the evening having been completed, all adjourned to enjoy a cup of tea and to talk over with one another the problems and accomplishments of Packs and Companies.

St. Michael's CWL Holds Graduation 'At Home'

Following convocation, the annual graduation "at home" sponsored by the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's in honor of the graduates, was held Friday evening last, in the auditorium at St. Michael's.

Soft lights and sweet music set the scene of this sparkling event convened by Mrs. Carl Casey, 2nd vice-president of C.W.L.

The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Ben E. Burley and Mrs. John Murphy.

During the evening, several novelty dances were featured and the winners included Miss Campbell, Nelson Patterson, Miss Alfreda Lew, Richard Brown, Miss K. O'Shaughnessy, Robert Ross, Mrs. W. Woollard and J. Sheridan.

A delicious buffet luncheon was served at midnight by Mrs. Casey and her committee.

Mr. Murphy acted as master of ceremonies while Messrs. Alphonse Black, Herbert Brown and John Black assisted at the door.

Mr. Carl Casey was general chairman of properties.

'Evolution of Auto' Fine Address At So-Ed Meet

The So-Ed Club of the Y.M.C.A. held its second meeting of the fall session in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night. The interest activities for this session are "folk dancing", 'Bridge', photography and 'Field and Stream'. These were pursued with the usual neat—square dances learned, bridge instruction given, movies were taken with some exceptionally pretty So - Ed members serving as models and a film was shown in "Field and Stream" on bird shooting and ammunition manufacture courtesy of Canadian Industries Limited.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker was Mr. D. F. Sandford, of the public relations department of General Motors of Canada Limited, Oshawa, who is a native of Madoc. Mr. Sandford was introduced by Tony Pearce. Mr. Sandford gave a talk on the 'evolution of automobile' starting with the horseless carriage and progressing through the stages of development to the present car. He also described the physical and economic factors which influenced the development trends. Finally, Mr. Sandford gave his interpretation of future trends in automobile design and pointed out some of the difficulties involved.

So-Ed president, Bert Hiles, thanked Mr. Sandford and presented him with a memento of his visit to So-Ed.

Refreshments were then served consisting of tea and coffee.

The Motorama theme of the evening was carried out in the decorations which were large colored pictures of various makes of automobiles.

After refreshments, the dance program started with a West Indian Calipso by special request played by an orchestra whose only instruments were made from oil drums and automobile brake drums. There were progressive proper consisted of waltzes, rhumbas, sambas, fox-trots, jive numbers and square dances.

The spot dance was won by Ben Gaudion and John Luscombe while the elimination dance was won by Mary Anne Lindale and David Evans.

The evening ended at midnight with the home waltz and was generally considered to have been a great success.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale James Ashbury are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Verna Joan Patricia Freeman, niece of Mrs. Fred Mott of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ashbury, also of Belleville. (Photo by W. Watch Baby's Diet

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Ronald V. Christie, physician in chief at Royal Victoria Hospital, has a tip for parents: If you want your baby to live to a ripe old age, watch his diet when he is young.

Dr. Christie, at the fall meeting of the Montreal Medico-chirurgical Society, said Thursday that many experiments have been carried out on rats in the study of longevity. "The only significant finding is that the most effective way to prolong life is maintenance of a well-balanced diet in infancy and early youth."

BEAUTY

By HELEN, HER VIVE

Shadowed and tinted, a Harold foundation is ideal for teen-age skins.

The fateful day of the first appointment with makeup comes early to teenagers nowadays. That's the time for Mom to be ready with a goods hint that a fresh, clean and shining skin is the best foundation for any makeup attempts. Lipstick is bound to accentuate the way her looks, whether clear or blemished—how long her eye-lashes, soap and water facials at the washbowl progressing!

Encourage your teenager to look at herself critically in the mirror, and also to have full washing regimens at her fingertips: heaps of warm suds in the washbowl, a good thick washcloth of her own, a sponge, and a little brush for nails and other stubborn spots.

Don't hesitate to explain that no really well groomed woman ever puts makeup on a dirty face! No matter how eager your young daughter may be to begin the woman's work of enhancing her natural good points with the magic of makeup, be sure she understands that basic cleanliness comes first.

A daily bath or shower and two good scrubbings—preferably before the mirror will do more than any artificial aids to keep your complexion glowingly lovely. But won't be satisfied with this however—as you probably know all too well. Under your guidance, she'll keep her pretty face well scrubbed, but she'll want make-up, too—"just like all the other girls." Well, here again, you can guide her. Teach her the art of subtle make-up. Don't encourage the use of vivid shades of lipstick and rouge. Point out how much more flattering is her young complexion are the softer, rosy-tinted hues. You won't have too much trouble in this respect, but now since those teens are "all the rage" for more sophisticated girls, too. When it comes to foundation, we can recommend one in liquid form, that's essentially a special kind of complexion base for an oily skin, the problem skin and the skin that is mostly dry but has an oily area down the middle. It is particularly appealing skin because it contains hexachlorophene, and reduces the risk of infection by suppressing skin bacteria—the cause of blemishes, acne and other skin problems. In using such a makeup base, it gives your teen-ager the confidence of knowing that she's not just covering up her adolescent blemishes but is helping her complexion get rid of them.

BRIDE CHOOSES FLOWERS . . . GROOM PAYS FOR THEM

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

If, as you say, it is groom-to-be who sends the bride-to-be flowers and going-away corsage, and also the corsages for the mothers, how is this done? That is, does he go to the florist and order these flowers? How in the world would he know what to order? — Confused

It is the groom-to-be who pays for these flowers, but not necessarily the bride-to-be and her mother get together to the florist to choose and order the flowers. They are the ones who must plan what to order, what flowers the bride wants to carry or wear, and what flowers and colors would be most suitable for the dresses that the mothers are to wear. But the flowers are charged to the groom and are sent directly to him by the florist.

HOW TO REPLY TO POLITE, CASUAL, "HOW ARE YOU?"

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When a person greets you with a usually-casual "How are you?"—what is a correct reply? Surely one isn't supposed to go into a complete reply as to how one "is"! — M. U.

No, this greeting is almost always just a friendly and polite formality. You may reply, "Fine, and how are you?" or "Very well, thank you—and you?" (Always you should ask the return-question of the other person.)

Christ Church P.G. Enjoys 'Canadian Picture'

The monthly meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday last with a splendid number of members and visitors present.

The business meeting was held first, with the president, Mrs. F. Besley, presiding.

Mrs. A. Jordan (acting secretary for the afternoon), read the minutes of the previous meeting which were duly approved.

Mrs. A. Watkis, treasurer, gave the financial report, which showed.

Mrs. E. Folwell, Mrs. R. Slavin and Mrs. W. Remington, reported for their various committees.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guild was most happy at this time to have as their guest speaker, Mrs. Jessie Gillis, dean of women, Albert College, who was introduced by Mrs. E. Hislop.

The subject of Mrs. Gillis' talk was "A Canadian Picture", which dealt with training and education.

Mrs. E. Smith thanked Mrs. Gillis for her splendid talk and Mrs. Hislop, also added her thanks.

After singing a hymn, the closing prayer was given by Archdeacon J. B. Cresswell.

Tea and fruit bread were served by Mrs. R. Hinsley, Mrs. L. Donnelly and Mrs. S. Lummis.

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

The September meeting of St. Andrew's W.A., Wellington, was held at the home of the president, Miss Ruby Nash, Tuesday evening, September 5th.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. J. Gale.

Sixteen members answered the roll call.

Following the business part of evening reports were given by the leaders of the Mission Helpmeet Band, the Explorers and the Little Servants.

An interesting introduction of the new study book on "Asia" was given by Mrs. Edgar Matthews, assisted by Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Boyer Cronk and Mrs. Davern.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. L. Gale and Mrs Davern.

October meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Lavender.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU'RE RIGHT, DON'T FORCE THIS CHAP TO MARRY YOU

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I used help desperately. Three months ago I fell in love with a wonderful fellow who is 21 years old. I'm 18. One night we had a party for his birthday, and after the party he took me home. We parked, and it was then all I thought started. Later I found out that I was pregnant.

I told him about it after I had known it for some time, but he had been drafted by then and he told me we'd be married after his boot training. Well, he was home for two weeks after that and did nothing about it.

I can't understand it, because all the time he went out with me, after that evening we parked, he never tried to persuade me into anything again. He said it was because he loved me, as I was carrying his child, but now he acts as though I didn't even exist.

All my friends tell me to make him marry me, but I don't want to live a life of misery, and I think it would happen. I want my baby to be happy, but I wouldn't be if I didn't have a happy home. If this fellow would just realize the decision to marry me I know he would be a wonderful husband and father, but he just doesn't want to settle down yet.

I love this fellow so much it's driving me crazy, and I want my baby to have a name. — M.U.

Dear M.U.:

I think you're right in not wanting to try and force this young man to marry you. For I think it very probable that if he did so against his will, there would be no happiness for you. Moreover, it's more likely than not that the marriage would break up before very long.

Of course, the marriage would give your baby a name. But I don't believe that is the only thing to be considered in a case of this kind. The more important thing would be the welfare of the child, and you're right again in feeling that he couldn't grow up to be a happy, normal youngster with a father who resented him.

Have you talked this problem over with any older person qualified to guide you through this most distressing experience, such as your priest or pastor for instance? You might start moving about this, and what is their attitude? Can you discuss it with them in any sort of helpful way? If not, do you have any older relative who would be sympathetic and understanding and want to do anything possible for you?

If you're done nothing of this sort already, and for any reason hesitate to consult any one you know, you might get in touch with the Family Service organization in your town—just look in the phone book for the address and phone number—and ask for an appointment to talk over the situation with them. Or you might, if you prefer, write a letter to the National Florence Crittenton Mission, Evanston, Illinois, Ask the address of the Florence Crittenton Home nearest to where you live so that you can go there and get detailed advice not only on just what to do through your pregnancy, and the birth of the baby, but on all other angles of the problem, including this one of the baby's father. If you think it might be wise to have the baby adopted, if you prefer to keep the baby, these people would also help you work out a plan for taking care of it. Homes throughout the country where girls like yourself can go, if they wish, for whatever care they need, and if your parents are not willing to stand by you, this would be the best thing for you to do.

Will you think over these suggestions I've made, and then let me know which one you decide to follow? I should like to help you further if you need any other suggestions, about 1-3 of each at a time. Turn into greased and paper lined loaf pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour or a little more. Additions of 1 cup chopped dates or 1-2 cup chopped nuts may be made.

I have mailed you the recipe for Applesauce Cake given here Oct. 19, 1945.

ARMENIAN PILAF (RICE)

One-half cup butter or margarine, 3 cups raw white rice, washed, 2 1-4 teaspoons salt, shaks of pepper, 4 1-4 cups canned or homemade chicken broth, 1-4 cup chopped blanched almonds. Melt butter in frying-pan and add washed and dried rice and cook over low heat until golden, stirring with a fork. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and pour into large casserole that has a cover. Add chicken broth and nuts, cover and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-4 hours or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Diluted canned consomme may be used instead of chicken broth— 2 cans plus 2 cups water.

LETTER:

Enclosed is a mixed dressing for those who cannot tolerate vinegar: Mix 1 tablespoon flour with 1-4 cup sugar, then add 1 beaten egg, 3-4 cup pineapple juice, juice of 1 medium lemon. Cook over hot water until thickened. Very refreshing on lettuce or a fruit salad. For dressier fruit salad whipped cream may be added and finely cut maraschino cherries and a little sugar in the whipped cream if not sweet enough.

QUESTION:

Will you please send me the recipe for banana bread published some time in June, I believe, 1953. It contained three eggs among other things, of course. Also the applesauce cake recipe which was printed last fall. There are so many I've not available the directions for making pilaf so I thought I'd do. Your recipes are particularly good.—Mrs. A. E. C.

ANSWER:

Thank you mam.

BANANA BREAD

(This is the recipe I prefer, but it calls for only 2 eggs.) One and 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon baking soda, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup good quality shortening or butter, 3-3 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas (takes about 2 or 3.)

Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder, soda and salt. Work shortening with a spoon until creamy, then beat in the sugar into it until both are light. Beat in eggs. Add flour mixture alternately with the bananas, about 1-3 of each at a time. Turn into greased and paper lined loaf pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour or a little more. Additions of 1 cup chopped dates or 1-2 cup chopped nuts may be made.

Mr., Mrs. A. Merry Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Last Saturday, an 'open house' was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stanley Merry, near Foxboro, when they were visited by their family and friends on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary, which occurred the Wednesday previous.

Mr. and Mrs. Merry, formerly Miss Joanne Skelcher, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Skelcher of Montreal, were married on October 3rd, 1931, at Crystal Springs' United church parsonage, Montreal, by the Rev. G. H. Craik, B.A., with Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tait, as witnesses.

The home was prettily decorated with autumn flowers and the tea table, centred by anniversary cake, and silver candle holders with tall candles, was nicely appointed.

Among the 16 guests present were, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Merry, and Mrs. George Russell of Montreal.

A buffet supper was served, including the yellow anniversary cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Merry were the happy recipients of several lovely gifts for which they expressed their grateful thanks. Among the gifts was a large relish dish of crystal with silver deposit; sterling silver coaster set; chipware, silver butter dish, set of steak knives with hartshorn handles; spun aluminum canister set; fruit bowl, flowers, auto accessories, and a fancy tray.

The evening was spent in playing court whist, and the taking of pictures in memory of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMechan, who were present, were also celebrating the anniversary of their marriage.

Queen Victoria H-S Assoc. Views Slides

Queen Victoria Home and School Association held its first monthly meeting of the new term on Tuesday evening in the school auditorium with Mrs. A. Wilson presiding.

Mrs. D. Gariepy read the minutes of the May meeting and Mr. K. Huntley the treasurer's report.

The following slate of officers for the new term was presented to the meeting by Mrs. F. Benson: president, Mrs. J. Winstanley; vice-president, Mr. K. Duesberry; treasurer, Mr. K. Huntley; recording secretary, Mrs. D. Irish; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. F. Walsh.

Mrs. C. Powell, president of Central Home and School Council, installed the officers and the gavel was turned over to Mrs. Winstanley.

Mr. J. E. Bateman, new principal at Queen Victoria school, invited the parents to come to the school at any time to discuss problems of their children, no matter how trivial they may seem.

The staff of the school was introduced and many new faces were welcomed.

Miss Johnston's class had the honor of most parents attending the meeting, and won the banner count for the month.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mr. J. Irish of Stirling Scout Master of Trent Valley District, was introduced by Mr. Bateman.

A most interesting hour was spent viewing the beautiful colored slides of the 8th World Scout Jamboree. Sixty-six nations were represented by 11,000 Scouts.

Mr. K. Huntley thanked Mr. Irish for a most enjoyable and informative commentary.

Coffee and doughnuts were served by Mrs. J. Kingston, social convener.

Local Student Presented With $100 Scholarship

The University Women's Club of Belleville and district presented its $100 scholarship at the convocation exercises of St. Michael's High School on Friday evening.

Mrs. P. T. Seibert, president of the University Women's Club, presented the cheque to Miss Jacqueline Murphy of Belleville, who won the scholarship by virtue of holding the highest aggregate marks in eight papers in the Senior Matriculation examinations.

Mrs. J. H. Bateman and Mrs. B. R. Collins represented the University Women's Club at the convocation.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Shannonville United church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Sam Elliott and Mrs. Gammon on October 4, with 20 members and visitors attending. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Charles Wood led in prayer of thanksgiving and welcomed all to the meeting. Mrs. Will Ross, group leader, took charge and read from the Missionary Monthly, the theme for the month being "A Dwelling Place of God". Mrs. Ross gave the Bible reading from Ephesians and then asked questions on the reading. Mrs. Charles Keirl offered a prayer and another hymn was sung. Mrs. Ross took up a chapter of the study book on Southeast Africa and Korea.

Christian religion is not new to Asia. The Christian church is working through its missionaries in each of the countries of Southeast Asia. Many Christian colleges, schools and hospitals are operating in Asia. The United church in the Philippine Islands has sent missionaries to Indonesia, Thailand and Nigeria.

The name Hong Kong means "fragrant Harbor". Hong Kong is the business centre of East Asia and is an important link on the long route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. That seaport trades with nearly every country in the free world. The Chinese are overcrowded and need more houses, foods, schools, doctors, nurses, teachers and social workers. The first Christian work in Hong Kong started in 1842. Now there are 100,000 Chinese Christians and 25,000 students in Chinese schools in Hong Kong.

Korea is making a brave effort to recover from the tragedy of war. The Christian church has been working in Korea for 60 years. Rev. W. J. McKenzie went there in 1893 and his work extended with money sent from Canada to build churches, schools and hospitals. The Christian church is the strongest institution in Korea at the present time and is helping in relief and social work.

The president thanked Mrs. Ross and took charge of the business. Roll was called by the secretary who also read the minutes of the last meeting. A letter regarding the district rally at Bethel Zion was read and Mrs. W. D. Robertson and Mrs. Claude Clarke were appointed as delegates. The secretary read a letter from the missionary for special prayer, Miss Faith Weber, who is now Mrs. Bauman. She and her husband are on furlough and will study at Guelph this fall and winter before returning to their missionary work in India. Mrs. Robert McFarland expressed thanks for cards she received at the time of her brother's death. Mrs. Raymond Clarke thanked the W.M.S. for receiving a sympathy card at the time of her aunt's death.

The offering was received and dedicated by the president who thanked the hostess and gave the benediction. Grace was sung and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Gammon and their assistants. An enjoyable social period was held.

At the next monthly meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Stanley MacDonald on November 1, subscriptions for the missionary monthly will be taken.

W. Association Hears Fine Talk on Korea

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown Women's Association meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle and brother, Mrs. G. C. Stickle, on Thursday afternoon.

The lesson was found in Psalm 68, read by Mrs. D. McLean. The lesson thoughts were given by Mrs. M. Mallory. The birthday box was then passed around for birthday money for this month. The Women's Missionary Society held a rally at the United Church, Bellleville, on Wednesday. Mrs. Puttenham, Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. M. Mallory were in charge of the devotional in the afternoon for Johnstown. Mrs. E. Bush will be hostess in November for the November meeting, with Mrs. G. Stickle and Mrs. E. Stickle in charge of the devotional.

A piano solo was given by Mrs. Alex Vandervoort.

Mrs. Kenneth Gare read the Korean version of the 23rd Psalm, which was followed by a duet, "The Ninety and Nine," by Mrs. C. Curtis and Mrs. E. Bush. A poem, "Friendship," was read by Mrs. R. Clapp.

Mrs. E. Stickle introduced the speaker, the Rev. W. McMullen, who told of his pastorage in Korea and in North and South Hengking which is under Red influence now. He also told the history of the Korean people dated back as far as 2300 B.C. before David was crowned King of Israel. They were clever people, and built the first known iron-clad ship. They have the oldest known observatory, they built a suspension bridge 200 years before the Brooklyn bridge was built, and they have an alphabet that is unique for being so simple, being a great feat of knowledge.

The Korean Christians have their prayer meeting in the early morning up among the mountains by torch light. Mr. McMullen says, "You will never hear prayer until you hear it in a Korean church. It is marvellous."

They dress in white as a remembrance of the loss of their country. They revolted when the Japanese took over, but it only made their lot the worse. They have gone through terrible things for their religion. Two million Koreans left their homeland when the Japs took over and because of the loss of their independence all Christians left were imprisoned until they died.

Mr. McMullen said he had a friend, a Catholic priest, who always stopped in to visit with him everytime he came through this part of the country.

DIAMOND MOUNTAINS

The Diamond Mountains is one of the great tourist attractions of Korea. Korean brass is supposed to be the best in the world. It was claimed that the better class buildings were more perfect and would endure. Koreans have warm floors in their houses and they sit cross legged on this. Their cooking apparatus is built lower than the floor. This is a permanent fixture. They boil all water. Houses are built nine feet square with a post in every corner of the room.

They eat rice, soybeans, fish and another food called kimah. The poor people were very illiterate, but one would teach the other until they all learned to read and write.

The Christian people of Korea are particular about keeping the Sabbath, not the way they do in Canada, for if they didn't their brethren would simply ignore them.

Mrs. McMullen had to make her own bread out of pastry flour. They had a stove which they took with them. They bought themselves a cow so they could have their own milk. In Korea they heat all food given to cows. In North Korea it goes away below zero at times.

For lights in their houses they use candles and small oil lights and torches outside at night. When these missionaries left a sort of lighting system was installed, but it was not satisfactory. Mr. McMullen was a missionary in Korea from 1920 - 1935 when he was recalled on account of finance.

Mrs. Ernest Bush thanked Mr. McMullen for such an explanatory talk which was greatly enjoyed.

Refreshments were served.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge Installs Officers in Colorful Ceremony

STIRLING.—On Tuesday evening, a colorful ceremony was enacted in the new lodge hall, when a group from Quinte's Rebekah lodge, Belleville, were in charge of the installation of Laurel's new slate of officers.

Sisters of glads, asters and mums were used as decoration and approximately 35 visitors were in attendance from Belleville, and Trenton, most of whom came by chartered bus.

After the official opening of lodge, Noble Grand Sister Irene Claney voiced a welcome to visitors and members and read a poem on "Friendship".

Sister Irene Aman PDDP, acting for the District Deputy President, Sister Helen Miller, of District No. 4, was introduced and escorted to her seat on the dais by JPNG Sister Mabel Bariner.

Sister Marjory Large, PNG, acting as Deputy Marshal of the installing staff, was introduced and escorted to the platform by Sister Ethel Duffin, PNG.

The guard of honor for this ceremony were Sisters Edith Bradshaw, Neva Vandervoort, Annie Warren, Mildred Morrow, Marion Carlisle and Joyce Richardson of Laurel Lodge, under the direction of degree staff captain, Sister Jean Heath.

All the officers of Laurel Lodge were present on this occasion and there were 34 Past Noble Grands of both lodges in attendance.

District No. 4 is comprised of Quintens, Belleville, No. 135; Oakdale, Belleville, No. 134; Crescent, Thomasburg, No. 139; Laurel, Stirling 211 and Tweed No. 236.

It was reported that the Deputy President, Sister Helen Miller, who is ill in the General Hospital, Belleville, is somewhat improved.

INSTALLING STAFF

The installing staff were as follows: Deputy Warden, Sister Bessie Boldrick, PNG; Deputy Chaplain, Sister Ethel Sandercock, PNG; Deputy Inside Guardian, Sister Rhea Mitchell, PNG; Deputy Recording Secretary, Sister Florence Pellett, PNG; Deputy Financial Secretary, Sister Annie Ross, PDDP; Deputy Treasurer, Sister Eva Hick, PDDP; Deputy Musician, Sister Dorothy Harwood, PNG; Deputy Soloist, Sister Mary Plumpton, PNG.

The installing staff retired and then re-entered the hall through a guard of honor, who were colorful pastel dresses and carried dainty green baskets filled with small flowers. This group included: Sisters Emily Beal, Ila Addy, Alice Adams, Margaret Noninski, Verna Summers and June Carruthers.

Sister Marjory Large seated the staff in their various chairs while the pianist rendered "Hymns of Thanksgiving".

OFFICERS ELECTED

The officers elected for Laurel Lodge No. 211 were installed as follows: Noble Grand, Sister Mary Hulin; Vice-Grand, Sister Olive Whitehead; Recording Secretary, Sister Irene Pollock; Financial Secretary, Sister Gena Spry, PNG; Treasurer, Sister Adeline Bush; Junior Past Grand, Sister Erma Claney; Warden, Sister Alice Macklin; Conductor, Sister Joyce Richardson; Chaplain, Sister Marion Carlisle; Musician, Sister Mildred Morrow PNG; Color Bearer, Sister Hilda Rose; RSNG Sister Edith Bradshaw PNG; LSNG, Sister Annie Warren PNG; RSVG, Sister Neva Vandervoort, PNG; LSVG, Sister Edna Wright; Inside Guardian, Sister Florence Post; Outside Guardian, Sister Norah Wannamaker; Degree Staff Captain, Sister Marion Heath, PNG; Press Reporter, Sister Florence MacMillan.

During the installation ceremonial Deputy Soloist, Sister Mary Plumpton, PNG, sang effectively "Be the Best of Whatever You Are" and "Give Us This Day." This last solo was sung as the guard of honor knelt in the form of a cross in front of the Chaplain's chair as a grand finale to the installation service.

PRESENTATIONS

During the evening's proceedings presentations were made as follows: a gift for Laurel Lodge from Quintens officers and installing members was presented to the Noble Grand, Sister Mary Hulin; also another gift for the new hall was presented by Sisters Bessie Boldrick, PG, and Margaret Novinski on behalf of the District President, Sister Helen Miller.

Laurel Lodge presented Sister Irene Aman with a gift and the address of appreciation was read by Sister Laura Shortt with Sister Helen Bailey making the presentation.

The new Noble Grand, Sister Mary Hulin, conducted routine lodge business and said her motto had been "I'll take care of the things that are at hand."She based her message on "Strength For the Day".

Past Matrons' Club Discusses Future Bazaar

WELLINGTON — The October meeting of the Past Matron's Club was held on Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur Archard, who opened the meeting and extended a hearty welcome to those present.

Dues were accepted from several of the members present. A thank-you letter from Mrs. Dorothy Rutter for gifts received when she was ill, was read, also one from Miss Norma Foster for the sympathy card sent her. A birthday card was signed by all present, and it was sent to Mrs. Alice Hobbs, Ottawa.

Bills were moved to be paid.

A business discussion followed re the Chapter bazaar which will be held on the 27th.

Doris McFaul reported on the drapes for the Chapter rooms. These are expected to be hung before the next meeting, which will be held in the Chapter room on December 3rd, when potluck dinner will be enjoyed. Guests will be husbands, friends and past patrons and their wives.

A guessing contest was held with Mrs. F. Harris and Mrs. William Davern the winners, and a soap contest, with Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. Russell the winners.

Three tables of court whist were played and the prize winners of this week were: Mrs. Earl Marvin and Mrs. R. Vick.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Marvin.

Prize for the holder of the lucky cup was Mrs. McKenzie.

Guests will be husbands, friends and past patrons and their wives.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Archard which was seconded by all present.

STOP THE CONSTIPATION HABIT THIS SAFE GENTLE NATURAL WAY

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN WITH MILK

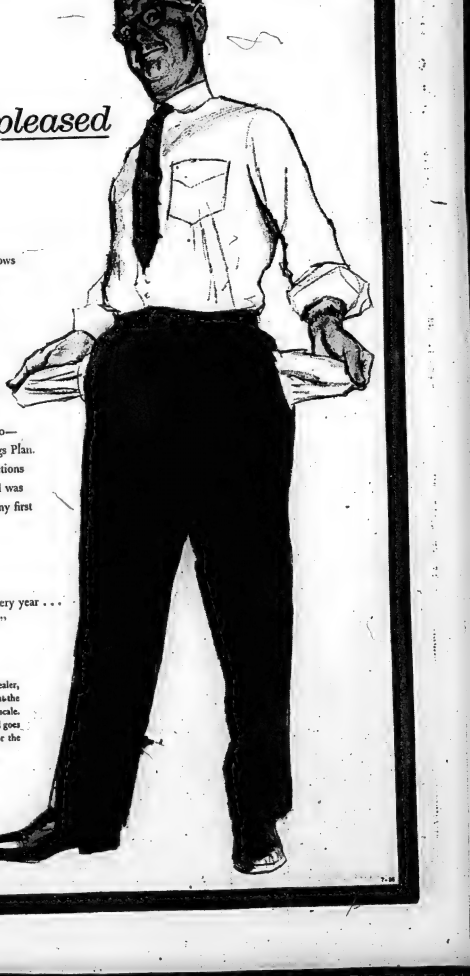
Nature's great Food combination—an aid to health and regularity

Good food bulk in effective cereal form

Nature in her wisdom provided us with a great abundance of foods containing bulk (the gentle roughage that keeps us regular).

Yet man in his haste often turns to easy, prepared foods that lack the necessary bulk our systems require. Gradually the constipation habit develops. And instead of restoring bulk to his diet, man tried other methods that frequently fail because they do not get at the cause of his constipation: lack of dietary bulk.

If this is your problem, do as thousands do: put your trust in nature and try Kellogg's All-Bran. This good-tasting, inexpensive cereal supplies all the natural food bulk you need daily for regularity.



All-Bran is made from the outer layers of whole wheat grain. It was from this natural bran that W. K. Kellogg developed All-Bran over 40 years ago. He improved the flavor and eating qualities of the bran while retaining its natural effectiveness.

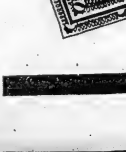
All-Bran is itself a cereal of high nutritional value. And served with milk (either hot or cold) it is an aid to health and regularity.

You will enjoy All-Bran not only for its beneficial effects, but for its delicious nut-like flavor as well. Indeed, many people prefer it for flavor alone to any other cereal. And for many years All-Bran has been the most widely accepted and used of all bran cereals.

If you are ready to give All-Bran a fair try, do this: Eat a half a cup of All-Bran and milk every morning (or before bed at night). Do this for 10 days. See if it doesn't bring you out of the constipation habit . . . gently, pleasantly and naturally. If not absolutely satisfied, return the empty carton and get twice what you paid. That's a promise from Kellogg's, London, Ont.

I'm mighty pleased with me!

"You know . . . I'm one of those fellows who confidently stuffs his pay in his pocket . . . only to find that the money magically got itself spent —on what? I never knew.



Then it happened . . .

In what I considered a weak moment I signed up for a couple of Canada Savings Bonds a few years ago— through my company's Payroll Savings Plan. I really didn't miss the regular deductions —not after the first one anyway. And was I a surprised and happy man when my first paid up bonds were handed me!

Money I'd saved!

I'm mighty proud of me!

Naturally, I've kept on doing this every year . . . and I'm doing it again this October!"

Ask your investment dealer, bank or pay office about the stepped-up interest scale. It begins at 3¼% and goes up in steps to 4% for the last 7 years.

Canadian Army Works Hard On How It Would Help Defend West Germany in Case of War

SOEST, West Germany (CP)—Just beyond the volcanic chimneys and ranges of slag of the smoking ruhr, the Canadian army works tirelessly on how it would help to defend West Germany.

In this rural flatland, truck convoys move the 6,000 troops of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade group to exercise areas where they work out atomic tactics by fighting mock battles against British tommies.

The brigade considers itself a lone wolf. It does not look for help from home in the event of a Russian ground attack on Western Europe.

In such an eventuality, it would probably take at least 14 days for the remainder of the 1st Canadian Infantry division to get to Europe. Considering the strength of NATO land forces now in Europe, this would in all likelihood be too late and the brigade would be strictly on its own.

"We'd fight and, make no mistake about it, we'd give a good account of ourselves," said tall barrel-chested Brig. Roger Rowley, formation commander.

He was standing beside his caravan in a cobblestoned German farmyard as his troops prepared to move forward through the dripping rain to relieve a town held by the British.

The Canadians had moved out of their quarters at Soest, West and Iserlohn at daybreak and had driven more than 30 miles to the training area. Sometimes they have to travel much further.

For two years, Canadian soldiers here have been concentrating on atomic tactics. The brigade itself does not have atomic cannon but under actual war conditions could call for such a weapon.

One of the main objects is to keep troops sufficiently dispersed so as not to "suck an atomic blow" but not so scattered that the enemy could filter through or that quick concentration could not be achieved for an offensive.

The key to this problem is good communications and army officers say they are still not what they should be. If a commander is to maintain control over highly mobile troops, he must be in constant touch with sub-commanders.

The 2nd brigade has worked out atomic battlefield tactics on paper and tried them out on the ground. The aim has been to achieve a breakthrough without stopping any great group of troops for any length of time to an atomic burst.

For the infantry soldier, preparing for battle means a constant series of exercises.

He gets training in individual weapons. Then he works out with his platoon. Company and battalion exercises follow and then the whole brigade trains as a unit, alone and with British formations. All this takes about a year and after a spot of leave the soldier starts all over again.

Married quarters, just on the edge of this city of some 30,000, are comfortable. They are apartment buildings for the most part and there is not a great deal of playground room for the hundreds of children. Many soldiers prefer German accommodations because they feel that in married quarters one never gets away from the army.

Wives can shop at the Maple Leaf Services Stores, considered a big advantage over the German shops. Food prices generally are a little higher than in Canada.

The RCAF claims that its post exchanges on its bases in France and Germany are far superior to Maple Leaf Services.

The air force argument is that post exchange prices are lower than those in the Maple Leaf Services because the exchanges are small and run individually by each base. There is practically no overhead.

Maple Leaf Services, on the other hand, is run by the army on a large scale and has considerable overhead. Many soldiers claim the prices are too high but admit that matters will probably improve when the MLS has been in operation longer.

A common complaint in both the brigade and the RCA air division is that there is a shortage of Canadian news.

The army radio station records the army newspaper broadcasts but often these are blanked out by bad atmospherics. A request visitor from Canada to the brigade and air division was granted at almost every turn for the latest scores in the Canadian football leagues.

Many brigade and division members would like to see revival of the army newspaper Maple Leaf or the RCAF paper Wings published in Europe during the Second World War.

Want to Spend Part of Year At Nudist Camp

OTTAWA (CP)—A young married couple, considering moving to Canada from Britain, won't come unless they can spend part of every year at a nudist camp.

The federal travel bureau Thursday reported it has received a letter from the husband, a 22-year-old engineer, inquiring about coming to Canada. It read in part:

"One condition on which both my wife and I insist is that we are able to join a nudist summer camp and go there every year, as we have been accustomed to do here in England."

The bureau sent him a list of 11 nudist camps in British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and New Brunswick.

Algonquin Indians Save Seven Montrealers From Drowning

MONTREAL (CP)—How a band of Algonquin Indians, coming to the rescue in canoes, saved seven Montrealers from drowning in a lake 375 miles north of this city was related Thursday.

The rescue was carried out last Sunday by the Indians, who live on an island in the lake and skillfully manoeuvred three canoes in saving all seven.

"Seven of us from Montreal, along with two American guests, had been fishing in Lac Jomis, south of Val d'Or," said Jack Bernstein. "We wanted to get across the neck of the lake in our three flat-bottomed boats.

"Three of the fellows started first. Their motor conked out and their boat was swept into the rapids and upset.

"Two of us set out in a second boat to save them. But we got caught, too, and our boat started shipping water. The third boat followed, but sank just as it reached our boat.

"The two in it were able to jump into our boat. By this time the three fellows from the first boat were hanging to the side of our half-filled boat. The load was too much and we rolled over.

"We were all in the water, struggling to keep afloat. Many soldiers claim the prices are too high but admit that matters will probably improve when the MLS has been in operation longer.

A common complaint in both the brigade and the RCA air division is that there is a shortage of Canadian news.

The army radio station records the army newspaper broadcasts but often these are blanked out by bad atmospherics. A request visitor from Canada to the brigade and air division was granted at almost every turn for the latest scores in the Canadian football leagues.

Many brigade and division members would like to see revival of the army newspaper Maple Leaf or the RCAF paper Wings published in Europe during the Second World War.

"The Indians, headed by Chief James Quable, are guides in the summer and trappers in the winter, said Mr. Bernstein.

After looking after the three rescuers, the Indians found the two Americans, who were on shore trying to fix their dead motor.

The rescued men have given $500 to the village, where 10 families live, and plan to make contributions of clothing and food.

In the boats in addition to Mr. Salsman, who was still confined to his bed Thursday, were Mr. Bernstein, 32; Donald Udashkin, 24; Isaie Lubarsky, Bernard Gilnick, and two others who asked their names not be made public.

COWS ELECTROCUTED

MONTGOMERY, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty-three cows died in a chain-reaction electrocution Wednesday when a high voltage wire snapped and fell into a pasture. Montgomery police said the uninsulated wire carrying 2,400 volts broke and fell into a pasture where 100 jersey cows were grazing. One cow investigated and was electrocuted. The other cows, nudging the fallen one and each other, fell one by one.

FOUR KILLED

GLEN FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Four men were killed Thursday in a head-on collision of two automobiles about three miles south of here. Two others were injured.

600 Employees Advised to Return to Work

WINDSOR (CP) — Some 600 striking Canadian Bridge Company employees in this city were advised Thursday to return to work by William Mahoney, acting director of the United Steelworkers.

In a statement issued from the union's national headquarters in Toronto, Mr. Mahoney told the workers to return to work and take any action through grievance procedure.

The Steelworkers have been on strike since Sept. 27 when the company took disciplinary action against an employee who was also a member of the union executive.

Members of the union Tuesday night took an 80 per cent vote to remain on strike.

Thursday 50 pickets remained at their posts at the main gates of the Canadian Bridge and with the exception of engineers and a few others, they barred entrance to the plant.

U.S. MOVIES FOR U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (AP) — Bernard Kreisler, president of Motion Picture International Film Associates Corporation, said Thursday night he has reached agreement with Soviet officials for distribution in Russia of American movies. The agreement would permit Soviet citizens to see 15 selected U.S. movies exhibited for the first time in the Soviet Union.

Tom Thomson's Biographer Says Painter's Untimely Death 'Violent but Not Premeditated'

REGINA (CP)—Tom Thomson's biographer says the famous Canadian painter's untimely death, in an Ontario lake in 1917 was "violent, but not premeditated."

Miss Blodwen Davies, acting executive director of the Saskatchewan arts board, said Thursday that in 1931 she investigated Thomson's alleged death by drowning and found evidence of foul play.

"I made a complete report of my findings and it is now on file in the Ontario attorney-general's department," she said. "I tried to get the government to open an investigation but they said it all happened so long ago it was best to leave it alone."

Miss Davies was commenting on Toronto reports that amateur artist William Little and two other men found a skeleton which they suggested might be Thomson's in an unmarked grave in Algonquin Park, near the spot where Thomson originally was buried.

Miss Davies, who made her own investigation a few months before writing the biography she entitled simply Tom Thomson, suggested a hole in the skull could have been made by a canoe paddle wielded by a member of a family with whom Thomson feuded.

Her version of what happened is that Thomson was paddling along the shore of Canoe Lake and ran into another canoeist. The second canoeist struck Thomson with a paddle.

When he saw the injury was fatal, Miss Davies suggests, he bound and weighted the body and dumped it in the lake. She says the legs were bound with fishing line.

Miss Davies supported Mr. Little's story, told to him 25 years earlier by forest ranger Mark Robinson, that the artist's body was never transferred from its original grave. Official records say Thomson was buried at Owen Sound.

She said his family had ordered the body transferred 10 days after it had been buried near Canoe Lake.

"The undertaker arrived after dark. The change of bodies occurred the grave after the undertaker's visit told me only a one-third iron bar of the mound had been disturbed. A body could not possibly have been taken up through that small hole."

Miss Davies speculated that the undertaker had been in a hurry and simply filled his casket with the gravel. Thomson's body was badly decomposed, and the family never opened the casket.

KIWI LIQUID Shoe Shine

This high quality all-purpose liquid shine makes 'paint-type' liquids old fashioned!

A KIWI LIQUID SHINE actually flows on to shoes — requires no buffing unless you wish a super-gloss shine, in which case light buffing is sufficient! And KIWI, by laboratory test, goes more than twice as far as 'paint-type' liquid polish. You use every drop of KIWI . . . there's no undissolved pigment to be left, wasted, caked to the bottle! KIWI works wonders with everything from children's scuffed shoes to your own finest dress shoes, and it takes just seconds to apply! And unlike other liquid polishes KIWI is water resistant and will not run, even if you're caught in a downpour! Get KIWI LIQUID SHINE now for the ultimate in shoe care! In all popular colours.

RICH IN REAL WAX — Free-Flowing KIWI gives no "painted look".

WATER RESISTANT — Contains silicones to repel water and dust.

COVERS SCUFF MARKS yet restores the colour of the shoes.

NON-TIPPING BOTTLE has pinched neck to "wring out" excess polish when applying. No more stained fingers or clothes.

NO SHAKING NEEDED — The new formula liquid doesn't settle out like other liquids—doesn't lose its colour strength.

CLEANS TWO-TONE SHOES easily and quickly — gives them a high polish.

SHANNONVILLE — Church service was withdrawn in the United Church on Sunday so all would have the opportunity to attend the anniversary services at Melrose.

Next Sunday, October 14th., anniversary services will be held in Shannonville United Church at 11:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Sidney E. Larman, minister of Hallaway Street Church, Belleville, will be the guest speaker for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fritz, Larry and Sylvia, spent the weekend and Thanksgiving Day with relatives at Tinsmire.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thomson of Little Britain, called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boulstridge Saturday evening.

Mrs. Hinchliffe and Mrs. Fields of England, who were summer guests of their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kilburn, left for home on the steamer Saxonia, on Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Kilburn accompanied them as far as Montreal, where they boarded the ship. While here, the ladies visited various places of interest including a sight seeing trip through the Thousand Islands, and a trip to Niagara Falls. They also spent a few days at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Goodfellow and family have taken up residence in their new home in Belleville.

Mrs. Everett Stratton, Mrs. Damon Hinchey, Mrs. K. R. Vivian, Mrs. Asa Cook and Mrs. A. R. Wescott were guests on Wednesday evening at a tea and bazaar in Lonsdale hall which was sponsored by the ladies of Lonsdale United Church.

Mr. Wallace Robertson and son Donald, and Roy Jackson, of Toronto, spent the holiday weekend with Mrs. W. D. Robertson.

Miss Margaret White, Toronto, was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Winn.

Miss Gail Juby is attending Ontario Business College, Belleville.

Miss Winnifred Eckardt has returned home from Belleville Hospital and is feeling improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boulstridge spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bird, and family at Camiffton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wescott were dinner guests on Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Chaplin, Belleville.

Judy Sager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sager, underwent a tonsilectomy in Belleville General Hospital on Friday.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ross (nee June Stewart) who were married on Saturday.

Mrs. K. R. Vivian, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, Mrs. Sidney Fitzgerald, Mrs. Elmer Vivian and Mrs. W. D. Robertson attended the monthly meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute which was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Atkins on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Fitzgerald assisted with the program by giving a talk on public relations and community activities.

The meeting was well attended, with a good program, conveyed by Mrs. Harry Grills and delicious refreshments made an enjoyable time for all present.

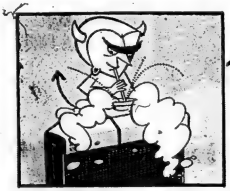
PRESTONE BRAND ANTI-FREEZE
TAKES OVER WHERE OTHERS STOP!



Corrosion in your radiator eats through metal—causes leaks. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze guards against ruinous corrosion. Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of repairing radiator.... $10.00 to $15.00

Incomplete freeze-up protection can cause untold damage like a cracked cylinder block. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze gives you guaranteed freeze-up protection. Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of repairing or replacing block... $100.00 to $850.00

A corroded, clogged cooling system causes overheating... and that means excessive cylinder wear. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze allows your engine to run at proper temperatures for least wear. Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of reconditioned engine..... $250.00 to $325.00

If you had to add anti-freeze last winter, it may have been because of foaming loss. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze does not foam. Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of adding even 2 quarts of anti-freeze..... $2.00 to $2.50

Rust and corrosion can cause serious trouble in the radiator as well as the engine block. A rust choked radiator stops cooling... causes overheating. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze guards against rust! Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of cleaning or replacing clogged radiator. $9.00 to $75.00

Rubber hose connections also need protection. The Polar Film inhibitor in "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze coats all cooling system parts—including rubber—gives the protection required. Are you sure with other brands of anti-freeze? Cost of new rubber hose connections... $8.00 to $12.00

Remember these pictures when somebody tells you all makes of anti-freezes are the same!

It could be an expensive winter unless you use the anti-freeze that protects against all the cooling system hazards your car's engine will have to face. Almost any anti-freeze gives you just freeze-up protection. But "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze does far more... takes over where others stop. It conditions your cooling system, guards against ruinous corrosion, helps reduce engine wear, helps keep your car running smoothly and efficiently. So ask for "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze. See that you get it. And if somebody tells you all anti-freezes are the same... remember how much it can cost you if all you buy is just freeze-up protection!

Chicubs Clean House After Big Shakeup

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs were expected to complete their house cleaning today by naming Bob Scheffing, one of their ex-catchers, as field manager.

The Cubs' shakeup from front office to the field started Thursday when personnel director Wid Matthews, business manager Jim Gallagher and skipper Stan Hack resigned.

Returning to his third hitch with the club is Charlie Grimm, idolring him in the reorganized front office is Joe Holland, a baseball 35 of his 46 years and on the Cub payroll the last 11.

They were given titles of vice-president.

WON FLAG ON COAST

Holland, as president of the Cubs' Los Angeles farm in the Pacific Coast League, and Scheffing as field manager, produced a pennant this year.

Remaining as executive vice-president of the Cubs is another veteran, 75 - year - old Clarence (Pants) Rowland.

They have the assignment of lifting the Cubs up by the bootstraps after 10 dismal seasons in the National League second division.

Matthews is a smiling, 38-year-old goatleman who sincerely thought the Cubs were on the climb and received the brunt of criticism when they kept tailspinning.

No sooner had Wid resigned than Fred Fond, general manager of Cincinnati Redlegs, said he "is a very capable fellow and we'd like to have him in our organization."

Gallagher, a former Chicago sports writer, had been with the Cubs since 1940. One rumor has him wheding up across town with the White Sox.

Hack was a long-time third baseman for the Cubs and managed the Des Moines and Los Angeles farm clubs before replacing one of his former teammates, Phil Cavarretta, at the helm in the spring of 1954.

Key man in the new order appears to be Holland, a stocky mild-mannered man.

"There won't be any titles except that of vice-president," said owner P. K. Wrigley. "The only time you have to designate authority is when there is a conflict. There definitely will be no general manager. I'm allergic to them."

PRESLEY SUED

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Rock 'n' roll singer Elvis Presley was sued for $30,000 Thursday by a Fort Worth promoter who charged the entertainer reneged on a contract to make four personal appearances at $500 per show. The suit was filed in state district court here by R. G. McElyee, operator of the North Side Coliseum.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—and then quit—put more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can live fifty, sixty years interesting and active years ahead,—active that is, if you can avoid backache and the "worn-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Doan's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, to work better, to get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Doan's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Doan's. 24

Industrial Hockey League Meets Mon.

The Industrial hockey league will hold its initial meeting of the year at Belleville Memorial Arena on Monday evening to lay plans for the coming season.

Any club wishing to enter is asked to have a representative present at 7:30 p.m.

Seven teams participated last year and most are expected to return. Point Anne captured the league title while Ontario Intelligencer won the playoff trophy.

Ken Cannon will chair the meeting at which time a full executive will likely be elected for the 1956-57 season.

Will Recreate Big Four Games

By JIM PEACOCK

EDMONTON (CP)—This Saturday four Western Canada radio stations will carry play-by-play accounts of football games in the Eastern Big Four League.

Each account will have the same essential facts of the play but each will vary in descriptive commentary and background sounds according to the imagination of the announcers and producer.

The broadcasts, as they have been every Saturday since the season started, will be recreated accounts of the action.

The stations carrying the recreations this year are CJCA, Edmonton, where Maurice Carter is the play-by-play announcer; CFRN Edmonton, with Al Shaver giving the account; CFAC, Calgary, with Eric Bishop on the microphone; and C-FUN, Vancouver, where Bob Smith is the reporter.

LARGE FOLLOWING

Opinions vary as to the number of listeners who realize the broadcasts are not "live." But the stations are unanimous in stating that the number of listeners is large.

"Judging by our phone calls, we've got a huge audience," says Shaver.

The idea to recreate the Big Four games was originated in 1954 by Carter, when Edmonton station then did not have the direct broadcasts of any of the Western Interprovincial Football Union games and found it too costly to bring in direct accounts from Big Four cities.

To many listening to the broadcasts, restricted to Saturdays and holidays on all but CJCA, which has also carried mid-week games, the accounts may well sound as though they are coming directly from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto or Hamilton.

CONDENSED FORM

Actually, all that comes directly is a typewritten sketch of each play, moved into the studio by direct telegraph line that will deliver something like this: "Montreal 45—Etcheverry handoff Abrunet, right tackle six yards, tackle by Jones."

The announcer dramatizes from this and usually is from three to five minutes behind the actual play. Crowd noises are obtained in from recordings and a public address commentary is worked into the background.

One station, when carrying accounts of a Montreal game, plays announcements in French over the loudspeaker to help give an authentic touch.

"We have a better listening audience on Big Four recreations than we do on our live accounts of Western Conference games," says Carter. "That may sound ridiculous, but it's true."

Rochester, Lords Game off; Team May Fold

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A Senior Ontario Rugby Football League game between Rochester Rockets and London Lords scheduled to be played here Saturday night has been called off, Ralph Duffus, president of the London club announced Thursday night.

A story from Rochester Thursday said the Rockets, who have been in financial difficulty all season, "were on the verge of folding" and the team would be "dissolved after Saturday's game in London."

However Duffus said the game had been called off "to play fair with London's football fans."

BOUGHT INSURANCE FEE

"I spoke to Joe Parricelli, vice-president of the original Rochester club and he was willing to bring the team up here," Duffus said. "But in addition to the $1,500 guarantee, he asked that we pay a $600 balance Rochester owes on their insurance. Naturally I refused to agree to this.

"Then Parricello asked would we pay $200 toward the insurance balance. I refused.

"Finally he said that the team would come up anyway, but feeling that they would bring an inferior club, I refused to call the game off. It wouldn't be fair to the London fans or Rochester players with its team packed with high school kids. We don't want to gyp the public."

Officials of the Rochester club, which has failed to win in five starts, refused to confirm or deny the report that the Rockets would fold, each.

It was believed that a plan to refinance the club had fallen through because club officials felt they could not post a $5,000 performance bond demanded by the league. The league had agreed to make the Rockets' road guarantee $1,500 for the balance of the season, instead of the usual 15 per cent.

The club's debts were reported to total about $5,000.

OPEN TRADE TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada may ask Hungary to buy fixed quantities of Canadian goods in exchange for lower tariffs on Hungarian products, it was learned Thursday. Negotiators from the two countries have opened talks here aimed at development of a most-favored-nation tariff treaty. Officials said the talks may continue for about two weeks.

Redmen Ready For Mustangs

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill Redmen topped a week's hard-driven stint at practising Thursday night with a full session of pass plays, pass defence and scrimmaging in preparation for Saturday's game against Toronto Varsity Blues here.

Coach Larry Sullivan, disappointed after McGill's 6-3 loss to Western a week in the Intercollegiate opener, refused to predict what will happen.

There'll be a signal drill Friday night when Sullivan will name his 35-man squad.

McGill came out of the western match unscathed and Les Sigurdson, the Winnipeg tackle who hurt a knee in the team's exhibition romp against McMaster, may be back.

Saturday's game will mark the first appearance of Girls on a McGill gridiron. Cheer leaderettes have been working hard on routines for the debut.

Newk Happy Borrows $100 From O'Malley

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Reporters asked president Walter O'Malley whether he is going to keep his eyes peeled for any promising players when he takes some of the Brooklyn Dodgers on a baseball tour of Japan.

"One promising player I'm going to look at is named Don Newcombe," O'Malley said. "He borrowed $100 from me the minute he got on the plane yesterday and promised to pay it back."

O'Malley said the big 27-game winner, who was "lost" for a time after being taken out of the final world series game against New York Yankees, boarded the plane in New York with no baggage.

Newcombe's wife is due here today with his luggage before the Dodgers leave by air for the Orient.

Dick Irvin Appointed NHL Goodwill Man

MONTREAL (CP)—Dick Irvin, veteran hockey coach who had to retire less than two weeks ago because of ill health, has been appointed by the National Hockey League as a goodwill ambassador.

Irvin, now 64, will have something of a roving commission. It will be his job to boost hockey in general and the NHL in particular. Dependent upon his future health, Irvin likely will make public speeches, appear on television and radio and conduct clinics for coaches across Canada.

Irvin's retirement as an active coach was announced Sept. 30 from the St. Catharines training camp of the Chicago Black Hawks. It marked the end of 46 years in hockey.

At his home Thursday Irvin said he was highly pleased with his appointment and was grateful to the NHL for an opportunity to continue in hockey. He said he may not be able to give much thought to the new job for at least two weeks but hopes he can do a good job.

Irvin said he feels fine some days now and on others not so well.

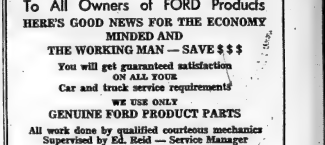
Realty Firm Buys Belair

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 2,200-acre Belair Stud Warm, where Nashua, Gallant Fox and other famed race horses were raised, has been bought by Webb and Knapp, Inc., New York real estate firm.

The farm, 18 miles northeast of here, was purchased from the estate of William Woodard Jr., shot to death Oct. 20, 1955, when his wife mistook him for a prowler in their Oyster Bay, N.Y., home.

The Jale price was not disclosed but a few weeks ago the trustees were asking $1,250,000 for the property.



It was reported some of the land will be used to build houses and another section possibly for a 36-hole golf course.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

KITCHENER TONIGHT

Coach Bep Guidolin whipped his McFarlands' puckchasers through strenuous workouts yesterday morning, likewise this a.m., and hopes to have them in fair condition for tonight's puck debut against the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Guidolin is not sparing the flywsitve punches in his drills. "They'll either play hockey or they won't play," he said last night. "I want my players in shape for this is going to be a tough league." He is working just as hard himself, only taking time out for instructional purposes.

Guidolin will use all twenty-one players at present on the club roster. "They all will get a chance to show their stuff. Besides it will give me a better idea of who fits where."

The coach will appear on the ice in short spurts for he wants the opportunity to study his players in competitive action.

The McFarlands have five husky defencemen, all of them solid hands at manpower who should fill the bill behind the blueliner. Guidolin himself will play defence. Maurice Benoit and Lloyd Crawford, who caught the eye of the railbirds in practice weekend, will start in front of either Claude Desiere and Don Lewis.

Hilary (Minnie) Menard will start at centre and the Val D'Or speedster will be flanked by Paul Parrette on left wing and Lucien Gilbert on right. You pronounce that name "Gilbair." Paul is a brother of Pete Parrette, who, it will be recalled, starred for the Cornwall Colts last season.

Big, blonde, husky Lloyd Hinchberger will share defence duties with Guidolin and Jake Wade. Lloyd starred with the St. John Beavers, Atlantic Senior League champions last season. He notched nine goals and was credited with 37 assists for 16 points.

Bep did not announce his other lines before game time. However, he may use an all-Belleville line of Keith MacDonald, Peter and Davy Jones, as he was working them together in the practice tilts. Other Belleville players who will see action are Vern Goyer and Sammy Mulholland.

Also up on the firing line will be: Real Larouche, Willie Menard, Andre Morrissette, Henry Therrien (remember Hammarin' Hank?), Cliff Connelly, who played with the Cornwall Canks two years ago, and Wally Samanski, former Whitby Dunlops star.

JOBE HOCKEY

A brilliantly - garbed Rochester Americans hockey team, modern counterparts, as far as colors go, to the former New York Americans NHL club, handed the new Kingston CKLC's, senior A club, a 7-0 defeat last night.

Neither club looked too impressive with the Elcees showing an undeniable lack of practice. 'Twas stated it was their fourth time on the ice.

The star-spangled crew fired home seven goals, three past Bert Brooks and the rest by Ken Johnson. These, with Joe Levasdeskis, Don Murray, Ted Nicholson and Toppazzini were the only former "Cockeyed" to see action. Frank Corelli and Gerry O'Reilley, two imports, looked the best of the squad.

Press box chatter had it that Hub Macey, Jack White and other former Goodyear stalwarts are holdouts.

While the Elcees were held scoreless they missed chances galore on occasions, mainly in the work of Charlie Hodge in the Rochester nets. Paul Masnick, former Canadien, Glen Crossman, Ken Hurst, Gordie Hannigan went well for the visitors.

Don Thomson and Archie Richardson, former Brockville Maroonmen, are wearing Elcee uniforms, but the rest, outside of the ex-Goodyears, were names strang to this reporter. Not a few of them are youngsters. The Elcees, however, will bolster the club with seasoned senior veterans after the pre-cut deadline.

Experts Pick Habs for Top With Wings or Rangers Next; Rest Can Scramble for Spots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League got started on another 70-game schedule Thursday night and there was no inkling of any surprises for the 1956-57 campaign.

Detroit Red Wings, expected to be among the top three when things wind up next spring, sported an early goal to Chicago Black Hawks and rallied in the last two periods to take a 3-1 decision. Such power was not surprising. The Wings have had it for years.

In Boston, Toronto Maple Leafs drove from behind four times before they ended with a 4-4 tie against the Bruins. Neither team showed exceptional class.

The experts won't get a chance to appraise all six clubs for another two weeks or so. But the way it stands now Montreal Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, should take first spot. The Habs and New York Rangers probably will battle for second place and the other clubs scrambling for what positions are left.

HAWKS SCORE FIRST

Detroit grabbed its victory on goals by Norm Ullman, Metro Prystai and Ted Lindsay. The best Hawks could do was a goal by Hank Ciesla at 9:33 of the first period while Lindsay was in the penalty box.

The Wings goals were scored on close-in shots. Ullman took a pass from right winger Gordie Howe in the second period to beat netminder Al Rollins easily. Prystai scored on Alex Delvecchio's goalmouth pass while Chicago's Jack McIlhargey was sitting out a minor penalty. Hawks put on the pressure until Lindsay defleted them with a goal on Howe's pass at 15:12 of the final period.

Referee Frank Udvari had a quiet night. He called only five minor penalties, three to Hawks. Attendance was 10,731.

A crowd of 10,513 was on hand at Boston to see the new edition of the Bruins. Boston scorers were Allan Stanley, Jack McKenzy, Gerry Toppazzini and Johnny Peirson. Toronto Leafs with two goals, Left winger Sid Smith and rookie Gary Aldcorn got single.

It was a good evening for Leaf defenceman Jim Thomson. He was named Toronto's new captain just before the engagement and turned in a great game. Although he didn't score a goal, Thomson set up Smith for the tying goal at 8:48 of the third period.

Smith was Leaf captain last year but resigned after he slipped from a 33-goal man two years ago to a mere four last season.

One game is scheduled tonight. Rangers meet Hawks at Chicago. The Bruins are at Montreal Canadiens Saturday, and Wings meet Leafs at Toronto. On Sunday it's Canadiens at Boston, Toronto at Chicago and Rangers at Detroit.

Normie Kwong Should Break Own Record

REGINA (CP)—Normie Kwong, Edmonton's hard-plunging homebrew fullback, is just 162 yards short of the Western Interprovincial Football Union ground-gaining record he set in 1955.

Figures released Thursday by Bill Hawrylak of Regina, chief WIFU statistician, show Kwong with a net gain of 1,088 yards. He only has to average 43 yards in each of the four remaining games for Eskimos to surpass his present mark.

Kwong appears assured of retaining his rushing supremacy as he has widened his lead to almost 200 yards over his nearest rival. Import fullback Earl Lunsford of Calgary Stampeders, Lunford has netted 894 yards.

Saskatchewan's Frank Tripucka maintained a torrid pace in every passing department. He has thrown the most passes, 258, completed the most, 151, for the best completion average, 58.5 per cent, and the most total yardage, 2,356. The Rider ace also has tossed the most touchdown passes, 13.

NEARING GOAL

VANCOUVER (CP)—A University of British Columbia alumni official Thursday reported that $21,000 of the $25,000 needed to send the combined UBC-Vancouver Rowing Club team to the Melbourne Olympics has been collected. The provincial government added $10,000 to donations from companies and private citizens.

Bisons, Reds Open American League Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American Hockey League, with Rochester replacing Pittsburgh in the six - team circuit, opens its 21st season tonight with Providence Reds starting defence of their title at home against Buffalo Bisons.

With three games scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, all of the clubs will be in action, both at home and on the road, by the end of the first weekend of the new season.

On Saturday, Rochester Americans play at Cleveland, Buffalo at Springfield and Providence at Hershey. Sunday Hershey travels to Buffalo, Cleveland to Rochester and Springfield to Providence.

Particular interest centers around the pair of games which the Americans play against Cleveland Barons. The Americans represent the first professional hockey team in Rochester since 1935-36. The Barons, a farm team last year by Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Providence, which won both the league title and the Calder Cup playoffs last season, again will have the nucleus of the team supplied by the New York Rangers. Buffalo has a working agreement with Chicago Black Hawks.

Hershey will receive some help from Boston but has been weakened by the purchase of seven stars of the disbanded Pittsburgh Hornets, including playing coach Frank Mathers, goaltender Gil Mayer and the high scoring Willie Marshall and Ben Solinger.

The two teams which have been strictly independent for years will remain that way. They are Cleveland and Springfield.

Bruised Argos Will Make Desperate Stand

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, bruised and battered but still hopeful, are making a Big Four football playoff berth, Thursday night's whipped finish an extensive two-hour workout for their game against Montreal Alouettes on Saturday.

The last-place Argos concentrated on pass defence at coach Bill Swiacki had his offensive squad run through the Alouette formations. The Toronto club's aerial defence has been terrible most of the season.

The Scullers, in the midst of a four-game losing streak and reeling the third-place Ottawa Rough Riders by two points for the last playoff spot, are in bad shape physically. They used only nine imports in Monday's game because of injuries and, with tackle Bill Albright and quarterback Tom Dublinski still on the limp, will have to go with 11 against Montreal.

Albright, their best lineman, is out with a shoulder separation and Dublinski still has a leg to play his first league game since injuring his knee in a pre-season exhibition game. Dublinski tested his knee for the first time Wednesday night, favoring it lightly to see how it stood up.

STILL CAN'T TURN

He said it felt good but he still couldn't turn sharply. It is still not likely he will be able to play at all this year and the $17,500-a-year quarterback is hoping he can avoid an operation on the torn cartilages.

End Bucky Curtis and tackle Francis Machinsky, two of the imports who did not play last weekend, will be in action against Montreal. Curtis has an ankle injury and Machinsky a banged-up knee. Neither will be in top shape.

Two of the backs are Paul Dandians, centre Norm Stoneburgh and linebacker Alex Ponton, will not be dressed. Stoneburgh suffered a shoulder separation in hitting a blocking dummy in practice last week. Ponton is through for the season with a knee injury.

Alston Pays Tribute to Big Newk 'He Put Us in the World Series'

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Don Newcombe caught the plane to Japan with his Brooklyn Dodger team-mates Thursday after being "lost" for almost 24 hours.

The Newcombe story was headline news overnight when the Dodgers' jumbo-sized righthander disappeared after disobeying orders by leaving the clubhouse following his fourth-inning knockout in the final series game against New York Yankees.

Newcombe finally turned up at his home in Colonia ,N.J., in time to make a brief appearance in a magistrate's court in Brooklyn to answer a summons for assault. The hearing on an alleged attack on a parking lot attendant after the second series game was postponed until Nov. 28 by Magistrate Raymond Tierney despite objections from the lawyer of Mike Brown, who claimed Newcombe hit him.

Newk's wife also was making the trip to Japan along with other Dodger officials and wives. The club will play 21 exhibition games in Japan and environs.

Although Dodger officials fired some caustic remarks Wednesday when Newk hurriedly left the ball park without permission, they were inclined to forgive and forget the infraction.

"The season was over and Newcombe could go anywhere he wanted as long as he showed up today, which he did," said E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, vice-president and general manager of the Dodgers.

"I knew he was going all the time," said manager Walter Alston. "If not for Newcombe, we wouldn't have been in the series to start with."

"He's a member of the Dodgers and I knew he would be here," said Walter O'Malley, Dodger president who accompanied the team.

When the plane took off, there were 31 persons aboard. Actually there will be 25 players making the tour, including some members of the Dodgers' farm system. Warren Giles, National League president, and umpire Jocko Conlan also were aboard.

Asked about the series, Newk said: "The way I pitched, I don't know there's much you can say about it."

Alston broke in: "I'd like to say, if it had not been for Newcombe, we wouldn't have been in the series. He won 27 games and every one was a big game."

Newcombe replied: "Well, I would like to add, where can I find another ball club like Brooklyn? They appreciate what you do for them. I'll win more than 27 next year."

Quarterback Shuffle Big Play In Saturday Big Four Tilts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The quarterback shuffle, the Big Four Football Union's most popular play this season, may be back in full operation again Saturday.

Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats started things off by using a total of seven starting quarters in exhibition and league games this year. They seem to have things set now but Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders may take up the slack.

Als' coach Peahead Walker is faced with the problem of replacing Sam Etcheverry, whose bruised knee may force him out after 99 straight games. Walker will use Bruce Coulter, a competent Canadian, if the Rifle can't go against Argos in Toronto Saturday, but his attack would be seriously weakened.

QUARTER TROUBLE

Ottawa also has quarterback trouble. Coach Frank Clair may have to fall back on Chuck Harding, used mainly on defence this season, when Riders meet Tiger-Cats in Hamilton Saturday because first-string Hal Ledyard is on the limp.

Rough Riders Thursday claimed Nobby Wirkowski from Hamilton in an attempt to strengthen their quarterback position. However, there is some question about Wirkowski accepting the move.

Clair says he intends to use Wirkowski this season but Hamilton officials say they doubt Nobby will turn out with Riders. Wirkowski is said to be happy with his new job as TiCat scout and was reported Thursday night to be on a scouting trip in the United States.

President Jake Gaudaur of the Tiger-Cats emphasized that Wirkowski does not have to report to the Rough Riders if he does not wish to play football.

Meanwhile, nothing developed Thursday on Ottawa efforts to obtain end Jamie Flowers, cut by Baltimore Colts earlier this week. If Riders signed him, they would have to acquire his $7,500 no-cut contract with Colts. However, it is reported that Riders and Baltimore are seeking to reach an agreement on that point.

In the Intercollegiate League, two games are scheduled Saturday. University of Toronto Blues, who tied Queen's Golden Gaels 7-7 last week, will be in Montreal against McGill Redmen, victims of an upset 6-3 loss to Western Mustangs in the opener. In the other game, Gaels and Mustangs tangle in Kingston.

Both Queen's and Toronto have quarterback problems of their own. Blues' star Ed Skrzypek was hurt Saturday. Coach Dalt White can't decide whether to start Larry Zeman or Harry Wilson.

A different sort of problem confronts the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series. The ORFU started the season with two new teams, London and Rochester, N.Y., and looked strong. Now there are reports Rochester, winless and deep in debt, may fold up. Whether or not they do, a scheduled game against London on Saturday has been cancelled.

This left only one ORFU game scheduled. In that one Toronto Beaches will battle for second place in Sarnia with the Golden Bears.

Alouettes, leading the league by six points, seemed a sure bet against the fast-pace Argos until the Rifle's injury was announced. Montreal's offence has been built around him since he arrived in 1952 and with receivers like Hal Patterson, Joey Pal and Red O'Quinn the team was never more pass-minded than this year.

Toronto is reeling after four consecutive defeats, but hark back to the three-game win streak started by an upset 31-28 victory over Ala early in the season.

Tony Curcillo has lifted Hamilton to new heights since his arrival, and coach Jim Trimble's confidence is expressed by the dropping of Wirkowski. The second-place TiCats are smelling blood after an erratic start and the tough opponents for Ottawa, now in third spot.

Clair may be betting Nobby will regain the passing form he showed for many years after Frank inherited him from the University of Miami, Ohio, in 1951. In addition, Wirkowski will be rid of his import status next year.

Eskimos, Sasky Riders Battle For Western League Top Rung

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The once-proud Edmonton Eskimos and the aspiring Saskatchewan Roughriders battle it out Saturday for top spot in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The Regina encounter, the last of the regular season between the two clubs now in a first-place tie, could well shape the final order of the league standings.

Sporting a five-game winning streak and two previous top-heavy victories over the Grey Cup champion Eskimos, the Roughriders are generally conceded to have a slight edge going into Saturday's game on their home ground.

In other league games, the second-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers only two points behind the league-leaders, travel to Vancouver Saturday and visit Edmonton Monday. The fourth-place British Columbia Lions, who need a victory over Winnipeg Saturday to keep alive their chances for the third playoff spot, tackle the Stampeders in Calgary Monday.

STAMPS OUT

Calgary, with only two wins, was mathematically eliminated from the playoff race last onday.

Because of the importance of the Regina game, coach Frank (Pop) Ivy planned to leave Edmonton this morning and work out in the Saskatchewan capital tonight. Eskimo fullback Johnny Bright, just recovering from a shoulder separation, has a twisted knee but is expected to be in action this weekend.

Saskatchewan coach Frank Filchock's chief worries are whether halfback Rodney Marlow, one of the league's leading point-scorers, and tackle Mike Kmetyk will be fit. Marlow, with an aggravated knee injury performed below par and saw little action in the second half of Monday's 36-14 victory for Saskatchewan over Winnipeg. Ruby also is suffering from a knee injury.

Winnipeg coach Al Sherman has to decide whether to go along with quarterback Bob Hasa or guard-tackle Steve Canakes as his 12th import.

False Start No Contest, Money Back

TORONTO (CP) — A false start in the second race at New Woodbine Park Thursday resulted in "no contest."

The accident resulted when Risky Fay, the No. 2 horse, released all the gates by hitting the front of her stall with her nose. Starter Sam Hall didn't even have the gate-switch in his hand when the accident occurred.

Engman Henry Palaez kept his flag in the air, indicating a false start, but some of the riders couldn't restrain their horses.

Several jockeys were thrown or jumped from their mounts as the field left the gate. No one was injured although jockey Len Pond as shaken slightly.

The Ontario Jockey Club refunded $34,256 which had been wagered on the second race. The daily double paid of $16,863.20 was tickets on Count Maple, winner of the first race. Each holder of a $2 ticket received $7.10.

HEARN SOLD

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants Thursday sold Jim Hearn, a 13-year-old right-handed pitcher to Philadelphia Phillies of the National League. The purchase price was not disclosed.

REACHES 170 M.P.H.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Driver Jack Regas said Thursday he has had Edgar F. Kaiser's Hawaii Kai III to 170 miles an hour on nearby Lake Mead in test runs for the Sahara Cup races Saturday and Sunday.

Duke's Sense of Showmanship Did Not Surprise Producers

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"We've got to keep this program moving," said the Duke of Windsor. "We mustn't be in the position of staying in the same place for 11 minutes."

His remark was addressed to John Aaron and Jesse Zousmer, co-producers of Person to Person (CBS-TV), before he and the duchess appeared recently on Ed Murrow's weekly program of Friday evening home interviews.

The duke's sense of showmanship surprised neither Aaron nor Zousmer. For in their and Murrow's opinion, amateurs usually make the best actors on Person to Person. And prompt[illegible]! Well, they can be difficult at times. Not intentionally, but just because they're professionals who are used to playing to the camera.

The cameras of Person to Person poke around the homes of a great diversity of persons while Murrow, seated in New York, questions them about their personal lives and interests. This evening is typical of the diversity the program seeks. Murrow will interview Dave Garroway, the NBC performer, and Al Nilson, a radio engineer who lives with his wife on a Chinese junk anchored off Manhattan.

Scott Frost Wins Rich Trot

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Scott Frost rushed up from fifth place on the final bend Thursday night and drew away to an easy victory in the $50,100 Goshen Trot at Yonkers Raceway for his 36th straight triumph.

The four-year-old son of Hoot Mon driven by Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., was the odds-on favorite at a crowd of 18,676.

The victory earned Scott Frost $15,050 and boosted his earnings to $670,185 as he edged closer to the $733,383 won by the retired Pronto Don, the greatest money winning harness horse in history.

Those who wagered $2 on the splendid bay collected $2.80, $2.20 and $2.20 across the board.

Radio Stations Assign Police To Lords' Games

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Until the police commission acts a definite policy on handling large sports events, two officers are being assigned to the remaining home games of the London Lords in the Union, Chief Earl Knight said Thursday.

The decision results from a near riot at London's game here two weeks ago with Sarnia Golden Bears. Spreading fist fights brought a crowd of about 200 on the field. Shutting the gate three times.

There were no police at the park, but a squad of 35 officers arrived in a matter of minutes and quelled the row.

More than a dozen fans were taken in for questioning and later a few were fined as drunks.

Lords president Ralph Duffus blamed the disturbance on "hoodlerous" Sarnia fans.

Hatton Still Going Strong After 45 Years in Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Remember Raymond Hatton?

Old-time moviegoers will recall him as the comic co-star with Wally Beery in a series of riotous movies. Youngsters know him too as the sidekick of Johnny Mack Brown, Tim McCoy and Buck Jones in old movies now on television.

His old and new fans will be happy to know that Ray is still going strong and celebrating his 45th year in movies.

Forty-five years is a long time to be in any business, but it's an amazing record in a fickle industry like the movies. Year in and year out, Ray has managed to keep active in films. His latest stint was a familiar one—a grizzled buffalo hunter in Pawnee.

He likes to prove how up-to-date he is by telling you about a recent TV "a' roll film he made.

"I'm not too old to learn," he commented. "I kept my eyes open on the set, figuring I could learn something."

I caught up with Hatton at the Manguers Club, favorite hangout of film veterans. At 64 he is still vigorous. If he gets a little hazy about dates and titles, that's understandable.

He does recall that he came to Hollywood in 1911 with a vaudeville act that broke up here. A friend talked him into trying motion pictures, then considered beneath the dignity of most actors.

The two young actors took a streetcar ride to Glendale, where a film company was on location. The director asked Hatton if he could put on a beard. Hatton said yes, he could. Somehow a false and a white nightshirt with a rope around the middle and played a Russian peasant storming a castle.

One of the torches used in the scene caught onto his robe, which went up in flames. He managed to escape without injury or discouragement with the film business.

Thereafter he played with Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett and other biograph stars, then went with Sennett when he formed the Keystone Company. "I was the only one who didn't fall in the mortar box, get a pie in the face or play a cop," he said.

Then he began a long association with Cecil B. DeMille, playing in all of the director's films over a 12-year period. He played in numerous films with Wally Reid, whom he calls "the greatest star of them all."

Scott Frost Wins Rich Trot

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Scott Frost rushed up from fifth place on the final bend Thursday night and drew away to an easy victory in the $50,180 Cotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway for his 19th straight triumph.

The four-year-old son of Hoot Mon, driven by Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., was the odds-in-favorite of a crowd of 18,476.

The victory earned Scott Frost $15,650 and boosted his earnings to $278,185 as he edged closer to the $282,363 won by the retired Pronto Don, the greatest money winning harness horse in history.

Those who wagered $2 on the splendid bay collected $2.80, $2.30 and $2.20 across the board.

AT THE BELLE — Cowpoke Dean Martin and Sheriff Jerry Lewis lend their stalwart protection to fair Jackie Loughery in "Pardners", VistaVision, Technicolor western comedy, now entertaining large audiences at the Belle Theatre. The Paramount film co-stars Lori Nelson, Jeff Morrow and Jackie Loughery, and features new songs by the composers of "Love and Marriage" and "The Tender Trap."

Hatton Still Going Strong After 45 Years in Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Remember Raymond Hatton?

Old-time moviegoers will recall him as the comic co-star with Wally Beery in a series of rollicking movies. Youngsters know him too as the sidekick of Tommy Mack Brown, Tim McCoy and Buck Jones in old movies now on television.

His old and new fans will be happy to know that Ray is still going strong and celebrating his 45th year in movies.

Forty-five years is a long time to be in any business, but it's an amazing record in a fickle industry like the movies. Year in and year out, Ray has managed to keep active in films. His latest stint was a familiar one—a grizzled buffalo hunter in Pardner.

He likes to prove how up-to-date he is by telling you about a recent "kick" to roll that he made.

"I'm not too old to learn," he commented, "I kept my eyes open on the set, figuring I could learn something."

It caught up with Hatton at the Marquers Club, favorite hangout of film veterans. At 64 he is still vigorous. If he gets a little hazy about dates and titles, that's understandable.

He does recall that he came to Hollywood in 1911 with a vaudeville act that broke up here. A friend talked him into trying motion pictures, then considered beneath the dignity of most actors.

The two young actors took a streetcar ride to Glendale, where a film company was on location. The director asked Hatton if he could put on a beard. Hatton said yes; he doesn't consider it a fair and a white nightshirt with a rope around the middle and played a Russian peasant storming a castle.

One of the torches used in the scene caught onto his robe, which went up in flames. He managed to escape without injury or discouragement with the film business.

Thereafter he played with Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett and other biograph stars, then went with Sennett when he formed the Keystone Company. "I was the only one who didn't fall in the mortar box, get a pie in the face or, play a cop," he said.

Then he began a long association with Cecil B. DeMille, playing in all of the director's films over a 13-year period. He played in numerous films with Wally Reid, whom he calls "the greatest star of them all."

Radio Stations Assign Police To Lords' Games

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Until the police commission sets a definite policy on assigning large sports events, two officers are being assigned to the remaining home games of the London Lords in the Union. Chief Earl Knight said Thursday.

The decision results from a near riot at London's game here two weeks ago with Sarnia Golden Bears. Spreading fist fights brought a crowd of about 200 on the field halting the game three times.

There were no police at the park, but a squad of 35 officers arrived in a matter of minutes and quelled the row.

More than a dozen fans were taken in for questioning and later a few were fined as drunks.

Lords president Ralph Duffus blamed the disturbance on "hoodlerous" Sarnia fans.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, Oct. 19, 1968:

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Good aspects from Mars, Jupiter and the Sun should hearten you and help ambition. Be sure that your objectives are worthy ones. Finances, sound business, labor favored.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — A day in which you can acquire unusual recognition for your fine talents and capabilities if you apply them as you should. Favors, increased salary, further one's prospects indicated. Be acquisitive.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Government and military matters, hard tasks under sturdy, vigorous influences. New and unique ideas can further your progress.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Gains to be made through real estate, sound business and financial transactions. Labor, domestic affairs, activities concerned with public welfare highly favored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Excellent indications now. Be ambitious, eager to advance (honorably, of course), and don't permit lapses in your usually good record. Don't strain health, however.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Fine influences for study, teaching, reporting, all mental work. Laborious duties are also favored, as are art, science and research.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Big issues and small ones (often very important) are both favored by fine, vigorous aspects. Of course, you must be attentive, give your best efforts. Rest some in free hours.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You folks, when at your best, enjoy a stimulating day, plenty of competition, new offerings, challenges. Don't worry, and the prospects and encouragement are strong. Good cheer!

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Scientific studies, research, medicine, chemistry, tutoring, surgery among highly favored activities. Your innate love of knowledge and appreciation of value can bring many benefits.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Some careful planning will greatly facilitate a good outcome to this day. You have fine ability for doing well at your specific interests. Remember this.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Extend yourself and your activities. Push ahead but head others' rights. Day has hidden opportunities; seek them out.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — You can make further ascent up that ladder of achievement during this helpful, generous period. Be attentive to your special duties. Attend to important matters first, then the lesser ones. Relax, too.

You born today are by nature kindly, generous, helpful. You think nothing of making sacrifices for your family and others; will stand as firm for their rights as for your own and are fearless in defense of the "underdog." You choose friends for their qualities, not their wealth or prominence; good! You can accomplish in a big way at a profession, religious life, in a trade, farming, industry. You are honorable, despise trickery and disorder.

TO SURVEY CHILDREN
WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A special committee called in this city to study teen-age problems Wednesday ordered a scientific survey aimed at children between the ages of 12 and 15. The survey will determine how children spend their time away from home and school and its results would call for increased recreational facilities and parent interest to stop juvenile delinquency before it starts.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was walking along with Puds Simkins, and we saw Dopey Shorty Judge coming out of the market with something heavy looking inside a paper bag, and Puds said, Oh boy, I bet $2 to me that he drops it.

I bet 3 to one he does too, I said.

Meaning on account of Shorty being sutch an easy dropper, and we started to follow him, and sure enough what did Shorty do but drop the bag on the sidewalk and pick it up again.

We win, I said, and Puds said, Hay look, it's leaking.

Meaning white powder coming out of the bottom of the bag and making a trale in back of Shorty without him even knowing it, and I said, Let's wait till he gets around the corner so we can see anything but his trale, and follow it like 2 bluehounds.

Which we did, following it all the way to Shorty's house, and just when we got there Shorty came out the front door with his mother still talking to him, saying, The idea of walking in here with only 3 cups of flour left of a 5 pound bag.

Well heck, I kind of thought it was powder sugar and lighter, Shorty said, and his mother said, I'd make you sweep up the front hall if I didn't know it would make it worse. Now you march right back to the market and bring me a full bag, she said.

Which Shorty started to do, and I said, Let's follow him back and see if he drops the 2nd bag.

Oh boy, I'm hungry could frop 2 bags of flour in one day, it would be Dopey Shorty Judge, Puds said.

Which it would, and we followed him to see, and he almost dropped the 2nd bag, but not quite.

Proving some things are too good to be true.

Sunday School Lesson

Experimentation Is Over

By ROY L. SMITH

In many areas of life there is not the service he rendered to still much confusion. We have all the race in doing so is monumental.

not yet worked out a satisfactory solution of the race problem; the world continues to live under the threat of war; the electronic age has opened up the period of automation with its attendant hazards of unemployment; the struggle between Christianity and Communism has not yet reached its crisis.

There are certain areas, however, in which the period of experimentation is all over. The facts are known, the laws have been laid down, and the course ahead is clearly charted. And oddly enough, the rules have been known for thousands of years and we still go on ignoring and defying them.

THE ANCIENT LAW

From a variety of historical records that have come down to us it is quite clear that the general principles recorded in the Ten Commandments were rather generally known, and widely accepted, in the ancient East. No one had undertaken to formulate them in any code or formal legislation. That was left for Moses, reading of history.

Down through the centuries the race has experimented with every form of family life—polygamy, polyandry, promiscuity, concubinage, and free love. But out of all that experimentation one truth has emerged. The only solution of the sex problem is the love of one good man for one good woman.

By the time Moses came to lead the children of Israel out of bondage this principle was pretty well established. It was true, of course, that polygamy was recognized, and that concubines were socially accepted. But the basic principle was understood, and there was always one first wife. The whole drift of society and government was in the direction of monogamy.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for October 14: "The Ten Commandments," Exodus 20:1-31.

The insistence of the moralists upon the "single standard" is not the result of any narrow-mindedness. It is, instead, an intelligent

Similarly, the race had experimented with the matter of ownership of property, and it had discovered that there could be no orderly society that condoned thievery. Neither could there be any stability in a society that did not tell the truth.

Every one of the Ten Commandments, like the law of gravity, was discovered to be a basic rule of life. These are not something that represents the product of any man's whim. They are written deep into the constitution of the universe by the Creator.

SIMPLE WORDS

Something of the force of the Ten Commandments, as they were read by the original readers, may be sensed if we read them as if they were simple, blunt, uncompromising words, for that is exactly what they were. Among the ancient Jews they were called "the ten words."

We are all familiar with the brusque speech of the highway signs—"No admission," "No crossing over," "One way street," or "Stop." No attempt is made to gloss them over or make them polite. Neither are they conditional requirements attached to them. Instead they are pre-emptory, realistic, and final.

Suppose, then, that we were to read the Ten Commandments as they were originally read:

"No murder!"
"No adultery!"
"No stealing!"
"No lying!"
"No coveting!"

7 Matching Finishes!
Tube System colour at "ready-mixed" prices!

Only at EATON'S

Quality — Made to EATON'S exacting specifications, TECO renowned quality ensures good results, a long-lasting, high-grade paint. Variety — of colour and textures for almost any purpose, to blend beautifully with drapery and upholstery fabrics and wallpapers. They're matched, too, in all finishes for walls and woodwork. Economy — the low prices are news! TECO quality paints from coast-to-coast at real economy prices. Convenience — Controlled strength system. Select the colour you want from 92 decrator-selected colour chips.

- Add one or a maximum of two tubes per tin of paint.
- Because a full tube is used in every case, waste, mess and guesswork are avoided.
- Easy to mix — colour is added from top down, not stirred up from bottom of can.
- Interior paints are washable, practically odourless, non-irritating, easy to apply, quick to dry.

We Sincerely Say:
DON'T BUY ENERJETS
Unless—

- YOU REALLY LACK VITALITY
- YOU ARE UNDER A STRAIN
- YOU NEED TO BUILD UP RESISTANCE AFTER AN ILLNESS

Because

Enerjets contain exceptionally high quantities of vitamins, minerals, liver and iron — that's why they cost $5.95 for a 30-day treatment — that's why we say ENERJETS are only for those who really need them, not for those who are new in the best of health.

Fast Action With Enerjets

The Enerjets box is like a calender. It contains 30 squares. Each square holds your daily dose. Ten days from now, when you reach square 10 in the Enerjets box, you won't have to be told how much better you look and feel. You'll notice your appetite improves . . . your body feels rested, alert, ready for action. ENERJETS are building up, helping you feel better than you have in years.

When You Reach Square 30

You should experience new vigor, a buoyant feeling of well-being, the happy companionship of your family life.

Your $5.95 is Protected

We have such confidence in the Enerjets formula that we say "You are protected" because if you are not so pleased that you want to tell others about them, then just do this — mail back the empty carton with your name and address to The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. Ltd., Oakville, Ontario. We will refund your full purchase price, plus postage. That is how confident we are that ENERJETS will help you.

Extra For The One You Love

After your 30-day ENERJET course you will feel so much better you will want someone you care for to start on ENERJETS too. Send the lid of the ENERJETS box with name and address to The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. Ltd., Oakville, Ontario. We will forward a 10-day supply to you or the person you name with your compliments and best wishes for their good health. Only after you have taken your ENERJETS will you realize what a wonderful way this is to help a member of your family, or a friend.

SIX OF FAMILY PERISH IN TORONTO FIRE

Both Diefenbaker And Fulton Seek PC Leadership

Are Willing to Let Names Stand at Ottawa Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Shadow-boxing in the Progressive Conservative leadership contest has ended with announcements from two western members of the Commons that they are ready and willing to stand as candidates.

John Diefenbaker and Davie Fulton made the statements Friday night, two months before the start of a convention here at which some 1,400 Conservatives will vote to pick their party's national leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker, 61-year-old MP for Prince Albert, Sask., told a gathering in his home riding that he will not "seek the high honor of leadership" but is willing to let his name stand if it is the wish of "Canadians generally."

They seemed little doubt that the party's present affairs spokesman would be in the running when the convention opens Dec. 12.

IS MORE DEFINITE

Mr. Fulton, 40-year-old member for Kamloops, B.C., was more definite in a statement made at Kamloops:

"I have decided to accept the urgings of my friends and colleagues and to allow my name to stand."

A third person who has generally been considered a likely contender, Donald Fleming, member for Toronto Eglinton, said at Toronto Friday night that "no comment at present." He had not yet made his decision.

Speculation on possible leadership candidates had centred on the three, together with George Hees, MP for Toronto Broadview, ever since Hon. George Drew dropped the leadership reins in mid - September because of ill health.

Last week the 46-year-old Mr. Hees bowed out of contention and aligned himself with a "Diefenbaker - for - leader" move which had shaped up within the party's 33-member Commons group.

ENDS MANOEUVRING

Friday night's announcements ended the behind-the-scenes manoeuvring which began here last week at meetings of the Conservative Common membership and the executive of the party's national association to plan the convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker, Commons member since 1940, twice tried unsuccessfully for the leadership. In 1942 he placed third in a five-way contest won by John Bracken. In 1948 he was runner-up at the convention which chose Mr. Drew. The 51-year-old Mr. Fleming, only other candidate in 1948, trailed in the voting.

Mr. Fulton, a lawyer like Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fleming, has been in the Commons since 1945. Two years ago he was president of the Young Progressive Conservatives Association.

Mr. Fulton made his statement about two hours before Mr. Diefenbaker. On Thursday he said the weekend "is the last I intend to work until next week."

SPOKE OF URGINGS

Both spoke of urgings from friends and supporters.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I shall not seek the high honor of leadership, but if Canadians generally believe that I should be willing to make and if it is their wish that I let my name stand at the leadership convention, I am willing."

Mr. Fulton said: "After taking into account the responsibilities of the position, and in the light of my own experience and service in the House of Commons and elsewhere, and of the duty of every Canadian to serve his country in whatever position he may be called upon to fill, I have decided . . . to allow my name to stand."

Both statements left little doubt there will be a convention contest.

Last week Gordon Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre, announced a movement to "draft" Mr. Diefenbaker, claiming the support of 80 per cent of the party's Commons membership.

INFLUENTIAL GROUP

The Commons group will be a small—though influential—proportion of the total number of delegates needed to win the leadership. Each province's delegation can be named to the convention, though not all will attend. The 1,400 votes will be shared by the votes. Biggest block—a maximum 265 votes—will be chosen by party associations in individual ridings across the country.

The convention will run through the week starting Monday, Dec. 10, but the first two days will be spent in committee meetings on policy, resolutions and the like. Open sessions will start Dec. 12 with the voting Dec. 14 or possibly Dec. 15.

Mr. Hees, who had generally been viewed as a prospective leadership candidate, said last week in withdrawing that Mr. Diefenbaker would make the best possible leader for our party."

HEES DELIGHTED

Friday night at Saskatoon, in the course of a prairie speaking tour, Mr. Hees said he was "delighted" at Mr. Diefenbaker's statement and said he believes the Prince Albert MP will be "a great asset to the party to victory at the next election."

Mr. Diefenbaker planned to meet briefly in Saskatoon today with Mr. Hees before the latter left for speaking engagements Monday in Montreal and Welleslev, Ont. The Conservative executive is to plan the convention.

Security Council Must Approve Six-Point Plan

Three Powers Agree On Basis of Settlement

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United Nations Security Council was called on today to approve six principles on which Britain, France and Egypt have agreed as a basis for settlement of their Suez Canal dispute.

The council was expected to give unanimous assent to a resolution being drafted by Britain and France, but Egyptian approval was not immediately forthcoming.

Agreement on the six principles was reported to the council in a two-hour secret session Friday afternoon. They called for freedom of navigation, respect for Egyptian sovereignty, isolation of the canal from national politics, fixing of tolls by agreement between Egypt and users nations, use of a fair part of the dues for canal improvement and arbitration of any disputes between Egypt and the expropriated Suez Canal Company.

President Eisenhower, on a televised interview in Washington, hailed the development as "a big step forward." He also looked as though "a very great crisis is behind us."

But Adlai Stevenson Bulles was reported highly pleased over the agreement, which appeared to be solid ground for a favorable outcome.

MEET FOLLOWS TALKS

The agreement followed six private huddles among British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi and Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold.

The talks started at Hammarskjold's invitation Tuesday night after the canal issue deadlocked over a British-French resolution which called for UN use in the nationalization of the 103-mile canal endangered freedom of passage.

The agreement was concluded in the secretary-general's office two hours before the council met Friday.

Pineau said, "great progress has been achieved. We have agreed to the six principles which will be the basis for the Suez Canal solution."

He added, "as for implementation of these principles, we have not gone too far yet." He said the British-French still believed the 18 - nation proposals were the best means of implementation but Egypt still disagreed.

Lloyd said, "a little progress has been made, but there are still very different opinions."

Dulles reported "partial agreement." A spokesman later explained that the agreement on principles but not on how to carry them out.

COLD IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A government spokesman official today predicted Mexico will have an abundant cold winter. Manuel Lebrija, chief of the ministry of agriculture's weather bureau, said frosts have been reported in some areas and temperatures in the capital have dropped into the low 40s.

Freshening Winds Delay Start For World Speedboat Record

PICTON (Special) — Southerly winds freshening to 20 miles an hour caused the temporary postponement of an attempt to crash the world unlimited speedboat record by "Miss Supertest II."

The crack speedster owned by Jim Thomson, London, was ready and chafing at the bit at dawn today on the Adolphustown Reach of the Bay of Quinte here.

Winds at 18 miles an hour whipped the course into rippling action at six a.m., freshening to 20 an hour later. Official weather reports stated the wind would likely increase to 30 by mid-afternoon. The boat will attempt the record Sunday morning weather permitting.

Danny Foster, crack American speedboat pilot, who will drive "Miss Supertest" said today the 31 ft. hull is in splendid condition and ready to attempt the record.

The Thomson-Gordon and Jim, who is here in an advisory capacity.

"Miss Supertest II" holds the Canadian and British Empire speed record of 153 mph set in October 1955. Her top speed in trial runs prior to today was 170 mph.

Scientists, Military Experts Test First Launching Tower

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) Under a grey sub-Arctic sky scientists and military experts Friday were tested the first launching tower for scientific rockets ever built in Canada.

In three days the first rocket, a slim 26-foot metal shaft, will be fired from the 120-foot structure. It will be loaded with sensitive instruments to record the mysteries of the upper air about 100 miles above the earth's surface.

The firing is part of preliminary tests in preparation for the International Geophysical Year. Phase starts next July and runs to December, 1958. Eight rockets will be launched in the next two months near this Canadian joint military service base, 610 miles north of Winnipeg on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

The U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force are handling and directing all the pre-IGY experiments. Physicists from several American universities are also working on the tests.

The launching site, rising on the rocky, barren tundra 12 miles east of here was built by the U.S. at a cost expected to exceed $6,000,000. A total of 28 American officers and more than 500 enlisted men were worked with the Canadian Defence Research Board in its preparations.

The launching chute, a narrow, steel-framed tower, is built almost vertically above the ground. The lower half, for the rocket's first 12 feet, is open. The upper half is of metal which taper out to the ground, giving the tower the shape of a square inverted funnel.

Included in the launcher zone of the first rocket, scheduled to be set off at 11 a.m., Tuesday, will be instruments to measure temperatures and wind 100 miles above the air and pressure on the rocket as it speeds faster than sound.

Democrats and Republicans Disagree on Ike Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats charged today that President Eisenhower is not leading his party or the United States, but Eisenhower told the U.S. via television he is fully in charge of his administration.

Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate, said Friday night President Eisenhower is "either unwilling or unable" to lead the Republican party. In consequence, Stevenson continued, national policy "has become stalled dead center." He said the result is President Richard Nixon is the party's "new head."

Harry S. Truman, Democratic former president, said the U.S. "can't do it with a part-time president." Truman predicted a depression if Republicans win the Nov. 6 election.

President Eisenhower, asked directly in a televised question-and-answer session Friday night about this recurring Democratic accusation, replied:

"If I am not running the executive part of the government, then I am the man that is mostly fooled in this nation."

Stevenson, pushing his campaign in California, told a San Diego audience:

"Grim and pressing problems accumulate. But our federal government, the instrument of the people, has stopped thinking, stopped leading, stopped acting and stopped acting."

Stevenson also announced he would have "more to say" in a country-wide radio - TV broadcast Monday night about his hotly attacked proposals to stop H-bomb tests.

Eisenhower, Nixon and others have criticized Stevenson's test proposal. Eisenhower has called the proposal a "theatrical gesture."

Eisenhower's statement that he is firmly in charge came in an unusual mass interview conducted by reporters put by a variety of administration supporters. Aiders said the show was unrehearsed.

During the exchange, Eisenhower said he is against unconstitutional "big business," but upheld his policy of using successful businessmen as key government posts.

He added who the public would favor in charge of public business, "some failure that never got anything, or a successful business man?"

Fat's in Fire As Chef, Aide Get Greased

DALLAS (AP)—A chef and his assistant were taken into a hospital for medical attention Friday after the two dosed themselves with cooking oil in a downtown restaurant.

Police said the men argued and the chef picked up a pan of hot grease and doused his assistant. There was another pot of hot grease nearby and the chef got greased.

Might Just as Well Stop Trying To Halt Cupid's College Capers

CHICAGO (AP)—When it comes to trying to advise college students who want to get married, Miss Margaret Habein is just about ready to stop talking.

Miss Habein is dean of instruction and student services at the University of Rochester, N.Y. She is the featured speaker at the American Council on Education, she was interviewed on a television program, is causing increased concern among college officials over early marriage of students.

"There's no use trying to stop them from getting married," she said. "We know that. But we have to be counsel with them and get them to make sure it's what they want to do and consider the possible consequences to their education and so on.

"But by now I've just about decided that I might as well stop talking. Once they've made up their minds, that's all there is to it."

Actually, Miss Habein said, marriage need not interfere too much with a couple's college work.

If the young couple decides to live off campus, it is only cozier, she said. Miss Habein said they seem to be increasingly so inclined—the wife is the one most likely to suffer, educationally speaking.

"Unless she is very highly motivated to finish her education," Miss Habein said, "a girl is not likely to come back to college after she has had her baby and is through with the first few months of caring for it."

Irish Farmer Crowned World Plowing Champ

OXFORD, England (Reuters) — A 30-year-old Irish farmer Friday won the world plowing championship for the third successive year in competition with 70 other countries.

He was Hugh Barr from Colerain, Northern Ireland. He won the international contest at Shillingford, near here.

Runner up was 30-year-old Arne Braut of Norway, American competitors finished far down among entrants from 13 countries.

Plowing champions from the competing nations vied for the prize—a two-foot golden plow presented by Canada. After his win, Barr announced he is giving up competition ploughing.

General Graham Commends Soldier For Saving Child

OTTAWA (CP) — A 19-year-old soldier with less than a year's military service has been officially commended by Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, chief of the general staff, for his courage in saving the life of a five-year-old boy in the Niagara River last June 19 a army headquarters announced Friday.

Pte. Neil L. McKellar of Strathroy, Ont., a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment depot at London, Ont., dived fully clothed into the river at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., and rescued Allen Richardson struggling in the water.

A poor swimmer himself, McKellar brought the boy to safety.

Search Planes Spot Two Life Rafts Off Spain

No Sign of Life Observed From Air

LONDON (AP)—Search planes today spotted two life rafts off Spain where a giant American military transport believed to have crashed three days ago—but radioed they saw no sign of life on either raft.

An earlier report said there appeared to be one man on one of the German Gil rafts capable of holding 30 men.

However, U.S. Air Force headquarters announced:

"No sign of life has been observed on either of two life rafts observed from the air."

The rafts were floating about 20 miles apart in the area from which radio distress signals were received Friday night by top ships.

The S O S signals, described as weak, were picked up by the German motorship Werrcatal and the British ship London Breaker.

FROM TRANSMITTER

An American Air Force spokesman said the messages "could have come from the set of automatic hand-crank transmitter carried in the survival equipment of the missing transport."

The plane, a four-engined C-118, was flying 50 airmen and nine crew members back to the United States from Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, it appeared Wednesday night near the Azores.

Survival equipment aboard included four liferaits, each equipped with a British-made hand-crank radio transmitter.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said, "All ships at sea have been alerted to move into the area which radio and radar fixes on the approximate aircraft are being ordered to the spot."

The U.S.A.F. men, from the air had been on duty in Britain.

Aires that will be flown from three continents were thrown into the vast search-area of the greatest in aviation history.

Leonard Burt, Wife And Four Children Trapped In Home

Believed Blaze Started In First-Floor Sunroom

TORONTO (CP) — A family of six were burned to death today when fire swept through their two-storey brick home in east-central Toronto.

Killed in the blaze were Leonard Burt, 45, formerly of Owen Sound, his wife, Katherine, 44, and their four children, Mary Ann, 11, Michael, 9, Margaret, 7, and David, 5.

Firemen said there were no survivors in the blaze, reported about 4:30 a.m. Cause has not been determined.

Neighbors—reported the Burt family watched television until midnight and fire officials said a cigaret smouldering behind a cushion might have been responsible.

W. R. Simmonds, 67, living in a house just six feet from the Burt home, said he was awakened at about 4 a.m. He went to a rear sunroom in his house and found flames licking at the windows.

"I thought I was dreaming," he said.

ATTEMPT BREAK DOWN DOOR

He called his son Ross, who telephoned the fire department.

Mr. Simmonds and his son hammered at the Burt's locked front door and tried to break in the door. Solid Ross:

"We yelled and screamed but there was no movement in the house."

Fire captain William Carson said his men arrived at the scene to find flames shooting 10 feet from every window in the house. He said he believed the blaze started in a first-floor sunroom.

INSIDE BURNED BARE

By daylight, the house, surrounded by neat gardens, gave little evidence of the tragedy from the outside. Charred curtains and blinds spilled from blackened windows.

Inside, however, it was burned almost bare with only smouldering timbers left from the plaster and plaster shattered from the walls.

Captain Carson said the bodies of Mrs. Burt and Mary Ann were found a few feet from the front door. Margaret's body was found at the top of the stairs and David's body still lay in the bed. The bodies of Mr. Burt and Michael were found on the floor of a rear bedroom.

AWAKENED BY CAT

Mrs. Simmonds said she was awakened by her persian cat, Smokey, liking her face.

"When I got up the entire house on fire I almost went hysterical," she said.

Mr. Simmonds said the Burts moved into the house five years ago. "They were more than neighbors to us," he said.

Leonard Burt was a veteran of the Second World War. He lost part of his hand in action with the 48th Highlanders.

He was one of the first ashore in the Normandy landings in June, in 1942 and was said to have continued through the action although wounded on several times.

"That boy had courage beyond belief," said a fellow veteran.

Fire officials said the position of the bodies indicated Mr. Burt was trying to rescue his family, criticized by a brain ailment, when he died.

His father, the late Dio Lewis Burt, was a railway engineer in Owen Sound. Leonard was a popular football player there in high school before being by the nickname Tiny. His mother and a sister, Mrs. Morley Peasnell, live in Toronto. A brother, Cecil, is a resident of Buffalo, N.Y.

Snake in Cell Not Standard Equipment

CAIL, Tex. (AP)—A rattlesnake sleeping peacefully in the centre of a cell in city jail was sentenced to death Friday.

It wasn't that sheriff Sid Reeder didn't like the snake—it was the two men he was about to put in the cell who objected.

Reeder doesn't mean to have the snake got in the cell but the men got in for stealing oil field equipment.

Today's Chuckle

Two boys were leaning against a corner drugstore.

"Dames," sniffed one, "are a waste of time."

"Gee," exclaimed the other, "and all this time I've been buying Jelly beans!"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Southerly winds are bringing summer-like weather which covers the central United States to Ontario for the weekend. The warm weather will reach Southwestern Ontario today and continue to spread northeastward during the day. The frost of several many weather and rising temperatures is expected to continue on Sunday throughout the province.

Law Devised to Curb Evil Squires Halts U.S. Child's Trip to Russia

LONDON (AP)—Tanya Chwastow, halted in flight with her father at the United States-Soviet Russia, has been made a ward of the British high court under a law designed to protect wicked squires from snaring poor little rich girls.

A judge will rule within 21 days on the fate of the 2½-year-old girl who has been caught between a day on behalf of her mother, Mrs. Helen Diecezak of Detroit, to hold her in Britain.

By order of the court, Tanya's detained father, Alexis Chwastow, 58, from the 7,500-ton Russian ship Vlacheslav Molotov, will not be taken carried them to Leningrad. The ship sailed Wednesday.

Tanya's parents, both Second World War refugees, were divorced last month, remarried, wants her to grow up as an American citizen. The father wants her to grow up in the Soviet Union.

British law specifies "the welfare of the child be paramount."

The law was originally drawn up to protect orphan heiresses from villainous suitors in the days when a woman's wealth automatically became the property of her husband on marriage.

Now it is the child heiress a permanent ward of court, the court could require suitors to get their permission before any one could weed out all but the upright and honest suitors.

Pending a decision by the judge it is illegal to move Tanya from the country without the leave of the high court.

Tanya and her father, however, are free to go anywhere they like in Britain—even to the Soviet Embassy.

Mrs. Diecezk threw a shock in her former husband's plans by getting a British lawyer to file suit to hold the child here.

Mrs. Diecezak told the Times and Russia claim Tanya as a citizen because Mrs. Diecezak became a U.S. citizen while Chwastow never was naturalized.

Chwastow made mother's tearful pleas, Chwastow carried the little girl aboard the Soviet ship and headed for home.

In London, immigration officers served a court summons for Chwastow to produce Tanya. The summons made the tot a ward of the British court.

Mrs. Diecezak said in Detroit: "I feel a little better, I feel happy, but not too happy. When I get baby in my arms, then I'll really feel happy."

100 Kingston Chemists Visit Local Plants

Upwards of 100 chemists and chemical engineers from Kingston visited Belleville on Tuesday afternoon to tour the plant of the Bakelite Company, the Entomology Laboratory of the Canada Department of Agriculture, and Corby's Distillery.

The visit, which was sponsored by the Kingston section of the Chemical Institute of Canada, included members of the student chapters from Queen's University and the Royal Military College and the Belleville section of the C.I.C.

At the Bakelite plant the visitors were met by Mr. John C. McDonald, plant superintendent. Plant personnel, acting as guides, explained the operation of producing phenol - formaldehyde thermoset plastic products including moulding compounds, laminated and the Belleville section of the C.I.C.

Dr. B. P. Beirne, officer-in-charge of the newly built Entomology Laboratory, briefed the visitors on the role of this laboratory in the biological control of destructive insect and plant pests in Canada. Before the visit began was shown the extensive research being carried out in the identification and control of the various species of known pests, together with the special quarantine facilities to handle similar studies on beneficial insects and insect disease organisms imported from foreign countries.

The afternoon activities were completed with a visit to the 100-year-old plant of the Corby Distillery, which is located in nearby Corbyville. The visiting scientists were received by Mr. Gerald W. Laporte, plant manager, and Mr. R. Farquharson, personnel manager, who were guides on a tour of the plant's facilities.

DINNER MEETING HELD

A dinner meeting at the Quinte Hotel followed, presided over by Miss Audrey Hall, vice-chairman of the Kingston section of the C.I.C. The guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. Robert H. Tanner, of the Northern Electric Company, Belleville.

Mr. Tanner, who is a graduate in engineering from London University and formerly with the BBC there and a recognized authority on architectural acoustics, spoke of "Home Music Reproduction." He illustrated his talk with actual demonstrations on high fidelity recording equipment. He spoke on the various components necessary for home recording equipment and their limitations.

Among the head table guests, in addition to Mr. Tanner, were: Mr. J. C. McDonald of the Bakelite Company, Dr. R. Barlow of the Entomology Laboratory, Mr. R. Farquharson of Corby's Distillery, Mr. Charles Fremming, past chairman of the Belleville section of the C.I.C., Mr. C. Widmaier, chairman of the Queen's student branch of the C.I.C., and Mr. R. McDowell, president of the Cherokee Wheeling Club of Queen's University.

Details of Brawl Unravelled by Court Evidence

TRENTON (Special) — Description of the wild fracas brawl and ensuing street fight involving police and patrons of the Rialto Hotel here two weeks ago, particulars and witnesses unravelled details of the melee before Magistrate T. Y. Willis in a special court here in Trenton yesterday afternoon last night. Key figure in the disturbance that came to the point of developing into a riot, Archie Williams of Trenton said under examination by his counsel Ronald McCass that he had obliged a "guy" that had bumped him as the two passed in the narrow way to the washroom. He admitted he had a wicked temper and he was not when anybody slapped him.

Williams was scuffling on the floor when Constable Leonard Pollard arrived. Williams and the constable tangled and finally the policeman put the handcuffs on him.

Williams who said he had consumed seven beers, was placed in the police cruiser waiting outside.

Constable Pollard, proceeding north, 17, downtown during intermission at a Separate School dance heard his brother and a man yell for help and he went to the beverage room to help his brother. He was attacked by another policeman and manacled. Both brothers were lodged in jail but not before they had a few more order on the street among a milling crowd that had gathered in front of the hotel. Sgt. Gordon Sizenburg took command of the situation that had developed, let out of hand when the shackled Williams attacked one of the men in the police cruiser and got back in the thick of happenings on the street.

Constable Pollard said he grew furious when he saw a policeman hitting his brother with a club and was twisting the handcuffs on his wrists. Sgt. Sizenburg said he was knocked to the ground and he struck several blows on the back of the neck. Under cross-examination he showed Williams back in the patrol car.

Girdwood Gregory a bystander picked up by police for making a smart remark when told to move along said it was the first such fighting he'd ever seen and wished it continued when police started going to the hotel for a drink that he'd been refused. He was fined and later released.

Ronnie Sheppard, George Foot and Stewart Lindsay were evidence for the defence.

Magistrate Willis ordered court adjourned at 10:30 p.m. to resume again at ten today.

Textile Workers Accept Terms For New Contract

TRENTON (Special) — At a special meeting of Local 974 of the Textile Workers of America here yesterday union members employees of the Trent Cotton Company Limited voted unanimously to accept the latest offer made them by the company.

The offer including the employees enjoyed a pleasant surprise when they were informed the company would increase operations through Saturday providing an extra day's work in the local plant.

This good news coming before Christmas holidays was welcomed by some 150 workers here.

Negotiations for a package deal broke down here last week, the members of the union voted by a substantial majority for the strike action, refusing to accept the terms of a conciliation board.

Later the company made a new offer to employees of all three plants in Hamilton, Dundas and Trenton affecting 800 employees. It was this proposition the union voters here approved yesterday.

Opens Dealership In Cleaning

Thomas E. M. Last of R.R. 3, Belleville, resident of Lakefield, Ontario, for the past eight years, is opening a dealership in Belleville and vicinity, under the name of Woodsaves Dustaway Services.

Mr. Last attended school in England after which he spent several years in the British Merchant Service. During World War 2 he was in the service of the British Ministry of Food. In 1948 he came to this country with his wife and family and now intends making Belleville his permanent home.

Mr. Last points out that since Duraclean is not a wet soaking or scrubbing process, it is no longer necessary to tear up the house and send things out to be cleaned and as a result home furnishings can be used again the same day.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Pedro Aramburu is ill with the grippe. All his engagements have been cancelled.

Obituary

JOSEPH AMBROSE PITT

Joseph Ambrose Pitt of Corbyville died suddenly at his home on Thursday in his 62nd year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pitt, he was born in Read and had lived in the community all his life residing in Corbyville for the past year.

Mr. Pitt was a successful farmer with one of the best producing properties in the district.

He attended Holy Rosary Church and was a member of the Holy Name Society.

Surviving are three sons, Lee, with the Salvation Army in Germany, Joseph and Jack of Corbyville; and four daughters, Mrs. Frank (Eileen) McCullough of Marysville, and Helen, May and Theresa, all of Corbyville; and one sister, Mrs. R. K. (Evelyn) Ecker of Dearborn, Michigan.

MRS. LENA BURKE

The funeral of Mrs. Lena Burke was held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon. The service-Rev. Dr. Chapell was conducted by Rev. S. E. Larman, who also officiated at the graveside service at White's cemetery, Trent Road.

The bearers were: John Vader, Raymond Lamoureux, Wm. Blair, John Fairley, Lorne Hunt and John O'Ray.

MRS. TILLIE MacDONALD

The funeral of Mrs. Tillie MacDonald was held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Chapel on Friday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Alexander McDowell of Eastminster United Church, who also officiated at the graveside service at Wills cemetery.

The bearers were Manson, Manly and Clarence MacDonald, James, Benjamin and Joseph Montgomery.

ROBERT DANIEL RODGERS

In ill health for some time, Robert Daniel Rodgers, 3 Emily Street, Belleville, died the head this Saturday morning.

He was born at Bowney's Rapids, 69 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers. He has resided in this city for the past fifteen years and was a member of the Trinity Methodist church.

He was employed as civilian help by Service Air Station. The late Mr. Rodgers was well-known and highly respected in his community.

He was a member of the Salvation Army and was identified with the Handicapped and Disabled Citizens' Club in this city.

He is survived by his wife, the former Georgie Wheeler, one son, Thomas R. Rodgers, stationed at Petawawa Camp; one brother William Rodgers of Tweed; one sister, Mrs. Fay (Grace) Baldwin of Tweed, and one half-brother, Albert, of Belleville.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Ave. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Giant Spud Augments Stock In News Room

The more they come, the bigger they are.

The record "spud" to reach this newspaper office arrived this morning. It weighed two lbs., 15 ozs.

It was grown by Mr. Jack Layton, 250 Bleecker Ave. and is the 1958 specimen. We have seen mammoth carrots, potatoes and earlier today some one donated a giant onion. Then came the Layton "murphy."

If anyone has an ancient cow or a Brobdingnagian cabbage or possibly an inflated turnip, bring them along.

Anyone for Irish stew?

Legion News

By C. F. Leggat

At the last general meeting president Bill Heasman welcomed Donald J. Brown, Gordon G. Airey, Maxwell W. Airey, Ronald W. Shortt, R.P. Weese, James T. Stewart, H. E. Shurtleff, and Fred Ellis as new members to Branch 59. The initiation ceremonies were performed by District Commander "Scotty" Broughton and president Heasman assisted by vice-chairman Everett Liddle, Past Zone Commander Frank Gardiner and Deputy District Commander Leo Taylor.

Mr. George Ellarby stated that many veterans have been assisted by the service bureau and added that if any veteran had a pension problem he would do his best to help him, whether he is a Legion member or not. Mr. Ellarby has made a study of service bureau work and is anxious to be of service to our veterans. His phone number is WO. 8-6263.

While on the subject of services W. Slater and L. G. Monteith are our experts on V.L.A. Veterans are invited to come to the office and discuss V.L.A., questions. Classes on Construction are being conducted. They are for any veteran who is desirous of taking a course on building, whether he is entitled to on V.L.A. or not. Telephone Mr. Monteith, Wo. 8-6263 for particulars but please act quickly, the classes cannot wait.

VOTE OF THANKS

Mr. Gordon Nicholson, Supt. of Parks, has been attending to the flag at the cenotaph for a number of years. He is also responsible for the beautiful floral displays there. Branch 59 is very proud of this mark of respect and Frank Gardiner and George Ellarby moved a vote of thanks which was heartily endorsed by all members.

The Legion Hall is now a place to be proud of, owing to the many hours of work put in by Comrade Nesbell and his willing helpers. Our sincere thanks to you Jim for one of the finest halls in the city.

Everett Liddle and Les Digby informed the branch that the Memorial's for Poppy Day are even better than last year and that a record for this district. They need lots of assistance and will be glad of names of volunteers.

We were happy to learn from Comrade Dunbar Legacy is on the road to recovery even though still in hospital.

Darts and cribbage are now in full swing. Bob Blair is anxious to get the bowling under way, for men and women. Bob now has four dart boards fully equipped and expects them to be used.

House chairman L. G. Monteith has an invitation from the ladies for all members to attend a bazaar and a Hallowe'en dance. He also mentioned that Saturday evenings are reserved for darts and Wednesday for cribbage.

Bob Perry has completed his plans for the Remembrance Day concert on evening of November 7th in the K. of C. Hall. All veterans with their wives and lady friends are welcome. Members may bring other friends along too. A big turnout is the only fair ole affair is hoped for and expected.

The complete results of secretary Len Burfoot and treasurer Roy Madden, give assurance of the business of the branch being well attended to next general meeting attended to.

IN MEMORIAM

SEMARK. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie Semark, who passed away one year ago, October 18th, 1946, and a dear father, Charles Semark, who passed away October 23rd, 1947.

They are not need a special day,
To keep their memory fresh and gay
For the days we do not think of you.
Are very few indeed.
—Lovingly remembered by son Jack and family.

BOYCE. — In loving memory of Thomas Gordon Boyce, who passed away one year ago.

Sadly we miss you more than ever,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
You are far away for sight or sound,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Always in your memory fair you are here.
And though absent, is quite as dear.
—Lovingly remembered by , wife and children.

LIVESEY. — In loving memory of Eliza N. Livesey, who passed away October 18th, 1957.

Thus the hills were hard to climb;
Thus the way for sight so dim,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
Then He who loved us called God.
By the valley of rest as fair:
Sweet the day, the night more sweet.
When we shall meet our loved one there.
—Ever remembered by husband, family and sister.

SEMARK. — In loving memory of my dear husband and son Gerald Semark 14th, 1946, and also my dear father Charles Semark who passed away October 23rd, 1947.

But this they wipe out never;
The memory of the days
When we were all together.
—So sadly missed but always will be remembered by daughter Rose.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our neighbors and friends and those from surrounding districts who helped us in the search for our daughter, Janet, who was lost in the woods on Thursday, October 9th. Especially for the use of his dog Many thanks to all.

A Lift for Living

The High Values of Living

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We are ever discussing the high cost of living. But what about the high values of living? These are received are more important than the amounts we spend because our money will all be gone anyway at the grave.

The Bible bids us measure carefully the value of the money which we have to spend. The prophet Isaiah asks, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread?" And Jesus repeatedly raises the question of man's use of money. Read the Gospels and see how often Jesus makes mention of money.

He went into the markets and among the money-changers and observed how men make money. He sat over against the treasury and watched the rich men and poor widows gave money. He used the parable of the unjust steward with his astute manipulation of his employer's debts to illustrate the need of foresight and intelligence in the handling of resources.

Jesus would never have merited the title of the Master of Life" if He had avoided the subject of money, for money has become so enmeshed in our system of values that, as the Bible says, the love of money is indeed truly to be the root of all evil. The late Tom Masson, a genial editor, declared that there are three kinds of trouble in the world—money, others and yourself.

As I understand the teachings of Jesus, the Lord would have us measure the value of our money by the same principle that He would have us use in measuring our time, namely, does it contribute to the growth and continuity of life? Recall His story of the rich farmer whose fields brought forth so bountifully that he said he would pull down his barns and build greater. Then in the midst of planning for the preservation of his gains, he was stricken in death. And the parable closes with the question, "Whose then shall these things be?" "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Yes, money has to be weighed in the balance with the wealth and growth of the soul.

Do we desire money for power and prestige and self-gratification, which tend to stunt and shrivel the soul? Or do we desire money for use and service, which expand life? The follower of the Master must search his heart for the answer to that question. And then he must search with his mind to find the highest and most essential uses to which his money can be put, lest he spend his money for "that which is not bread."

Some time a generation ago Prof. Stephen Babcock of the University of Wisconsin made the discovery that cattle might be eating prodigious amounts of food but at the same time be starving. Extended investigation revealed the fact that life-giving food contains a strange element called "vitamins," which furnish the vitality necessary for maintaining life. Now food values are measured by their vitamin content.

Can we apply this vitamin principle to all life? That is what Jesus would have us do as we study the time and money which we have to spend with an eye to their life-building content.

In seeking to catch Christ's scale of values, we must beware of being shortsighted. Jesus measured things in terms of future fertility rather than of immediate utility. On the basis of quick returns Jesus' life looks like a series of bad bargains. He gave up His secure job as a carpenter to take up the precarious work of a traveling teacher. What a waste of money! He left Galilee where He was popular to go to Jerusalem where He was persecuted. What a waste of time! He could have saved His life, but He clung to His course until it led to the cross. What a waste of life! But what seemed a waste at the time was Our Lord's way of fertilizing the soil of the race so that it might bring forth the life that is life indeed.

I have a friend who will be 100 years old on Dec. 3rd next. He is still vigorous in mind and body. When asked the secret of his amazing vitality, he answers smilingly, "I was born before germs were discovered." That is his whimsical and modest way of saying that he has not spent his life worrying about himself. He has expended his energy with self-forgetfulness in useful service. If at his death someone asks, "What was he worth?" the answer will not be in the money he leaves behind him but in the values he created—and takes with him.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

COLORING MATTER

There is no blue coloring matter in feathers! That seems like a pretty tall statement when we think of the bluebirds and indigo buntings. But if you took a feather from one of these birds and examined it up, it would turn black before your amazed eyes. With the exception of one bird, the same is true of green feathers. Just imagine, there is really no green coloring matter in the brilliant green plumage of the ruby-throated Hummingbird. Under a microscope its feathers look dull grey.

Needless to say, there is a scientific reason for all this. Blue feathers, for instance, have the coloring matter, which is brown or yellowish, done up in little cases under which lie tiny cones that act like mirrors and change the colour to blue. But blacks, reds, browns, and yellows in feathers are nearly always due to those colors being present.

This, then, is why when seen in a poor light the bluebird, indigo bunting, and hummingbird lose their brilliance. The little mirrors cannot act without a strong light, so the blue look dull grey or black.

Many of the bright colors on ducks are due to iridescence. For instance, in sunlight a green patch is seen in the wing and another on the side of the green-winged teal's head. These do not show up in a dim light. The barn swallow wears an iridescent blue coat, the tree swallow an iridescent green one, and several other land birds that we speak of as being black show various colors in their plumage because of iridescence. The grackle is a good example of this, with a blue, green, pink, and purple sheen. The starling, too, is iridescent. Also, for an entirely different reason, the so-called black adult starling is not all black at this season, but has white and buffy tips to its feathers which wear off by spring. Young starlings are greyish brown.

National Bible Week

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

The Week—National Bible Week is promoted during the third week in October each year by the National Laymen's Committee, an independent, nondenominational group of prominent businessmen devoted to the application of the Golden Rule to the daily affairs of life. Founded in 1940, the committee stated its purpose as "the re-awakening of religious thinking in every way possible."

This week of emphasis on the importance of Bible reading is only one of many activities carried on by the committee. Perhaps the most familiar of their projects has been the placing of "Grace before meals" cards on restaurant and dining car tables. Every traveller has seen these little "tent cards," on which are printed three suggested prayers: one for Protestants, one for Catholics, and one for Jews.

In the official message proclaiming National Bible Week the committee affirms its conviction that Bible reading "will arouse a new spiritual force for good throughout this troubled world."

National Bible Week is publicized each year by proclamations by the usual media of printed materials and radio and TV announcements.

Monday, Oct. 15—One would naturally expect the patron saint of mothers would be a woman, one who had herself experienced motherhood. Certainly one would not expect to find a man, and a lay monk at that, to be the mothers' saint.

But the fact is that millions of women pray to St. Gerard Majella, both for the blessings of motherhood itself and for help in the difficulties all mothers have in the rearing of their families.

St. Gerard, born in 18th-century Italy, was renowned during his lifetime for his miracles, none of which, however, seems related to his present position as the mothers' saint. He was often seen to float several inches off the floor during his prayers. He once restored life to a child who had been killed in a fall from a precipice. There are authentic records of his having been seen and heard in two separate places at the same time. There was one occasion on which he blessed a poor family's scanty wheat supply and it miraculously lasted until the next harvest. And once he walked across the water to rescue a stricken boatload of fishermen.

He was called in his time "the wonder worker of our day." And after his death, on Oct. 15, 1755, his wonders continued to be showered on those who asked for them.

It was the mothers of Italy who first took him as their patron, calling him "the saint of happy childbirth." His popularity spread and still continues. Thousands of women in the United States and Canada wear his medal as their confinement approaches, and many Roman Catholic hospitals dedicate their maternity wards to him.

Tuesday, Oct. 16—Since as on every Oct. 16 since 1647, the people of the Church of St. Katharine Cree, London, will hear their "Lane Sermon," preached in commemoration of the miraculous deliverance of Sir John Gayer from the wild and hungry beasts of the desert.

Sir John was a London merchant with a yen for adventure. He travelled from London to the Near East and there joined a caravan and set out to cross the desert. One night he found himself in a terrifying position, separated from the caravan and surrounded by snarling lions. Even in his fright Sir John remembered Him, and he prayed the prayer of Daniel. The lions did not touch him. (It is not recorded that Daniel prayed while he was actually in the lions' den—at least, his wish are not given. Probably the prayer Sir John remembered and said was the one to be found in Daniel, chapter 9, verses 7 to 19.)

Gayer's experience happened on the night of Oct. 16. In his will he left money for a fund for a preacher to deliver a sermon on this date every year. The sermon always deals with Sir John's life history and with his providential escape from the lions.

UNWANTED FLATTERY

Imitation, it is said, is the sincerest form of flattery.

There are, however, people who do not deserve flattery.

For the second time within a few weeks a young boy has been slain in Toronto—and for the second time an autopsy has revealed teeth marks on the victim's throat.

There will be those who will argue that the murder of nine-year-old Gary Morris provides adequate proof that newspapers, radio stations and television stations should not publicize details of crimes. If publicity had not been given to the teeth marks on the throat of Wayne Richard Mallette, aged 7, of Seeley's Bay, found dead in the CNE grounds last month, Gary Morris would be alive today, they will argue. That, however, is a questionable conclusion. Gary Morris might not have been bitten, but there is no proof that he would not have been killed, even if the Mallette boy's death had been given a complete secret. In any event, if publicized reports of the slaying of the Seeley's Bay boy led the person who attacked Gary Morris to plan a similar killing, may not these reports have achieved to save several lives, by warning parents and children of the dangers lurking in city streets?

Imitation is not only the sincerest form of flattery but it is also the greatest danger. We cannot eliminate it if we would, and if we could we should certainly do much more harm than good. The difficulty is, and it appears insurmountable, to control the choice of actions to imitate. This choice is wide and it is here that the key to human conduct lies. What causes one person to imitate a killer, another a saint? As we ponder that question we realize that imitation is not the whole story, but it is like a knife which can be used to slay or, in the hands of a surgeon, to give life. It is but a tool and, like any other tool, its value lies in the use to which it is put.

CHOICE OR NECESSITY

Figures taken during the census this year reveal that Canada's cities are growing in population, but that most of this growth is taking part in the suburbs.

Many will accept this with a nod as additional proof of an already well-established fact, the swing to suburban living.

There is, however, some doubt whether this swing is entirely voluntary.

In the case of Toronto there can be no argument with the figures. The city of Toronto itself lost two per cent of its population between the calls of 1951 and 1956 census-takers, while the rest of the metropolitan area reported a 65.3 per cent growth in population.

The picture may appear similar with respect to other cities, but there is room for some doubt. Montreal, for example, had a 7.1 per cent increase in population in the city itself and a 32.9 rise in the remainder of the metropolitan area; Vancouver City proper expanded by five per cent while the population of metropolitan Vancouver rose 24 per cent. One may wonder though, whether the higher rate of increase in population in the suburbs of Montreal, Vancouver and other cities reporting similar figures was not as much a case of necessity as of choice. There just is not room, in many large and even several smaller Canadian cities, for everybody who wants to live there. Suburban living becomes a necessity for many. This, for instance, is true of Belleville. The population of the surrounding townships has risen rapidly, but one may question whether this growth would have been as great had there been an adequate supply of building lots within the city itself.

NO WALRUS HERE

"The time has come," the Walrus said, 'to talk of many things'."

After press time, in small newspaper offices throughout the continent, there is the feeling for the Walrus, but he always fails to put in an appearance.

Once the paper has been "put to bed," the time arrives for the writing of the next day's editorials and their images of many things are potentially grandeur for the editorial writers' inspection and selection.

Cabbages and kings sometimes make suitable subjects, but sometimes the typewriter wag its keys with the inspiration which motivated the tongue of the Walrus. There is no Lewis Carroll handy to turn out delightful nonsense.

Columns can always be filled with the commonplace. The commonplace, though, has a double disadvantage. It wearies not only the person who reads it but the writer as well, and the time arrives when the latter is tempted to would trade all the facts and figures in the world for just one wild flight of fantasy.

He the Walrus would stroll through the door and talk of many things in his inimitable nonsensical fashion. The Walrus never does, though, and rarely does the boss of the typewriter take matters into his own hands and drag the old reprobate in by the nape of his fashion, by while away a few minutes and fill a few lines.

Why is it that nonsense is so much more difficult to write than sense—and so much more attractive? No one could answer that question one could, we suspect, fill columns and columns with the profoundest of philosophical observations. But the Walrus has fallen resolutely silent and we have no choice but to send him back to the Carpenter, to sweep the sands of the seashore, while we remain seated before a mute typewriter, convinced that our role ought to be that of the oyster.

LIFE

To wake at dawn with tasks to do
And strength required,
To know before the day is through
You will grow tired.

The useless and the lazy life
Is lived in vain.
Min needs the stress and strain of strife
Stout to remain.

To difficulties to arise
All mortals need;
And then, by being strong and wise,
With them succeed.

To serve some useful purpose here
And prove his worth,
And to deserve both smile and tear,
Man comes to birth.

Silence Autumn's Theme

New York Times

It is through the ears that man most distinctly senses the subtle and growing presence of autumn in the land. True enough, his eyes are inclined by the gradual shift of color from the bright hues of July to the purple and gold of September. The nose can sense the keenness of the early morning air with a cool and tangy as vintage wine and imbued with the essence of mint. But it is the ear — the infallible ear — on which this majestical season plays with all the harmonies of a celestial orchestra. For fall is a time of sounds — and silences.

It is the silences which strike the perceptive observer most forcefully. After the twitterings and whistlings of spring, and the growing, bustling busyness of summer, when lawn mowers buzzed in every yard and the happy shouts of children echoed far and wide, September is distinguished by its spacious stillnesses. Suddenly, it seems, the invisible hand of autumn has laid a muffled life in and made it a petty thing to disturb the peace of the bright September sun. There is a spaciousness to the world that belies the lengthening days. There are silences in which a man can hear the echo of the falling leaves. There is a beauty which stirs the depths of memory and accelerates the beating of the human heart.

* * *

There are sounds, of course, but they serve primarily as counterpoints to the silences, which is the main theme of autumn's symphony. The man who walks alone in the woods hears not only the whisperings of Nature over her theme. They are the faint bustlings and commotions, even in a world growing empty and quiet. There are sleepy, even though the birds have long since abandoned the trees, choristers and the insects — the cicades, the crickets, the aphids, and their myriad cousins who combine their efforts to produce an endless chant that fills the air with its insistent yet subdued treble. The man who paused to drink in this muted plainsong can detect in its rhythms a thread of fatalistic melancholy. Summer is passing, fall is coming on and soon there will be an end to all singing. Here are life and beauty, but they soon will pass. Let's be for the grim, cold onslaught of winter — to this not the theme of the myriad tiny singers?

* * *

With their perpetual chant ringing faintly in his ears, the stroller marks the other signs of autumn. Purple swatches of joepye weed mingle with the white-flowered boneset. Queen's Lace along the gray stone wall. Here and there are patches of golden-rod, foaming like golden surf across field and meadow. The steeple bush lifts its delicate violet spire in swamp and pasture, while the aster lingers daintily under foot.

All this he savors and appreciates, yet in the end he is summoned back to contemplation by the testimony of his ears. For, as he turns his way homeward, he finds he is listening to the distant melody of approaching autumn. A lone crow caws faintly behind a distant hill and the sound of the call hangs in the eager memory like the echo of a bell. There is a sudden scurrying in the oak tree overhead and a spatter of falling acorns on the path below. As the early shadows creep out of the east and stealthily invade the fields a whisper of a breeze stirs in the trees. But such is the sensitive disturbs the pool of silence only briefly. The ear of the stroller is tuned to the whisperings of Nature over her theme. They are the faint bustlings and commotions, even in a world growing empty and quiet. Greenland Gets Quinoa

National Geographic Magazine

Quinoa, a nutritious plant grown since cave dwellers lived in the high Andes of South America, is getting a chance to prove its worth in a new crop for Greenland's thin, stony soil.

The experimental seeding, a polar project of the United Nations, may bring a rich new food plant to an island that grows only grasses, mosses and bright summertime flowers.

Thousands of miles southwestward, in the upland natives of Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador still subsist largely on quinoa for food, as is familiar to them as corn is to many nationalities. Its seeds are ground into meal, its leaves are eaten raw, cooked as a pot herb, and its stalks are fed to cattle and poultry feed. Indians chew the stalks along with coca leaves to reduce hunger and fatigue on long journeys.

Providing minerals, carbohydrates, and proteins, the quinoa plant has been harvested since ancient times by hunters and soldiers. A thick-stalked, herbaceous plant growing to a height of three to six feet, resembling amaranth or pigweed, it is sometimes called the pigweed of the Andes.

Quinoa helps to sustain life in regions where little else grows and vegetables seldom are part of the native diet. Indians sometimes make of quinoa keep for lengthy periods without spoiling. It serves as a breakfast cereal, and also in pudding with eggs and sugar.

Botanists of the United States experimentally in 1899 by the government, quinoa was tested as a substitute for spinach, but without great success. It grows in the highlands of southern Peru and Bolivia, however, it is a major crop, growing at altitudes of 13,000 to 13,000 feet.

In rotation, fields are first planted to potatoes, then quinoa, then barley — a practice that has been followed for several years before plantings begin anew. The grain ordinarily is planted from September to November. A loose soil is desirable, although potassium and manganese is preferred, though some experts maintain that quinoa will grow in almost any soil.

The seeds may germinate in about two days but eight to 10 days are ordinarily required. The plant matures to a height of up to six feet within five or six months. Then it is cut and placed in piles and left for several days to dry in the sun. Reapers beat individual heads with flails to release the tiny kernels.

Quinoa is believed to have originated in the vast basin of Lake Titicaca, on the Peru-Bolivia boundary, famed as the highest large navigable lake in the world (altitude 12,500 feet).

The ingenious Incas drew strength from quinoa in building their cities and massive monuments, authorities say. The plant was sacred to the Inca ruling nation. To demonstrate their respect for quinoa's nutritive elements, the Incas went to the fields on the first day of planting and ceremoniously opened the furrow with a golden digging stick.

Tablet Form Tranquillity

Hamilton Spectator

It is not surprising that the government, faced by an ever-increasing rise in the sale of "tranquilizing" drugs that have come on the market in the past few years, should be considering placing those of them most abused on the restricted list which makes a prescription necessary, on that list. While it may be true that they are not habit-forming in the usual sense, they can result in a psychological dependence even without the graver dangers that face the person who becomes habituated to alcohol, to barbiturates or to narcotics.

Some of these new drugs, though fairly powerful, can be purchased over the counter; they are not "sleeping pills"; they ease tension—some of them for the reason have been found helpful in chronic neurotics, who perpetually restless who find it as hard to sit still or to relax as they do to go to sleep. There is the point to naming these drugs. But there is point to be indicated the basic risk that goes beyond any purely physical hazard.

That danger is inherent in much of modern life: the dependence upon artificial aids, not only for artificial thrills and excitement; then in turn we seek artificial relaxation. Many modern people in this frantic age of stress and tension are unable to live alone, or to accept as normal some measure of anxiety and some measure of unhappiness with which will usually level off if let alone. There are those who cannot simply feel they are unduly treated if worry comes their way, or if crises have to be met, or if an occasional night's sleep is hard to come by. Like the child of modern pharmacy, they find an easy way out. The result is, the whole cycle of sleeping and waking, of excitement and relaxation, of work and rest, become artificially stimulated. That is a definance of Nature—and there is no way of punishing those who habitually flout her rules of order.

"Tranquilizer" is a mischievous name for such drugs, useful as they are under certain conditions in certain cases. For tranquility is a state of mind, of poise and calm and serenity. That can be gained in pill form. If it were, we should be "happiness" drugs, too—and only a fool tries to drug his way to happiness.

That thought is commend to those who may already have found an "easy way out" in "tranquilizing" drugs now available without prescription, and to those who might be tempted to experiment with them. "Not habit-forming" is a misleading phrase technically, marihuana is not habit-forming either. But it is a dangerous form of escape. Let people instead give some thought to the true nature of tranquility; those who have found it in everyday life will readily agree that it is not come in a bottle or pill-box.

Mr. Frank E. Wills, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Price of this city, has been appointed manager of the Merchants' Bank at Dutton, Ontario.

At a meeting of the local bank managers it was decided to open the banks on Saturday from ten o'clock in the morning until three o'clock in the afternoon. The object for which they hold to close the banks at one o'clock Saturday afternoon.

A number of men from the United States, who have been over on a fishing trip for several days, had fine sport fishing up at Eagle Lake. They caught three fine lunge, the largest of which weighed 43 pounds; the other two weighed respectively 25 pounds and 23 pounds. They were very happy and proud fishermen.

People Eat Cheap Food

Windsor Star

People eat what they eat not out of any inherited taste but rather because of what is available and what they can afford. Thus the principal cereal of the Far East is rice, now grown in America. The rice paddies offer peasant farmers a more economical crop than wheat. Rice is nutritious, and our wide fields, wheat is a natural crop.

For similar reasons Canadians are big consumers of beef and pork; Spanish and Portuguese, heavy eaters of fish; Australians of mutton, and so forth.

Orientals have eaten rice because it is a cheap crop available to peasant populations. It isn't that they dislike wheat or wheat products. This is shown by the postwar experience of Japan, importing ever-increasing quantities of wheat. Japan, of course, must import some foodstuffs but if she can afford it, wheat is attractive to them.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The art of camping is apparently reviving. Between the two wars, camping appeared to be declining at a rapid rate. The tremendous expansion of highways all over the country appeared to give people the chance to spend their holidays in the comfort of their motor cars, leaving camping to canoeists and wayside cabin establishments which expanded almost as rapidly as did the highways. In the same period, the cabin trailer grew in popularity, and large numbers of people supposed they were camping when they gyrated about the countryside, trailing most cosy and attractive living quarters right with them. Somehow in that same interwar era, the youth of the country lost interest in paddling light canoe and pushing off into the wilds. The ease and comfort of the people who had the money, and they went in for outboard motors, water skiing and the more sophisticated fashions of their time.

This past year, in different provinces, I have noted with some excitement the increase in camp sites along highways and waterways, usually cleared and established by governments, which people were camped in tents, and from which they were travelling out by canoe and outboard skiff to the surrounding country. Two years ago, in a particular river to which I am very attached, you might see ten canoes in a whole summer. This past season, I saw a hundred. They were there and three canoe parties, equipped with tents and other collapsible camping gear, and obviously enjoying immensely the simple sport of camping as did their forefathers.

I attribute much more than twenty of these voyageurs and got pretty much the same angle from all of them.

"No fun motoring any more," they said. "Everywhere cars on the roads, too many people at all the resorts. Privacy is a hard thing to find any more. Therefore, except camping in what is left of the wilds. And we keep to the little rivers and the small lakes, then the aircraft can't intrude on you."

In other words, a generation may be rising which is getting a little weary of too much company in its vacations and highly mobile world, and finding peace and quiet, a kind of serenity, in the places where everybody can't go—the wide woods.

Personal Health Talks

Flying Saucers and Negri Bodies

I have not seen a flying saucer or encountered one of the strange little men that fly them—but I can have my own opinion about them, can't I?

When Louis Pasteur died at the age of 73 in 1895, Adelchi Negri was a student, age 19 years. When Negri, having become a physi'an, was 27 years old, he published his first description of certain peculiar cell formations or masses revealed in microscopic examination of brain tissue from rabid animals.

Some pathologists and some physicians accepted the Young doctor's findings. Another 10 years animal had rabies. Others did not. Of course Pasteur himself had passed on years before Negri reported his finding. And Negri passed on at the age of 38 years.

Among the pathologists who did not accept Negri bodies as either the cause or as proof of rabies was Babes who maintained that the masses described by Negri were merely the products of degeneration and were in no sense the cause of the disease in question. Has leukocytes or phagocytes (white blood corpuscles, scavenger cells) in the tissues are the cause of inflammation.

Notwithstanding the question-able significance of Negri bodies, health officers who are inordinately fond of newspaper publicity and practicing physicians who choose the easy way have come to regard the "report" of the health laboratory's finding of Negri bodies as "positive" proof that the animal was rabid.

These authorities pro tem do not deign to explain how they became so exclusive about it. Here's the line for you to follow, they say, in effect. If you don't, we'll make you as dangerous radical in the public view.

Here is something for real physicians and intelligent laymen to think about. These same bewhiskered men back their ears and hear that "cauterization of the wound with fuming nitric is the only known way to destroy rabies virus." It would be beneficial their dictum to explain at least why they arrive at such a shocking idea. Nobody in his, at least by any physician or surgeon of this era. To cauterize any kind of fresh wound is the most favorable medium for their growth, and the growth and multiplication of these germs in the wound produces the tetanus toxin which kills.

The proper treatment of dog bite, whether someone imagines dog is mad or not, is soap and water washing the wound out with soap and water, using enough to assign substance, no dead tissue and no injured tissue remains in the wound. Instead of closing the wound aseptically with stitches or otherwise, it is left open and unsutured. Then because of the living habits of animals and birds, an immediate infection of anthrax, tetanus or toxoid, and a second injection 3 to 7 days later.

I'll be astonished if any physician or surgeon of standing takes issue with this.

PREVENTION vs. CURE

Our asylums are full of insane people, yet most people are driving to insanity with a complacence that have no business existing. In the midst of all our handwringing we have good sense bumps there are heard a few sensible voices which declare, "The way to avoid insanity is never to start drinking."

We are long on cure and short on prevention. The place to stop every evil is right where it begins. If we can stop drinking you will find this principle being put forth everywhere. Prevention is better than cure.

A recent headline in a local newspaper summed it up perfectly. It read: The Best Way To Stop Crime Poison Ivy Is To Stay Away From It.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JEALOUSY

I have often wondered why it is that people get jealous.

Why should a woman be jealous of her husband because she might be more beautiful, or more accomplished, or more successful? And why should a man be jealous because of the success of another? Each of us should be because our friend makes a good salary, or has been successful in some line? It is absurd.

To allow this jealousy to be a part of our nature is to invite unhappiness and often ill health, for jealousy is a poison and it spreads through the mind into all parts of the body—and it can only into the soul. Why should we thus abuse this wonderful body of ours, and clutter up our mind with unwholesome thought?

No one can measure the damage done to ourselves and others by jealousy. Once deeply jealous, there often is no hope or help for it works ill toward others and Five ourselves. Love, love, love often this jealousy leads to many a crime has been traced to this unwholesome trait in human beings.

It can of us would develop every gift or talent that the good Lord has distributed among all peoples, this would be a much happier world to live in. It is love that the one tainted with hatreds and jealousies. It's our world, yours and mine. Let's do what we can to keep jealousy out of it and see how much we can make others by encouragement, personal interest and kindness to the love bank of the world!

Jealousy gives nothing in return but destruction and self-punishment. When tempted to exercise jealousy, try to think of the gift that God has given us and be assured that you will be a saner, happier human being.

Girl Committed After Court Told Of Cemetery Spree

ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — Alma Doreen Lockner, a slight blonde 19-year-old, was committed for trial Friday on a charge of offering an indignity to a dead human body after witnesses told of a macabre spree in a cemetery Sept. 23.

Miss Lockner, who at first elected trial by jury and was later allowed to change her request to trial by judge alone, sat quietly as three other young people took the stand to tell a story of desecration in Greenwood cemetery.

A 17-year-old girl, who faces similar charges Oct. 18 in juvenile court, said under cross-examination neither she nor Miss Lockner said or did anything to encourage two youths accused with the two girls of digging a body from a month-old grave and dragging it behind a car.

HELD A LIGHT

She said she held a piece of paper while Miss Lockner lit it with a cigaret lighter so the two girls could watch their male companions digging in the grave.

William Nelson, 18, who earlier pleaded guilty to the same charge was sentenced to two years definite and two years indefinite, said "just Dave and I were in the grave" as far as he could remember.

Both he and David Ferguson, 19, testified their memories of the Sunday night in question are vague. They said they drank all of a 26-ounce bottle of whisky and part of a "mickey" before going to the cemetery.

Nelson said when he first saw the body dragged from the grave, "it really scared me."

"I sobered up right away."

Ferguson's preliminary hearing was scheduled for Friday but was postponed by Magistrate W. M. Patterson until next Wednesday.

Besides the desecration of the grave, crosses were uprooted in the cemetery's veterans' section and flowers strewn about.

Present Medals To Winners at Plowing Match

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP) — More than 80 trophies and medals were presented Friday night to winners in various sections of competition at the international plowing match which ended Friday.

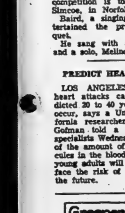
The presentations were made at a banquet, put on in honor of the match, attended by about 400 and several farms near this village 10 miles northwest of Oshawa.

The major award, the Imperial Oil Company Esso Silver Plow, emblematic of the Canadian championship, was won by Hugh Baird, a 32-year-old farmer from Blackwater, Ont.

The same company also presented a gold medal to Karl Watson, 37, of Forest, Ont., who won the horse-plowing championship.

The Ontario Plowmen's Association, which sponsors the match each year, announced next year's competition is to be held near Simcoe, in Norfolk County.

Baird, a singing plowman, entertained the presentation banquet.



He sang with a male quartet and a solo, Melinda.

PREDICT HEART ATTACKS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Future heart attacks can now be predicted 30 to 40 years before they occur, says a University of California researcher. Dr. John W. Gofman told a group of heart specialists Wednesday that studies of the amount of giant fat molecules in the blood of children and young adults will show those who face the risk of heart attacks in the future.

Greener Thumbs

BY JOYCE SMITH

Seasons for gardeners are more a matter of temperature than of the calendar. Fall planting is recommended for many trees, shrubs, perennials and bulbs, but the date in the fall may vary a month or more, depending on the area. In warm climates, planting may be cool weather; in cold sections plants must be in the ground and established before freezing. Check your planting dates.

Your Car

Save Gas While Driving Safely

By EUGENE MILMOE

Gas mileage, like safety, depends on the motorist as well as on the running condition of his car. As a matter of fact, gas-saving driving techniques will also promote the safety cause.

Every driver can minimize gas consumption by practicing these five rules: (1) When starting the engine, don't race it to warm up quickly nor let it idle too long. (2) Accelerate easily and steadily. Never try to leap away like a jack rabbit—but don't creep along in lower gears either. When you're driving, avoid any tendency to pedal-pump or feed gas in spurts. Hold a steady pace at moderate speed. (4) Reduce speed when taking curves—there's less tire resistance when you do. (5) Slow down gradually. Save sudden braking for emergencies only.

From H. P.: "Normally, I have no trouble at all with my 1953 transmission. Lately, however, I notice something peculiar. When I drive up a steep or long hill, the car performs sluggishly like a manual shift car when the clutch is slipping. This never occurs under conditions. Any idea what it means?"

(A) Your diagnosis, transmission slippage, appears to be the answer, and low fluid level is probably the cause.

I. R. writes: "My engine fouls the spark plugs. The service dealer informs me that slow city driving would cause this and advises that I try a special motor additive. The oil, incidentally, is changed regularly between 1,000 and 1,500 miles. What's your opinion?"

(A) This fouling could be due to the heat range of the spark plugs you're using. Hot plugs are best when a car is used for continuous slow speed driving.

N. O. asks: "Will you please inform me about including a small amount of graphite when adding engine oil? I have been told this will prevent wear of bearings, etc. Is this true or will it do harm? I am driving a new Kellydoer model, and since I buy a new car only once every eight years, I must adhere to the best of care."

(A) The use of graphite as an engine oil additive has prompted some lubrication experts to point out that while it has advantages, uses, it is insoluble in lubricating oil and could cause harmful clogging.

From C. S.: "I have a 1951 station wagon. About two months ago, I had my dealer install a new motor and clutch. Since then, I cannot put the car in first without grinding gears. The person who did the work tried slowing down the idling speed and also adjusted the clutch pedal linkage so that the pedal is now released almost all the way before the clutch engages—in other words, there's very little pedal play. The gears still grind."

(A) Occasionally, during a clutch job, release levers are not properly adjusted, and clutch drag results — which, of course causes gear clash when shifting. Incidentally, you're only inviting more clutch troubles when pedal play is insufficient. There should be approximately 1" free travel.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving—Be sure about your car.

Man and Wife Killed by Train At Crossing

TORONTO (CP) — Llewellyn Button, 32, and his wife, Ada, also 33, were killed Friday night while homeward bound from their weekend shopping when their car was struck by a Canadian National Railways train at a level crossing a few doors away from their home.

Police Inspector Andrew McKinney said CNR gateman Joseph Cowie, 62, is in custody in connection with the accident.

The body of Mr. Button, 32, a shear cutter for Rodace Metal Company, was found 100 yards from the scene of the accident on Logan Avenue in east-central Toronto.

His wife's body was folded in the wreckage of their car, struck by the CNR three-coach passenger train from Belleville and carried 200 yards down the track. Both were pronounced dead when taken to hospital.

School Gymnasium Filled To Capacity for Exercises At Quinte Secondary School

The gymnasium of Quinte Secondary School was capacity filled last night with parents, friends and relatives of students receiving diplomas, prizes and awards attending the school's first annual commencement exercises.

Guest speaker Professor Isabel Laird of the Department of Psychology of Queen's University, addressed the graduates and under-graduates but rather suggested a few of the aspects at being an adult. Professor Laird based her address on pet grievances harbored by the majority of people. She divided these grievances into four categories.

"First," said the speaker, "there are grievances which may be classed as sweet. These are experiences which although half sad and half happy, produce satisfaction and a feeling of contentment. Then there is the sour group. These basically include all types of prejudice, with special emphasis placed on prejudice of people. "In being prejudiced," she said, "we remain childish."

Serious grievances result when people keep remembering the thing they have failed in. This produces, in advanced cases, the inability to get out of the rut and on with accomplishments.

Then there are grievances which are termed ceremonial. These are predominant in the adult age group. Most common example appears when adults run down adolescent children.

"But," continued Professor Laird, "when you catch yourself about to say: 'Why didn't they do something about it', then you are standing four-square on a ceremonial grievance." She suggested that when this occurs the pronoun "they" be replaced by "we."

The speaker said she could not offer any prospects for an adulthood free from fear, strain and tension but rather said she could see the day when this year's graduating class would be facing the triumphs of art, science and new interpretations of religion.

In conclusion, Professor Laird offered a bit of philosophy: "When life gets up and looks at you, as you sometimes look at yourselves in the mirror in the morning, grin back at it."

Introduced by Mr. L. F. Reid the speaker was thanked by Miss Margaret Sloan.

The school choir, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Mitchell, offered a couple of songs appropriate for the commencement exercises. Mrs. Schroder led the school band in the processional and recessional music. Jim Phillips rendered a coronet solo.

The Face on the Stamp

Most Adventurous Storyteller

By NICHOLAS MIKA

Fifty years ago died one of the most remarkable of French authors. A man who wrote so many astonishing things that we are still puzzled as to how he could foresee precisely more than half a century ago what would be happening in our day and age.

Millions of people throughout the world followed with awe his breathtaking, fantastic travels. Reading his books, one would think that he had explored every part of our globe. But this was not so. All his books were born from his knowledge and his fabulous imagination based on geographical facts. To be exact, he seldom left his desk.

One of his famous adventures was "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea." This book brought him not only fame but made him one of the richest authors who lived at that time in France. But this was just the beginning of his adventures in the unknown. The reader travels with him to the "Mysterious Island" explores the "Centre of the Earth" and follows him "From the Earth to the Moon." He journeys through the jungles of Africa and Asia, crosses Canada and reaches the North pole.

INSPIRED THOUSANDS

This remarkable French author conquered not only the hearts of all the youngsters in the world but gave unlimited inspiration to future inventors, discoverers and scientists. So brilliant was his fantasy that seventy to ninety years ago he foresaw the use of TV, helicopters, guided missiles, X-rays and radio.

Many of his prophecies are now fulfilled, some of them still are in the process of realization, such as flying to the moon or reaching the centre of the earth. In his books he visited the inhabitants of Mars and Jupiter His radio waves were so powerful that they penetrated the planets and reached the other planets. His stories are fascinating and many pleasant leisure hours for his readers, but encouraged scientists to realize his fancies. There is hardly any important invention of our days that he did not foresee. Take for instance the atomic submarine Nautilus. Such a boat we were able to construct just a couple of years ago. He, however, travelled under water nearly ninety years before the scientific world could catch up with his bold imagination.

WROTE FIFTY BOOKS

He wrote over fifty books and countless fiction stories. When he had finished his first adventure story "Five Weeks in a Balloon," more than a dozen publishers turned it down with the remark that he should not write such crazy things. Disappointed and hurt, he threw the manuscript in the fire and swore never to write again. Well, perhaps he would have become a lawyer as his father wanted him to be. But his wife made him promise not to give up so easily but to try just once more. He did. The book that had been turned down before so many times became a best seller for many years. It was translated into every language. No one gave up his job as a stockbroker and embarked on his career as a story-teller.

After publishing "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea" he was awarded the French Legion of Honor and became the idol of the youth in every country of the world. He built himself a luxurious yacht "Saint Michel" on board of which he wrote his books for almost forty years, taking his inspiration from the sea which he loved most.

But despite fame and wealth he was a lonesome man—afraid of tyranny and despotism. He was sensitive, romantic and above all idealistic. He free in the world which he created. From all the books he wrote, there is one that will live forever, as long as man's heart is young. It is "Around the World in Eighty Days" by Jules Verne.

Jules Verne appeared on Monaco stamps in 1955.

St. Joseph's PTA Presents Prizes to Graduating Class

The meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Joseph's school was held recently in the school. Mr. Shepherd, past president, opened the meeting and introduced the new president, Mr. Stafford McKenna.

Mr. McKenna thanked Mr. Meagher and introduced the other members of the executive, vice-president, Mr. Walsh; recording secretary, Miss Margaret Durkin; corresponding-secretary, Mrs. C. Whalen; treasurer, Mrs. H. Emerson; chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. E. Silver; chairman of the finance committee, Mr. F. Maund.

The class mothers were also introduced, Mrs. W. Meagher, Mrs. J. Doran, Mrs. M. Hanley, Mrs. M. O'Connor, Mrs. R. Johnson and Mrs. H. Carr-Brian.

PRIZES ACHIEVED

After the business meeting was over, prizes were distributed to the graduating class. Mr. Meagher presented those donated by the association. Jonnie Lee and Tom Gadjicer received the prizes for highest standing. Stephanie Butler and Bonnie Lee Aniano for the Oratorical contest.

A special prize was presented to Patsy Hopkins for winning the Singer Dressmaking contest for this locality.

Maureen Kennedy, Mary Doherty, Jim Lazarus and Jim Maund were the winners of the Holy Name Society prizes presented by Mr. F. Maund. Mr. Walsh explaining honors in the Junior catechetical examination.

Crucifixes, gifts of the Catholic Women's League were presented to the graduating class by Mrs. C. Murphy.

Mr. McKenna then introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Father Buckley. Father Buckley emphasized the importance of co-operation between parents and teachers. Father also spoke on the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. Mr. McKenna thanked the speaker.

The Rev. Sister Mary Helen Rita's class won the attendance prize.

Rev. Father Buckley closed the meeting with a prayer. Refreshments were served by the mothers of Room V.

Belleville Duo-Pianists, Cara and Greg Butler, Stage Second Recital

By EUGENE LANG

To satisfy the discerning palate of the epicure the chef works from the basic ingredients of the food to be served and arrives at the finished delicacy that pleases and a taste of the demanding gourmet. Let us then apply the same laws to the concoction of music served from one medium sized stage, add two Steinway concert grand pianos, and then seat in front of each instrument one extensively talented young artist. For her best results choose one sixteen year old youth named Greg Butler for the one piano and a lovely young girl of seventeen called Cara Butler for the other. Open the keyboards, have them face each other and let them play their hearts out. The finished product will be one that will have the mouth watering of all who hear and succumb to the beautiful keyboard stylings of these highly gifted musicians of note.

Two years ago these two piano prodigies, the children of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler of Dundas Street East, made their debut before a Belleville audience and created a fervor in these musical circles. Now, after a two year respite, Cara and Greg, outstanding students of the talented piano pedagogue Miss Mona Bates of Toronto, have made a smash comeback in their home town. Last Wednesday night in the Aquinas auditorium the Butlers displayed their amazing pianistic proficiency that is putting them on the road to fame in musical fame. Their precision of attack and finger dexterity certainly seem to come from one piano instead of two, so meticulous is their approach to the keys.

IN THREE SECTIONS

Cara and Greg divided the program into three sections to demonstrate their musical ability. Over half the recital consisted of duo-piano numbers and this was balanced by solo offerings from each participant.

The program got under way with a performance of Mozart's Sonata for Piano Sonatas in D Major (K. 448) that was exceptional in its dignified repose and melodic clarity. The outward movements were subtly balanced in tempo with a nice regard to the brilliant passage work with the double scalings and chakes articulated with the finesse of a Swiss Music Box. The Andante movement was played with deep sentiment and moving transparency of phrasing.

A hodge-podge type of modern polka by Lennoy Berkely was next in order. Mr. Berkely is a highly talented young artist who has the audacious temerity to write pieces like Braziliera of Darius Malhaud and the Frenzied Jamaican Rhumba of Arthur Benjamin.

The Swan and Aquarium from Saint-Saens' Carnival especially related by Cara and Greg to the various delicate postures and careful shadings. The grotesque "Hall of Mirrors" and same composer was given a ghoulish perception that was made all the more difficultie that flew by as quickly under the expert hands of the young artists as did the unearthly characters that Cara and Greg portrayed in their keyboard creation of "things twixt heaven and earth."

SOLO NUMBERS

For his solo numbers' Greg chose the sombre Prelude in C Minor Op. 32, No. 20 and a more popular Polonaise in A Flat, Op. 53, both by Chopin. Greg came forth with masterful interpretations of both items, even though a more quickened tempo could have been utilized in the Prelude and opening bars of the Polonaise. Technically, both works were conquered by Greg, especially the larger opus, but the human touch was missed in rendition of the Polonaise suffered by an over emphasis of accents in the left hand. The gradations of sound here could stand some deepening down so that basses valves will not completely overshadow the treble part which needs to be heard above the rumblings of the left hand. A humorous piece by Mozart called "Cat and Mouse" by Aaron Copland was next featured up and down the keyboard in a cacophonous melee of jovial exuberance.

Cara in her solo exhibitions chose the delicate and dainty flutterings of Schumann's "Prophet Bird" to the gypsy abandon of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody in A Minor. The Schumann piece is a composition with subtle phrasings and elusive charm, while the Liszt Rhapsody is a real virtuoso piece with its nuance power and full bodied masculinity. These suit Miss Butler's slim hands. The Chopin Nocturne in E Flat played as an encore was particularly well executed in its message from the heart to the ear and was rendered with delicacy, mainly because of too harsh a tone being used.

The very lovely duo numbers were the "Walking Song" of Vivaldi-Thompson and the solo "Dance of May Safely Grass," By Bach, both interspreted with deeply felt musicianship and artistic finesse. Special mention must be made of the National Anthem, played in a manner that was a fitting and prayerful like manner. It was most beautifully played, but the singing was far from beyond comprehension. Sentiment like this has no part in the National Anthem and Miss Bates would do well to check authorities before she allows her wonderful young artists to adhere to. Cara and Greg are two young musicians who in the near future should be proud and have ahead of them a future of great promise and in their roles of solo and duo pianists.

The concert was sponsored by the BCIVS Key Club which is a junior service club under the wings of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. Following the recital the Key Club under Mrs. Cara and Greg a reception in the cafeteria of the Belleville Collegiate. The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham on George St.

'Unit System' Explained at H-S Assoc

The October meeting of the Queen Mary — Prince Charles Home and School Association was held Thursday evening at the Prince Charles auditorium with Mrs. Chambers presiding.

The president called on volunteers to attend the provincial conference at Lindsay Collegiate Institute on October 20th.

Mrs. Donnelly, convener of the rummage sale, on October 13, asked for donations of clean, used clothing.

Prince Charles school principal, Mr. C. Cousins, explained the unit system to members. This system enables the school child to progress at his own mental speed without being faced with the fear of failure at the end of each term. Both the energetic student and the slow learner's interest greatly benefited by the system, he said.

A panel male up of Mr. Frink, Mrs. G. Anderson, Miss M. Hillis and Mr. J. Cousins, answered the many questions asked by the parents. It was noted that a little more time for the questions be given a slow child a little more time to grasp the material and that a child slow in academic work may be bright in another field. Miss M. Hillis, Kindergarten teacher, urged mothers to send their children to school often.

Mrs. G. Ling thanked the panel on behalf of the assembly.

Entertainment followed. Mrs. Cousins, accompanied the singing of Mrs. Kilmary, Mrs. Miller and senior Mr. Moorcroft.

Mrs. E. Pugh, last year's president, was presented with her past president's pin by appreciation of her work during the past year.

Michael Stalker, grade 6 pupil, gave a reading for the humorous recitation.

Coffee was served by Mrs. A. Skinner and her committee.

'Witnessing for Christ' Topic At S. Hastings Y.P. Fall Rally

On Wednesday evening 48 Young People from South Hastings district attended their annual Fall Rally which was held at Centenary United Church and the theme was "Witnessing for Christ."

Registration began at 6.30 p.m. and at 7.30 p.m. a delicious dinner was served by the ladies of the church. After dinner, the President, Miss Cheryl Chilton, introduced the members of the head table.

Greetings were extended to the Young People from the president, Ralph Swan; from Donna Ray, president of Centenary Y.P.U., and from Boyd Moorcroft, president of Belleville Presbytery Y.P.U.

Several announcements were made and Bryce Philp expressed the group's appreciation to the ladies for the lovely banquet.

Ruth McMillen introduced the devotional period. Rev. R. H. Darke, B.Th., minister of the Foxboro charge.

NOMINATING REPORT

The Rev. W. Fletcher presented the report of the nominating committee and called for further nominations. At the close of nominations, the votes were counted and the following results were obtained:

President, Reta Christie (unchanged); president, Ralph Swan, (unchanged); vice-president, Bob Frost (unchanged); corresponding secretary, Lorna Ray; recording secretary, Ruth McMillen; pianist, Lyn Wright; treasurer, Glen Bellamy; assistant treasurer, Lorraine Angellinn convener, Marilyn Parks (unchanged); missions and world citizenship convener, Bryce Philp (unchanged); stewardship and finance convener, Bryce Philp (unchanged); citizenship and community service convener, Jean Finkle; recreational and publicity convenors, Ruth McMullen and Ralph Sprague; Sunday school adviser, Rev. H. M. Davis' members at large, Floyd Milton, Helen Reid.

A lively sing-song led by George Frost with Evelyn Burkitt assisting at the piano, was enjoyed by all. The secretary's report was read by Lyn Finkle which covered the events of the past year. Treasurer's report was given by Glen Belcour. Following the reports the young People's Union conducted the worship service which opened the call to worship was read by Gary Chamberlain.

The Young People joined in the singing of the hymn "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah." The Scripture lesson taken from Philippians 1: 12-18 and 27-30 was read by Ruth Lenton. The meditation on "Witnessing" was presented by Reta Christie followed by the singing of "Almighty Father Who Dost Give." The closing prayer was given which was led by Carolyn Thompson.

At this time Gc theme speaker, Mr. Darke, presented his message "Witnessing for Christ." He stressed the importance of having a faith adequate for today. "No matter what we do in life we must look to God for the power to do it. The church should be the conference room where God can be as patient as God, as kind as God and as forgiving as God. Christianity and the church must strive to possess these qualities."

Mr. Darke's message was interesting and inspiring and presented a challenge to everyone present. At the close of the meeting all were joined in the singing of "Breathe on Me Breath of God."

The evening closed with the installation service which was conducted by Rev. R. F. Sherwin. Each officeracceptedt the responsibility of his office and significant his acceptance with the lighting of a candle. After the executive had been received and lighted their candles each member of the congregation came forward and lighted a candle signifying their support of the new executive.

Going Places

Found Driving Through Kansas Sandstorm Quite an Experience

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Colorado Springs, Colo., "The air here is crisp, clear, clean and not medium-rare, as it should be at 6,000 feet above sea level. The sun is warm, the breeze brisk, we've ordered a discouraging word and the skies are blue — nearly all day.

But, brother, yesterday this time we wondered whether we'd ever see Belleville again — especially the Kansas sandstorm we drove through.

We drove through an old-fashioned Kansas sandstorm the likes of which we hope never to see again. Not since the dust bowl days of the thirties have we seen anything to equal it, was quite an experience. It was the same kind of day at this point — the one when we started out from Junction City, Kans., a few miles west of Topeka, yesterday, towards the end of the first week of our coast-to-coast trip which we hope to tell you about last week. Until then, we're fine, the car is fine, and we were full of glowing words for you about the glories of autumn in Ontario. But — but not somehow the moment doesn't seem appropriate.

Except for a window-shade-wall of dust that had loomed up during the night and some strange vertical banks of wispy clouds on the horizon, there was nothing to indicate unusual about the weather.

"Storm coming, folks," said the motel manager, "Too late in the year for tornadoes. Anyway it's supposed to pass us by."

We felt better, but for an hour or so we kept tipped the car around the highway like an airliner in a storm.

"Is it always like this out here?" we asked the proprietor when we stopped for gas near Victoria,—Kans.

"No," he drawled, "sometimes it gets a mite worse." He may not have been much of a wit, but he was a good judge of a good prophet.

For a while, however, it got better. The wind let up and the car started to behave itself. Only the cloudiness and the horizon became more general and took on an odd brown tint.

We didn't realize the wind had whipped up again until chunks of brush started bouncing across the highway like frenzied basketballs on the loose.

Suddenly the haze was all around us, as if we'd driven into a severe thunderstorm. The wind was a gale—only wind-whipped snakes of dust. We turned on our headlights and cutting down visibility to a few feet.

We put on our headlights and closed the windows, but the fine dust settled in a white coating on the car, outside and in, and in our hair, eyes and mouths. Other cars came down the highway at us, but in the thick brown atmosphere they appeared like ghosts than two pocket flashlights in a fog. Our own were invisible to us, we found in the daytime.

We got to the bay hamlet of Council Grove, Kans., and pulled into a service station. The attendant looked at us and our car and shook his head.

"Can't go on," he said. "Road's closed. Can't see a thing. Better stay here."

We did. We stayed there for two hours, and then the wind died down and we could see the road again. We drove on to Emporia, Kans., and stopped for the night.

Today we're in Colorado Springs, and the sun is shining. We're going to stay here for a few days and then head for Denver and the mountains.

We've been driving for a week now, and we've seen a lot of interesting things. We've seen the Mississippi River at Hannibal, Mo., and the Missouri River at Kansas City. We've seen the Ozarks and the Flint Hills and the Kansas wheat fields. We've seen the Kansas City Royals baseball team in action, and we've seen the Kansas City Athletics in action. We've seen the Kansas City Chiefs football team in action.

We've seen a lot of things, but we haven't seen anything that we'd rather see than Belleville.

WEDDINGS

LYNCH—RUSH

St. Edmund's church, Stoco, was the setting on Saturday, Sept. 8, at 3 o'clock, a lovely autumn wedding was solemnized in which Sidney Baptist church, Hallowey, Ont., when Edith Florence Mae Stone of Halloway, daughter of George Stone, and the late Mrs. Stone, became the bride of Donald George Boyd, of Lindsay, bellon, N.B., son of Mr. and Mrs. Everard Pond. The Rev. Keith Daniel, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, Belleville, officiated beneath an arch with cascading satin streamers. Baskets of mums and white asters adorned the chancel, and white asters and roses centred bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Claude Pryor, pianist, of Stirling, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Marguerite McMullen, of Stirling, aunt of the bride, who sang,"I'll Walk Beside You," before the ceremony, and "O Promise Me", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon lace over satin, with tight-fitting bodice,complemented by a jacket of matching lace having a scalloped, pearl-edged collar, and long tapered sleeves ending in lace points over the wrists. The skirt featured a lace yoik with floorlength nylon net overskirt which gathered in loops held by seed pearls. Her headdress was of satin studded with seed pearls forming a coronet holding a waist length mantilla of tulle illusion veil. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Stanley Galloway (Marguerite) of Trenton, as matron of honor, who wore a floor length gown of mauve, nylon net over taffeta with white raised dots, fashioned with portrait bodice of pleated net, and jacket matching floral net. She wore a bandeau of mauve net and flowers, and matching shoes and gloves.

Miss Grace Stone of Halloway, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid in gown worn in yellow floral lace over taffeta with matching jacket. The floor length gown had a skirt was of full net panels gathered with frills at the waist, a matching yellow net bandeau dotted with sequins, matching shoes and gloves completed the costume.

Miss Marie Stone of Halloway, also sister of the bride, wore a similar gown in soft green, with matching bandeau, shoes and gloves. All carried nosegays of mums and yellow roses.

The bride's brother-in-law, Mr. Stanley Galloway of Trenton, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Floyd MacInenes of Halloway and Mr. Ronald Galloway of Trenton, were ushers.

The reception, given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone, was held at the bride's and bridegroom's home, Halloway, which was adorned with pink and white streamers, wedding bells, and baskets of mums and asters. The bride's table was centred by a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets. Those who served were, Misses Linda Rush, Queenie Campbell, Ruth and Shirley Moran.

The bride's stepmother received wearing turquoise taffeta with black accessories and pink rose corsage. She was assisted in the receiving line by Mrs. Lorne Reid, who substituted for the bridegroom's mother who was unable to be present. Mrs. Reid wore medium, blue crepe and lace, with matching accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd left New Brunswick, the bride chose a charcoal grey and white flecked suit and worsted flannel in double-breasted style, with red accessories, and corsage of pink roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Pond will reside at their home in Halloway.

Guests were present from Trenton, Picton, Belleville, Stirling, Wooddstock, Toronto, Peterborough and Foxboro.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by miscellaneous showers given by Mrs. Lorne Reid, Halloway; by Mrs. Howard Mountenay, Misses Shirley and Ruth Moran and by the Misses girls of J. and J. Cash. The J. and J. Cash girls also gave a presentation of two bengalins cushions and two pictures.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

"Age writes more wrinkles on the brow than on the mind."

The quotation serves a good thought for this weekend that fits into the pattern of the season. The clicking second hand turns the ticker-tape of time. As the panorama of the seasons parades up the avenue of years, we are spectators of the unfathomable pageant of irreversible seasons in their particular glories. Autumn showers its ticker-tape parade as Canadian leaves flutter or scurry to the ground according to the strength of quiet air or the scurrying wind.

All about us October is writing wrinkles across the land as Jack Frost shrivels the leaves, paints the beauty and brings the warnings of autumn time. The wrinkles are written for all to see in the fresh furrows of plowed fields, the stark nakedness of bare trees, the lonely evergreens and the clearly defined fences. God writes the warnings on the nation's brow while on the mind of man the autumn of time prepares us for the winter which is the interval between acts.

Autumn is not the final glory nor winter the end of the story. Spring with its promise of renewal is before us. It is good to feel that autumn beauty (and there is many beautiful and ingraciousness of age) writes behind its wrinkles the eternal hope of a new beauty in the life beyond of man. And so, as we stand on the brink of the winter days we know that the ticker-tape parade of leaves writes more "on the mind" of man than it does on the brow of the aging season.

Yesterday, we were hurrying along with our arms full of groceries and parcels when we overheard the following conversation between two Belleville kids. The little boy: "I am going to dress up as a Bandit on Hallowe'en and scare everybody on our street."

Second little boy: "Oh boy, I'm going to dress up as a cowboy and scare everybody in the whole world—boy!"

T & T gives fair warning to some street in Belleville to beware on Hallowe'en. Remember the night, and to the whole world to beware of superman-comic-book lore like. What a wonderful world is the world in the minds of little boys. Maybe it was the wonderful little boys who put the thought for this weekend into our mind when they told us of their plans to scare everybody on our street.

In our busy rounds we take it more or less for granted that great and lasting gains are made towards greater and greater social welfare in every direction. Some of the most tremendous amount of work challenging us in Canada we can appreciate more fully treating task facing countries which are not only underdeveloped but which have many decades to catch up on. The more we read about the country and the of less fortunate peoples, the more we admire. The minister of health for India is a woman, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur and her job would cause the most accomplished organizations in Australia and New Zealand to pause and think. She will discuss India's problems in town planning in order to tie everything possible together in her efforts to bring greater social welfare to India's teeming millions in village and country. The women of India are coming to the front and are leading on in thousands to co-operate in this mighty endeavor.

We read much about the disintegration of our Commonwealth in the North American press and journals. T & T would like to pass on what others are saying. A commentary in a monthly publication in Ceylon write about the "Commonwealth: a new concept." The article continues "The recent Commonwealth Conference has now more firmly brought India, not only India, but other countries like Ceylon, Pakistan, Australia, New Zealand and Canada, into the Commonwealth set up than all the previous conferences put together. The Commonwealth has assumed a new character, a new spearhead and a new force, Indian sources say.

"A new concept (credited largely to Ceylon) has been given to the Commonwealth association by a group of nations bound by common heritage of parliamentary democracy. This takes the emphasis off the heritage of the Empire and the Crown, providing at once a field of individuality and self-respect to each of the participating states."

The article points up the delicacy of our association and suggests that the "new look" will make the Commonwealth a bridge between in the strained relations between the two great powers (United Union & U.S.A.). Team work as well as some of the paradoxes are being pointed up. It is maintained that the Commonwealth is "greater by meaning" and that there is a "growing vitality and authority of the Commonwealth." The communique stresses the need for the Commonwealth to promote the economic independence so as not to be a pawn in any game. It is healthy to see how some others at least "see us," and it is encouraging even when differences are stressed strength when honestly expressed.

Staff Honors Departing Member

Members of the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer honored a departing colleague on Friday afternoon when Mrs. Dorothy Mitts of the business staff was the guest of honor at a presentation ceremony.

Mrs. Mitts, who had been a staff member for the past five years, was the recipient of a handsome fan-shaped, cut glass flower vase, the gift of the staffs of the newspaper's various departments.

Sports editor ,Geo. H. Carver gave the presentation address with Mrs. Mitts responding gracefully, expressing her appreciation of the memento and regret at the severance of happy associations.

Women Approve Motion of Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent's recommendation that federal grants to universities be doubled to $16,000,000 Thursday received commendation from the National Federation of Liberal Women.

Mrs. A. L. Caldwell of Saskatoon, national president, visited the prime minister Thursday to express appreciation for the recommendation, and for the government's action in implementing equal pay legislation for women in government industries. The equal pay legislation became effective Oct. 1.

Mrs. Caldwell was presiding at an administrative committee meeting of the NFLW here.

The group named Mrs. Hugues Lapointe, wife of Canada's veteran minister as an honorary executive representative of Eastern Canadian Liberal women.

Queen Elizabeth H-S Assoc. Holds New Mothers' Tea

Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association held its annual Mothers' Tea on Wednesday. All kindergarten mothers and New mothers were invited.

Miss Osborne, with two silver candlesticks with lime green tapers and fern as centre piece, was presented with corsages.

Tea and coffee was served, Mrs. Paradis welcomed and introduced Mrs. Osborne, kindergarten teacher, in turn, introduced the teacher. Mr. Anderson asked Miss Gorman, the school nurse, to say a few words.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHE SHOULD HAVE DIFFERENT ATTITUDE TO INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were born and raised in a medium-size New England town, and lived there until several years ago when my husband lost his health, had to retire, and we came here to live as simply and inexpensively as possible. In the last two weeks we have received several invitations to the weddings of daughters of friends "back home," and we are deeply concerned as to what to do. Although the parents of these brides-to-be certainly must realize that we cannot possibly come to the weddings and cannot possibly afford to send wedding presents, they send us invitations to both the ceremony and the reception. Don't you agree with us that this is a very thoughtless thing for them to do? — Reader

I'm so glad you wrote to me, dear lady, for give me the opportunity to urge you to think differently about these invitations. Far, far from being a "thoughtless thing" for these friends to do, it's a most thoughtful gesture for them to make to you and your husband and to the abiding bond of friendship they so obviously and devotedly cherish. For these good and remembering friends to send you a wedding invitation is a compliment and an honor. Think how you would feel if they didn't send you these invitations which suggest the endearing message, "You are on our list of good and close friends, and we hope that by some good fortune in the future we may get to be with us on this important occasion. At any rate, we want you to know that we all want you two dear friends with us."

And please don't worry a bit about not being able to send wedding presents. There is no obligation whatever for you to send a wedding present, and I'm sure this would not be expected. However, after you have written your formal "regret" to the invitations, you should write a warm-hearted letter of friendship to those who invite you to the wedding, the bride's mother and father, to thank them for the kind invitation, to say them how sorry you both are not to be able to be with them at this wonderful occasion, and to say that you will be thinking lovingly of them on the wedding day. Then I hope too that you will write a devoted letter of good wishes to the bride-to-be.

HUSBAND AND WIFE, ATTENDANTS, SEND ONE WEDDING PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be matron of honor and my husband is to be best man at the wedding of a couple who are our dearest friends. Does this mean that we should each give a wedding present, or should we give a present together, as we would if we were not attendants?

A. and K.

You and your husband send only one wedding present, signing the enclosed card with a large part of both names.

TODAY'S SHORT, SIMPLE WAY TO MAKE AN INTRODUCTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I, both in our twenties, were brought up by a very conventional mother and father, and they taught us always to say "may I introduce—" when we made an introduction. But now we've come to think that we are the only ones who use these formal phrases in making introductions. We face these people as considered "old-fashioned"? If so, what should we say to make an informal introduction? Thanks from Two Readers

Yesterday the form "may I present" or "may I introduce" were frequently used in making introductions. Today the introduction is a certain formality that was then considered essential and appropriate. Today these formal are more or less reserved for occasions of ceremony and social formality; for example, when a chairman introduces a speaker.

Today, as you and your sister have noticed, most people use the simple, short form of introduction: the two names with a short pause between. "Mrs. Davis. Mrs. Thompson." "Miss Clark . . . Mr. Baker." "Dr. Bryant . . . Mr. Youngman."

WHO MAY SAY "I'M GLAD TO HAVE MET YOU"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a discussion we are having? "A" says that it is never correct for a woman, when she is leaving a gathering, to say to a man, "I'm glad to have met you." "A" insists that it is correct for a man to say this to a woman, but not for a woman to say this to a man. "B" maintains that it is quite correct for a woman to say this to a man. Who is right about this? — A and B

"B" is right. When a woman first acquires learning, there is no reason why she should not make this conventional remark—isn't to be regarded with profound significance . . . It's simply a few polite words of social amenity

A BEAUTY AND CHARM QUIZ FOR HOUSEMAKERS

It takes only a few moments to pretty-up before preparing breakfast.

Practically from the cradle little girls are brought up to realize that, in order to catch a man, they've got to concentrate on being charming and attractive. But, despite all the books and inspirational articles which roll off the presses these days on the subject of "how to hold him", too many gals let themselves go once the knot has been tied—and then wonder why he gets that look in his eye every time a pretty girl comes within eyeshot of him on the street.

Perhaps you're bothered, dear, to check up on ourselves once in a while to find out if we've been slipping or whether we still rate as a "dream girl" in his eyes. With this in mind, here's a little quiz which will help to rate yourself in the field of beauty and charm.

1. Do you get up a little earlier than you need in the morning so that you have time to pretty-up your face before getting his breakfast?

2. Is your at-home relaxing costume so attractive that you wouldn't feel slightly embarrassment if unexpected company dropped in?

3. Do you have a practical but pretty cover-up to wear for such necessary chores as cleaning floors, washing dishes, sweeping and dusting?

4. Do you avoid wearing dresses, hats and accessories of which your husband disapproves?

5. When you're going out together, or are meeting him somewhere, do you try to be on time?

6. Are you charming to his family and friends, even though you may not care for them particularly?

7. Do you make an effort to keep up, on current events—music, art, new books, politics, sports and other subjects—so that you'll have something more entertaining to talk about than housekeeping or the children?

8. Even though you may be rightfully provoked at something he's done, do you avoid criticizing him in the presence of others?

9. When your husband comes home just bubbling over with conversation about the office, is your mind automatically even if it seems dull to you?

10. Do you try to do such beauty chores as pincurl setting, eyebrow plucking, pedicures and leg-shaving before company — or, better yet, when he's not home?

By now, it must be obvious that the correct answers to all these questions should be "Yes". If you could truthfully answer at least seven of them in this manner, you're pretty much of a dream girl. If not.....

Neighbors, Friends Honor Young Couple

MOIRA—On Friday evening, over 100 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy in honor of Donald Cornell and his bride nee Ann Bolte, who were recently married.

Mr. Wesley Farrel was master of ceremonies. Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Bob Burkitt as pianist. Music was given by Mrs. Lorne Mumby on the accordion; Mr. John Holden Mr. Harry Holden on the bones and Mr. Cornell with Mr. David Mumby on the guitar. Several humorous readings were given.

At the appointed time Mr. Boyd Moorcroft read an address to the young couple and Mr. Joe Kellar and Glen Elliott presented them with a lovely platform rocker for which Gordon and Ann graciously expressed their thanks. A social period invited everyone to come and visit them in their home in Belleville.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

WHEN TO SELL BEER

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor's food merchants have decided to support a provincial organization set up to promote the sale of beer in grocery stores. S. J. Cohen, executive secretary of the National Grocers' Association of Ontario said the association is collecting names on a petition to the Ontario government for beer. It hopes to gain 300,000 signatures.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NEVER SAY THAT A DRINKER WILL "NEVER CHANGE"

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Sometime ago there was a letter in your column from a young girl who was thinking of marrying a heavy drinker. I thought maybe by writing this letter I could make her see what marrying the fellow would mean.

When I met my ex-husband, he drank all the time and kept promising me he'd stop. And he meant it in a way. But of course he didn't stop. His excuse was that he drank because he didn't have a home of his own or anyone to care about him.

After we got married, we lived in furnished rooms. Then he drank because he wanted a car, I saved and helped him buy the car. Then he didn't want to live in furnished rooms any more, so he drank because of that. We got our own furniture. But nothing ever suited him and the drinking and the fighting or the jealousy. I had never been mistreated in my life, but this man beat me so that at times I was hardly recognizable from the black eyes.

Finally he started blaming me for everything, even the drinking. It got so bad that after two years I hated to think of him coming home. Because he was always drunk, I couldn't have my family or my friends in the house because he would insult them.

Finally, I couldn't take any more, because I was a nervous wreck, and I left him. Almost at once I realized what a fine man Jack better I looked. I wasn't afraid to talk to people any more and I felt free.

Now I've been divorced over two years, have a good job, take care of my daughter and myself without any help from my husband. Jack is still drunk every time I see him. He'll never quit.

That's the real reason I wanted to write this letter to tell that young girl that you can't change drinkers. No matter how much you love them, or they love you, they have drink in their systems and unless you want to adjust yourself to being beaten-mercy they get the notion, bling afraid to have friends at all—living in fear of being insulted—afraid, really to live—then the best thing to do is to get away and stay away.

It's the hardest decision in the world to leave the man you love, but I made it and I hope that girl does, too. — S.M.

Dear S.M.

It is, of course, an extremely hazardous thing to marry a man who already know has no control over his drinking, and it will undoubtedly be a great shock for the young girl you mention to read your story. Let's hope she does.

Actually, however, that's not the big reason why I'm printing your letter.

The real reason is because of the statement a drinker cannot be changed and will "never quit." For this definitely not the case. Very large numbers of people, both men and women, who have been victims of the drinking habit have "quit" and become fine, useful citizens who lead steady jobs and develop a large part of their lives to helping others who have the same problem, through the organization known as Alcoholics Anonymous.

The story of AA, as it is popularly known, is one that can never be told too often, and there are always those to whom the story is a new and hopeful one. In case you and some other readers have not heard it, AA is a nation-wide organization of people who once were unable to "quit," but who finally recovered their dignity and who now stand ready at all times to respond to a call for help from anyone else, whether the drinker himself or his distraught wife or other relative who does not know how to live with the drinker or help him in the way he needs to be helped. Anyone wishing to find out where the nearest AA group is—and most cities and towns have them—can get the information by writing to Alcoholics Anonymous, 133 East 29th Street, New York, N.Y.

It is true that there are some drinkers so far gone that they have no desire or lack of willpower or ability to get hold of themselves again. Yet there are others who, given the right help, may seem hopeless, "still have within them the seeds which can overcome their grim handicap. Unless a drinker has proved beyond question that he is one of the first type—and who is to say when that is true of him?—it is never right to assume that he will "never change."

A new type of furniture support, molded of G-11 fiberglas, has been developed specially to protect tufted carpeting from indentations caused by heavy furniture. Each support rests on the bottom of the supporting unit under the pile of the carpet without leaving a pale mutual mark.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid?" is one of the oldest hymns of Christendom. Written more than 12 centuries ago by St. Stephen, the Sabaite —a monk who lived in a hewn out stone cell in the monastery of St. Sabas, near Bethlehem, overlooking the Dead Sea—it was translated in 1862 by John Mason Neale, English churchman, and today is sung in worship services throughout the world.

Stephen entered the "laura", as the monastery was called, when a lad of 10, holding to the hand of an uncle, John of Damascus. Uncle and nephew left a splendid palace to enter the monastery. The Christian heritage to which they belonged had immense wealth and great position. Time and again the wealth had been used to purchase freedom for bout Christians, captives of the Saracens. But all the sacrifices did not seem to lessen the mounting toll Christians tortured or slain.

The uncle fell ill and died—perhaps, after all, those who lived alone and prayed in the desert accomplished more than did those who occupied themselves with righteous acts. So John of Damascus gave away his wealth and with his nephew walked through the desert to back at the gate of the laura and beg the monks to receive them.

The boy lived in the monastery for 59 years—until his death. Sometime, the story goes, he became more natural to him than the great palace with its golden floors. The ripple of the brook, Kedron, took the place of the palace fountains which in Damascus had splashed on an hundred colored mosaic.

The times every day the bells in the monastery chapel sounded and the monks gathered for prayers. Twice each night the lad hurried from his cell to the chapel to join in the chanting. Near the hills to the south of the monastery prowled the wild beasts that fed on the monks. It was Stephen's duty to watch over them. At sunrise each day, too, he had the task to take a basket of bread to the edge of the mountain cliff and call its contents down 200 feet to where the brook rippled and where wolves and jackals raced back and forth waiting for the food which they knew the monks would provide.

But even in the convent, life was not all peace. The monks had to keep watch for marauding and murdering bands of Arabs. Once when Stephen was a young man he was emptying his basket of bread, leaning far over the edge to look down on the brook below. Suddenly, the lookout over—the convent gave the alarm. Stephen which told that the Arabs were near. Looking up, Stephen saw the fortyfoot cloud of dust raised by the hoofs of the approaching horses. The Arabs would be upon them in a few moments—and the faithful camels were grazing contentedly below.

Stephen ran out, unfastened the tethers, and the camels inside, just as a shower of arrows fell about them. Because he knew the hour for prayers, he hurried to the belfry to ring the bells, as was his custom. As the chimes rang out over the desert, the Saracens turned and fled, frightened by what they thought was a signal for help. Perhaps to the Arabs, the old monks came from their cells. As they repeated their prayers, Stephen set to work composing a hymn for them. Tradition says that on that morning he wrote the hymn.

The years sped on and Stephen became one of the oldest monks in the monastery. The monks, gathered for worship in the chapel, chanted his hymn in antiphony. Those to whom he wrote would give the questions, keeping their voices low, and then, from the dim figures on the other side would rise the triumphant answers.

One night, the worship was interrupted by an Arab attack and many of the monks were killed. Some who tried to flee were captured. Others who remained in the laura were put to death. About 50 took refuge in a large cave but they were suffocated in a fire built by the attackers. After the massacre, Stephen helped to carry out the bodies of these martyrs and it is said that after looking on their calm and happy faces he added to his hymn the words which he had written so many years before.

Readers' Saturday Column

As told to Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Just loves the Peach Conserve which I have been making for past few years. . . . we are great lovers of Chinese food, especially Sweet and Sour Spareribs. . . . could you give me the recipe? . . . we bought a freezer recently. Have you any recipes that could be made up and stored for future use? We have six children, 14 mos. to nine years, so must economize.—Mrs. R. H.

ANSWER:

I am mailing you a book on how to freeze foods. You certainly need all the modern help you can get with a family of that size.

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS OR PORK

Fritter Batter —1 egg, 2 tablespoons milk, 1-4 cup sifted flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2tp 1 lb. spareribs or lean pork cut into bite-size pieces in this batter. Deep-fat fry into deep peanut oil (or other cooking oil) at 350 deg. Fahr. and fry until golden — about two minutes—then skim out and pile in baking dish. Pour over sweet-sour sauce.

SWEET-SOUR SAUCE:

1 One-quarter cup vinegar, 1-3 cup pineapple juice, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon sugar solidly packed, 1 1-4 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 tablespoon water, 1 teaspoon salt. Stir together vinegar, pineapple juice, sugar in saucepan and bring to boil. Make a paste of the corn starch, water and salt and stir in until thoroughly blended and thick. Pour this over the fried ribs or pork, and bake covered for one hour, removing lid during last ten minutes.

QUESTION:

While in the States this year we had Carmel Pecan Pie—out of this world . . . could you send the recipe to me, also chocolate chiffon cake without cocoanut.—Mrs. J. O.

ANSWER:

PECAN PIE

Three-quarters cup white sugar, 1 cup corn syrup, 3 slightly beaten eggs, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup pecans, coarsely broken, left whole. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry and frute edge. Boil sugar and syrup together for two minutes. Pour slowly over beaten eggs, stirring quickly. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into pastry-lined pie plate and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes.

CHOCOLATE CHIFFON CAKE

Three-quarters cup boiling water, 1-3 cup cocoa, 1 3-4 cups sifted cake flour, 1 3-4 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup cooking oil, 7 egg yolks, unbeaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup egg whites (about 7 or 8), 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar. Combine cocoa and water and let cool. Sift together the sifted flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. In the centre of them make a depression and pour into it the oil, yolks and cooled cocoa mixture and vanilla, and beat until you have a perfect smooth batter. Add a large mixing bowl beat until stiff but not dry. Add cream of tartar and when these will hold stiff peaks, pour egg yolk mixture over in stir and fold in, to cover surface and gently cut in with spatula until completely blended. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake at 325 deg. for 1 hour, 15 minutes, then 350 for 10 to 15 min. Let hang inverted until cold.

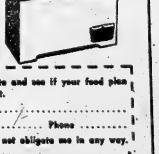
NO FOOD PLAN IS BETTER THAN THE COMPANY BEHIND IT



Here is a check list of questions that should be asked of any food plan representative before you make a decision. If he cannot answer yes to everyone of these questions and prove his answer phone WO 2-3991, your Better Living Plan representative, at 10 Bridge St. East.

1. Does your company positively own and operate its own Food processing Plant and equipment? (Ask to see photographs showing positive identification.)
2. Has your company its own fleet of refrigerated delivery trucks to ensure your food arrives in perfect condition?
3. Does your company unconditionally guarantee every morsel of food purchased from it? (Ask to see the unconditional guarantee).
4. Does your company guarantee future price levels of the food it processes? (Kingston Provisioners do guarantee this in writing.)
5. Can we choose our own cuts of meat? Yes!

on display now...

with the difference you can see and feel!

NOW EVERYONE NEEDS VITAMINS!

AND THE SIMPLEST WAY OF TAKING THEM IS THOUGH EATING GOOD SUBSTANTIAL FOOD

NO VITAMIN PILL can ever take the place of real honest-to-goodness food. TOP QUALITY MEAT also has the highest protein value, enough mineral salts a body requires and has an exceptionally food source of vitamin B complex, thiamine, riboflavin, etc., all needful in the process we call "GROWING UP."

ALWAYS REMEMBER the brand of the meat influences the juiciness, tenderness and its flavor and RAPID FREEZING, plus proper wrapping in moisture proof wrapping, will hold the goodness and the vitamins you require for good health.

LET KINGSTON PROVISIONERS BE YOUR SUPPLIERS, because at their plant, ALL your meats are prepared this way! Quality fruits and vegetables are ever shipped from Kingston Provisioners and everything is unconditionally guaranteed in writing.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO INVESTIGATE

Check at The Better Living Plan, where only the best food is good enough. Where the cost for this quality is the lowest in town!

Yes, I would like to investigate and see if your food plan would fit in our family budget.

Frank Comments Made by Butler In Interview

LONDON (CP) — The frank comments on the Anglo-American alliance by Britain's R. A. Butler probably should not be interpreted too narrowly.

Butler, lord privy seal and leader of the House of Commons, said Wednesday night in a television interview that the Conservative Party has been a "bit critical" of United States policy.

Reporters and commentators generally interpreted that as an attack on American policy in the section with the Suez Canal dispute. But Butler did not refer to Suez, directly or indirectly, and it is probably not a correct assumption to say he was thinking of Suez specifically.

The indications are that the minister was more concerned with trends in American policy during the last few years. When Butler was chancellor of the exchequer he was concerned over policies that depended considerably on U. S. support, particularly in the field of sterling tariffs.

SUPPORT WITHHELD

The support was not forthcoming and it is believed Butler felt the lack of it undermined Britain's attempts to strengthen sterling. In a cabinet shuffle last December Butler was moved from the treasury to his present job. He is generally regarded as No. 2 man in Prime Minister Eden's government.

On the TV program Butler was asked whether Conservatives feel a "growing resentment against America on policy. The minister replied:

"Well, of course we are a bit critical. As you know there have been one or two breaks which we are not entirely happy about."

(Newspapers universally used the word "break" in this passage but there is a possibility Butler meant "brake," for check.)

Butler's remarks coincide with wide soundings of what could be called "anti-American" opinion in Britain, France, Belgium and some other European countries, virtually all of it related to U. S. policy on Suez.

The criticism, mostly directed at Suez Secretary Dulles of the United States is largely from that section of European opinion which favors strong measures to prevent Egypt's President Nasser from "getting away with it" in Suez.

From the standpoint of the British government it is understood that some aspects of the state department's Suez policy have caused annoyance here, but in general the U. S. attitude is understood and appreciated.

Mother Wants "Chicken Boy" Back at Home

BELFAST (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Halpenny pleaded not guilty in magistrate's court Thursday to charges of ill-treating her seven-year-old "chicken boy" son, Kevin.

The 45-year-old widow said in a prepared statement to the court that she loves the son authorities found penned by her bedsonne and brought him back home to her. Her trial was set for Oct. 30 and bail was continued at $280.

Kevin was found Sept. 13 in the dilapidated chicken house at Down Patrick, County Down, 15 miles from Belfast. Children playing hide-and-seek first saw the boy perched on a roost with the chickens.

A police sergeant called to the scene said the boy grunted like an animal and could neither walk nor eat human food. His matted hair was so long it had to have been cut. He had clawlike fingernails. He got about by hopping like an ape, the sergeant said.

UNABLE TO STAND

Witnesses told the hearing at Crossgar magistrate's court that the boy weighed only 28 pounds and that he was able to stand for only half a minute when he was first aided. He moved on all fours at the welfare home that sheltered him, they said.

A physician testified the boy's arms and right leg were riddled with fractures because of the weakness of his bones. He said Kevin was retarded, but not mentally deficient, chiefly because he was denied sunlight and proper food.

Police read out Mrs. Halpenny's statement. In it she said Kevin "seemed to stop growing" when three, Mrs. H. Holgate. left him. Mrs. Halpenny said Kevin in the henhouse, near the home where she lived with two grown daughters, only when she went shopping.

A child welfare society inspector told the court Mrs. Halpenny showed him a room in the house where she said the child spent his nights, but "there was no sign that the boy had slept there recently."

Mrs. C. Schwager and children of Picton, Ont., visited Mrs. Earl Morton last week.

Mrs. J. R. Houston of Belleville, was the weekend guest of her mother, Mrs. J. R. Way.

Mrs. E. Juby of Brampton, was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Carleton over the week-end.

On Sunday, October 7, the sacrament of Communion was celebrated in the United church by the Rev. George Teskey of Ivanhoe, assisted by Mr. George Dyson of Thomasburg-West Huntingdon pastoral charge will be 5 a.m. All 8 p.m. the Anglican church was well filled with worshippers from Moneymore, Roslin and other points, in addition to those of both churches in Thomasburg for the annual harvest home service.

The church was tastefully decorated with grain, fruits and vegetables, flowers and autumn leaves for the occasion.

The rector, the Rev. Woodward, of Roslin, was in charge of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richardson and family of Hilton, Ont., were Thanksgiving day guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bateman.

Tweed

TWEED — Mr. W. K. McCaw, Colborne Street, Tweed, received word last week of the death of his youngest brother, Andrew, at Kelowna, British Columbia. Mr. McCaw was born in Queensboro and as a young man he went west and became a successful farmer in Saskatchewan until his retirement a few years ago.

Mr. John McCaw of Bridge St. East, Belleville, is also an older brother. He will be remembered by many old friends in this area. He formerly lived at Kelowna.

Fire Chief C. M. Moon and engineer Ross McNaught were in Belleville on Monday to begin a 20-week course in fire fighting technique. The instructional course is sponsored by the Ontario Fire Marshall and is being given to two members of all fire departments in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, and is designed to give instruction in fire fighting, which in time can be given to all members of individual brigades.

Mrs. Roy Thompson is acting as relief teacher at Tweed Consolidated School in the absence of Mrs. Thomas Fleming who was called to Buffalo, N.Y., owing to the serious illness of her mother.

MINISTER RECEIVED

The reception for Mr. Jim Price as a candidate for the ministry of the United Church, Tweed, was held in St. John's United Church, with a fair attendance. Mr. Price is the first theology student from the Tweed pastoral charge and has already commenced his studies at Queen's University.

The special speakers for the occasion were Rev. Elias Andrew, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., principal of Queen's Theological Seminary, and Rev. Ray Rowley of Tabernacle United church, chairman of Belleville Presbytery.

The Rev. W. K. Farr, conducted the worship service. St. John's choir rendered special music for this impressive occasion.

At the close of the service the ladies served tea in the church parlors.

Large congregations attended the various masses and services held in St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church during the 40-hour devotions which were conducted by Rev. Fr. Connell of Tabernacle, Father Mathews, Brockville, and other clergy.

Some of the instruments for the High School Trumpet Band have arrived and it is expected that in a few weeks will be here shortly. Pte.-Sgt. Fred Willdish of Trenton, will be the instructor.

Tweed Safety Patrol 'Tag Day' has been organized by Chief John Sager.

Walter Higgins shortly after he took over the post as head of the police department here. This has been a most useful and worthwhile service.

Dr. M. G. Dales and Mrs. Dales will leave this week for their home in Belleville. Dr. and Mrs. Dales will be greatly missed by their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. James Goldis and daughters, Betty Jane and Sharon, Peterborough spent Thanksgiving holiday with Mr. and Mrs. John Sager.

Mr. Ed. Brown of Madoc, who has been seriously ill for some time, is sufficiently recovered to visit some of his old friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. McGee have returned home from Nevada, Ont., where they attended the wedding of their granddaughter, Miss Marilyn Bradley, to Mr. James Sullivan of Russell, Ont.

Margie Lavelle, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCrea, has returned to her home in the Belleville General Hospital since Friday.

Mrs. C. H. Kerr is visiting her daughter, Miss Ethel Kerr, in Toronto.

CANADIAN CHAMP EYES WORLD CROWN

Winner of the title, King of Canada's plowmen, 23-year-old Hugh Baird of Blackwater, Ont., will be coached by his father as he represent Canada in the world ploughing matches to be held in the U.S. in 1957. Hugh won the Canadian title at the International Plowing Matches at Brooklin, Ont., where a record crowd of 44,000 watched. (Central Press Canadian).

Eels Finding More and More Buyers in U.S. and Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—For a distance of 80 miles downstream from Quebec City, on both shores of the St. Lawrence River, thousands of traps are holding back catches of eels, the serpent-like fish that is finding more and more buyers in the United States and Canada.

Farmers—not fishermen — haul annually about 1,000,000 pounds of the black fish to a freezing plant from where they are shipped to buying points. In earlier years the eels were shipped live in double-bottom vessels, but today the frozen product is preferred and live shipments have been abandoned.

For the farmer fortunate enough to hold land on the river shore, the daily tending of his steel - wired traps at low tide means a cash revenue of as much as $1,200 over a three-month period.

Traps are set out in mid-September and pulled in about mid-November.

The fish are held in soft-water pools on the farms until buyers come around. Then most farmers toss the eels into jute bags for transportation to the Quebec harbor freezing plant.

KEEP FRESH

Eels take a long time to die. It is said an eel will live if tossed back in a river 24 hours after it has been taken out of the water. Handlers say that when eels are delivered to the freezing plant they are as fresh as if they had been caught minutes earlier.

The meat of the eel is fat and making it into smoked delicacies is an art. Germans are fond of Quebec eels which are prepared into tasty morsels that surpass anchovies.

For buyers in the United States the eels are processed and sold in prepared form as a delicacy. Last year 630,000 pounds of eels were shipped to European and United States buyers.

Catching eels requires no skill but a lot of endurance. Farmers must watch tide movements closely and empty their traps whether it is night or day. The scene of flickering lamps moving along the shore of the St. Lawrence at night is a common sight during the autumn.

J. E. Lafrance, manager of the freezing plant, said the annual eel catch is sold within a few weeks unlike other types of fish which remain in cold storage for some time before moving to markets.

Factory List Prices Increased On Chevrolets

DETROIT (AP)—Chevrolet will lift its factory list prices for 1957 models from $50 to $166 over its 1956 line.

In announcing this Friday the company said it would continue to offer the lowest priced passenger cars in its field.

E. N. Cole, Chevrolet general manager, attributed the higher prices to increasing costs. Chevrolet's smallest increase was on its Bel Air four-door station wagon. It will list at $2,325 for a six cylinder model, up $50.

The biggest increase will be for the Bel Air 4-door sedan, up from $1,890 to $2,056 for the six cylinder model.

Judge's Opinion Raises Questions Of Bingo Legality

EDMONTON (CP)—Giant bingo games, which attract larger crowds than professional hockey and give away thousands of dollars worth of prizes a night, may be on their way out in Alberta.

As a result of a Supreme Court judge's opinion that bingo is illegal, the Edmonton Lions Club has decided to discontinue sponsoring such games.

And the directors of the Calgary Lions Club are to meet this weekend to decide whether they will follow suit.

In sentencing three persons on charges of conspiring to commit fraud at two bingo games, Mr. Justice W. G. Egbert said Thursday that bingo "in my opinion is a completely illegal game that could lead young people down a path they should not follow."

GOT SIX MONTHS

Frank Pasek, his sister Mary and Ted Petryga were each sentenced to six months. A fourth defendant, Mrs. Lucilla Pasek, was acquitted.

Pasek, his wife and Petryga were charged with conspiring to commit fraud at the bingo games, defrauding the Norwood branch of the Canadian Legion of a new car and defrauding the Edmonton Lions Club of a $13,000 house and lot at another bingo session.

Mary Pasek was charged with conspiring to commit fraud and attempting to defraud—separate charges.

The Edmonton Lions Club said in a statement that in the light of the judge's opinion it will cancel a planned bingo game and consider other means of raising funds for charitable purposes.

"We're out of the bingo business," said club vice-president James Gagnon.

DREW BIG CROWDS

Bingo sessions have drawn crowds of 7,000 at the Edmonton Gardens, where six new cars or a new house and lot have been offered as the top prizes on a single night.

In Calgary the Lions Club has operated games for the last six years at an average of once a month during the winter. Crowds of 8,000 have filled the Stampede Corral to play the $5,000 in prizes.

Premier Manning, who also is attorney-general, has said no provincial law deals with bingo games. They are covered by the Criminal Code.

He added:

"The code allows them to be held occasionally for charitable purposes. That wording is very indefinite and is open to different interpretation in the courts."

Charged With Arson

VICTORIA HARBOR, Ont. (CP) A third youth has been charged with arson in this district, 20 miles west of Orillia.

Donald Laderoau, 17, now with the RCAF at St. Johns, Que., was charged last weekend with setting fire to the residence of George Latondresse, while home on leave. Earlier this month John Brodur was charged with setting three fires and Hugh Goudreault with setting five. The fires occurred between Aug. 12 and Sept. 6.

Inspectors from the Ontario fire marshal's office and the Ontario Provincial Police have spent several weeks investigating fires.

All three are scheduled to appear in court at nearby Midland Monday.

Hated to See Hydro Equipment Going to Waste

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A Welland farmer started a six-month jail term Friday for stealing equipment he said he hated to see go to waste, Kazimier Kaskans pleaded guilty to stealing $700 worth of equipment from the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission.

Magistrate Johnstone Roberts told Kaskans, a European immigrant, that Canadian immigration authorities would be advised of the case for possible deportation action.

Kaskans admitted stealing the equipment during the two years he was employed by the Hydro. He said he was "sickened" by watching the equipment go to waste and took it home where he could put it to better use.

Charge Dismissed

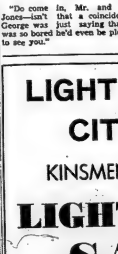
SUDBURY (CP) — A charge of assault against Lloyd Brewer, manager of the strikebound Basin Foundries Ltd., at nearby Chelmsford, was dismissed Thursday when the court ruled picketing employees had no right to stop him from driving into the plant.

The charge was laid by R. A. LaChance, business agent of Local 902, International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.). He was one of two persons slightly injured when Brewer drove a five-ton truck through a picket line Oct. 3.

A further charge of careless driving was withdrawn.

Brewer testified, and LaChance agreed, the pickets had plenty of time to avoid the truck. Magistrate F. C. McAndrew, in dismissing the charge, termed the incident "regretable."

May Be Able To Clean Out Clogged Arteries



SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Within five years, surgeons may be able to operate to clear out clogged arteries and prevent heart attacks, a famous heart surgeon predicted Friday.

Dr. Alfred C. Blalock, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, originator of the operation for "blue babies" of some years ago, said this is one possibility arising from recent heart research.

Heart attacks come when arteries feeding blood to the heart muscle become narrowed and closed by fatty deposits on the inside, or when the narrowed arteries are plugged by blood clots.

Ability to clean out these arteries would prevent these attacks. Research is under way on animals exploring this possibility, Dr. Blalock said.

"Just a Second"

"Do come in, Mr. and Mrs. Jones—isn't that a coincidence? George was just saying that he was so bored he'd even be pleased to see you."

Frost Says Plan Would Include All Patients

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario Friday reiterated that any hospital-insurance plan in Ontario will embrace all hospital patients, including tubercular and mental patients.

He was speaking during a campaign for H. Leslie Rowntree, late to the York West riding by-election to be held next Thursday. Mr. Rowntree is opposed by Liberal Arthur Nagels and Lyon Williams, CCF.

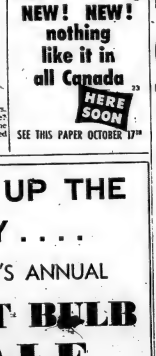
The seat was left vacant by the death of PC member Elmer Brandon.

To be effective, Mr. Frost said, a hospital-insurance scheme would have to cover expensive minor illnesses and "the catastrophic illnesses capable of destroying a family's economy."

He said he is confident Ontario could, with care and judgment, effect an all - embracing system without unduly burdening taxpayers.

Sent for Trial On Murder Count

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Ladoucer, 62, of suburban Etobicoke Friday was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the Sept. 11 fatal stabbing of his wife.



His daughter Barbara, testified at a preliminary hearing that she returned to their basement home early on Sept. 12.

"I pushed open the door, turned on the light and saw my mother on the floor and saw father in bed holding a knife."

She quoted her father as saying: "I killed her. It is all right. Don't worry."

Mrs. Aileen Bruce said she had been out with the dead woman earlier that evening. Ladoucer had come to her house looking for his wife. He had been excited and angry and had told her.

"I love her, but I am going to kill her. Lies, lies, I am sick of her lies."

Royal Commision Hearings On CBC End; to Give Govt. Recommendations This Winter

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliamentary action on at least part of the report of the royal commission on broadcasting is expected at the 1957 session.

The commission concluded public hearings Friday and likely will have its recommendations on the future of Canadian radio and TV in the hands of the federal government during the winter.

While the government usually is in no rush to implement all findings of royal commissions, there will be some urgency in one aspect of this report—the commission's suggestions as to how the CBC is to be financed. If there is not early action, the publicly-owned corporation could be going hungry for money.

The CBC has been running into the red, chiefly because of television's voracious appetite for cash. The CBC had to go to the government last summer for $12,000,000 in a special grant to bail it out for the current fiscal year that ends next March 31, and in addition is taking some $6,000,000 out of its reserves to help finance operations.

The CBC now spends about $30,000,000 a year on TV, and it cannot get this under the present system of drawing one dollar in five revenue from a 15-per-cent special excise tax on receiving sets. The royal commission has been asked to work out a new system of financing, aside from generally charting the course of Canadian radio and TV for the next 10 years or so.

While early action on the financing problem is looked for, some observers here think the government will want to mull over the question of the other major problems pending a federal general election expected next summer. These could be laid over until the next Parliament.

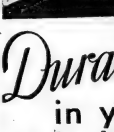
Meanwhile, commission Chairman R. M. Fowler said after Friday's concluding public hearing—lasting seven weeks—Canada sittings over 5½ months—that he hopes the report will be in the hands of the government by late January or early February. But he told reporters it could be later.

At the hearing, he said that "I'm afraid we're not going to please everybody, but we will try to do what is best for Canada.".

THREE MEMBERS

The three-man commission consists of Mr. Fowler, Montreal newsprint executive; Edmond Turcotte, Canadian ambassador to Colombia and former Montreal newspaper man, and James Stewart, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

In hearings in every province except Newfoundland—where poor flying weather turned them back in Gander—they have listened to some 2,500,000 words of oral testimony. They have received 273 briefs, aggregating perhaps another 1,000,000 words, and have taken in another 48 exhibits of various kinds.



In addition, they have teams of researchers digging into matters as the financial setups of the CBC and the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and the program content of both types of stations. They have looked over one from a 15-per-cent special excise tax on receiving sets. The royal commission has been asked to work out a new system of financing, aside from generally charting the course of Canadian radio and TV for the next 10 years or so.

While early action on the financing problem is looked for, some observers here think the government will want to mull over the question of the other major problems pending a federal general election expected next summer. These could be laid over until the next Parliament.

TEEN WAR RALLIES

DETROIT (CP) — Fourteen youths are charged with disturbing the peace here after police broke up a teenage gang war on the city's east side. Some 40 or 50 boys and girls were involved in the fight Thursday night which started when a feud between the rival gangs broke into open warfare.

Wild Welcome Given Princess By Africans

TABORA, Tanganyika (Reuters) Forty thousand Africans, some of them painted warriors waving shields and spears, today gave Princess Margaret a wild welcome when she arrived at a tribal gathering.

Many of the natives had travelled more than 300 miles in weeklong journeys to reach this tiny outpost town, capital of the 32,000-square-mile western Tanganyika province.

Chiefs in flowing, brightly-patterned robes and gay headdresses were presented to Margaret.

Princess Margaret told the vast assembly she hoped the coming year would bring them rains and prosperity.

To the throbbing of African drums, the Zolasa, champion dancers of the Gogo tribe danced as a gesture of gratitude for the £300,000 government relief grant they received because of the two years of drought and famine they suffered.

Unification Of Armed Forces Seen Coming

OTTAWA (CP)—Unification of the Canadian armed forces appears to be no more than a dozen years away. In the history of armed forces, this is not an incredibly short time.

The top echelons in the defence department are giving a great deal of thought to the problem of unification though nothing has yet occurred which could be classed as a concrete move to this direction.

Officials say that unification won't be accomplished simply by issuing an order that the three services are now one. Before this day, there must be a revolution in thinking of the armed forces to match the revolution in weapons which has taken place in the last few years. This process probably will take years.

The three forces already have a sound basis on which to work. Officer cadets of all three services now are receiving training in three military colleges at St. Johns, Que., Kingston, Ont., and Royal Roads, B.C. In the next 10 years, these colleges will graduate some 600 officers.

Officials say the logical step will be to carry over this integration into the staff colleges. There are already some exchanges but these can be increased considerably.

The object of this integration would be to get officers thinking about defence as a whole and not from the narrower point of view of their own service.

As older officers ingrained with one-service thinking and loyalty retired, their places would be taken by men trained in the concept of a single force.

Officials say that the over-all outlook among the services has improved since the Suez crisis when tensions were considered all but insoluble problems will melt away.

Fire Prevention Week Sees 12 Burned to Death

TORONTO (CP)—Canada today moved into the final hours of Fire Prevention Week with a total of at least 12 persons reported dead in fires.

The early-morning blaze in east end Toronto added six names to the grimlist.

Officials of the joint committee of the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs said the total is running above the estimated weekly average of deaths for the year.

They predict 500 persons—200 of them children—will die in fires by the end of the year and about $100,000,000 property damage will be done.

SPECIAL APPEAL

The joint committee today issued a special appeal to the public. It said:

"Think about fire safety in your home. Check heating equipment and electrical wiring. Before you go to bed, look behind cushions for smouldering cigarettes. Don't leave children alone with fire hazards."

Above is an exterior view of the semi-central home built by Swedish engineer Lars Engstroem in Stockholm from a design by architect Ralph Erskine. Being a hemisphere, the walls and roof are one. The hemisphere is insulated with mineral wool and is lighted at the base by picture windows and at the top by crystal globes. Left, Kerstl Engstroem examines the roof-top blind in her room. The Engstroems prefer to call the room a "cabin." Below, the house is set on a heavy concrete foundation.

Taped Mouths Of Talkative

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP)—Grade school teacher Esther B. Bogle, suspended for taping the mouths of three pupils who talked, said today that another reason prompted efforts to take away her job.

"The school board is trying to make room for the home town married women," she declared. "They do this all the time. Every year somebody gets it over some little thing."

Miss Bogle, 58, a Kansas native who has taught 34 years, said she won't resign.

Yesterday she had placed two-inch strips of adhesive tape on the mouths of three fifth grade girls for about an hour after they talked in class last month.

Irate parents appeared at a school board meeting last weekend and Miss Bogle has been suspended since Wednesday.

School superintendent Walter Wilcox said some parents also accused her of striking children on occasion, and the dark-haired teacher reported: "Why, everyone in the building does that. You almost have to."

Miss Bogle said the teachers do not make a practice of beating their pupils but "we just pop them one now and then."

Pair of Socks Unites Brothers In Far East

TOKYO (AP)—A pair of army socks has reunited two brothers separated for many months.

The reunion came after Pte. Gerry L. Fossecs of Cambridge, Mass., asked the supply sergeant at Camp Zama for his issue of new black socks.

"You've already drawn yours," the sergeant replied. "And here's the signed order to prove it."

The paper bore a Fossecs signature. It was that of Pte. Walter J. Fossecs, a brother whom he hadn't seen for 18 months. Neither knew the other was in the Far East.

Marilyn Mobbed As She Attends Husband's Play

LONDON (Reuters) — Marilyn Monroe was carried almost bodily into the Comedy Theatre here Tuesday night to see the British premiere of her husband's play A View from the Bridge.

Behind a vanguard of ushers, Arthur Miller half-supported, half-carried his wife through a jampacked lobby of rubber-necking spectators and theatre-goers.

Wearing a strapless cocktail evening dress with stole to match, Marilyn sat in the box next to her husband. Sir Laurence Olivier —Marilyn's co-star in a movie in which she is currently working — his wife, Vivien Leigh.

The play, which ran for eight months on Broadway, inaugurated the New Watergate Theatre Club for the theatre's members. The club aims at putting on plays of interest banned by the lord chamberlain for performance in a public theatre. Membership of the club, which has the right to book tickets is only five shillings a year.

A View from the Bridge had been banned for public performance by the lord chamberlain because of references to homosexuality.

Plan to Capture Whooping Cranes Is Under Fire

TORONTO (CP)—A plan to capture wild whooping cranes in hope of breeding them in captivity constitutes a serious threat to the bird's survival in the natural state, John A. Livingston, executive director of the Audubon Society of Canada, said Friday night.

Speaking during Audubon Night at the International Museum Week celebrations here, he said the Audubon Society strongly opposes the proposal, which suggests releasing into the wild any young produced in captivity.

He said the wild whooping crane has been holding its own since 1939, while during the same period no young hatched in captivity have survived more than a few weeks. Over the 17-year period the cranes maintained an average population of 24.5 in the wild.

He said that removing birds from the wild flock might so seriously alter the numerical level of the species that it could no longer survive in the natural state. He added there is no indication that birds born in captivity are accepted by the wild birds when released.

Bread Price Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—One large bread company Friday announced a one-cent increase to 21 cents for home delivery of a 1½ pound loaf. It gave as the reason rising overhead costs including a 2-day work week recently granted bread salesmen.

Officials of other bakeries made no immediate comment.

Logging Camp Sawed in Two, Half Stolen

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (AP) State police were searching today for a new kind of thief — the kind that rips from you a house after sawing it in two.

Ralph C. Wright of North Windham reported that his 8x12½ logging camp has been cut in half and one part carted away through a path in the woods.

Police Hunting Riot Leaders

HONG KONG (AP) — Police swept down today on Chinese tenements and shops in a densely populated section of this British colony in search of leaders of a bloody two-day riot.

Hundreds of suspects were marched off to detention barracks. One group of 1,028 was rounded up this afternoon in the Sham Shui Po section of Kowloon Peninsula, the mainland portion of Hong Kong.

Riots and factional fighting between pro- and anti-Communist groups broke out Wednesday during celebrations of Red China's National Day. In two days, at least 59 persons were killed and nearly 200 injured.

Police blamed the violence on secret Chinese societies but said no trace of the conflicting Communist and Nationalist emotions.

The colony was quiet today. A strict curfew imposed by Kowloon's National Day. In two days, at least 59 persons were killed and nearly 200 injured.

Chutes Tangle, Sergeant Grabs Two in Mid-Air

FORT BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Two paratroopers can thank a quick-thinking master sergeant for saving them when he grabbed them during a jump and the three descended on one parachute.

The incident, which occurred Wednesday during a mass jump at Fort Benning, Ga., came to light Friday.

Master Sgt. Leo of the story is Master. Sgt. Louis Berthiaume of New Orleans, a veteran of 15 years service, who held on to Pte. Frank L. Ruminer of Pittsburgh, and Pte. Ramon Sanchez of Chilicothe, Ohio, after their parachutes became entangled.

Berthiaume, whose chute was fully opened, said he saw Ruminer's chute "coming in on the right" 800 feet over the drop zone. Ruminer's chute became entangled in Berthiaume's suspension line and as he slid by, Berthiaume grabbed him.

Meek's parachute then fell atop Berthiaume's becoming entangled in the upper part. Berthiaume grabbed him and the three rode together. They did not pull their emergency chutes for fear of worsening the tangle.

Meek suffered two sprained ankles, the only injuries among the three.

U.S. Will Plan Fleet of Tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government officials will begin negotiations with private tentative long-range plans for building a fleet of big tankers which could carry oil to the free world if access to the Suez Canal is cut off, Defence Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming announced Friday that President Eisenhower has ordered this done.

Flemming said the move does not stem from any critical turn in the situation caused by Egypt's seizure of the canal. But he said "we are trying to get ourselves in the position where we can meet any contingencies on the Suez Canal as we are now."

He said after the plans are drafted and studied by representatives of various federal agencies, a decision will be made later on whether to go ahead with actual construction.

Three Children Burn to Death

GRAND FALLS, N.B. (CP)—An early-morning fire at Fleming Settlement, three miles northeast of Grand Falls, claimed the lives of three children Friday.

Dead are: Marie Francine, two; Verna, six, and Gerard Francois, one year.

The father, Bernard Byram, was away at work. A stove is believed to have overheated. Six children escaped.

ITALIANS GET MEDALS

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Seven Italian presidential decrees to decorate 1,946 Italian war veterans who fought on the Eastern Front against Russia in 1942 and 1943 is described as "surprising and incomprehensible" in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia. Izvestia says the award of decorations to the men "cannot be regarded otherwise than as an unfriendly act on the part of the Italian authorities."

The city was told that the ring was probably taken out in a garbage collection.

Going to Russia To Study How Corn Is Growing

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP)—An Ontario farmer last year sold 32,000 bushels of seed corn to Russia will leave next week on a trip to study how the corn is growing there.

Ernest Warwick of Blenheim said he will also visit Russian collective farms and study agricultural methods before returning to Canada.

He said he sold enough corn to Russia to plant about 300,000 acres. Most was planted in the Ukraine, but some was sent to northern districts for testing under more arduous conditions.

The seed corn was a special hybrid type which Mr. Warwick said he has been producing on his farm for several years. It produces almost double the yield of acre compared with ordinary types.

Mr. Warwick is attending the international flowing match here.

Alberta Surplus Is $15,939,544

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta revenues hit a record $341,008,105 during the 1955-56 fiscal year, and expenditures on income account jumped to a high of $132,038,520.

The financial year government ended the fiscal year with a net surplus of $15,939,544, provincial auditor C. K. Huckvale, said Friday.

He said the big reason for the increased revenue is the province's oil development.

The 1955-56 surplus left the government with an accumulative surplus of more than $151,000,000 in readily negotiable cash and investments while another $118,000,000 is tied up in the municipal loan fund.

This total is nearly three times the provincial debt, which stands at about $91,000,000.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop promised to take ma to the movies, and she said, What picture shall we see, William?

Anything your little heart desires, pa said. I feel generous and open minded and benevolent this evening. He said, he always said. Why William, how nice to fare blithly forth without the usual endless discussion whether to see a picture with real meaning or an endless procession of outlaws and horses.

Meaning a Western and the outlaws and horses page in the paper, saying. Well now let's see, there is one in between Sandra Leslie in Love at 40 and Carter Cren in His Persian Wife.

It's funny how I can see my dear, pop said, and ma said, it seems His Persian Wife is the one in the Orient with all kinds of exotic settings.

Not a bad place to get shot, pop said and ma said, then I dont understand Sandra Leslie is shilloing around in Love at 40.

Some women are, I believe, pop said, and ma said, how do you feel about the movie, William?

I'll follow you blindly pop said and ma said, but I'll be able to make up my mind without the slightest pre con ception though it is a Western. So I think I'll be open minded and benevolent myself, she said.

Your werd is law, my dear, pop said.

And he quick changed his slippers to his shoes and started out to change her mind back.

Commercial, Political Links With U.K. Need Strengthening Publisher Tells Rotarians

TORONTO (CP)—John Bassett, Jr., publisher of the Toronto Telegram, said Friday Canada must strengthen both commercial and political links with the United Kingdom.

He told the Rotary Club of Toronto:

"I believe it is the duty of every Canadian to take stock and to judge whether . . . we are standing strongly enough in that historic camp where we have always stood—at the side of those people with whom ultimately we shall stand or fall."

Mr. Bassett toured the United Kingdom last spring.

Text of his address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Bassett said Canada has lost in the American capital market with the second greatest consumer buying power in the world. At the same time Canada faced what might be a $1,000,000,000 deficit in foreign trade greater than that of 1955.

In recent years, he said, there has been an unparalleled flow of goods and money into Canada from the United States and several Canadians had welcomed this situation.

"I believe there has been something of a change in this attitude more recently. The inflow of capital from the U.S. has ceased to be enough to balance the trade deficit, and although the argument can be supported that this is only a temporary situation, there is a warning in it. The unbalance of our commodity trade, taken alone, is rather terrifying and if it were the only factor at work, it would send Canadian currency into a tailspin at very short notice."

"In addition, self-interest we must buy from the United Kingdom so that we can sell there and develop that tremendous British buying power to the benefit of Canadian manufacturers and primary producers."

At sound British economy, Mr. Bassett said, is essential to a sound Canadian economy.

In the political sphere, it was more important than ever before to tighten the bonds between Canada and the United Kingdom and Commonwealth.

Mr. Bassett said Canadians have not fully filled the role conferred upon them by Sir Winston Churchill as "linchpin between the U.S. and the U.K."

He said:

"Relationships at this moment between the U.S. and the U.K. have never been so bad at any time since the end of the world war, when the great partnership was forged in the crucible of fire and sacrifice."

Material power and ultimate responsibility in the past decisions had passed to the United States. But Britain, "even though to some extent her material power has been spent and used—not only for her own protection, but for the welfare and survival of us all," still had a tremendous role to play.

On Monday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Daley, Foxboro and Rod. and Mr. Don Dudley and girl friend, London, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dafoe.

On Sunday afternoon communion service was held in Scott's church in keeping with World Communion Sunday. The Rev. W. McMullin spoke on "Worship" and read from Mark 14. His text was "Be still and know that I am God."

"In the garden of Gethsemane Jesus showed His sympathy and great tenderness for His disciples: but by yielding to sleep they missed and lost their greatest opportunity. "Too late" are the saddest words of the English language."

"There must be a place for worship but it hasn't to be too fixed. God is a Spirit and must be worshipped in Spirit and in Truth. True worship is man's acknowledgment of his limitations. Man is not sufficient so, we must not leave God out of our plans. Belief is the foundation stone of a man's life. If he has not faith he is standing on sand. There should be worship in the home. When we share in the communion we are partaking of the suffering of our Lord."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

FIRST GLANCE

They may not be Rock 'n Rolls, nor Crew Cuts, neither will they be labbed as Glamor Boys, but they have the guts and should get their share of the glory.

Coach Bep Guidolin trotted out his Belleville McFarlands for first inspection before over 1400 fans last night, and the first impression was "they'll do."

They are not in first class shape, neither have they acquired the mid-season polish and finish. They came up with flashes of teamwork and individual brilliancy and when the figurative wheat is separated from the tare, they should sequell themselves right well in this tough senior "A" race.

It would not be fair to judge the McFarlands either individually or collectively on last night's experimental performance. There are wrinkles to be ironed out but there appears to be a lot of good material for Coach Guidolin to work with.

One thing was definitely apparent. They have plenty of spirit, guts and fight. And demonstrating this in no uncertain manner was Coach Guidolin himself. They're not going to push him around, even if they do captain Canada's Allan Cup champions.

Jack McKenzie, the Kitchener Dutchman skipper, found that out when he tangled with the McFarland mentor last night. Bep swapped everything but Christmas greetings with the tall Dutchie skipper, and if the view from the press box was not blurred, emerged on top of the heap when Referee Ned Vitarelli finally got the combatants untangled.

Guidolin shirked his lines in an effort to find out who's who, and played very briefly himself. His first line of Hillary Menard, Paul Payette and Lucien Gilbert looked mighty promising.

He used three goalkeepers, starting with Don Larwin, giving Turk Barclay the middle session and finishing the game with Claude Bonsiere, a youthful Quebecer.

Bonsiere was greeted with a rare fluke goal in his debut here. Paul Knox, Kitchener forward, golfed the puck from near the blueline and the rubber executed high curve the arc of light. Bonsiere apparently "lost it in the sun" for it suddenly appeared from nowhere, bounced in front of him and rolled into the net.

Lloyd Heckberger and the versatile Floyd Crawford looked good on the rearguard with Andre Morriacte, Maurice Benoit, Henri Therrien and others showing individual brilliancy.

The Belleville contingent of the Jones boys, Keith MacDonald, Jake Wade, Vern Geyer and Sammy Mulholland showed well, with Peter Jones perhaps getting in the best performance of the night.

The team did not score any goals last night as it appeared to lack finish around the nets. This, however, will come as they coordinate into practice shape and develop collective play. Then, too, the Dutchie goalies, Bob Senior and Don Oliver showed fine form with the latter starring as the goal-hungry McFarlands gave him a busy time in the final minutes of the game.

The McFarlands left for Kitchener at one o'clock today, where they will play the return fixture of the home-and-home series.

Then they're due for a week of solid practice grinds. Guidolin will not spare the horses next week preparing for the all-important league opener here Friday with the Cornwall Chevrolets.

Casey Back at Yankee Helm Signs New Two-Year Contract

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that his own status has been resolved—he's going to be back at the helm for two more years — manager Casey Stengel of New York Yankees has turned to ways and means of keeping the world championship banner flying over Yankee Stadium.

"Right now," he rasped, "our weak spot is first field. If we make a trade, it will be for another outfielder. I'm set with Hank Bauer in right and Mickey Mantle in center."

About 40 - year - old Enos Slaughter, Stengel said he doesn't plan to go along with him for another year, adding that he is reserving the right to change his mind.

"After all," he said, "we bought him the first place in insurance and pinch hitting."

SIGNS FOR TWO YEARS

Stengel signed a new two-year contract Friday, calling for about $75,000 a year.

"A lot of people have been saying I'm getting old and ought to quit," said the 66-year-old pilot who has won six pennants, slidps in eight years with the Bombers. "but I don't see why I should retire when my health is good. And it's as good right now as it was in the spring."

Stengel is independently wealthy and does not have to worry about his baseball income these days. In addition to other holdings, he owns several oil wells that net him a pretty penny.

Casey said the Yanks have some fine prospects coming up from their farm clubs. He named Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson, both of Denver's American Association club. Kubek is a combination infielder-outfielder and Richardson is a second baseman, whose .350 batting average would indicate he's ready to push Billy Martin over to third base and Andy Carey to the bench.

Stengel also revealed that he was going to pay close attention to the no-windup pitching delivery in the spring. Don Larsen used it in his perfect no - hitter against Brooklyn Dodgers in the series and Bob Turley employed it the next day in a 1-0 loss in 10 innings.

Camille Henry Sparks Blues In Auspicious Season Debut; All Teams See Action Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Camille Henry scored 24 goals and won the National - Ockey League's rookie-of-the-year award in his first time up with New York Rangers three seasons back but was shipped off to the minors because he was "too small."

Even after he scored 50 goals for Providence Reds in sparking them to the American Hockey League title and added 19 more in the playoffs, the 150-pound left-winger from Quebec wasn't regarded as likely to make the Rangers this season. He had to score a hatful of goals against them in pre-season training before they decided to give him another whirl.

Henry looks no time in paying his first dividend, beating Chicago goalie Al Rollins in the second period Friday night as New York ruined the Black Hawks' home opener and staged an auspicious debut of their own with a 3-0 victory.

The result sent Montreal Canadiens into their first action of the current campaign with four clubs ahead of them in their drive for another NHL title.

The Montrealers open a home-and-home weekend at the Forum tonight against Boston Bruins, who tied Toronto 4-4 in their first start Thursday. Detroit Red Wings, 3-1 victors over Chicago Thursday, visit the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Everybody gets into the act Sunday with the Leafs at Chicago and the Rangers at Detroit while the Bruins and Canadiens shift to Boston.

Lorne Worsley, apparently untroubled by the gimpy knee that plagued him during the playoffs last spring, turned aside 32 Chicago drives Friday night to register the first shutout of the NHL campaign.

Big Four Referee Suspended, Fails to Enforce Decision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quarterbacks and officials—the ghosts golden boys and sometime ils goats—keep the Big Four Football Union busy this weekend.

Montreal Alouettes who were to meet Toronto Argonauts in Toronto today, Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton, were busy chasing Nobby Wirkowski, claimed this week on waivers from Hamilton but now reported to the United States on a scouting mission.

REFEREE SUSPENDED

Meanwhile, referee Jimmy Simpson has won an unprecedented rebuke in the form of a two-game suspension for allowing Toronto and Hamilton teams to remain in a game against Hamilton last Monday after ordering him off the field. Big Four referee - in-chief Seymour Wilson, who announced the suspension Friday, said Simpson was suspended because Hamilton was forced to remain in the game after a consultation on the field.

Things are rumbling also in the Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series, where London Lords cancelled a scheduled home game Rochester Rockets Saturday, leaving the day's action to Toronto Beaches and Sarnia Golden Bears at Sarnia.

The usual two games remained on the slate, however, in the Intercollegiate league, with University of Toronto Blues scrapping in Montreal against McGill Redmen and Queen's Golden Gaels meeting University of Western Ontario Mustangs, at Kingston.

WOULD BREAK STREAK

Coach Douglas (Peahead) Walker named Wirkowski to the lineup but said all depended on Sam's condition at the opening whistle and later: Sherdon Waugh stop Etchverry's string of 69 successive games since joining Montreal in 1952.

Ottawa, just two points out of last place occupied by Toronto and eight points and two points behind Montreal and Hamilton respectively, was forced to fall back on Chuck Harding without either injured first-stringer Hal Patterson or Wirkowski.

Montreal coach Frank Clair says he intends to use Wirkowski this season but Hamilton officials say they doubt Nobby will respond to the summons. He is reported happy in the new role of Tiger scout.

The college clubs, each with one game under its belt, are scuffling for early-season eminence. Mustangs now top the circuit with a 6-3 victory over McGill while Queen's and Toronto share second place on the basis of their 7-7 tie.

Coach Denies Friction Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Assistant coach Vid Lindskog of British Columbia Lions denied Friday that he is the cause of friction on the coaching staff and with players.

Lindskog was commenting on a report from Toronto in which Arnie Galiffa was quoted as blaming the assistant coach for some of Lions' troubles in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Galiffa, a former Lion, has quarterbacked for Toronto Argonauts since the B.C. team released him before the start of the season.

"It is an open secret that there is no love lost between Lindskog and the players," Galiffa said. "that included me while I was with the club."

He told Vancouver sports writer Eric Whitehead in Toronto that Lindskog made up his mind he didn't want certain players. "Then he didn't want were Al Pollard and myself."

In Vancouver, Lindskog denied having anything to do with the release of Galiffa and said his remarks were "sour grapes."

"Players we released were dropped for only one reason," he said. "They failed to cut the mustard."

Don Larsen Will Appear On Hope Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Don Larsen, the no - hit perfect game pitcher of the world series, emerged from one dream world into an artificial one called Hollywood today.

The New York Yankee right-hander is here to appear with Bob Hope on a television show Oct. 21. He is said to be getting $7,500 for the stint.

How does he feel about it all?

"There's been so much going on," said Larsen, "I haven't even had time for a beer in peace."

Larsen got in from New York Friday night and was properly introduced to Hollywood at the airport by a pair of embryo starlets garbed in not much. He was rushed to a National Broadcasting Company party across town and presented to Hope, and a blonde starlet had time in a tight pair of shocking pink Capri pants and slouchy denim jacket.

Later the blonde changed to a black, scanty evening gown and Don inquired: "What was that girl's name?"

The blonde's name was Diana Dors, a specialty from England and a co-star on Hope's program. A camera-man stood Diana, Don and Hope up for a picture.

"It's a little better lighting in a lineup," said Diana.

Don didn't say a word and he looked as if he wished he was facing Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella or Mickey Mitchell in that fateful ninth inning of the greatest game ever pitched in world series history.

"Yeah," Don said, "my knees are a little shaky again, just like they were in the ninth inning."

Alouettes Did Not Like Simpsons Work

HAMILTON (CP) — Seymour Wilson, referee-in-chief of the Big Four Football Union, said Friday referee Jimmy Simpson has been suspended for two games because he allowed end Al Pfeifer of Toronto Argonauts to stay last Monday after ordering him off the field.

Wilson announced the suspension earlier in the day, disclosing his reasons later.

Simpson was judge of play in Argos' game Monday with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, which won 34-30.

Wilson said Simpson's suspension was because he "had ordered Al Pfeifer out of the Monday game and Pfeifer had continued to play, after a consultation."

Officials said the suspension normally means Simpson misses only one Big Four appointment. He had not been scheduled Monday in either of today's fixtures because he is attending the U.S. Army-Michigan University game at Ann Arbor, Mich., where his son is on the track team.

Wilson's decision, therefore, involved a Simpson ruling that had benefitted a team that has been criticizing his work—Toronto Argonauts. Montreal Alouettes also are reported to have asked that Simpson not be appointed to games in Montreal.

Old Leafs Gather Around Reminiscent Festive Tree

By GERRY LOUGHEED
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Tales about such hockey greats as Howie Morenz, Bill Cook, Hooley Smith, Eddie Shore and Babe Siewart will be swapped again here today by another group of players who were associated themselves a quarter of century ago.

The directors of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. are tendering a 25th anniversary dinner for members of the Leafs' Stanley Cup team of '31-32 edition, which won the Stanley Cup the season the Gardens was opened.

Two players on that well - balanced squad won the National Hockey League scoring championship three times in four years. The 15-man outfit also produced five players who later came back to coach in the NHL.

Most vivid in the fans' memory are the three members of the Leafs' famed Kid Line — centre Joe Primeau flanked by wingers Charlie Conacher and Harvey (Busher) Jackson—who gave opposing goalies the jitters every time they stepped on the ice.

Jackson won the scoring title during the 1931-32 season with 53 points and Primeau was next with 50. Conacher was sixth that year, just nine points behind Jackson, and went on to head the list in the 1933-34 and '34-35 campaigns.

Other forwards during the Gardens' first years were Frankie Finnigan, Ace Bailey, Bob Gracie, Andy Blair, Harold Darragh, Harold (Baldy) Cotton (now Boston Bruins' top scout) and Fred Robertson.

Backing them up was a solid defence corps composed of Frank (King) Clancy, Alex Levinsky, Red Horner and Clarence (Hap) Day.

In goal was the late Lorne Chabot, who will be represented at the festivities by Lorne Chabot, Jr., big goal-playing son from Port Arthur. He will drop the puck today at Detroit Red Wings and the Maple Leafs open another NHL season here.

Day, Primeau and Clancy handled the Leaf coaching spot from 1941 until last year. Day now is general manager and Clancy his assistant. Conacher for three seasons piloted Chicago Black Hawks.

Gracie will come the greatest distance for the reunion — from Glendale Calif., where he operates a night club. Robertson will travel from Woodstock.

McFarlands Look Impressive In Exhibition Appearance; Drop Game to Kitchener 6-0

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Belleville McFarlands went down to a 6-0 setback at the hands of the Kitchener Dutchmen, 1955 Allan Cup champions, here last night, but they came up with a display that bespoke spirit, speed and a fighting potential.

It was rugged hockey from whistle to whistle, a display that gave over 1400 fans first-hand evidence of the difference between senior "A" puckchasing and the senior "OHA" type.

Referee Net Vitarelli handed out twelve penalties, seven to the Dutchmen. Belleville coach Bep Guidolin and the Dutchmen captain Jack McKenzie drew majors for fighting in the first period, with the McFarland member getting the better of the bauble.

A duke-up seal featured the game. A minute after the third period started Paul Knox, Bobby Hutchinson forward golfed the puck from near the blueline. It soared high into the rafters and arced down to bounce in front of the McFarland goalie Claude Rossiter and bounded into the net.

The McFarlands lacked the finish and experience the Allan Cup champions but their display collectively and individually drew the stamp of approval of the crowd. They showed plenty of speed and hockey knowledge with individual brilliancy standing out at times.

They did not deserve the setback out and should have had two or three goals especially in the third period when they circled around the Kitchener net only to be beaten by the wizardry of the Dutchmen goalie Don Oliver. Peter Jones had him beaten all the way on one occasion but his shot caromed off a post.

Coach Guidolin sent Paul Payette, Harry Menard and Lucien Gilbert out as his fleet checking and puck trio, showing plenty of speed and puck trickiness looked the better of the Dutchmen. Other lines were juggled by Guidolin who only played a few minutes in order to get his full crew and his players. At that he drew a major and a minor.

He used three goalies starting Don Larwin then sending in "Turk" Barclay who showed a little unsettable performance and closing the session with Claude Rossiter who looked good between the pipes.

He had a belleville line of Davy and Peter Jones and Keith Mc-Donald working together with Peter coming up with a fine display.

The Dutchies scored two goals in each period, showing the high school skate type of hockey. Brooker broke the scoring ice after seven minutes of the first period when he tipped in Kowalchuk's goal-mouth pass past Larwin.

Kitchener scored their second goal when Crawford was in the penalty box a minute climaxed a three-man drive with Rope and Martin to hit the lamp. They new goal came into force for the first time here when Crawford scored after the puck had been ordered to be dropped as the goal was scored.

The McFarlands nearly broke the scoring ice a minute later when Pete Payette broke through the Kitchener defence, raced in on Don Senior, starting goalie for the Allan Cup champions, and bounced a shot off his pads.

Jack McKenzie and Coach Guidolin collaborated in fisticuffs off the left boards and went to the ice resinging. Both got majors for fighting.

The Dutchmen grabbed a four-goal lead early in the second period scoring two quick goals in 17 seconds. Scholes combined with Knox to beat Barclay and Hogan repeated seconds later with a close-in shot from Martin's pass.

Rossiter went in the McFarland nets at the beginning of the third period and was greeted with the thanks goal after minutes of play. The Dutchmen drew four of their seven penalties in this frame but a tight defence kept the McFarlands off the scoring sheet. Theberge spearheaded the Kitchener offensive with Knox and Scholes to rack up the Dutchies sixth goal at the seven-minute mark.

The McFarlands gave their best offensive display of the night in this period and deserved two or three goals.

Knox appeared to be the most effective player for the Dutchmen, scoring a goal and being credited with two assists.

The McFarlands showed plenty of promise and came up with a fine exhibition considering the fact they have only a few practices under their belts. Henri Therrien served a mild charley horse and was not used in the third period.

The teams:

Kitchener—Goal, Senior; defence, Kilrich, Hockings; centre, Hogan; wings, McKenzie, Rope; subs, Hurst, Martin, Theberge, Scholes, Knox, Kowalchuk, Barclay; defence, Benoit, Crawford; centre, Payette; wings, H. Menard, Gilbert; subs, Guidolin, Hinchbergerr, Wade, W. Menard, MacDonald, D. Jones, P. Jones, Cook, Gilbert, Goyer, Mulholland, Morrisette, Therrien, St. Pierre.

Senators May Transfer to LA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The haves and have-nots are sitting each other out, each waiting for the other to make a move considering possible transfer of Washington's American League baseball club to Los Angeles.

Calvin Griffith, the Senators' president, said Friday he wouldn't budge until Los Angeles officials came across with a concrete bid for the team's franchise.

In Los Angeles, county supervisor Kenneth Hahn told a reporter the first move is Griffith's. Hahn said the Senators accompanied by his lawyers should go out there to talk over terms.

Hahn said he could not commit Los Angeles taxpayers or the county board to any particular project.

Griffith said he also had spoken by telephone with Will Harridge, league president, and obtained assurance that the club owners would be called together to act on any proposition that sounded worthwhile.

The American club owners must approve any shift in franchise by Oct. 31, with six of the eight assenting.

SPORT IN BRIEF

BRAVES TRADE AWWL

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves Friday traded reserve Catcher Toby Atwell and Rookie Righthanders Phil Paine and Jack Hannah to their Wichita, Kan., farm team for outfielder Everette Jolner.

DEMOTED FOR CHEATING

VIENNA (AP)—Discus thrower Karel Merta, a lieutenant in the Czechoslovak army has been stripped of his rank and demoted to private for using a "lightened" discus to achieve his recent good performances, radio Prague said Friday.

WILL PASS UP, GAMES

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Egypt Friday confirmed her decision not to send a team to the Olympic Games to be held here next month. Before the Suez crisis she had decided to send a team of about 100.

PHILS SELL HURLER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies announced Friday the sale of relief pitcher Duane Pillette to San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League for an undisclosed sum of cash.

CHARTER PLANE FOR GAME

WINNIPEG(CP)—Eighty sercemen based at Churchill, Man., 910 miles north of here, have chartered an airliner to carry them to the Canada football game at Toronto, Nov. 24.

BAGS 22 DUCKS AT 82

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — John Smith, pioneer of the Prince Albert District, doesn't let his 82 years hamper his hunting. A proof, he offers 22 ducks for his latest expedition.

"That wasn't quite as good as what I did on my first trip at the first of the season," Smith said in an interview Friday. "I got 26 ducks then."

WILL DUCATS BE USED?

MONTREAL (CP)—Toon Donahue returned home Thursday to find the dining room window open and four NHL season tickets the Montreal Canadiens home games this winter gone. The tickets, at stake in a poker game, also was disturbed, Donahue is anxious to see what will turn up in his Saturday night.

Mighty Nashua Bids Farewell To Racetrack

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Nashua bids goodbye to racing today in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, after which the two-year-old stars tackle the rich Futurity Stakes on an afternoon rivaling in tradition and greenbacks.

The sparkling program promises an afternoon with seven horses in the Gold Cup, and 14 in the Futurity, but over all looms the shadow of the great size—Nasrullah.

Perhaps never before in the United States have the sons of one stallion dominated two such major stakes races, with Nasrullah having sired three starters in each race—including the two up choices in both events.

WILL END AT 8

Nashua, making the 30th and final start of his colorful career, is expected to rule a 4-to-5 choice in the $100,000 added Gold Cup with Mister Gus next at 5-to-2.

In the Futurity, five furlongs down the Widener straight course, Bold Ruler is favored at 4-to-5 over the entry of Nashville and Blue Spruce next at 5-to2.

The four-year-old Nashua, five-year-old Mister Gus, and the two juveniles, Bold Ruler and Nashville, all are sons of Nasrullah. So are the Calh Hoy Stable's Flying Fury, the Manhattan Handicap winner who goes in the Gold Cup, and George D. Widener's entry for the Futurity candidate.

Nearctic, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, will run in the Futurity, which will gross $125,356, with the winner getting $91,862, provided all start. If seven go in the Gold Cup, it will be worth $54,700, with $26,600 to the winner.

Calhoun Whips John L. Sullivan

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rory Calhoun, who now wants to fight Philadelphia's Joey Giardello, put forward his claim for credit for setting up his technical knockout victory over Britain's John L. Sullivan here Friday night.

The 22-year-old lugger from White Plains, N.Y., is among the middleweight contenders, had Sullivan a dazed and bulgous target when referee Jackie Davis halted the fight nine seconds into the eighth round.

It was a straight right to the jaw that floored Sullivan for a nine-count, which the bell interrupted at the end of the seventh, and it was a trio of rights to the jaw that preceded the stopping of the scheduled 10-rounder.

"Those body punches wear you down," Calhoun observed in summing up his winning technique. "Most of those European fighters have good defence, but they keep guarding their head. I went for his body and figured he'd start slowing up from those punches."

The victory was the 24th in 28 fights for Calhoun who weighed 160½ to Sullivan's 162.

Promoter Larry Atkins said he would go to New York next week to try to arrange a Giardello-Calhoun bout here for Mid-November.

Bendo, Head With Windsor

TORONTO (CP) — Coallender Don Head and centre Lew Bendo are to play the 1956-57 season with Windsor Bulldogs of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, the Toronto Argonaut Association executive decided Friday night.

The players, last year with Stratford Indians of the same league, had been the subjects of a running committee-room battle as Lions Bulldogs signed them earlier this year. Stratford protested the signing, which took place before the Indians franchise changed hands.

Both teams agreed to the Association's decision. It is believed Windsor will send player help to Stratford later this year under a private arrangement.

Solunar Notes

When Tuna Take Baits Deeply

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.

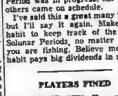
Way back yonder, in 1938, I was the guest of the Nova Scotia Government at the second International Tuna Tournament which was held at Liverpool, Nova Scotia, teams from Cuba, Canada, Great Britain and the United States competing. For three days I sat in a tuna derry, rocking gently with the ground swell in Liverpool Bay and becoming fairly expert while watching the proceedings.

Unfortunately, no tuna were in the derry at Liverpool Bay. Our boat, during the three days of the competition, did not hook a single fish. It is interesting to note, however, that every tuna which was hooked during the tournament was hooked solidly and landed. The reason? Every fish took the baits or lures deeply, during Solunar Periods, when they were hungry.

The Cuban team won the tournament, but in the tournament of the previous year the late Paul Townsend of Washington, D.C., came roaring in to the dock, just under the wire, with a spectacular last-minute catch to rack up a victory for the United States team. By this fish, which was hooked deeply and thus landed quickly, took the bait during a major Solunar Period.

Two years later, the U.S. Atlantic Tuna Tournament was held off the coast of New Jersey. Nineteen boats competed. I'm coming to memory on this, but I think that was the number. In any event, on the second day, during a major Solunar Period, every single boat in the entire fleet was into the giant tuna. A gentleman named Maurice Hollander was the event's first and he told me about it later.

ALL HOOKED DURING PERIODS



This year, 1956, the Atlantic Tuna Tournament was held out of Point Judith, Rhode Island. My son, Dick, the outdoor sports reporter of the Garden City, Long Island, was the judge in that tournament. This is his report.

"The tourney was a tremendous success. In all, 39 giant tuna were hooked. Of these, 34 were gaffed and landed. The fish were not all in at 6 at 758 Tbs. for a new tourney record. All fish were hooked in either a pre- or post-Solunar period- Jim Salvato (Captain of the winner) and I checked this thoroughly."

Incidentally, the great majority of the fish that were not landed were lost because of tackle failure, not because they were lightly hooked. Obviously, the great blue-fin tuna responds wholeheartedly to the promptings of a Solunar Period.

From time to time I receive letters from readers asking me whether or not the Solunar Tables are useful in salt water. Of course they are. Salt-water fish respond to the Solunar Periods every bit as well as do fresh-water fish.

For example, consider our experience with the striped bass, a fish that live in the shallow water around the Florida Keys. Dave Dick and I have managed to win quite a few prizes while fishing in the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament that is held each year.

In addition, we have taken a respectable number of record fish. Since 1948, when we first started to fish those waters, only one prize fish came to our lures outside of the hours when a Solunar Period was in progress. All of the others came on schedule.

I've said this a great many times, but I'll say it again. Make it a habit to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods, no matter where you are fishing. Believe me, this habit pays big dividends in sport.

PLAYERS FINED

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two players with British Columbia Lions and eight with Calgary Stampeders have been fined for conduct rebelling in match penalties in an Oct. 6 Western Interprovincial Football Union game at Vancouver, commissioner Sydney Halter said Friday night.

Tackle Norm Rudd of the Lions was fined $50 while tackle Bob Mantis of Lions and tackle Tony Pajaczkowski of Stamps were fined $25 apiece.

St. Mikes Down Albert College For Fourth Win

St Michael's ran their unbeaten, uncored on record to four games on Thursday afternoon as the blanked Albert College 16-0 in junior "B" COSSA rugby fixture.

An exhibition club, composed of both junior and senior players, St. Mike's has racked up a total of 122 points against none for the opposition in the team's four victories.

Thursday's contest was a hard-fought overcome battle until the third quarter. Albert threatened twice early in the game, plunging to St. Mike's yard line only to be stopped.

Pat Tracey finally broke the double zero mid-way through the third quarter. The starry half-back made four consecutive plunges, the fourth taking him over for the major. Tracey set up the next touchdown when he carried down field to Albert's 5-yard line. Marty Hallowes broke through for the point.

Quarterback Dave Poirier tossed to Tim Cook for his club's third T.D. and also threw to Larry Marchand for the game's only extra point.

John Berrigan was in the Q.B. spot for the Saints in the first half and called the plays for the first two touchdowns. He also starred on defence, intercepting two Albert passes. The entire St. Mike's line went well above par on the defensive standing out also on defence.

Bob Scheffing Club Manager

CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Scheffing a rangy ex-catcher whose mild disposition has earned him the name "Grump", Friday was named field manager of the bedraggled Chicago Cubs with a three year contract.

Scheffing last season led Los Angeles to the Pacific Coast League pennant.

Cubs President Scheffing wasted little time acting like head man, requesting that General Manager John Holland to ask the three coaches of the managerial staff to submit resignation.

The coaching trio of Hack, who realigned Thursday, Fred Sweigle Cub shakeup, includes Ray Blades, Peppy Walker and Dutch Leonard. Scheffing has not selected his own coaches yet.

WILL ELEVATE PLAYERS

Scheffing plans to bring up the entire Cub roster from Los Angeles, including Jim Bolger, Gale Wade and Capp. A flock of other previous Cub trials and were found wanting but Scheffing says will be improved.

About the 1956 Cubs, who finished with their worst record in history (60 victories against 94 losses), Scheffing was somewhat slowly on making changes. However, he observed that Ernie Banks, the Cub hitter, wasn't playing well at shortstop. Scheffing decided to see if Banks would be shifted to another infield position or be ruled out entirely to the outfield.

Scheffing, once in the St. Louis Cardinal chain, left the Cubs from 1941 until 1950 and was a coach under Hack- in 1954 and part of 1955.

TENNIS CROWN TO McGILL

MONTREAL (CP)—The McGill University tennis team Friday won its first intercollegiate championship in eight years, edging the University of Montreal by two points.

DeMarco Meets Gavilan Tonight

BOSTON (AP)—A title match was the goal of former welterweight champions Tony DeMarco and Kid Gavilan as they prepared for their scheduled 10 - round fight tonight at Boston Garden.

Gavilan, the Cuban kreol, picked up tremendously in his last few days of gym workouts—then said he purposely had held back in the early drills because he was afraid the DeMarco camp would pull out.

In fact, Gavilan suddenly became so impressive the odds on DeMarco dropped quickly from 3-to-1 to 10-7 and some observers felt it would be a 6-to-5 by flight time.

DeMarco, the 34-year-old Cuban cutie with the famed bolo punch, insists he was "robbed" when he lost a 15-round decision and his title to Saxton in October of 1954.

Reds Put Five Pucks Behind Harry Lumley

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds, opening defence of their American Hockey League championship Friday night spoiled Harry Lumley's debut as goalie for Buffalo Bisons.

Lumley, 29 - year - old veteran from Owen Sound who is back in the AHL after 11 seasons in the National Hockey League with Detroit, Toronto and Chicago, was beaten five times as the Reds defeated the Bisons 5-1 in the AHL season opener.

Johnny Bower, Providence goalie and the league's most valuable player last year, had a shutout through two periods before Chester Warchol beat him six minutes before the end while the Reds were shorthanded.

Red Johansen led Providence with two goals while Ralph Bruce Cline and Paul Larrivee getting the others.

The Reds swings into full action tonight with Buffalo at Springfield, Providence at Hershey and Rochester at Cleveland.

Lumley hadn't played in the AHL since the 1944 - 45 season when he lined up with Indianapolis Capa, a Detroit farm club. He was brought up to the Red Wings in mid-season and began a brilliant NHL career.

ASK WAIVERS ON SAUER

St. Louis (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals announced Friday they have asked waivers on Hank Sauer, veteran outfielder, with a view to giving him his unconditional release.

Texas-Sooners Game Looms as Today's Best

NEW YORK (AP)—Football statisticians and trade oil - fanciers have come with the information that Pittsburgh, not Oklahoma, probably holds the modern major-college winning streak that automatically converts the Texas-Oklahoma game into a big one Saturday.

Bud Wilkinson's red-clad Sooners, basking in the glory that goes with 22 straight victories, had been strongly favored to beat Texas, just as they have every year since 1951. Now they're looking on this game as a chance to regain the record that was snatched away from them. The results may be very unpleasant for the twice-beaten Texas Longhorns.

All this rumbled from some research which revealed that the Pitt teams of 1914 - 1919 had whipped 23 opponents in succession—no more than Oklahoma's current streak. Which is the modern record, or course, depending on your definition of "modern."

'Ike' Thanks Brooklyn Fan For Series Seat

BROOKLYN (AP)—A Brooklyn Dodger fan who yielded his box seats so that President Eisenhower and his party could attend the opening game of the world series at Ebbets Field had his reward today — a thank-you note from the president.

The happy recipient was Samuel M. Abrams, president of a Brooklyn shoe polish firm, and a rabid Dodger fan. He gave up his company's eight-seat box location at the request of Brooklyn president Walter O'Malley.

The president's note read:

"Mr. O'Malley tells me that you gave up your seats for the first world series game in order to accommodate the party that came up from Washington with me. I deeply appreciate your courtesy —and at the same time I sincerely hope that, despite our presence, you managed to see that very exciting encounter. I am sure that you, as a Dodger fan, were entirely satisfied with the final result.

"I know the members of the cabinet and White House staff who accompanied me join, as does my son, in grateful appreciation of your kindness."

Stampeders Out Of Western Grid Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only one thing was sure today as the Western Interprovincial Football Union faced a four-game weekend that could tell many tales: Calgary Stampeders are out of the playoffs.

By Tuesday morning, when the clubs have done battle—and declared for the last time Dec 12 United States players who will be around for the rest of the season—something more of the 1956 playoff picture should be evident.

The big question, of course, is at Regina Saturday, where Edmonton Eskimos go against Saskatchewan Roughriders in their last scheduled meeting of the season—a game that, barring a tie, will break the Rider-Eskimo first-place draw.

Eskimos will meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Edmonton Monday night in another game that will have a lot of bearing on the first-place question while British Columbia Lions will be working desperately to keep their playoff chances alive by beating the Bombers at Vancouver Saturday night and the Stampeders at Calgary Monday.

Right now, Eskimos and Riders each have an 8-4 record, Bombers a 7-5 mark, Lions 3-7 and Stampeders 2-10.

Pretty, Perky Peggy King Sorry to Leave Gobel Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — George Gobel has started his third TV season, but without the services of Peggy King. And pretty, perky Peggy is shedding no tears about it.

"Don't get me wrong," the blonde singer said. "I love George. Three never has been a wrong word between us."

She found herself in a strange position. For sentiment and other reasons she would like to be on the show for forever and reasons, she's glad she isn't.

"It does seem to me a mistake to break up a winning combination," she said. She referred to the fact that she, Jeff Donnell, director Bud Yorkin and, most importantly, producer Hal Kanter, have not been renewed for the new season.

BOON TO CAREER

In the last week, she added, at least the strangers have expressed their disappointment that she is not back on the Gobel show. "That makes me feel very nice," she said.

But the dropping of her option was a boon to her career.

"Even though I didn't do very much on the show, I had to be at rehearsals all the time," she re-marked. "This limited my work in other fields. Now I'm able to do the things I want to do—and to make more money.

Her career is perking in all directions. Last summer she played Las Vegas for the first time. She flew to New York for the Steve Allen show last Sunday, doing a dance number for the first time on TV. Next month she draws the plum role in an NBC spectacular, Jack and the Beanstalk.

"But my real ambition is to do a Broadway show. I have several opportunities. I think that would be the best thing for my career right now."

FLOWER BOWL WINS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brookmeade Stable's Flower Bowl rushed home in the stretch to capture the $53,200 Ladies Handicap before a crowd of 20,226 Friday at Belmont Park. The King Ranch's Dotted Line was second and Calumet Hoy Stable's Brightest Star third in a photo for the run-ning position.

Willie Shoemaker rode Flower Bowl who paid $6.60, $6.30 and $4.90, carrying 118 pounds. Flower Bowl earned $40,100.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, Oct. 15, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This day can bring good results if you don't let things slide or if unfavorable opportunities pass unnoticed. Make sure your efforts are directed towards right ends, then push forward strongly.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Inauspicious aspects may tend to throw a damper on activities but, remember, they need not if you go forward with a sure, steady, conservative stride.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — A good day for scientific work and study, especially along botanical and zoological lines. Other lines of endeavor can also be productive if you use ingenuity, imagination and some tact.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Intemperateness may tempt you. Cancerites today. Don't be disarmed, though, for your power of recovery and ability to overcome obstacles is estimable when you want to use it.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Social activities have top priority. Devote as much time as possible to these but don't let other important matters be pushed into the background. Avoid a tendency toward recklessness.

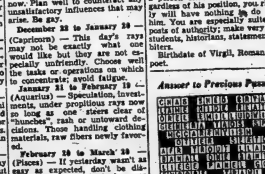
August 24 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Day similar to Gemini in many respects. However, avoid a tendency to fuss over details or to be overzealous in your desires. Chances for improvement, quite very good.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — You, like Taurus, may be in for some stiff opposition, but courage will take things as they come.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — All professions or activities in which people appear before the public (acting, singing, television, etc.) are at special interest to you today. Be careful about appearance, dress.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — You are heading for a cul-de-sac tomorrow, so make all the progress possible now. Plan well to counteract any unsatisfactory influences that may arise. Be gay.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — This day's rays may not be exactly what one would like but they are not especially unfriendly. Choose well the tasks or operations on which to concentrate; avoid fatigue.



January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Speculation, investments, under propitious rays now so long as one steers clear of "hunches", rash or untoward decisions. Those handling clothing materials, raw fibers newly favored.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — If yesterday wasn't as easy as expected, don't be discouraged; you may be in for some pleasant surprises. Avoid a tendency to be too passive or negative.

You born today are humanitarian in your manner and suffer when those you love are hurt. Foresight, intuition, courage are outstanding characteristics. Though naturally affectionate, you are not usually demonstrative. Libras are noted for a fine sense of justice. Your original ideas, properly exploited, can lead to new friends, gains. When you believe a person unfair or insincere, regardless of his position, you rightly will have nothing to do with him. You are especially suited to posts of authority; make very able students, historians, statesmen, arbiters.

Birthdate of Virgil, Roman epic poet.

MARMORA

W.I. Enjoys Colored Slides

MARMORA — The regular meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday at the home of the president, Miss Grace Warren.

Financial statement was given also outstanding bills were presented, and a decision made for payment.

The correspondence was dealt with. A letter received from the Department asking W.I. to sponsor a drive to eliminate the bugs on the highways, and countryside. It was decided to present the problem to the Chamber of Commerce and also the town and township councils and enlist their aid.

A thank-you letter was received from the secretary of the Marmora Public Library for the donation of 75 which was read and appreciated.

Mrs. Harold Naylor gave the topic, 'Agriculture and Canadian Industries.

Pictures were shown of the first drilling for Marmoraton Mines and others showing the preceding work to present times, also visit of Premier Frost and party — among whom was noted Mayor Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa—and Mr. J. Shale manager of Bethlehem Corp. at the official opening of the mine and at the loading of the first boat at Ore Dock Point.

Current Events were given by Mrs. Frankice and a travelogue by Miss Grace Warren, showing colored pictures of her recent trip to Waterton, Alberta, and Montana, which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. E. Post showed an interesting collection of pictures of her trip to Hollywood. While there she spent a day with the Rev. E. Maud and Mrs. Cadigan, former pastor of St. Andrew's Zion — Cordova United Church.

The ladies made further plans re The Millinery Project to be held on October 19 22 — 23rd.

Mrs. Tinsdale put on a contest, which was won by Mrs. L. Green.

Refreshments were served.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

To Chinese, Wednesday was the day of the "double ten." On the 10th day of the 10th month, 1911, Manchu dynasty was overthrown, clearing the way for the Chinese republic. Among Chinese living outside the Red orbit, the "double ten" is a big national holiday.

Hong Kong, British trading and naval centre on the South China coast, is a chief haven for refugees from the Red mainland. Its population has been increased fivefold, from half a million 10 years ago to nearly 2,200,000 today.

Despite the press of this refugee multitude on the colony's housing and other resources, and the inevitable interplay of intrigue between Nationalist and Communist factions, Hong Kong had been relatively free of violence—until this week's celebration of the "double ten."

Then, a minor incident touched off fierce rioting. An official at a housing development took down some Nationalist flags that had been put up for the holiday. His action inflamed Nationalist partisans who set out on a march of looting and burning.

First rule of violence was directed against the British, whose diplomatic recognition of Red China does not sit well with the partisans of Chiang Kai-shek. Then the Nationalists turned their wrath on Chinese Communist factions.

The violence was confined to the mainland section of Hong Kong. The island of Hong Kong, the colony's most important part, was relatively quiet. Property damage from looting and burning was placed in the millions. About 25 were killed.

WHEAT PROTEST

Ottawa, to say nothing of the west, is unduly upset over a gimmick that Washington has worked into its wheat giveaway program. Canada had reluctantly acquiesced in the U.S. program of whittling down its wheat surplus by giving away, or selling for local currencies, the bread grain to overseas countries short of dollar cash.

The understanding was that the U.S. would lay off deals likely to damage the established markets of friendly exporting countries such as Canada which trades strictly for dollars.

But recently Canada learned the U.S. has been adding a proviso in such deals that when the donated or bargain grain is used up, the beneficiary country will offer and pay for in dollars — additional quantities of U.S. wheat. In other words, buy from the U.S. instead of from Canada.

Last Monday Ottawa disclosed a "strong" note of protest has been delivered in Washington. But officials were not optimistic that much would come of it. Certainly not during the current U.S. election campaign. And Washington contended the proviso was merely to protect normal American markets.

SUEZ PROBLEM

The search for a solution to the Suez Canal problem went on all week at United Nations headquarters in New York. The foreign ministers of all the principal powers were there. But even these top-notchers seemed able to make little headway.

Britain and France appeared to be in something of a squeeze. On the one side was U.S. State Secretary Dulles. He voiced firm support of the British-French position. But complaints persisted about the "hot and cold" gyrations of U.S. policy. The British and French wondered how long Dulles' backing would stay firm.

On the other side was Egypt's fiery Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi. Called a master of ambiguity, he was more apt to quote an Oriental proverb than give a straight answer. "A strip-tease," one Western delegate called Dr. Fawzi's tactics. French Foreign Minister Pineau said Fawzi had given them only "words, words."

ISRAEL AND PALESTINE

Israel pushed further her tough "eye for an eye" policy against Jordan. A few days ago a couple of Israeli farmhands were killed. Wednesday night Israeli troops crossed the border and wrecked a fortified Jordan police station, killing about 50 Jordanians.

Israel candidly called the assault a reprisal for the farmhand incident. It was the fourth such raid against Jordan border outposts in the last month, all tricked as reprisals.

The train of events appeared to be weakening the position in Jordan of young King Hussein. Washington heard reports that Iraq, Jordan's Arab neighbor to the east, may move in troops to help out. Iraq, incidentally, is something of a rival of Egypt in the Middle East set-up.

BRINK'S CASE

Six years ago, in Boston, the offices of the Brink's armored car service were robbed of $1,219,000 cash. It was one of the biggest hauls ever made. It was one of the smoothest, involving intricate planning and much criminal ingenuity.

For years it looked as if the kidnappers would be solved. Then police arrested one Joseph (Specs) O'Keefe. It turned out he was in on the job and was angry at the way the loot had been split. He squealed.

Wednesday, after a nine-week trial, the eight men O'Keefe fingered were sent to prison "for the rest of their natural lives." O'Keefe, yet to be sentenced, probably will draw a lighter term for giving evidence that helped convict his confederates.

HAD NOTE

For the families of 71 Canadians, Thanksgiving Day was turned into a day of mourning. That was the toll of holiday accidents. Forty-three of the 71 died on the highways.

Garden Notes

Now Is Peony Planting Time

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The peony is one of our favorite perennials from away back. Many an old garden has peony clumps that are twenty years old and those plants were divisions taken from old plants in other gardens. They were fragrant, colorful and hardy.

But the modern peony is much larger and handsomer but it still retains it hardiness. Where background foliage is important, over a long summer season where economy must be practised and for many other reasons peonies are a good buy. September and October are the best months to plant peonies, or to transplant, or divide.

Since the new eyes are already formed for the following season's growth, this is a good time to plant. There is still enough growing weather left to establish new feeding roots. It is possible to plant on into November, but plants will show stronger growth the first spring after re-planting if they are moved early. By second year the difference in growth is not noticeable.

NEED GOOD DRAINAGE

Sun is essential to peonies. They need good drainage, and prefer a deep rich soil of the loam type. Dig up the soil to a depth of one foot and mix in some humus such as ground corn cobs, peat moss or chopped straw. Peonies have deep roots and remain in the same place permanently. For this reason they should have the best in soil preparation.

Regular feedings with a complete plant food are vital since these plants are heavy feeders. One cupful of vigoro per plant applied early and well worked in lightly will increase the size and number of blooms.

Do avoid planting the crown too deeply. This is often a cause of failure to bloom. In sandy soil the buds may be set three inches below the surface. In clay soil a bare two inches is sufficient. Three feet apart is about right. Choose a new sight when breaking up peony plants and do not plant them too near trees or shrubs.

A peony plant which is two years old should be divided if you are transplanting it. When replanting any peony dig up the plant carefully to preserve as many fleshy roots. Wash the soil away from the roots and allow them to lay in the air for a few hours until the roots wilt. It will then be much easier to divide them without breaking. Use a sharp paring knife if necessary. A three to five eye division is considered correct. Never allow more than five to seven eyes. Larger clumps do not thrive as well as healthy small ones.

Give the newly set out plants a light mulch of straw, ground corn cobs, peat moss, or oak leaves after the ground has frozen. This is only necessary the first winter. Well established plants do not need it. Do not mulch with soft wood leaves. They pack and cause the crown to rot.

CNR Completes Plans to Build New Offices

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways has completed plans for further development of its "planned city" property in downtown Montreal, it was learned here.

Webb and Knapp (Canada) Ltd. plans to erect an unspecified number of select office buildings on 4.4 acres of the area. An official estimate of the cost was $125,000,000.

As a prerequisite, however, the company must submit in six months a master plan for the whole 23 acres at a cost of at least $250,000,000. Once that is accepted the company can go ahead with its project on a 9-year lease.

The development must be finished in five years.

ALREADY BUILT

The CNR area already includes Central Station, the International Civil Aviation Building and the partly-completed Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Wednesday night CNR President Donald Gordon announced plans for a formal plaza, a 400-car parking lot, to be called Place Ville-Marie.

The 4.4-acre area is bisected by the proposed plaza and lies north of Dorchester Blvd. This route cuts east-west across the CNR property.

Charge Immigrant With Murder In Deaths Of Two

Sudbury Man Slays Friend And Nineteen-Year-Old Girl

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A 37-year-old Hungarian immigrant today faces charges of murdering his "great friend" and a 19-year-old girl.

Istvan Gyorgy is charged in the deaths of Lorraine LaLonde, shot in the bedroom of her McKim Township home early Sunday morning, and of Sandor Nemeth, 35, who died of bullet wounds a short time later at his Sudbury apartment, about a mile from the LaLonde home.

Sudbury police arrested Gyorgy after being called to Nemeth's apartment building by Mrs. Harold Doyle, whose husband said he found a man holding a rifle at the door of Nemeth's apartment. He, too, shot twice, lay dying at his feet.

The man gave the rifle to Doyle, saying, "you can have the gun, it's all over now."

Sudbury police received the Doyle call at 1:35 a.m. Twenty minutes earlier, McKim Township police had been called to investigate Miss LaLonde's shooting in adjoining Minnow Lake.

There, her 12-year-old brother Clarence described how he and his brothers were sitting at the foot of the stairway when a strange man entered and asked for their father.

Told she was upstairs, he went up, followed by the boy. The man entered the bedroom and tore aside a curtain behind which Lorraine was sitting on the floor, reading.

"ARE YOU CRAZY?"

When she saw the man, Clarence said, Lorraine jumped to her feet and yelled "are you crazy?" "Then he shot her," the boy told police.

"He went right near me when he was going out. My dad had never seen him before," Mr. LaLonde told police. He was out of the house just ht min a thick fog.

A fellow Hungarian, Joseph Nage, described Gyorgy and Nemeth as "great friends" and said Gyorgy knew the LaLonde girl very well.

He said Nemeth was to have been joined in Canada in a few weeks by his wife and two children, 13 and 15.

Nage said the only trouble he knew of Nemeth having was with a Minnow Lake woman who refused to have his family.

"I guess she wanted the fun future," Nage said.

37 Canadians Die Accidentally During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirty-seven Canadians died accidentally during the weekend—six of them members of one family burned in their Toronto home.

A Canadian Press survey shows that between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday 15 persons died in Ontario, 11 in Quebec, six in British Columbia and one in each of Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Traffic fatalities accounted for most of the toll, 17 persons dying because of unnatural accidents.

In Ontario the count was made of the six fire deaths, five traffic fatalities, one drowning, one man crushed by a falling crane, two persons killed at a level crossing. Two persons not included in this count were fatally shot.

Quebec's toll included eight traffic deaths, one drowning, one person shot in a hunting accident and one person crushed to death.

FIRE KILLS SIX

The six-fatality fire in Toronto came Saturday morning during the final day of National Fire Prevention Week. Killed were Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Burt and their children; Mary Ann, 11; Michael, 9; Margaret, 7; and Janet, 5.

During the week 12 Canadians were reported dead in fires. Three of them—all children—died in a fire in Flemming Settlement, near St. Leonard, N.B., Friday.

Other Ontario deaths:

Mrs. Mary Little, 97, of Port Credit died of injuries suffered in a traffic accident near Lindsay.

Phyllis Baldwin, 13, died of injuries received when her bicycle was in collision with a car near Sarnia. Bruce Sabatine, 9, killed while riding his bicycle near Elmvale.

John Prosser, 43, of Castleton, drowned in the Trent Canal near Campbellford.

Sam Duckworth, 72, killed in a two-car collision in Toronto Saturday.

POLICE UNCOVER STOWAWAYS ON FRENCH FREIGHTER

Receive Tip From European Sources

MONTREAL (CP)—The RCMP, acting on a tip from European sources, uncovered five Sicilian stowaways in a weekend raid on the French freighter Isabey docked at the island up the St. Lawrence River to Montreal.

An all-out investigation was immediately launched to determine whether the men were part of a smuggled into Canada by an alien ring or are wanted by European police.

Meanwhile, search of the 1,650-ton ship continued today.

In addition to the stowaways, the RCMP arrested two members of the crew on charges of assisting the following discovery of a few dozen women's shirts and several dozen bottles of perfume. Seventeen bottles of cognac, on which duty had been paid, were also seized.

The raid was carried out Saturday by a 30-man RCMP detachment which boarded the ship at the Montreal harbor, 150 miles downriver from Quebec City.

The Sicilians were discovered in an isolated cabin by the time the ship reached Quebec City. They were ordered out on deck after "indicating that someone knew they were aboard and were looking for them."

Supt. E. Brakefield-Moore of the RCMP said the five-man haul the largest in recent years. U.S. Interested

He said United States authorities are "naturally" interested in the case. "It is quite probable that these five may have been headed ultimately for the United States."

"We don't know yet who is behind this thing—it may be the Mafia or some other sort of racketeering ring."

"We still have men on the Joliette and perhaps Montreal waterfront and we may be able to charge the guilty parties."

The Isabey is owned by La Compagnie de Navigation Cyprien Fabre. She was outbound from Marseilles.

Lancaster Makes Final Flight

LONDON (Reuters)—The last operational, four-engined Lancaster, major weapon of Britain's bomber command during the Second World War, made its final flight today to be broken up.

The famous bombers made more than 156,000 sorties against the enemy, dropping over 500,000 tons of high explosives and 1,000,000 incendiary bombs.

They were responsible for sinking the German battleship Tirpitz, breaching the Mohne and Eder dams, bombing the Ruhr, and Berchtesgaden and smashing the V-2 rocket sites in Germany's north-west. In Eastern Germany.

At the peak of its strength, 1944 Bomber command had 42 Lancaster squadrons. The plane's makers, A. V. Roe and Company, built 7,366 of them.

Marshal of the RAF Sir Arthur Harris, wartime head of Bomber Command, said of the Lancaster: "I always said it was the perfect single factor in winning the war."

One bomber will be preserved in the air ministry's historical branch.

Find Money Scattered Like Trash Through Nine-Room Long Is. Home

WEST BABYLON, N.Y. (AP)—Police plan to count today the hundreds of crumpled bills and handfuls of coins found scattered through the ramshackle home of a retired rail driver and his recluse sister.

Patrolmen stumbled on the dusty treasure hoard Saturday after John Van Huda, 58, telephoned police to report that he had robbed him of $12,000 at his home.

When police arrived they were astonished to find money littered through the nine-room Long Island house like it were much trash. Each room was also stuffed with old newspapers, rags, boxes and bottles.

Rats had nibbled on some of the bills lying on the floor. Other bills were worn thin from passing feet. Still others had been used as deliverymen talked Van Huda into letting them in. They hit him over the head and dug out an estimated $13,000 from under a mattress. Police recovered stuffed the cash in a feed bag and fled.

How much did the thugs miss in the money-cluttered house?

First estimates placed the total at $50,000. But later Police Chief Peter Vandenbosch said he couldn't say how much there was.

Asked why the money was kept in such a way, Van Huda's sister, Jeanette, 64, said:

"That's because of that Hitler. . . . Johnnie got very excited because he thought Hitler was going to take over the world. He thought if he kept the money in the house, Hitler couldn't find it there."

Van Huda said: "You know how I like the need money around the house for emergencies."

Neighbors were startled to learn that the shabby Van Huda house was crammed with riches. Some said they had lived in the area for 30 years and had never seen Van Huda.

"That's not true," she said. "I was out 10 years ago. It's my brother that kept in most of the time. They always hurt me."

Incidence of Polio Less Than One-Half of Last Year's Total

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The incidence in Canada of poliomyelitis this year has been just less than one-half of last year's, a Canadian Press survey discloses.

Authorities in the 10 provinces say widespread use of the Salk anti-polio vaccine, a cool summer and usual fluctuation in the disease's cycle appear to be the factors in its sharp decline to 6,000 cases, from 867 to the same date in 1955.

So far 18 deaths have been recorded this year, 14 less than in the comparative period last year.

Health officials said it is too early to say how effective the vaccine has been in combatting the disease but added that few children who were given shots have been stricken and nearly all were not crippled.

Many medical experts give the major credit for the low incidence to the overall cool and damp summer, while others say that polio's four-year cycle is in a decline after a peak in 1953.

Officials are not prepared to offer conclusions from Ontario's comparatively slight drop in incidence from 198 at mid-Sept. so far this year. Statisticians now are making a study of the figures in the last five years to pin down the factors bearing on polio incidence. Deaths totalled four this year and there were five to this date in 1955.

Quebec has recorded seven cases in 1956, with no deaths, compared to six cases and one death last year. The city's peak was 1951, when 378 cases occurred.

The exception to the 1956 overall drop may be Quebec province, where the total so far is 96, only behind the figure for all 1955. Five have died so far, compared to 13 last year.

In the Atlantic provinces New Brunswick's 1955 total was halved to 17, a figure way below the five-year 1951-1955 average of 103 cases. Official comment was cautious: "It may be a low-polio year."

Nova Scotia said 16 cases were notified, exactly 100 less than last year's comparative total to the same date.

Polio struck just four times in Newfoundland, 12 times less than last year. None of the four victims, of whom one was a paralytic case, is believed to have received Salk vaccine.

Prince Edward Island's polio toll has been cut down steeply from 85 in 1954 to 11 last year, and this year only three cases have been reported, none resulting in paralysis.

Yugoslav, Italian Communist Parties Restore Co-operation

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (Reuters)—The Yugoslav and Italian Communist parties today formally restored mutual co-operation, severed by the Cominform dispute of 1948.

A joint communique issued at the end of a 10-day visit by a delegation of the Italian party under deputy Secretary-General Luigi Longo announced the move.

It said the Yugoslav party had accepted an invitation to send a delegation to the forthcoming congress of the Italian party.

If in future the two parties disagreed, they would have the right to subject the other party to hierarchy criticism, the joint communique said.

Co-operation between the Italian and Yugoslav parties would come within the framework of "the principles of equality and non-interference in the internal life of both countries."

The Yugoslav party has already re-established relations with the Soviet, Rumanian, Polish and Bulgarian parties.

Windsor Police Arrest Eleven On Picket Line

WINDSOR (CP) — Picketers, police and company officials battled briefly at the Canadian Bridge Co. this morning and 11 pickeiers were arrested.

One police report said two pickeiers, a man and a woman, were slightly injured in the five-minute melee.

Fence plates were ripped off company cars and fenders scratched and dented as police tried to keep company cars from entering the plant.

The fight started the first violence in the four-week walkout at the plant when police had difficulty restraining pickets from stopping company personnel entering the plant. Police were on the picket line Saturday.

Officials said today Milton Rocheleau, deputy sheriff, went to the plant today to read the injunction to the picketers.

About 40 policemen formed a flying wedge to get company officials into the plant. Police said one company official was roughed up in the melee.

Every available off-duty policeman has been called in and police are standing by for possible further trouble.

Picket lines around the plant have been reinforced and police estimate more than 100 picketers now are on the scene.

Report 46 Dead In Indian Flood

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Jumna River, at its highest level in 32 years, today flooded wide areas of the Indian capital.

Unconfirmed reports listed 46 dead as a result of the floods and heavy rains which preceded the overflow of the river and its tributaries.

ISRAELI LEADERS CONFER OVER IRAQI TROOPS

Tension Mounts on Both Sides of Border

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel, in a statement apparently aimed at Britain, today warned against support for any movement by Iraqi troops into Jordan.

Tension was sharp on both sides of the Israel-Jordan border and there was talk in Israel of renewed danger of war as the result of reported plans by Iraq to send troops to bolster young King Hussein's shaky throne.

"Whoever encourages and abets, actively or passively, Iraqi entry into Jordan will be held responsible for the consequences which will ensue," said an Israeli foreign ministry statement.

The statement did not mention Britain by name.

In London, however, the foreign office spokesman said the government has advised Israel that the dispatch of Iraqi troops to Jordan would "contribute to stability in a troubled area."

The British purpose was representedas an effort to calm the fears of the Israeli government that the existing balance in the Middle East would be upset by an Iraqi move.

Britain fears that King Hussein's Jordan regime is in danger of collapse from pressure by the extreme Arab nationalist elements headed by Egypt's Nasser. It is holding elections next Sunday.

The U.S. government is reported backing the British views.

The Cairo, Salah Salem, former Egyptian defence minister, declared that Iraqi Premier Nuri Said was engineering a "plot" to split the Arabs.

Iraq is a member of the British-sponsored Baghdad pact which has been assailed by President Nasser as an "imperialist" agency undermining Arab unity. King Hussein of Jordan and King Faisal II of Iraq are cousins.

FRIEND OF NASSER

Salem, still a close friend of Nasser, said in a broadcast statement that the Iraqi premier Nuri Said "is the friend of British imperialism in the whole Arab world."

The publication of Salem's views was the latest reflection of the tension. The press of Cairo in move is afoot to isolate Nasser and divert attention from the Suez canal issue.

Salem wrote in his own newspaper Al Misri that the movement of pending Iraqi troops into Jordan was "a most dangerous conspiracy by Western imperialism to undermine Arab unity at this particular time, when Arab nations have closed their ranks to recover their rights which have been usurped by imperialist forces of the West."

The Israeli government has publicly declared its "amazement and astonishment" at the British position. It called home its ambassadors to London, Washington, Paris and Moscow as the crisis sharpened.

Storm Edging Toward Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Caribbean storm of uncertain temperedged northward toward Florida today as the entire area's move was watched for signs of possible peril.

At 5 a.m. EST bulletin from the Miami weather bureau said hurricane force winds extended up to 50 and 75 miles an hour.

Winds of 25 to 40 miles an hour range northward from the disturbance for about 250 miles with gales expected up to 50 and 55 miles an hour.

'It's Like Living in Fairy Tale' Says Happy Couple From Belfast

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Mawhinney, 20, and his bride, Joan, 20, of Belfast, today surveyed a whirlwind honeymoon and sighed.

"Sure and it's like living in a fairy tale."

They're arriving in Toronto Saturday they have had: A visit from Mayor Nathan Phillips; a half-dozen offers of free accommodation in city homes; several promises of immediate employment.

Key to the warm reception: A letter written by Mrs. Mawhinney and Mrs. W. Caughey of Belfast, published last Wednesday in The Toronto Telegram. It explained:

"Our daughter, Joan, since she was 12, always wanted to go to Canada. Well, she is getting her wish at last. She now is 20 and on Aug. 25, married Norman, Mawhinney, from Belfast, and sighed the assisted passage scheme from Belfast. Now, Joan has a very elderly worried about them arriving in a big country like Canada by themselves. They have no one to meet them. . . .

"Now safely established in a Toronto home, the Mawhinneys start work Tuesday. Said Mawhinney:

"We want to make good as new Canadians. And we want to find friends quickly. Joan's relatives four years ago and his last touch."

2 Of 4 Patients Leaving Kingston Hospital Caught

None Considered Dangerous Says Supt. Dr. McCuaig

KINGSTON (CP)—Two of four patients who fled from the Ontario Hospital Sunday have been rounded up, Dr. C. H. McCuaig, superintendent of the mental hospital, said today.

Dr. McCuaig said they were under supervision on the recreation field when they left the grounds.

"None of them are considered dangerous," the superintendent said. "One of them was pretty ill when he arrived here from Renfrew last summer, but he has improved a good deal and is much better now.

"He probably just decided that he wanted to go home and left."

Dr. McCuaig said he lacked full information on the incident. Names were not released here.

However, in Renfrew, police said they were advised Sunday night that Janis Zaminskis, a three-time committal, left the mental hospital following trial on an arson charge, escaped from the Ontario Hospital at Kingston.

Zaminskis was arrested July 3 and police charged he tried to blow up his house with a homemade bomb.

Zaminskis, 38-year-old Latvian garage mechanic, was arrested before the bomb had set the upper part of his home ablaze. Police found him unconscious in the house. Forced out by the fire, he crawled through a rear window and surrendered.

His stepdaughter, Ruth, 16, told police he shoulder at the fled from the home before police arrived.

Expect Limited U.S. Aid to Tito To Be Continued

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is expected to issue Tuesday a policy decision to continue limited economic and military assistance to Communist Yugoslavia.

How long the aid will continue would depend on results of frequent reviews of Yugoslavia's relations with Russia.

Officials said the administration is determined to avoid any action which might push Yugoslavia into closer association with Russia. At the same time there is considerable concern over how ratify Yugoslav President Tito may be rebuilding tight links with Moscow on his own initiative.

The basic decision to keep the aid pipeline open in spite of Tito's recent mysterious conferences with Soviet leaders was stamped with approval by Eisenhower at a press conference, however, that he would delay making a final decision the last minute to take into account every development. The deadline for congress is Tuesday.

Those in decisive positions say privately that the president feels Tito wants to alienate the support of Western nations which enabled him to survive and establish his independence after his break with the Soviet bloc almost 10 years 1948.

Tito's urgent need right now is for an estimated 200,000 tons of wheat from the United States to meet a severe food shortage.

Quip on Nixon Raises Wrath Of Republicans

NEWARK, N.J. (CP)—Pennsylvania Governor George Leader, a prominent Republican with a quip about Vice-President Nixon last night angered in the needle a little deeper Sunday night.

At a political rally in Oakland for Gov. Leader, a Democrat, noted that his state has produced "a piece of vermin" and President Eisenhower—his farm at Gettysburg, Pa. Eisenhower, he said, should do as much for Nixon, who used to represent them in Congress, he added.

"I hope you can find an office island for . . . ."

A roar from the crowd drowned out the rest of the sentence. No one in the state legislature publicly expressed their outrage Saturday, declaring that Democrat Leader was referring to a well-known island resort.

But a labor rally Sunday night Leader expressed his astonishment.

"What is there about Nixon that makes even his supporters think of Alcatraz as a suitable home for him," he read from a wire which he said he had sent to Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall, one of the leaders where its every move was watched for signs of possible peril.

Hall, on his thought, although he admitted he had a couple of possible islands in mind—Seal Rocks, for one, as a tribute to "the courage of Nixon in the notorious Republican administration." Or Treasure Island, in view of Nixon's success in raising campaign funds.

SCOUT APPLE DAY SALES SET RECORD

Boy Scout Apple Day sales here on Friday and Saturday resulted in gross receipts of $1,480. When all expenses are paid, it is expected that the net returns will be in the neighborhood of $1,150. The receipts were the largest ever received here and officials of the Belleville Boy Scouts Association are more than delighted with the generosity, not only of Belleville citizens but also of those from the surrounding district who were visiting in Belleville on Friday and Saturday and assisted in swelling the total. Association officials also voiced gratitude to all those who assisted in any way in connection with the project.

17 Diesels Ride 'Piggy-Back' As They and 24 Refrigerator Cars Leave Here for Newfie

Seventeen diesel locomotives and 24 refrigerator cars, built for Newfoundland's narrow-gauge railway, today left here bound for St. John's, Nfld.

Described by Canadian National Railway officials as the "largest and most unusual load ever carried by the railway, the equipment was loaded aboard 58 flat cars for the journey from Belleville to Moncton.

The equipment had to ride "piggy-back" because of its narrow-gauge specifications. In Newfoundland railway tracks are three feet six inches wide, nearly one foot less than the mainland.

In view of the nature of the equipment and its 2,800,000 price tag, the piggy-back special, which left Belleville at 8 a.m. EST, was ordered to travel at speeds not exceeding 25 miles an hour.

The train was in charge of Engineer J. Brown and Conductor A. C. Love, both of Belleville.

To carry the locomotives and cars from Montreal to Newfoundland, the CNR arranged a marine piggy-back in the shape of a specialized Norwegian vessel with heavy lift booms at aloft and narrow-gauge railway tracks below. The ship will sail for St. John's in mid-November.

Boy Located Early Sunday

Garry Baker, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Baker, Trent Road, was the object of a family and police search Saturday night and Sunday morning before he was located in the vicinity of the Belleville Fair Grounds on Sunday noon.

The boy had attended an afternoon show on Saturday and then shortly before six o'clock had called his parents saying he was on his way home. The lad failed to turn up and police were called in to assist in locating him.

Sunday morning his bicycle was found in the vicinity of the fair grounds and later the boy was located in the same area.

Credit Unions Of Region Join In Celebration

The Quinte District Credit Union Chapter is now planning the celebration of International Credit Union Day, Thursday, October 18, Rev. Oscar E. Wagar, president of the Chapter, announced today.

International Credit Union Day commemorates the founding of the first credit union in 1848. It comes as the climax of Credit Union Week, observed annually by credit union members during the third week of October.

Quinte District Chapter has scheduled a banquet and dance to be held in the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans hall in Belleville on Thursday evening. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mr. John Hallinan, General Manager of the Ontario Credit Union League. A number of community leaders, including Her Worship Mayor Jane Forrester of Belleville, will be honored guests. The banquet will be followed by dancing to the music of the Monarchs dance orchestra.

The Credit Union Day committee under the chairmanship of Lou. Legg, being the daughter of the late Robert Wood and Sarah Reid and has resided in that community all of her life.

The late Mrs. Dafoe was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church at Roslin and took an active interest in the work of the church in all its phases. She was also interested in all community affairs and was held in high esteem in her community. Fraternally she was a member of the I.O.B.A. in Madoc.

Stiff Punishment Handed Out By Magistrate

TRENTON (Special) — The seven young Trenton men responsible for brawling with police in the early hours of Saturday, October 13, in his tent at Quinte Hotel two weeks ago Friday night received stiff punishment from Magistrate T. Y. Wills presiding over a special court session here on Saturday.

Archie Williams, who police said was the instigator drew a four-months jail term. He was found guilty on two charges of assaulting a peace officer.

His brother Joseph, convicted of obstructing police was sentenced to 24 days in jail, the sentence to commence September 29.

A younger brother Ronald, 17, because of his age was placed on suspended sentence of one year and fined $10 and costs for violating the Liquor Licence Act. He was found guilty of resisting arrest.

Jack Stewart, Ronald Sheppard and George Foote all convicted of obstructing police received jail terms of 24 days.

A bystander Girdwood Gregory admitted making a smart remark to a police officer who ordered him to move along when the crowd persisted in gathering to watch the brawling in front of the hotel. He was subsequently charged with obstructing, and ordered to pay a fine and costs amounting to $56.

Combinettes Win Lakeshore Ladies' Softball Title

Gone now a wonderful father,
Our hearts will never grow old;
He fashioned his—smiles out of sorrow,
He made his days of golden.
God needed a new star in heaven,
So he called for a child.
So out of this old world of sorrow
He took our father to rest.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by son, Allie.

WOOD. — In loving memory of my dear son, Cpl. Clair Wood, who passed away October 15th, 1953.

The one I loved was taken from me,
His fond true heart is still;
The hand I held was severed me,
Now the heart I loved is cold chill,
His lovin loving mother.

REMARK. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Bill Remark, who passed away October 14th, 1946, and dear father, who followed October 22nd, 1947.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweet memories we hold dear;
Your voices we shall never hear,
That we do not think of you.

Sadly missed and remembered by Charles, Irene, grandchildren Mary Lou, Jacqueline and Billy.

BRAY. — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, William Bray, who passed away October 15th, 1948.

Every day in some small way,
Dear memories bring you near,
Though absent, you are ever near,
Your memory is sad, and very dear.
Never remembered by his wife and family.

SEAL. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Seal, away one year ago today.

Loving hearts were torn asunder smile,
A loving heart that beat no more,
But we trust in God that all was right,
Her up to make once other bright.
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Her sympathetic act of love did do;
No thought of self, but of the other
We knew it said, and dear, dear mother.
Sadly remembered by her son, James and daughter-in-law Emily.

Two Shaken Up In Collision At Intersection

One person received a shaking up and another a bump on the head Saturday afternoon when two autos collided at the corner of Yeomans and Cathcart streets.

Injured were Miss Anne Cumming, 18, who was shaken up, and Kenneth Adams, 22, of RR. 3, Belleville, who suffered a bump on the head.

Police said that Adams was southbound on Yeomans street, when the car he was driving was bound up Catherine and driven by Miss Cumming, 28 Colborne street, failed to stop at the stop sign.

The cars were spun around, one of them ending up in the ditch. Damage to Adams' car was about $500 and the Keegan auto about $150 damage.

In another accident about $1,300 damage was done to two cars at the corner of Pinnacle and St. Paul streets. Cars involved were driven by Emerson Carman, 151 Foster Ave., and David J. McFarland, 29 Charlotte street. The Carman auto had $700 damage and the other car about $600.

Castleton Man Drowns in Canal At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — John Prosser, 43, of Castleton, 20 miles southwest of here, drowned in the Trent canal at Lock 13 in Campbellford Sunday at about 4:30 p.m.

Prosser was fishing above the lock while his nephew, Leslie Baker, 12, and a companion, Darrell Baker, both of Castleton, fished below the lock. They believed Prosser suffered a heart attack and tumbled into the water. There were no witnesses.

Baker returned to where the man had been sitting on the retaining wall and saw his hat floating in the water and a few yards from shore. He ran about 100 yards to the home of Lockmaster Earl Jones and notified Campbellford police and firemen.

Firemen under Chief Alex MacDonald dragged the area for about 15 minutes, using the department's boat, and recovered the body in about 10 feet of water a few yards from where he had fallen in.

A resuscitator was used for about 15 minutes before Coroner Dr. D. W. Burgess pronounced him dead.

Prosser is survived by his mother, the former Elizabeth Bullied, of Castleton; two sisters, Mrs. Enid Day and Mrs. Dora Lamonte, both of Castleton; and a brother, Fletcher Prosser, of Sudbury.

Mr. Prosser operated feed store in Castleton and was well-

Replacement cattle: Good steer stock calves 20-21; choice 19-20; heifer stock calves 16-18; medium 16-18; com mon 14, stocker steers 17-21.

Calves: Good vealers 23-26, choice to 27-28; medium 16-22; common 10-15; grass calves sold for slaughter 9-12.

Sales of sheep were too few to establish a market.

Sheep and lambs: Choice ewes and wethers 20 a hundredweight, bucks discounted a hundredweight, bull lambs 18, feeder lambs 15-17; picked lots at 18; sheep 3-9 a hundredweight.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 19-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 97 23-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.71 7-16, unchanged.

Arrested at Home For Armed Robbery

BRANTFORD (CP) — Edward Sasha, 26, of Woodstock was arrested at his home Sunday by Brantford police on a charge of armed robbery.

Two armed and masked men who hid in a movie theatre until after the last show Saturday night escaped with $1,300 after forcing the theatre manager to open a safe.

The two bandits, each carrying a revolver, herded two Odeon Theatre ushers and two friends of the manager into a washroom before forcing Jack Steele to give them the money.

They left Steele tied hand and foot before making their getaway.

MUSIC MASTER DIES

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Pope's master of music, Don Lorenzo Perosi, died Friday at the age of 83. For 56 years, he directed the Sistine Chapel Choir, the principal choir of the Vatican.

Three Break-ins Net Thieves $200 in Cash

Three break-ins, one of which netted thieves close to $200 in cash were reported to city police over the weekend.

One of the break-ins, and where the thieves obtained the biggest haul was at Crawford Metals where entradce was gained through double windows and the money was taken from a cash box hidden in a drawer.

Another break-in was at Leclair Products on West Dundas St. where a door was forced to gain entrance following which a filing cabinet was forced open. Cash amounting to $3.11 was taken.

Again at College Motors on College street entry was gained through a window and a lock was forced on a cupboard door but nothing was reported missing.

Major Nickel Ore Discovery Seen in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A major nickel ore deposit may have been found in the Nahlin River area of Northern British Columbia, 100 miles northeast of Juneau, Alaska it was reported here today.

The discovery is Sigmund Muldal, a forestry engineer who began prospecting in the area during the summer of 1953 for Canadian Explorers Ltd.

Muldal has run up a number of claims for the company since he first entered the area. Now an estimated 1,600 claims have been staked by several major mining companies.

SEES BIG DISCOVERY

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines said "There's a lot of exploration work still to be done, but everything so far points to a new major mineral discovery in British Columbia."

George B. Webster of Toronto, president of Canadian Explorers, said he plans to send diamond drill rigs into the area to determine the depth of the ore.

It is understood a lot of copper also about 1.5 to two per cent nickel, Muldal said in an interview the nickel is a form of millerite and occurs in a green carbon zone. The zone varies in width from 200 to 600 feet and the break has been traced for some 37 miles.

Companies that have staked along the ore break include British Yukon Explorations, Conwest Explorations, Monets Porcupine, the K. J. Beamish interests, Hadiore Uranium, Consolidated Northlands and the B. W. Newkirk interests.

FINDS NOAH'S ARK

BORDEAUX, France (Reuters) — A Bordeaux manufacturer claimed Friday that he returned from Mount Ararat, Armenia, with a piece of Noah's Ark. The manufacturer, Ferdnand Navarra, said he chopped the piece of wood last year from the remains of a 450-foot rib of a ship embedded in ice on the Old Testament mountain. Experts estimated the wood to be 4,000 years old, Navarra said.

First to Sign

Group Captain G. G. Diamond, Commanding Officer of RCAF Station Trenton, signs the first purchase form for Canada Savings Bonds over being sold at the Air Station. Both service personnel and civilians working at the base have an opportunity to purchase bonds under a weekly deduction from pay plan. This year there is no peak amount set for the value of bonds purchased on the station, the goal for this 11th series being—"to give everyone an opportunity to take advantage of a good investment." Since first inaugurated, savings bonds have been enthusiastically welcomed by personnel at the local Air Station. (National Defence Photo).

120 Cheesemakers Honor Retired Dairy Instructor

STIRLING — On Thursday evening some 125 persons gathered in Stirling community hall in honor of Mr. George Pollard, retired Dairy Instructor.

The group consisted of cheesemakers and their wives in this district; past cheesemakers, who had served under Mr. Pollard, various graders and others who are connected with the cheese business and guests from Ottawa.

Chief Dairy Instructor Jack Bain of London, was chairman for the occasion and a short program was enjoyed with music by Sherwood Reid and K. P. Mayhew, also vocal duets by the Broadworth sisters.

Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Moore, Henderson, and others, who were responsible for the social evening.

The various prizes were also presented to the cheesemakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollard were each the recipient of a wrist watch and both graciously replied and voiced thanks.

The ladies of Scotts' W.A. served light refreshments.

The group wish for Mr. Pollard many happy days ahead to enjoy a bit of leisure.

Dodgers Blast Hawaii Pitchers; Campy Hits Two

HONOLULU (AP) — Brooklyn's Japan-bound Dodgers smothered Hawaii Red Sox, local semi-pro champions, 15-0 Sunday in an exhibition game.

Clem Labine pitched the first six innings.

Among Brooklyn's 21 hits were four homers—by Peewee Reese, Gino Cimoli, Don Zimmer and Bert Hamric.

Saturday, at Wailuku Maui, Hawaii, Don Drysdale did a sort of a "Don Larsen" against the semi-pro Maui all-stars, pitching a perfect game for seven innings he worked.

The Dodgers beat the Stars 6-0 in the exhibition game before 1,000.

Ralph Branca came on in the eighth inning for Brooklyn and gave up two singles.

Roy Campanella hit a two-run homer for Brooklyn.

Eisenhower Steps Up Tempo Of His Election Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower this week steps up his election campaign while Democrat Adlai Stevenson continues to push his two main issues — a ban on H-bomb tests and criticism of Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Eisenhower has on tap for this week speeches five days in a row. Tuesday he leaves for the Pacific Northwest on his longest campaign foray as the fight for votes in the Nov. 6 election began.

Stevenson makes a country-wide radio-TV speech tonight and aides say he will press his proposal for a halt to hydrogen bomb tests.

Aids also said Stevenson also will continue to make Nixon a "prime issue" during the last weeks of the campaign.

Nixon's own campaign schedule put in Ohio today, where Democratic opponent, Senator Estes Kefauver, hit Vermont and New York City.

The controversy over Stevenson's H-bomb proposals continued to rage during the weekend. His suggestion that the military draft be ended in the foreseeable future, when national security permits, also drew replies from administration spokesmen.

Nixon, speaking Saturday in Alexandria, Minn., accused Stevenson of "playing politics with America's national security on the draft issue."

Before replying also to the H-bomb proposal, Nixon said Stevenson "could not have made two statements . . . which would have been more harmful in discouraging our allies or encouraging our potential enemies."

Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson, speaking for the administration stand, said Sunday "it isn't feasible" for the U.S. to give up the tests without an iron - clad agreement with other nations.

Harold Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament aide, said Sunday Stevenson "has been misinformed and misled and (is) thus mistaken" on the H-bomb issue.

Ten nuclear scientists from the California Institute of Technology issued a press statement Sunday supporting Stevenson's stand and calling for "free and open discussion" of such proposals.

Noting that Eisenhower has expressed regret the test program had become a campaign issue, the statement continued:

"On the contrary, we find it regrettable that discussions of our military policy, of our vulnerability and our foreign policy in relation to H-bombs have thus far represented such a small proportion of current political discussions."

Kefauver said in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday that every major fleet after 27,000 miles of campaigning that enough independent voters are swinging toward the Democrats to make a Democratic victory Nov. 6 a real certainty.

A top Democratic campaign strategist told reporters the Democrats have found unexpected public antipathy for Nixon to make him a "prime issue" in the closing days of the drive.

Foreign Capital Creates Boom Says Chamber

QUEBEC (CP)—A report today to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce expressed puzzlement about some Canadian attitudes towards American capital.

The puzzlement concerned the following situation:

Canadians create a climate which attracts foreign capital; the capital comes and boosts prosperity; and then Canadians worry about it.

Comment on the subject was contained in the chamber's report to the annual meeting, prepared by D. L. Morrell, general manager.

"It is surprising," said the report, "that one of the chief causes of the Canadian boom—the influx of American and foreign capital—has created a good deal of public concern. . . .

"The fact is that there are few countries in the world that are as attractive to capital as Canada, and a continued inflow of capital into the relative safety of this country seems most unlikely."

The report was distributed to more than 600 delegates, gathered from coast to coast, for the start of the chamber's four-day annual meeting.

Theme of the convention is The Challenge of Prosperity and the report indicated that the greatest challenge of prosperity to business, labor and government is to avoid inflation, or runaway prices.

MUST SAVE MORE

It said Canadians would have to save more if Canada was to continue to grow without excessive dependence on foreign capital; indicated approval of the current "tight money" policy in both Canada and the United States; said heavy imports from the United States had tended to combat high prices, although some Canadian industries were suffering from the competition; and stated that Canada must have more people.

"Thus," the report commented "there is some evidence that salaries and wages may be outstripping productivity, and this is a situation which if continued or accelerated would add new fuel to whatever inflationary fires are burning."

The report said "We are running short of scientists, engineers, technicians, teachers and specialists of all kinds.

"Our productive capacity and services are equipped to serve a greater population. There is every indication that it is high time for a long-term immigration policy that will meet these needs."

THIRD PARTY RULE

The United Kingdom Information Service is a government-operated news agency whose duty it is to disseminate what, from other similar services in other lands, we have come to label as "propaganda."

There is little doubt that, on occasion, the U.K. Information Service does play the role of a propaganda machine, just as surely, though with higher integrity, as did the machine which Dr. Goebbels managed in Berlin over a decade ago and quite as definitely as does the Tass outfit in today's Moscow.

For instance, in recent weeks the Information Service has sent out several articles dealing with the Suez crisis. One would be hard put to discover one misstatement of fact in these articles, but it would be equally difficult to discover anything even resembling impartiality in an adequate presentation of Egypt's case in the controversy.

There is nothing wrong with such a policy. The United Kingdom Information Service in this case is merely presenting the government's views and, since these views have been approved by Parliament, they represent the nation's stand on the issue.

When it comes to domestic issues, though, the Information Service, with a feeling for the spirit of democracy which is typically British, often displays an impartiality which sets it apart from most, if not all, other similar organizations.

For instance, the occasion of the resignation of Clement Davies as leader of the British Liberal party induced it to circulate an article entitled "Liberal Opinions," written by Ernest Atkinson. In this article tribute is paid not only to "liberals" but also to "Liberals." One cannot conceive of Republican or Tory circulating praise of their political rivals in this manner.

The Liberal party in Britain, of course, has fallen on evil days. Once strong, it is now no more than a splinter group in Parliament, although at the last general election, when it obtained only six seats of the 624 in the House of Commons, it did amass almost 3 per cent of the popular vote. In Britain the parties which usually divide the roles of government and loyal opposition between them are the Conservatives and the Labor Party. The Liberals have become nothing more than a third party, probably not as important as the CCF in the Canadian House of Commons.

Mr. Atkinson, though, maintains that the "hard and faithful band of Liberals" still performs an essential role in the British parliamentary system. "Their practical function in present party political conditions," he writes, "is, therefore, to grumble at the two main doctrines, but rather to supply Parliament with what it has always had —a valued group of members of individual opinions, not bound by the Whips of one or other of the major parties. For the health of Parliament there might well be a few more of such. But the times are against the election of what might be called independent independents."

Whether or not one agrees with Mr. Atkinson's argument, it is interesting to discover at least one political observer who does not share the alarm expressed by many at the ubiquitousness of the two-party system.

One might note, though, that if the presence of "members of individual opinions" who are not "bound by the Whips of one or other of the major parties" is valuable, the presence of those individuals who are the Whip of any party ought to be doubly so. Mr. Atkinson is certainly correct in saying that the times are against the election of independent independents. In many Canadians, at least, can recall the day when disciplines—in third-party ranks was probably not as tight as it is today. When the Progressives held many seats in the House, it is doubtful whether any Whip was needed by Miss Agnes Macphail, J. S. Woodsworth or E. J. Garland toe the line if they had believed an important principle was at stake.

A STRANGE FIELD

The Woodstock Daily Sentinel-Review brings to our attention a incident at Charles Fontenay's Fair.

Charles Fontenay, a reporter for the Nashville Tennessean, is an amateur artist. He used an old piece of dun-colored canvas to swipe at his brush and mix his palette. The resulting riot of colors caught his eye and he turned to his big brushes and did some more smearing. The last, and perhaps the largest, smear was made accidentally by his topcoat as it fell from the canvas where it was still wet. He then took the canvas, triple-daubed by knife, brush and overcoat, smeared by accident and design, and exhibited it in the State Fair. It won a blue ribbon.

A story like this should be unique, but it is not. It is just the latest of a series which describe how some conglomeration of colors, exhibited as a fine art, was discovered by judges to reveal the soul of the jester as that of a real artist, with a great message for a breathlessly waiting world.

Stories like this always make us wonder why other artists do not burn their dictionaries, scrap their typewriters, chop up their pianos for kindling, cut their architectural plans into paper dolls and buy paints, brushes and canvas. Who knows, any of us might produce a masterpiece.

More mature reflection, though, suggests that writers and musicians, at least, should stick to their lasts. The paint-daubed canvas may win a blue ribbon, but we seldom hear of it making the cash register jingle. Writers and musicians may find it harder to have their works acclaimed as those of a genius, but they often manage to hit the jackpot, as the list of best-sellers and the hit parade testify.

"Art," says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, "is a somewhat strange field." It is not the only one.

Need to Get Down to Roots

Edmonton Journal

A Montreal physician Dr. Georges Lachaine, has called fresh attention to a perennial problem in medicine—how to shift the focus of research from the practical arts of the profession to the fundamental depth of the biological sciences in which it is rooted.

Dr. Lachaine was speaking specifically about heart ailments, at the annual convention of the Association of French-speaking Doctors of Canada, in Jasper. He pointed out that so far emphasis has been placed on the study of heart surgery, and not enough on research into the causes of cardiac ailments. The facilities and funds now available for fundamental research were inadequate. They would have to be greatly increased if any headway were to be made in reducing fatalities from heart attacks.

Implicit in those statements is a justifiable concern for the slow progress in the practical arts of healing as compared to advances in the scientific roots. Improvements in the practical arts can, of course, be made only when the advancements have been made in heart surgery, and in methods of treating cardiac ailments. However, treatment without a cure is hopeless measures, though it may be curative and not merely palliative cannot be known until after the fact. The objective, as Dr. Lachaine pointed out, must be to find the causes, in the first place, so that an ailment can be detected in its early stages when treatment will have a better chance of success, but ultimately with a view to prevention.

Styles of dress may come and go — and they certainly change from time to time later — but speech habits die a very definite death elsewhere, on some forgotten shore, there may be someone (usually the last to know) who will tell us "So's yer old man" or "Twenty-three skidoo" which have been dead for many years in their birthplace, North America. With the boom of radio and television, catch-phrases, like popular songs, have become a shorter and shorter life. They are soon smothered by repetition, although the delicate New York expression, "Drop Dead" still retains its pristine vigor.

Avoiding the slang cliche is a very simple matter. The person who does not want to become a has to worry about it getting stale.

The life and death of words is not confined to slang, however. A word may become a cliche overnight. The expression "Let's you and him fight" was a popular cliche a few years ago, but it has now been dead for many years in the United States. Its birthplace, North America, is now known only as a term of derision.

Man's technical progress is a wondrous shining spectacle, but lest we lose in our dizzy pride in its contemplation it is just as well to occasionally our sense of scientific wonderment at a mechanical mastery is humbled by these simple deaths of mere creatures. It is pleasant once in a while to see man in his submarine come off second best to a jellyfish!

Jellyfish Defeat Sub

Hamilton Spectator

We cannot help confessing to a feeling of mischievous and satisfying elation upon reading the news about the British submarine in the Mediterranean which was forced from the depths to the surface by a school of jellyfish. The poor, defenceless jellyfish, which are almost more than a quivering mass of quaking, uncertain protoplasm, had so summed up the periscope, speed indicator and other external paraphernalia of the submarine as to make further progress impossible.

We recall enjoying the same emotion on reading stories of railway trains being brought to a stop by masses of caterpillars or the railroad track. We remember also the great delight shown by hundreds of airmen at a wartime aerodrome when a young little terrier put a great bomber out of commission by chasing a rat on the runway and taking a bite out of the elevator.

Hadji Ali as caretaker, and his Arabic name was promptly changed to "Hi Jolly" by the soldiers.

On the Beale expedition of 1857 to open a wagon road across Arizona from Fort Defiance to California, the camp of Hadji Ali or Jolly's charge proved their worth. Lieutenant Beale, the engineer officer in charge of the expedition, had early determined that camels would be the best animals for the work. He had seen them in service in Turkey and Egypt, and had come to the conclusion that they were the best adapted for the long journeys across the desert country. He had therefore made requisition upon the War Department for a number of camels, and the requisition had been honored.

The Arab World

The story of Hadji Ali, Syrian Moslem who came to the United States in the 1850's, searching, for one of the most unusual incidents in American history crept in Desert.

Hadji Ali, better known as "Hi Jolly", went to this country at the request of the United States government.

Today, thousands of miles from the place of his birth, a large monument in the lonely desert of Arizona, near the desolate mining town of Quartzite, marks the final resting place of this colorful person whose name and years of faithful service to this country he became a legend.

Born somewhere in the Syrian desert (the exact place is not known), Hadji Ali is identified with an experiment by the United States Army.

The famous camel herd with which the name of Hi Jolly is linked constitutes an interesting sidelight of history. Jefferson Davis (afterward president of the Confederacy) as secretary of war approved a plan to experiment with camels for transportation and communications in the arid southwest.

Major Henry C .Wayne of the United States Army and L. D. Porter (later distinguished admiral of the Civil War) visited the Levant with the storeship Supply and purchased 33 camels which were landed at Indianola, Tex., February 10, 1856.

Forty-one were added on a second voyage.

If Flying Is That Easy---

Toronto Telegram

A Long Island boy of 13, unInstructed in flying, stepped into an unattended airplane and took an unguarded airfield for an hour's joyride, finally putting the ship down in a fine three-point landing. The owner said: "This is a black mark on aviation. We are enough kids stealing cars; what will we do if they start stealing airplanes?"

The mother of the L.I. boy reported that he got a well-deserved spanking, but air force is said to have expressed interest in a potential pilot. Eddie Cantor, of Manhasset, L.I., had been up twice with the plane owner and studied his operation. He had also listened to some instruction given students. He taxied the plane up the runway and went aloft. The boys came down once for a drink; went up again and circled through their domes, then alighted safely on the strip and found themselves in trouble.

The plane is a two-seater Ercoup, a 75 hp. monoplane. It has a push-button starter and steers with a wheel like an automobile, requiring less than usual co-ordination between hands and feet. According to information here, it was designed to be foolproof, and is not now in production. That seems too bad. With motorcars knocking each other off on the highways, the advent of foolproof private planes looks like one into the wild blue yonder would be more than welcome. If there is a maker of planes that a boy of 13, after a minimum of second-hand instruction can take up and bring down, we ought to know about it. One sees the advertising columns of the U.S. magazines and the potential market isn't big enough for advertising usually, but motorcar manufacturers and dealers seem to be able to develop markets that way.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Is It Iodin Deficiency or Gray Sickness?

Wisconsin lady says my formula for draining ear proved really the thing. The lady now complains that she is tired all the time and has a dull headache much of the time. Her hair is getting so gray, and it is getting gray so pretty. Since she has been feeling tired and run down she looks gray, and her friends say, so gray. Yet she passed her fortieth birthday anniversary only three months ago.

As a long distance diagnostician I haven't won any medals; but, on the other hand, the police have been unable to get the goods on me for practicing without a license.

The Wisconsin lady's complaint appeals strongly to something a lot of folks who have followed this column will be astonished to know I have, namely, sympathy.

I don't know just why, but the thought or idea of a woman who should be at the peak of her health, beauty and usefulness, getting prematurely gray, not only her hair but her skin and general appearance and bearing, merit is — well, it just is.

Whether this Wisconsin lady's complaint indicates iodin deficiency or hypochromic anemia, I'd rather not guess. She shows insufficient data. But, taking into consideration her residence in the Great Lakes Basin, where both land and water are poor in iodin, I'd plump for iodin deficiency the explanation for her untimely fading.

"The gray sickness" is a nickname for nutritional deficiency anemia, hypochromic anemia. Hypochromia means insufficient red blood cells (or hemoglobin) in the blood.

Such anemia, that is, decrease of coloring matter in the blood without a corresponding decrease in the number of red corpuscles, was prevalent in adolescent girls and young women in the '90s and '90s, when $5 a week was the usual wage for a good cook and housekeeper. Even in my poor practice in Penn Yan when Topsy was a cook, I treated several country girls and young housemaids for this type of anemia—but it was called chlorosis or "the green sickness." The girls who had it really had a grayish-yellow or greenish hue of complexion.

The difference of the color of chlorosis in the twenty-year-old girl and the color of nutritional anemia in the forty-year woman of forty is due to the comparative well-preserved layer of fat under the skin of the young girl and the loss of this layer of fat from the skin of the mature woman.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Some months ago a party of clergymen from this country visited Russia. The official interpreter accompanying the party was atheists and proud of it.

On the last day of the visit as they were riding to the airport, one of the interpreters said to the author of these articles: "Reverend, I am an atheist, but I think I should be called to confess myself on being educated. This interpreting assignment is my first contact with religion, furthermore, I have been listening to you Americans as you talked among yourselves. I have concluded that to be educated, I must know the Bible."

"You are on the right track," replied the clergyman. "I will see that you have a Bible."

"That is not necessary," said the interpreter. "Yesterday I bought one."

The Russian Orthodox Church is manifesting a tremendous comeback. The Evangelical Baptists keep over a half-million members. They, with Russian words and the American clergy leader of the American group, said "Never My God to Thee." "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and "Shall We Be The Tiat Binds."

United States Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, in his recent book "Russian Journey," says on this similar service he attended and makes this observation: "I knew when I heard those hymns that no concentration camp, no firing squad, no secret police could crush or destroy the religious spirit of the Russian people."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In a little uptown cleaning and pressing establishment to which I took one of my wife's dresses for the week end, I noticed hanging on a bracket on the wall, a whole collection of belts. Belts off ladies' dresses. There were leather belts, wide ones, medium ones. Some were fresh and new looking. Others were worn and faded but nicely pressed. There were belts that been thirty or forty assorted dress and suit belts hanging in a heap on that bracket.

The elderly, quiet, methodical lady waiting on the counter when I called me that I was next and I handed my wife's dress over the counter.

"Are these belts for sale?" I enquired, indicating the bracket.

"Oh, no; you help yourself," said she.

"Well, now, isn't this interesting," I remarked. "Free? Where do you get such a collection?"

"Right here," said she. "Belts are always getting lost or mislaid. Belts are always forgotten. Then we just hang them there. And then another customer finds that she have forgotten the belt, when we return the dress, we tell them to look on the bracket. They find it."

"But," I expostulated, "if you let anybody help themselves to belts...."

"Oh, that," said she, "there would soon be no room in this shop for anything else. Belts are always being left over, mislaid or forgotten. They turn up all over the place. You have no idea."

"But," I protested, "surely you keep track of the belts. My wife's dress there has a belt. Do you mark down the name of the lady on the dress?"

"I don't tell," she replied, "whether a dress has a belt or not. Not always. We do our best to keep track of the belt with a dress. But when we do a fifty or a hundred dress day, there are bound to be a couple of belts mixed up. . . .

"I can't you mark a dress some way, indicating there is a belt with it?"

"Did you ever try to run a cleaning and pressing establishment?" demanded the lady with dignity.

I confessed I hadn't.

"Well, then, you can't understand our problems. Most dresses and belts turn out okay. But in a year's time, that collection there is a considerable number. Some wrong. Belinles. Our lady customers have to come in and pick a belt once in a while. . . .

Small business has a character all its own.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT.

Hole-in-One Scored by Hubby Wife Just Misses

A miss may be as good as a mile but an inch of turf separated dual hole-in-one golf honors for the Dr. Earle M. MacDonald household over the weekend.

Dr. MacDonald was playing with Leo Quinn and Jimmy Fisher formerly of this city, now of Kingston, on the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club course.

He selected an eight iron a nd teed off on the twelfth hole, 150 yards from the cup. The ball trickled in for Doctor MacDonald first "golfing ace" and the first fired on the course this year.

But that is not all.

Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Quinn and Mrs. Fisher were also playing a three-some. So were three gentlemen strangers, witnesses to these golfing feats.

Mrs. MacDonald's drive on the same hole trickled by the cup a scarce inch away.

Earle MacDonald, son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald is a promising junior golfer and rounds out another fine Belleville golfing family. Another is Steve and Mrs. Bowerman and son Gary.

Bowling Notes

The end of a successful season of bowling will be culminated on Wednesday evening at the club-house on Yeomans Street, when the annual meeting and election of officers will be held.

This is the most important meeting of the year and every member should make it an effort to be on hand and take part in the discussion of the several matters that will be brought before the meeting. There are several matters that will be brought to the attention of the members and decisions made so they can be implemented in the next year's schedule.

Some improvements in the property must be made and each and every one should be on hand to hear the details and offer constructive criticism so that the board of directors elected for next year will have some guidance. The club has had a notable increase in membership and ways and means will be discussed to again bring in new members to bring it back to what it was in former years.

A nominating committee of Gordon Edwards, Orlo Smith and Percy Graham have been selected by the president, Austin Watkin, to bring in a slate of officers, but the members will have the privilege of nominating others of their choice.

Next Monday evening the men's section of the club will hold at potluck supper at the clubhouse at which time the trophies won by the various members of the club will be distributed.

There will also be a social hour at which time some new members will be introduced. This will likely be the last gathering of the club before bowling starts next year and all are welcome.

Pink daffodils, a sensation when introduced about a decade ago, may now be obtained in a number of named varieties. They're still not entirely pink, the outer petals (perianth) being white, with the trumpet turning pink a few days after opening. They are beauties, though, and a lovely addition to your garden.

Trend Toward Roomy Kitchen Says Expert

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a trend toward the roomy kitchens of grandmother's time, says an interior decorating expert.

Modern cooking indicates that kitchens will again provide a centre of activity and leave the living room a formal occasional one, says Mrs. Eleanor Brown of Toronto.

Addressing a women's group here, Mrs. Brown also indicated that the days of matching decorating are toward pearl greys with red and blue accents.

For accent, the modern colors are lime green and gold. For sophistication, she color with its various intensities proves popular.

And color is an important consideration when it comes to decorating. Color influences emotions and sound, the decorating expert explained.

For instance, reds can make one jumpy and excited. Or blues can make you feel chilly.

Mrs. Brown suggested that individuals surround themselves with the colors they like.

But she recommended that rooms be decorated with two colors, using a third as an accessory. Light colors—easily kept clean—can be used for kitchen floors. Combining colors of the "same family" give small, low-ceilinged apartments a more spacious appearance.

She said colors influence sound because in light rooms persons tend to raise their voices, while speaking more softly in dark rooms.

Interesting Talk Given W.I. on 'What Is Citizenship'

The Bay of Quinte Institute held its October meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Carter on Wednesday. The roll call was answered by members telling of a responsibility as a Canadian citizen.

During the business session it was arranged to have a party at which a wool blanket will be drawn for during the evening sometime during November.

An Institute Citizenship Education, Mrs. Alva Meyers, who gave a paper on "Citizenship, What Is Citizenship." The best answer is found in the Bible: "Love your neighbor as thyself." First of all, good citizens should be Christians in word and deed. A good citizen is a good eating and conscientious person. They should be concerned how they can help others, for in helping others one helps oneself. They should be interested in things that happen in other lands, moral affairs, social problems and public affairs. A good citizen will not shirk his responsibilities and if he believes a thing to be right he will fight for that thing and not just follow the crowd. Elders should be careful what they say or do as the younger generation are always watching.

NEW CITIZENS

"New citizens have been coming to Canada from other countries and what those citizens are depends on the way they are used by us. Many have come from the horrors of the concentration camps and we are so glad to be able to come to our country where they need never be afraid and can make a good living for themselves.

"Naturally, the initiative in making friends must come from those who have lived in the country the longer — the native born. The children absorbed in the life of their schools have less difficulty. It is the parents who are lonely. They look upon our land as a land of opportunity and their knowledge of our history and government would put many of us native born to shame. But they are not able to talk with, to drink tea with and share joys; some one to explain the small differences in manners and customs from those of their birthland, show them friends who appreciate and want the much they have to offer.

"Of those who seek citizenship and a chance to work in peace and decency, we have a right to ask—to demand loyalty to the principles and traditions upon which our government is based. But have we a right to ask them to forget all that has made them what they are, and begin again? Is this democracy or patriotism? Can men and women forget the land of their fathers? And if they can, if their loyalty to the past is so weak a thing, will they make good citizens of the future, or will their love and duty be equally frail?

"Perhaps the loneliest among our new Canadians are those who have one most to offer, whose need is not basic English, but friends. May these new citizens find friends in Canada perhaps among the members of the Institute."

Mrs. Meyers then mentioned that 25 new Canadians had been given citizenship papers lately and as their names were called, they were presented with a Bible on behalf of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

A pantry shower was held for the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

A survey of television and radio was held by the convener as asked by the Provincial Board.

Wins Scholarships

Miss Jacqueline Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murphy, Belleville, graduated with distinction from Grade XIII, at St. Michael's High school, and was awarded three scholarships at the High school convocation.

The Women's Canadian club scholarship of $100 awarded to the student of Belleville, Trenton and district, who obtains the highest standing on the two French papers of Grade XIII.

The University Women's club scholarship of $100, awarded to the girl of Belleville and district who obtains the highest standing on all papers of the Grade XIII examinitions; and the Catholic Women's League scholarship of $100 awarded to the student who obtains the highest standing in Grade XIII, at St. Michael's High school.

Miss Murphy also received the Knights of Columbus awards for the highest standing in each of religion, English, history and Latin, as well as the Diocesan Council of Parent-Teacher Association's award for the highest standing in the senior grade.

Miss Murphy is now a student of St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

Women Barbers Say Men Are More Finicky

HAMILTON (CP) — When it comes to hair, men are more concerned and finicky than women, say two sisters here.

Mrs. Marjorie Letwin and Mrs. Maureen Ramsey speak with some authority — they're barbers who have cut some 60,000 heads of hair and trimmed some 24,000 beards.

They have come to the conclusion that the male is the more vain of the two sexes.

"We have realized that while women don't know as well as men just what they want, they are not as pompous and conceited, nor half as finicky as men," Mrs. Ramsey said.

But in defence of the men, Mrs. Ramsey adds that "men have a perfect right to come into a barber shop and act like parading peacocks. After all, you should see what we women go through when we go to a beauty shop."

The sisters own a shop in downtown Hamilton. They like their work, and they say that every man loves a female barber.

Every man, that is, except their respective husbands. The price of haircuts reached $1.25 before they would be seen under their wives' scissors. Now they are probably the only men who get a shave and haircut for less than five cents.

New Association To Help Women As Secretaries

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A stepping-stone to secretarial success is being organized in the capital.

Plans are under way to form an Ottawa branch of the Association of Administrative Assistants—private secretaries — which already has branches in Toronto and Hamilton.

Dolores Cunningham, a private secretary in an aircraft company here, has been named interim chairman of the local chapter. A membership campaign is under way.

ENCOURAGE EDUCATION

Miss Cunningham says the fundamental aim of the association is to encourage more persons to become qualified administrative assistants through university and correspondence courses.

The terms "administrative assistant" and "private secretary" are synonymous. "A good private secretary assists an executive in his administration work," Miss Cunningham explained in an interview.

The association hopes to encourage young women with high school matriculation, or an equivalent in years of experience, to continue their education.

Even with a university degree, some additional subjects pertaining to secretarial work—economics and business law, for instance—would still be needed for a certificate as an administrative assistant, she says.

These courses are being arranged through the University of Toronto. Correspondence courses from the university to branch members in other centres are expected to be ready by next year.

At the meeting, the two branches have held regular meetings with speakers on subjects of interest to secretaries.

OFFICIAL WELCOME

Here in the capital, where the government hires a large number of secretaries, civil service officials have greeted the idea of the association with enthusiasm, Miss Cunningham said.

Founded in Toronto, the organization was granted a charter in 1952 and hopes eventually to have branches in all major Canadian cities.

A native of Ottawa who previously worked in Toronto, Miss Cunningham joined the association there and continued as a member-at-large when she moved here three years ago.

The association now has a national executive in Toronto promote nation-wide organization and operates for the university and correspondence courses.

But so far, it is a strictly feminine organization.

"Perhaps men feel outnumbered," Miss Cunningham says with a laugh. "But I'm sure they would be welcomed as members."

Club Activities

NEIGHBORS' AID

Mrs. K. Bird opened her home on Thursday afternoon for the October meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid. There was a good attendance with 21 members, seven visitors and six children present.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Hall which was followed by a hymn and prayer. A poem was read by Mrs. D. MacLeod.

The president, Mrs. Cameron, called a short business period to discuss several money-making projects for the coming months. It was decided to hold a rummage sale in the armories early in the spring and a card party in the Avondale school in this coming week.

The nominating committee was appointed and Mrs. S. Griffith and Mrs. G. Knowlton will bring in the new slate of officers for the coming year at the November meeting.

The musical contest, with Mrs. G. May at the piano, was won by Mrs. R. Denike and a memory puzzling contest was won by Mrs. R. Wellauffer.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Harold Heath, Cameron, Lewis and Denyes with Mrs. B. Lough pouring tea.

The hostess for November, Mrs. C. Wright to have the November meeting at her home, was accepted.

Young Couple Feted With Pantry Shower

Mrs. Bert Spencer and Mrs. A. McKenzie, of Shannonville, gave a pantry shower on Wednesday night, to honor a recent bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. R. Elzinga, nee Miss Ruth Kilburn, when 25 ladies from Milltown and the village attended.

Games were played supervised by Mrs. Spencer. Music was provided by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hinchcliffe of Yorkshire, England. All joined in a sing-song of well-known favorite choruses.

Those attending were from the Home and School Association and the Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity of Anglican church in Shannonville.

The bride and bridegroom are residing in Trenton, where he is employed on the staff of the Central Bridge Company.

Pope Denounces Use of Women For Heavy Work

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (Reuters) — The Pope today called for an end to the use of women "in factories, mines and heavy work."

He made his remarks in a broadcast from his summer residence here to 3,000 members of the Italian women's centre who are on a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Madonna of Loreto, near Ancona, Observers said the Pope was also directing his remarks to the rulers of Communist countries.

Women," he said, "is a considerable force in the national economy—but conditioned by the exercise of the high functions appropriate to her. She is certainly not an industrial force equal to man, of whom a major use of physical energy may not be expected."

In a reference to the Communist-ruled countries, he explained: "The concept of woman in factories, mines and heavy work, as exalted and practised in some countries which would like to draw inspiration from progress, is by no means a modern achievement. On the contrary, it is a sad return to times which Christian civilization buried long ago."

The Pope recalled that the Roman Catholic Church had always fought against "the unjust personal inferiority to which paganism has often condemned woman."

But while the Pope defended women's rights, he also called for her to take her proper place in the family without trying for an equal footing with man.

Catholic Women's League Will Sponsor Girl Guide Company

The regular monthly meeting of St. Michael's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League was held Wednesday evening in St. Michael's High school with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. B. E. Burley, presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read. Reports were heard from the various conveners.

The president extended sincere thanks to Mrs. Carl Casey and her committee for the splendid success of the Thanksgiving euchre.

Mrs. J. E. Boyd read a letter of thanks from Father Oliver for the huge box of clothing sent him.

The Red Cross rooms have reopened for the fall and winter months. The CWL group will commence sewing on Tuesday, October 16, at 2 p.m. Any member who is willing to assist with this worthy work will be most welcome.

REFRIGERATOR PURCHASED

The League purchased a refrigerator, a set of dishes and a set of stainless steel cutlery for the staff room of St. Michael's academy. Proficiency prizes will be awarded to pupils of St. Michael's Academy with highest standing. On Saturday, October 13, the League catered to a testimonial dinner tendered by O.E.C.T.A. honored Rev. Sister Mary Lenore, newly-elected president of Ontario Conference Federation. Mrs. B. E. Burley, president, of C.W.L., presented Sister Mary Lenore with a gift from the League.

It was unanimously agreed that Catholic Women's League sponsor a Girl Guide Company at St. Michael's. The picture looks most encouraging with Mrs. J. Walsh, Mrs. L. Hogan, Mrs. J. Finkle, Mrs. D. Green, Miss Betty Holland and Mrs. H. Trewhitt offering their leadership.

Plans were discussed for the parish banzare to be held Thursday, November 15 in St. Michael's auditorium. Mrs. Flurry gave a detailed report of the number of articles promised for each booth. The beautiful bride doll dressed by Miss Anne Mulligan was shown to all present, the doll will be in hands of Mrs. Graham. Mrs. J. Lynch will make a fruit cake; the tickets for the cake will be in the hands of Miss A. Doyle. Many other articles on which tickets will be sold have been donated.

The president gave a very interesting account of the Provincial Convention held at Cornwall, Sept. 14-17. The theme of the convention was Devotion to the Sacred Heart, a school of Divine Charity. The convention was honored with the attendance of four bishops.

Bishop R. I. Webster, speaker at the breakfast, said, "the most effective basis of charity is devotion to the Sacred Heart. The true value of our actions depends on the motive which should be inspired by a true love of God."

Bishop F. Marrocco said, "We hope you will go away from this convention literally schooled in a new appreciation of how much life had done for you and schooled in how much you must do in your everyday life to improve the practice of charity."

At the banquet, Bishop Brouard said "the primary purpose of the league is the sanctification of its members not only for their personal profit but for the good of others."

Bishop Webster said, "Discipline is lacking in the home of today, resulting in intellectual laziness and moral flabbiness in youth. The healing of the world's ills depends on a return to firmness or exercise of parental authority, example and Christian family traditions."

The members are urged to renew their league pursuits subsequently.

The ladies visited the home of Our Ladies Missionaries where 19 young Canadian sisters were about to leave for Japan, and the Shrine of Our Lady of Fatima in Alexandria, and they toured the St. Lawrence Seaway.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

Seems like a fine method, at that, for teaching any girl that one of the essentials of being a lady is being clean at all times.

Now that the school season is well under way and you've resigned yourself to the regular morning routine of exhorting Junior and Sis to "wash well behind the ears," you might be interested to hear about an unusual school where kids actually like to be clean. This is the French Institute of Notre Dame de Sion, and it's located in Kansas City, Missouri. It is a school for training girls from six to sixteen in the rare art of becoming a lady in these hectic rock 'n' roll days.

The school, an exclusive boarding and day school, is operated by French nursing nuns, though not French. It is the only institution of its kind in the United States. The order maintains a similar school in Montreal and the Mother House in Paris.

So carefully is this work of raising girls' hands are entrusted, taught that good grooming is a part of good living. The girls start their day early and make it easy for the kids to enjoy constant cleanliness.

Bathtubs and wash basins are special order pink scaled down to size. A youngster in kindergarten, for instance, doesn't have to clamber onto a bathroom stool to wash her little face. The basin fits her height just as naturally as the full-scale models in the lavish private rooms of the older girls.

It is amusing and pleasing to see tots laughing and singing as they slather soap and water over their faces. They even soap their knees after every excursion to the expansive playgrounds.

Each child has an individual soap dish, kept along with soft personal towels in a specified place. The young ladies in their luxurious private rooms wash their undies and stockings after study periods at night.

In fact, the entire immaculate establishment seems to be an institution that is soap-conscious 24 hours of the day. The girls are constantly sudsing something, either their fine bodies or their fine clothes, according to Mother Irene, who is head of the school.

"We get them into the soap and water habit when they are little infants," Mother Irene says. "We do this by making it easy and, one might say, fun, through these little bathtubs and so on, graded to size up through their own growing years."

This is not a particularly new idea. When the school was built in the early 20's, the sisters had in mind this thought of immaculateness in body as well as in soul.

The girls of all ages give an appearance of buoyant freshness and charm as a result. Even on the athletic field or tennis courts of the school they have that well-scrubbed look.

No folderol such as merit awards for washing one's ears or giving one's neck a good soapy scouring is necessary, Mother Irene added.

"We never thought of such a thing," she laughed. "Why should it be necessary?"

The general idea, you see, is to make bathing and washing a joy rather than a task.

In the rare instances when that isn't enough, the nuns have a simpler system than merit badges and so on.

"We simply tell them to do as they do! And that is all," the other Superior added.

As she swept along a spotless corridor, her sharp eye caught a pair of small tennis shoes in a row of such shoes. All gleamed from obvious soap-and-water scouring except one pair.

She went into a kindergarten classroom and softly asked the nun in charge, "Who owns those soiled shoes, sister?"

The little girl who did was promptly "excused" from class, taken across the hall, and gently but firmly told to get busy and give her sneakers a thorough soap-and-water treatment.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WOULD YOU TURN DOWN A CHANCE TO HELP EIGHT A WRONG?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married five years and have two children.

Up until now, everything has gone smoothly and we've had a very happy home life, but now I'm confronted with a dreadful problem.

Recently, my husband told me that before we were married he had a child by another girl. He said it was just one of those things—that they never thought anything like that would happen but their emotions got the best of them. When this happened, neither of them wanted to marry. The girl has been bringing the child up and my husband has always sent her money for his support.

Now, my husband tells me that the mother of the boy, who is seven years old, doesn't want him any more, and he wants us to adopt him. He says he knows this is asking a great deal of me, but that the child is his son and he feels it's his responsibility to be a father to him, especially as the mother is not interested in keeping him.

Do you think it's my duty to accept the responsibility of bringing up as my own the child of another woman? — Mrs. S.E.

Dear Mrs. S.E.

I don't think you can decide this question on the basis of duty. I think you'll have to decide it from the standpoint of your feelings as a humanity for a child whose own mother is rejecting it and who needs you.

It goes without saying that you certainly have no obligation to take on this child and that so far as mere rights go, you'd have every right to refuse. But when you think that this innocent and defenseless seven-year-old has no mother who cares to take an interest in him and see that he is given the chance for a good normal life that will, so far as possible, offset the handicap of his birth out of wedlock, do you think you could refuse?

It's to your husband's credit that he wants to take the child and raise it as his own. And, severe as the shock was to you of learning about the child, what would you really accomplish by refusing to go along with your husband in this act of humanity? As I see it, you have here the opportunity to reach out beyond your own personal reaction to help right a wrong, and I cannot feel that you would ever be happy if you turned away from this opportunity.

Think it over carefully, and try to see what your real reason would be for turning a cold shoulder to the child if you are inclined to do that. If you face the issue squarely, I think you'll find that, more than anything else, it's your sense of outrage for being asked to accept the consequences of a wrong act that had nothing whatever to do with you. I think, moreover, that once you fully realized this, you wouldn't feel it justified your refusing to do all you could to make up to this pitiful little boy for the unhappy start he has had in life.

My prediction is, that, after thinking it all over, you'll decide the child deserves a place in your home and I further predict that you'll be forever glad that you made this decision.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NOT WHITE DINNER JACKETS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I am to be married in November, here in my home city in Michigan, it will be an evening wedding. The groom-to-be would like to have you tell him if it would be correct for the man in the wedding party to wear white dinner jackets for an evening wedding at this time of the year. Bride-to-be White dinner jackets worn in November is your part of the country would look out-of-season, inappropriate. Black dinner jackets, for a more or less informal evening wedding, would be correct. Or dark blue business suits for a really informal wedding.

"CORDIALLY" HAS COME INTO ITS OWN AS LETTER-CLOSING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

It was always taught that "Cordially," as an ending to a social note or letter was "socially not acceptable," that it was to be avoided. However, lately I have noticed that some people whose etiquette I have reason to respect, do use "Cordially" as the ending to some of their letters. Personally, I like this . . . seems much warmer, friendlier, than "Sincerely." Tell me, please, Mrs. Beeckman—has there been a change toward approving of "Cordially"?—Beth W.

I've always been friendly to "Cordially," never could understand why it should be considered "socially not acceptable," did not agree with those who maintained that it was a "condescending" or "pretentious" word. Why should "Cordially" be considered more condescending or pretentious than "Sincerely"?

To my thinking, "Cordially" seemed gracefully to fill the need of a word between "Sincerely" and the more intimate letter-ending, such as "Devotedly." "Affectionately," and so forth.

Recently, I've noticed that "Cordially" has been accepted with good and proper respect . . . not only for a closing for many kinds of social letters and notes (including, of course, invitations) but also for business letters that have a friendly feeling. So . . . welcome "Cordially."

Pot Luck Supper

By Mary Moore

Thirty-nine teen-agers from 15 to 19, and six adults (ages unrevealed) ate eight different hot dishes of scalloped potatoes, four dozen large cobs of corn, one basket of tomatoes, four dozen rolls, 18 quarts milk, 34 large tarts (made by one of the boys), two lbs. butter, two quarts pickles, two cakes.

That is a highly specialized list of statistics but in the event that you too are a co-teacher of a Sunday school group of teen-agers who want a pot-luck supper but how much you will need to fill them.

Besides that you had better muster your strength to cope with such arguments as which boy should stand beside which girl when the dishes are being washed. What would have cured the arguments was a dunking in that big sinkful of dishwater, but I refrained in my best Sunday-school-teacherish manner. What settled it was a deadpan decision: if one certain pair wanted to wash together so much they could do them all! There was no argument after that and eight of them pitched in happily sang rounds as they washed, dried and put away.

It is the recipe for one of those meat loaves that I want to give to you today. It was in a class by itself.

BOB'S AND WOODY'S MEAT LOAF

One and one-quarter lbs. minced beef, 1 lb. minced pork, 3 medium tomatoes, 1-3 cup quick cooking oats, 1-3 cup crumbly whole wheat bread, 1 cup milk, 1 onion, 2 eggs, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 10-oz. tin condensed tomato soup mixed with 1-4 cup water. Peel and chop the onion and tomatoes, and, mix with all remaining ingredients except the soup. Mix very well. Press into standard-sized loaf pan (preferably glass) and bake at 400 deg. Fahr for 1-2 hour. Then spread loaf with soup. Heat Fahr. and pour over-it the tomato soup mixed with the 1-4 cup water and bake 1 hour longer. This loaf is highly satisfactory because it has such a good light color and texture and shrinks very little during baking.

HARRY'S SCALLOPED POTATOES

Harry is a character. At one and the same time I groan and grin over him. He is about 6' 2" and 18 years worth of mischief personified. I love him dearly. His harassed mother walked in on the church kitchen at precisely 6 p.m., with this out of this world dish—the potatoes for which Harry peeled. Make Thin White Sauce by melting 1-4 cup butter or margarine, stirring in 1-4 cup flour until smooth, then 2 cups milk until thick. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons salt. Grate 1-2 cup medium old cheese. Bring out your 1 1-2 quart casserole and start paring and slicing thinly potatoes into it. When you have 4 3-4 inch layer sprinkle it with salt, pepper and a few finely chopped green onion tops or chives, some of the cheese and spread with some of the sauce. Repeat until casserole is filled to within 3-4 inch of top and all ingredients are used (it takes about 4 or 7 potatoes but that depends on their size.) Bake at 400 for 30 minutes and 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 hours at 300 deg., covered during first half of cooking. If top is not brown enough, place under broiler for a few minutes before serving. These do not curdle.

Ginny Pfeifer Little Person With Big Stride

CASUAL COMBINATION

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

...GOING together well and forming a nice partnership is a sheath of herringbone tweed and a knitted sweater jacket to tone. The sleeveless dress has a high, round neckline and pockets are hidden in the front folds. The crepe-lined jacket has a wide, novelty knit border marking the cardigan neckline, front and sleeves. Good for casual town wear and a bonanza for suburbs and country.

TORONTO (CP) — Ginny Pfeifer, wife of a top-flight Toronto Argonauts' football player, is a little person with a big stride.

The slender five-foot-five brunette, who looks short beside her husband Al's six-foot-one, has seen his nose broken twice on the field. She knows he gets so nervous before a game that his stomach is squirmy with "butterflies" until the kick-off.

Yet she wouldn't have him quit the game for anything.

"I'll hate to see the day it ends," she said with a slightly southern drawl. "He loves it."

Virginia, the same age as her 27 - year - old husband, has made many adjustments during their 4½ - year marriage so that he could follow his football career.

FROM NEW JERSEY

Until three months ago she lived with their three children in Englewood, N. J., seeing Al only between seasons. This is his fifth with the Argos.

Interview at their home in Don Mills, a Toronto suburb, Ginny said she was reluctant to move to Canada.

"Al liked Canadian football and Canadians," she said. "He wanted us here long before this. I didn't want to leave my friends but now I wish we'd come sooner."

Ginny said that Al, a pass-receiving end, hopes to be a threat to opposing gridiron teams for another five years. And when he joins her in the stands during a game it's going to be in Canada.

"We want to settle here permanently," she said. "The people are just grand. They make friends so quickly. I feel as close to some people here as I do to friends I've known all my life."

The blue-eyed mother — their children are Linda, 3; Judy, 2 and Alan Ross Jr., nine months—was particularly impressed with a neighbor who helped Al fix up the yard of their new five-room home.

"He worked here all day," she said. "Later we found out it was on his wedding anniversary."

HAS SALESMAN'S JOB

Al works as a furniture salesman during the day and goes to football practice in the evenings. But his long hours don't upset Ginny's household schedule because, even with a young family, she's arranged it to fit in with his.

During the week they restrict their social activities to neighborly visits but after a game—Ginny never misses a home game and has even taken their elder daughter—they go out.

The day of a game she tries to give Al an extra hour's sleep. She tries again the day after, figuring he's earned it.

Al, who has a B. Sc. from Fordham University, rewarded Ginny for her interest and help with his football career during a game two years ago with the Montreal Alouettes.

Seconds before the game's end with the score tied, Al caught a pass from Nobby Wirkowski and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. He crossed the goalline nine seconds after the final whistle but it counted.

"I'll always remember that," Ginny said. "It's something that happens only once in a lifetime."

END OF RAILWAY

MONTREAL (CP) — The old M. and S. C. electric line will rattle to a stop early Sunday on the evening of its 47th birthday. The Montreal and Southern Counties Railway, now a Canadian National Railways subsidiary started in 1909. Never a railway giant, it worked up to 54 miles of track linking Granby, Que., in one direction and the South Shore community of Longueuil in another. It now runs 26 miles.

Club Activities

MELROSE MISSION BAND

The first fall meeting of Melrose Mission Band was held recently at the home of Mrs. Norton Demille.

The election of officers followed after the opening hymn: Wayne Pascoe, president; John English, vice-president; Barbara Weese, secretary-treasurer; Eileen Reilly and Shirley Pascoe, press reporters.

"Jesus Loves Me" was sung and a story was read by Mrs. Demille. "Take Time to be Holy" was sung and the meeting closed with The Lord's Prayer.

MULTIPLE BIRTHS

Approximately one confinement in 85 in Canada results in the birth of more than one child, usually twins.

Women's Institute

MOIRA W.I.

The postponed meeting of Moira Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Jones.

The meeting was opened with the president Mrs. William Collins.

In the business session an invitation was extended to Bethel-Phillipston Institute to attend the meeting on November 7, at the home of Mrs. Collins. Preparations were made for a Hallowe'en party with program to be TV home talent, each member to prepare one item.

A birthday box was set up with proceeds to be used for flowers for bereaved families.

Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Thompson were appointed delegates to area convention.

Mrs. F. Emerson and Mrs. C. Vanderwater prepared the following program: music, The Maple Leaf; a solo, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," by Mrs. Holbert; a reading, "Grandmother," by Miss Bessie Holbert; "The Wise Old Grandma," by Mrs. Ewald and "Grandma on Child Care" by Mrs. Baldwin; "Childhood Trip to Grandmother's Day," by Mrs. Jean Thompson.

The topic was "Grow Old and Like It," by Mrs. Thompson.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess.

CAMPBELLFORD— A successful meeting of the Campbellford-Seymour branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held in the public library on Friday. Every project was discussed at some length and the officers for the coming year were elected as follows: president, Mrs. Donald Russell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. David Burgess; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Howard Emby; secretary, Mrs. Margaret Davey and treasurer, Mr. R. D. McDonald. Ward Captains are: Ward 1 — Mrs. Mae Phillips; Ward 2 — Mrs. David Ness; Ward 3 — Mrs. Howard Emby and Ward 4 — Mrs. Marg Taft.

SERVICES CHAIRMAN ELECTED

Chairmen for the various services were elected as follows: Junior organization, Ken Hazlit; blood donor service, Mrs. D. Burgess and Mrs. G. Drummond; nursing auxiliary service, Mrs. W. Tatham; hospital and nursing home visiting, Mrs. D. Ness; supply of cod liver oil for all schools, Mrs. Rita Cairns; swimming and water safety, Mrs. H. Macmillan; chairmen for 1957 campaign, Mr. Don Russell and Mr. Howard Emby; disaster services, Mrs. H. Emby; in charge of candy table for hospital auxiliary bazaar, Mrs. C. Newman and Mrs. H. Macmillan; float for Christmas parade, Mrs. D. Burgess; carol service and Christmas gifts for hospital and nursing home patients, Mrs. Ness and Mrs. Burgess.

With regard to hospital visiting, the branch had offers of help from Mrs. D. Stafford, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Ayrhart, Mrs. Wale, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. King and Mrs. O'Sullivan.

Both the blood donor service and the auxiliary nursing service are much appreciated by the hospital, and are reported to be running smoothly. More blood donors are needed, however, and anyone wishing to donate blood is requested to contact Mrs. Magee at the Campbellford Hospital.

Mrs. W. Tatham proposed to run a more advanced nursing course this year, for those Red Cross nurses who are already trained. This would prove to be of great benefit to the hospital, not only if some disaster struck when nurses would be badly needed, but also in some ordinary circumstances when the hospital is very busy.

FINANCES LOW

The report on the branch's financial situation was rather poor, and it was decided to publish a complete financial report to ensure that all those who support this branch of the Red Cross would know exactly how the money has been spent over the past year, and it was also resolved to put a great deal of effort into the 1957 campaign for funds, so that the results of a thorough canvass may make it possible for all the services to be continued.

The president, Mrs. David Burgess, sincerely thanked everyone for attending the meeting and for their enthusiasm and help in Red Cross work.

Madison Avenue Is Capital Of Billion Dollar Ad Business

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Avenue, New York, is better known as a symbol and state of mind, not a place.

As such it has been kicked around in a spate of novels, plays and television works.

In the ranks of United States symbols—like Wall Street for finance and Broadway for show business—Madison Avenue stands as the capital of the highly-competitive, frequently-cheerless multi-billion-dollar advertising business.

By almost common agreement among authors of the "hard, fast" novel, the Madison Avenue man is a hollow shell surrounded by fear, so slavishly devoted to uniformity that he wears a uniform and talks a special, esoteric lingo understood only by other tribesmen.

THE CARICATURE

He is, in his fictional state, a man who lives high on the expense account, uses and destroys women, subsists on a strict diet of martinis and tranquilizing pills, develops ulcers, goes to a psychoanalyst, finds his "true self," gives "up the rat race and retires to a New England village to write the definitive novel about Madison Avenue.

Much of it, as you might suspect, has been overdrawn.

The advertising business can't possibly be as wacky as portrayed. It does handle billions of dollars worth of business. It does require its own brand of intelligence and imagination and responsibility.

Madison Avenue men will say "finalize" or "firm up" or "see you around the campus" (around the office), but only a small majority actually say.

"Let's run this up the flagpole and see the way she blows" (discuss a new idea).

"Pull the panic switch" (warn of a client crisis).

"Let's shuck back the husks and just peek at the kernels" (getting to the real, unvarnished truth).

GET TESTS FIRST

In a business where entertaining the client is important, the expense account ranks high as a weapon of war. But despite obvious enticements, agency men say an expense account frequently is a two-edged sword.

There are account executives the agency men who are a direct link between the agency and the client—who dread the appearance of a new Broadway hit. One man already has seen My Fair Lady five times. He had to see South Pacific 15 times.

There definitely are ulcers and psychiatric tremors in the advertising business but the question of how many, it would seem, is less important than the climate which causes them. The nature of the climate is revealed by the fact that many agencies will not hire a new hand until he has been subjected to intensive psychological testing.

MUCH COME, ALL GO

Clients spend billions on advertising in television, newspapers, magazines and other media, and an agency gets 15 per cent of every dollar spent. One of the largest agencies handles $200,000,000 worth of advertising a year and earns a gross income of $30,000,000.

But the client giveth and the client taketh away. Last year an agency with $50,000,000 worth of business the year before suddenly folded up. It lost two big beverage accounts in two weeks. The third week a big cigaret firm went. The blows were fatal.

TRAINED FARMERS

Students at Ceylon's first agricultural college for women learn agriculture, horticulture and domestic science.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mrs. Ed Huff is spending a month with her daughter, Mrs. Post, and Mr. Post, Coe Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dickie, Hamilton, are spending their holidays at Birch Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Hafry McAdam of Mount Pleasant, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Dickie on Wednesday.

Several attended Madoc Fair on Wednesday and report a record attendance.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow is the supply teacher at Bonarlaw this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dickie visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Gilbert of Toronto, and Miss Jan Gilbert of London, England, spent the week-end at the Gilbert cottage, at Allan's Mill.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Silles were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dickie, also Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt, enjoyed a motor trip to Bancroft and Apsley on Friday.

Miss Estella McComb, Toronto, is spending two weeks with friends and relatives at Bonarlaw.

Many from here attended Norwood fair on Monday. Everyone was enjoying the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Baker were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Woodbeck on Thanksgiving.

ROSLIN

W.I. Hears 'Hints on Public Speaking'

ROSLIN — The October meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Donald Sills with 23 present.

The president, Mrs. A. Bates, presided.

Letters read by the secretary included: Canadian Mental Health whose services are always available; Canadian Institute for the Blind re canvass to which it was decided to send a gift of $10 as a canvass had been held earlier in the year at Roslin; Conservation project. It was hoped there would be improvement on Ontario highways. It was decided to accept October 25 as the date for the tour of the O.S.D. to commence at 1:30 p.m. Several members offered cars for transportation.

Mrs. William White was appointed delegate to the area convention in Belleville.

Miss Marlene Brant, of Shannonville, will be the guest speaker next month and her subject will be "Public Relations and Community Activities."

HINTS ON PUBLIC SPEAKING

Members who had attended the short course in Tweed, last week, brought back a number of useful hints on public speaking and various pitfalls to avoid. Several mentioned were: use good English; do not start with an apology, your listeners will find out soon enough; dress conservatively so as not to detract their attention.

Plans were made to hold a Hallowe'en party and euchre in the hall.

The leader, Mrs. John Fargey, conducted the program. The topic was given by Mrs. Milton Fargey, with a paper on historic research or the history of the past activities of each. "In the last 200 years considerable historical research has been undertaken and fire has destroyed many things. Of the past generations. What of our age, in which there have been two World Wars, will be preserved in the future?"

A reading, "Sentiment," was given by Mrs. Walter Chisholm.

The motto, "An old landmark and its history," was given by the leader, who chose as her subject, "The Old Hay Bay Church," which was the first United Church built, and is therefore the oldest in Canada, built in 1790.

Community singing was enjoyed.

A demonstration on patterns and the making of garments of material was given by Mrs. Donald Leslie. She showed a tailor's scale secured in 1903 and copyrighted in 1891. She said that in part, the greatest improvement in patterns occurred between 1900 and 1910. European fashion houses cannot secure enough Canadian models.

A contest was enjoyed, "Terms in Baseball."

The convener of historical research, Mrs. K. Sharpe, gave a paper on "Links to the Past." She said, "Histories written by local people of their own localities are often more dramatic than stories of battles. It is these little histories that create a strong link with the past.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social time was enjoyed.

CAMPBELLFORD

Lions Club Hears Talk on Driving Accidents

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of the Lions Club of Campbellford was held at the I.O.O.F. hall on Wednesday with a good attendance. President Lion Bruce Connor presided. After the bills and communications were dealt with, the general business progressed.

The 'Ladies' Night' which will be held on the charter anniversary night was discussed and will be held on November 28th at the Masonic Temple.

Four new members were inducted into the club, Jack Clarey, druggist; Frank Midgley, of the Campbellford Cloth Company; Harry Bradley, a teacher at Campbellford High School, and Ralph Welch, a H.E.P.C. employee.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the evening was P.C. W. A. Scott, director of Safety Patrol in Peterborough, Ontario.

Mr. Scott told the group how a lot of accidents happen, and how, in many cases, they could be avoided. He said that ten per cent of accidents are caused by the fault of the party operating the automobile, and 85 per cent are caused by the human element. He urged all drivers to give the right of way to the younger generation, especially kiddies on the street or on their way to school.

Mr. Scott also showed a film on driving economically and safely which was enjoyed by the group.

The speaker was introduced by Lion Les Baker, and thanked by Lion Harold Peters.

CARMEL

Carmel C.C. Holds Enjoyable 'Men's Night'

Carmel Comrade Club met at the hall on Friday evening when the men were hosts. President Alex Allison was chairman for the occasion.

Clare Horton gave a reading on "Thanksgiving," assisted by Tony Gowthorpe, Craig Allison, Ken Geen, Gary Chambers, Lyle Sullivan, Dale Sullivan and Glenn Chambers.

The business portion of the meeting, conducted by the president, included the discussion of two prospective banquets. Appreciation was also expressed to Mrs. J. Reynolds for her gift of stainless steel teaspoons to the club. Plans were made for a community Hallowe'en party, under the sponsorship of the club with Mrs. B. Rodberg and Mrs. C. Chambers in charge of the decorations. A second committee, consisting of Mrs. A. Gowthorpe, Mrs. A. Whitmore and Mrs. C. Thompson, was to purchase the prizes and secure the judges.

PROGRAM

The program for the evening opened with all the men and boys on the platform, Mr. Merle Robinson accompanied them on the piano in their rendition of three numbers.

A humorous reading, given by Stanley Geen, was followed by several selections of lively music, by a trio composed of Merle Robinson, at the piano; Carman Dafoe on the guitar and Alex Allison on the harmonica.

Mr. Buster Chumley entertained with two fine solos, and Master Dale Sullivan played a piano instrumental, and Stanley gave a second fine reading, "How to Make a Man." A piano and violin selection, "The Dutch Family," was rendered by Carolyn and Keith Thompson, accompanied by Mrs. Clare Horton, at the piano.

A quartet: Buster Chumley, Alex Allison, Carman Dafoe and Merle Robinson, entertained while the remaining men laid the tables and invited the ladies to be seated.

CHIEF COOK

The chief cook was Clarence Chambers, aided by the assistant cook, Clarence Barlow with Arnold Whitmore, Bill Rodberg, Percy Reynolds, Clare Horton, Clayton Sullivan, Stanley Geen and Carl Thompson, acting as waiters, served delightful and bountiful refreshments.

At the close of this pleasant evening, the men cleared the tables, washed the dishes.

Much credit is due these men for a most enjoyable evening, and it is hoped there will be more meetings of this type in the future.

Abbe Barred From Making Speeches for Year

QUEBEC (CP)—One of the authors of an article attacking Quebec's election methods has been relieved of his post as a professor at Laval University and asked not to write for publication or make public speeches for a year, a university source has disclosed.

The source said the action against Abbe Louis O'Neill was taken by a high university official. Abbe O'Neill was assigned to teach logic at Le Petit Seminaire, a classical college which falls under Laval's jurisdiction. Formerly he was professor of moral philosphy at Laval.

Abbe O'Neill and Abbe Gerard Dion were the authors of a 4,400-word article in Ad Usum Sacerdotum, a religious publication, attacking the June provincial election campaign as a wave of "immorality and stupidity."

Abbe Dion, director of the department of industrial relations in Laval's faculty of social sciences, said he has not received any directives restraining his speeches or writing. The article, which aroused widespread interest when reprinted in daily newspapers, originally was intended for circulation only among priests interested in social action.

Abbe O'Neill told reporters they would have to get their information elsewhere when he was questioned about the directive.

"... Don't ask me to say anything," he requested.

Msgr. Adrien Falardeau, superior of Le Petit Seminaire, also refused to comment, saying the matter was outside his authority.

Msgr. Paul Nicol, secretary to Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, said he was unaware of any decision being taken at the archbishop's palace about Abbe O'Neill. Msgr. Roy also is chancellor of Laval University.

The article charged Quebec's political parties with corrupting electoral officers, buying votes and using communism as a scarecrow without justification.

Coliseum at Landsdowne Park Will Be Scene of Convention To Pick Conservative Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of hardy volunteers is busy preparing to transform the big shell of a fairgrounds exhibition building here into a busy, bunting-draped convention hall where some 1,400 Progressive Conservatives will choose their next national leader.

Others are lining up living accommodation to be allocated among some 3,000 persons expected for the big event in the week of Dec. 10.

Site of the convention to pick a successor to Hon. George Drew is the Coliseum at Lansdowne Park in the south-central part of the capital.

Seven days from now it will be crowded with livestock and other exhibits for Ottawa's week-long winter fair. A nightly horse show will perform in the main show ring where, at other times, giant bingo games regularly attract hundreds of hopeful housewives.

But in December the tanbark and bingo tables will be supplanted by some 1,400 voting delegates. On three sides will be tiers of seats, enough for about 2,000 spectators. And at one end of the 200-foot-long hall will be a massive platform where 100 of the party's leading personalities will sit.

The complex problem of arranging for the party's first national convention in eight years is in the hands of a local committee headed by Ottawa lawyer Albert A. Hemingwell. Another lawyer, A. R. E. Lawrence, heads the planning for the hall itself.

The Coliseum held national conventions of both the Conservative and Liberal parties in 1948. Since then a three-storey annex, 120 by 140 feet, has been built. That will give more elbow room for the convention's many-sided operations.

The annex ground floor will be fitted out with facilities for 100 newspaper men plus radio and television personnel and communications services. The top floor will have a cafeteria seating 500.

This will be the first convention in Canada ever to be televised, and apart from the special lighting needed in the hall, the planners are thinking about the possible need of a teleprompter to help the speech-makers.

Some 200 or more workers—paid and volunteers—will be needed to keep the show rolling: secretaries, clerks, messengers, guards, information staffs, poll clerks and the like.

Accommodation for the expected influx of 3,000 is being handled on a strict allocation basis by a committee headed by a cheerful, pleasant-faced Ottawa housewife, Mrs. G. R. Burland.

The committee, operating from party headquarters on mid-town Laurier Avenue, decides who will stay where. Purpose of the arrangement is to avoid confusion and prevent persons tying up space by making duplicate reservations at several hotels.

SHOOTS PAL IN ERROR

LEWISBURG, W.Va. (AP) — A hunter who told police he shot and killed his brother-in-law because he mistook a Davy Crockett cap for a squirrel, will be charged with negligent shooting, they said. Trooper Ronald Gregory said Glen Gilkarson, 22, admitted shooting in the head 14-year-old John Lincoln Buchanan.

JAPAN OPENS DAM

NAGOYA, Japan (AP)—Sakuma dam was opened formally today. The largest power dam in Japan, it was built on the upper reaches of the Tenryu river at a cost of $100,000,000. The power plant has a generating capacity of 350,000 kilowatts.

Three Children Discover Body Of Missing Woman

HAMILTON (CP)—Three young children playing cowboys and Indians in Hamilton's Mountain Park Sunday discovered the body of a woman who was reported missing Oct. 4.

It was identified as that of Geraldine Oliver, 50, of Niagara Falls, who had been visiting relatives here and left for home that day.

James Cavanagh, 10, Freddie Symons, 9, and his sister Beverley, 8, found the body 100 feet below the mountain brow, lying on a rocky slope alongside a creek.

Police said the woman's clothing did not appear as though she had fallen or slid down the rocky face of the mountain. They said she had been dead for at least 18 hours but a post mortem will be held today to determine the cause of death.

EGYPT NABS BOARDERS

CAIRO (AP) — Police said Sunday night an average of 87 merchants have been arrested weekly since the start of the Suez crisis. They were accused of hoarding supplies and overcharging customers, especially on items such as meat, bread and vegetables. Prices of these commodities are officially controlled. So far accused merchants have been fined or given short jail sentences.

TEENAGER SHOOTS SISTER, 5

WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. (AP) — For the first time in years, Mr. and Mrs. William Gilbert left their eight children at home and went off by themselves for a Sunday afternoon drive. They came home to find nine-year-old Jean Anne dead. Police said she died of a bullet fired accidentally from a .22 rifle in the hands of a brother, Tommy, 16.

Scientific Rocket Will Be Shot 80 Miles in Air Wednesday; Packed With Instruments

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) The first scientific rocket to be launched in Canada is expected to be shot more than 80 miles in the air Wednesday, 24 hours later than previously scheduled.

Trouble with certain of the scientific instruments it will carry to explore the upper atmosphere forced the postponement, said Lt.-Col. L. G. Smith of the U.S. Army Ordnance Corps, who is in charge of the project.

The rocket, an American-built Aerobee, is packed with delicate instruments to measure wind, temperature and density at heights never before explored by man. The data will be relayed by radio to scientists on the ground.

While the rocket is capable of soaring up to 100 miles, N. W. Spencer of the University of Michigan, director of instrumentation, said he does not expect it to go beyond 85 miles.

The firing now is set at a camp 12 miles east of this Canadian-U.S. joint services centre, 410 miles north of Winnipeg.

The launching platform was built by the United States on the barren sub-Arctic tundra, on the west side of Hudson Bay, at a cost expected to be more than $6,000,000. It is part of the American rocket exploration program for the International Geophysical Year, which begins next July.

In the next two months eight rockets will be launched.

Aerobee flights are directed from a 120-foot vertical metal tower.

The mystery of the Northern Lights, the display of colored glows in the sky around the North and South Poles, may be answered by the rocket tests.

Cmdr. L. E. Hearne of the U.S. Navy said he hopes the rocket experiments will explain why the aurora are more intense in the North Pole regions than in the South.

The big question is: What are the northern lights?

In the theory is that the Northern Lights are caused more than 50 miles above by streams of electrified particles from the sun. The rocket exploration will be the first to probe the mystery at heights greater than 50 miles.

In the head of the rocket will be geiger-counter type apparatus to measure radio-activity of the auroral particles. With it will be a magnetometer to record the earth's gravity pull.

Hammarskjold Will Attempt To Reconcile Views on Suez

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today makes a new attempt to bring Britain, France and Egypt to agreement on the Suez Canal dispute.

The task of mediation was kicked back to the secretary-general after Security Council endorsement of six principles for a settlement. This followed talks with Hammarskjold last week and a Soviet veto Saturday of a British - French demand for international operation of the waterway.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd has an appointment to see Hammarskjold today. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi is still in New York but French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau has returned to Paris.

A French spokesman said it has not yet been settled when Lloyd, Pineau and Fawzi will get together for more talks with Hammarskjold. He denied reports they had decided to meet in Geneva or at UN headquarters late this month.

However, the three ministers, plus U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov and others are expected to be on hand for the opening Nov. 13 of the General Assembly.

Dulles, before his return to Washington, conferred with Lloyd early Sunday after the marathon council meeting which ended the 11-nation body's consideration of the dispute for the time being. A British spokesman said it was possible Dulles and Lloyd discussed the 15-nation Suez Canal Users Association, which Britain is anxious to get into operation.

The six principles, agreed on by Lloyd, Pineau and Fawzi in their talks with Hammarskjold last week, were unanimously endorsed by the Security Council as requirements "that any settlement of the Suez question should meet."

These are the six:

(1) Passage through the canal should be free, open and without discrimination; (2) Egypt's sovereignty should be respected; (3) "operation of the canal should be insulated from the politics of any country;" (4) tolls should be fixed by agreement between Egypt and the users; (5) a fair part of the tolls should go for canal improvements, and (6) arbitration should settle disputes between Egypt and the management of the Suez Canal Co. which operated the canal before Egyptian President Nasser took it over on July 26.

The 78th Russian veto in UN history killed the balance of the British-French resolution which would have endorsed the 18-nation London proposals for international control of the canal and would also have called on Egypt to cooperate with the Canal Users Association. Shepilov contended this would encroach on Egypt's sovereignty.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Popovic also voted against this portion, making the lineup 9 to 2 in favor.

How David Greene finds opportunity in progress

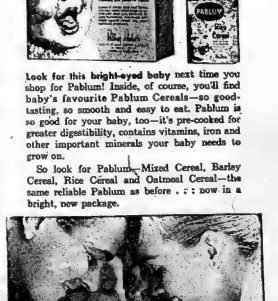
As a dramatic director, David Greene has an inside view of the remarkable growth of Canadian television.

"In a little over three years," says Mr. Greene, "TV has created new opportunities for a great many Canadian writers, actors, dancers, musicians and technicians. This reservoir of experienced talent has been responsible for the great progress made in producing Canadian television shows."

As a family man, David Greene has also benefited by the progress made in another field . . . life insurance. It is easier than ever to provide financial security for families, because life insurance is more flexible.

Today you can obtain insurance for "living", with policies that provide not-only basic protection, but ready funds for emergencies—also policies for education, for safeguarding your home, for protecting your business and for ensuring your retirement income.

Of equal importance, the men and women who make life insurance their career are better trained than ever before to help Canadians achieve the financial goals that make for happier living.



In these and other ways, the life insurance companies in Canada are in step with progress . . . serving the needs of people in every walk of life.

fine address, "Crowns of The Bible."

"Salvation is offered as a free gift but crowns must be won. We win a crown by our behavior. We must work for it.

"Paul tells us of the crowns made of leaves won by the Greeks in the arena races; crowns that quickly faded. He also tells of the incorruptible crown that fadeth not away."

"How is this crown attained? We must be temperate. There must be a separation from worldly things. Paul tells of how he brought his body into subjection.

"In Thessalonians I we are told of the crown of rejoicing. This is obtained by winning souls for Jesus Christ. We must go forth and tell. Join in the search for the lost and therefore rejoice when the lost is found. Christians should never go empty-handed to meet their Lord.

CROWN OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

"Paul, ready to die, writes to Timothy, 'I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.'

"We, as Christians, should firmly stand for the right.

CROWN OF GLORY

"Peter was the first to deny his Lord, yet Jesus had a special message for him. 'Feed My sheep.' The elders are enjoined to feed the flock of God. In church members are fed the word of God they will not wander, seeking spiritual sustenances. 1st Peter 5: 4, 'and when the Chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.'

CROWN OF LIFE

"In Revelations we find Christ's message to the seven churches as given to John. They were commended for their good works. Too much fault was not found with them. They were urged to repent and fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer, be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life'."

On behalf of club members, Mrs. William Donnan expressed gratitude to Mr. Burke for his inspiring address; to Mr. and Mrs. Benson for opening their home and to all who had contributed to the program.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Four Pros Battle For Top in Western Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four tournament professionals battled it out today in a four-way play-off for the $5,000 top money in the Western Open after usually steady Doug Ford blew his chance to take it all.

Ford, one of the finest short game players in the business, came apart on the last three holes of Sunday's climactic round to shoot a one-under-par 71 and finish in a 284 dead heat with Don Jansary of Lampasas, Texas, Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., and Mike Fetchick of Mahopac, N.Y.

Coming off the Presidio's breezy 15th hole, Ford was sailing along four under par and, so far as the gallery watched, couldn't possibly smack stood in his way of grabbing the big prize. Then, as spectators reveled in amazement, his play around the greens went completely haire.

He three-putted the 16th for a bogey, landed himself another by by taking three to get down to the edge of 17 and, as the gallery watched open-mouthed, blew himself into the playoff on the 18th with a one-over-par five.

The four men fighting it out will play together and, if they haven't broken the tie at 18, the issue will be settled by sudden death playoff from there.

The money normally would be split $3,000 to the winner, $2,000 to the second-place finisher, third and $1,200 for fourth. Now, with the freakish playoff, the winner still gets $2,000, but the next three get $2,000 apiece.

Are pre-season favorites jinxed? McGill Redmen probably think so.

Although advance speculation figured Queen's as a club to succeed Queen's Golden Gaels as Senior Intercollegiate f o o t b a l l champions, they've had their first two starts. Both games were close and about all the losers have to that the Redmen are strong on defence.

Their second close shave came Saturday when Toronto's Varsity Blues edged them 15-13 in Montreal. The previous week they bowed to University of Western Ontario Mustangs 6-5.

The weekend's second league passing and Ron Stewart's running give Mustangs their worst post-war defeat and Gaels a 33-0 win in Kingston.

Saturday's games left Queen's and Varsity tied for first place in deadlock in the opener in Toronto a week ago, in a tie for second leadership with three points each. Mustangs follow with two points followed by the Redmen.

Varsity, playing without first-string quarterback Ed Sawyer, capitalized on McGill fumbles for their win.

Johnny Tuttle's game-winning, third - quarter touchdown came from his interception at Dave Kane's pass attempt and five McGill fumbles, each recovered by Varsity, proved the winning margin.

Softball drew to a close for the 1956 season at Point Anne on Saturday afternoon when the Crescent defeated the Frankford Merchants 7-3 to capture the B and D league championship and the Bill Ott Trophy. Point Anne took the series three games to two.

Point Anne is the provincial OASA Industrial champions also while Frankford holds the Ontario Intermediate "B" title.

Frankford took a 3-0 lead in the second, on Saturday then handed the winners three unearned markers in the third. The Merchants cut the margin to 3-2 before Crescent batted tallies in the last fifth wrapped it up.

Pat Maracle went the route for Phil Lott's champs, scattering seven hits including three doubles. He suffered a little control trouble near the start of the game, walking a total of four while striking out ten.

Bobby Hunter toiled for the Merchants, allowing six safeties including a homer and triple. The right hander whiffed seven, getting Mort Bradshaw three times and Lloyd and Pat Maracle twice each. He walked two and hit another man.

Bill Rankin drew to pass to open Frankford's second frame. Harry Wickson shot a double into left-centre before Maracle walked two more to force Rankin h o m e. Hunter paved way for his team's second tally with a line single to left. Carr sacrificed and Gib Gilmour muffed a blooper to allow for a run-scoring single.

Four Pros Battle For Top in Western Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four tournament professionals battled it out today in a four-way playoff for the $5,000 top money in the Western Open after usually steady Doug Ford blew his chance to take it all.

Ford, one of the finest short game players in the business, came apart on the last three holes of Sunday's climactic round to shoot a one-under-par 71 and finish in a 284 dead heat with Don January of Lampasas, Texas, Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., and Mike Fetchick of Mahopac, N.Y.

Coming off the Presidio's breezy 15th hole, Ford was sailing along four under par and, so far as the gallery of 3,200 could see, nothing much stood in his way of grabbing the big prize. Then, as spectators watched in amazement, his play around the greens went completely haywire.

He three-putted the 16th for a bogey, carded himself another by taking three to get down into the edge of 17 and, as the gallery watched open - mouthed, blew himself into the hazard on the 18th with a one-over-par five.

The four men fighting it out will play together and, if they haven't broken the tie at 18, the issue will be settled by sudden death playoff from there.

The money normally would be split $5,000 for the winner, $2,500 to the second man, $2,000 for third and $1,500 for fourth. Now, with the freakish playoff, the winner still gets $2,000, but the next three get $2,000 apiece.

Golden Gaels Wallop Mustangs 35-0 While Varsity Edges McGill Redmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Are pre-season favorites jinxed? McGill Redmen probably think so.

Although advance speculation figured them for a cinch to succeed Queen's Golden Gaels as Senior Intercollegiate Football champions, they've lost their first two starts. Both games were close but about all the losses prove is that the Redmen are strong on defence.

Their second close shave came Saturday when Toronto's Varsity Blues edged them 15-13 in Montreal. The previous week they bowed to University of Western Ontario Mustangs 6-3.

The weekend's second league passing and Ron Stewart's running give Mustangs their worst post-war defeat as Gaels romped to win in Kingston.

Saturday's games left Queen's and Varsity, who battled to a 7-7 deadlock in the opener in Toronto a week ago, in a tie for the league leadership with three points each. Mustangs follow with two points followed by the Redmen.

Varsity, playing without first-string quarterback Don Skrzypek, capitalized on McGill fumbles for their victory.

Johnny Tuttle's game-winning, third - quarter touchdown came from his interception of Dick Carr's pass attempt and five McGill fumbles, each recovered by Varsity, proved the winning margin.

Queen's showed championship form as they set loose a devastating offensive which pleased hundreds of alumni in town for the 1906-1956 homecoming weekend. Mondeville, an American from Clayton, N.Y., played the whole game, completed seven of 13 pass attempts—three of them for touchdowns. Al Koogan took two of the touchdown passes and the third went to Roy Hircock.

Wing-footed Ron Stewart, a veteran of Intercollegiate competition, counted the game's other two touchdowns.

He intercepted Art Turner's second-quarter pass attempt on Western's 35-yard line and in the third he plunged over from the one-yard line.

Jocko Thompson booted four converts and set up another point when his kick bounced to the deadline and Frank Lukas was rouged.

In contrast to the free-scoring Queen's-Western game, the McGill Varsity contest was sharply contested and the lead changed hands three times before Tuttle snared Carr's pass.

Varsity's first score came on Tim Reid's five-yard end run in the second quarter. Dick Nelson converted both touchdowns and Ross Woods kicked a single.

McGill opened the scoring in the first quarter with a touchdown by Rick Adrian. In the third quarter Tom Gallagher sprinted 15 yards for another. Both were unconverted.

McGill's other point was scored when Jerry Anderson fumbled the ball over the Toronto goal line and Toronto recovered.

Alex Webster Giants Star With Three TDs

NEW YORK (CP)—A couple of old Montreal Alouettes relived the past Sunday as New York Giants crushed Cleveland Browns 21-9 in their own backyard, scoring their first victory over the perennial National Football League champions since 1952.

Giant halfback Alex Webster, who led the Big Four in scoring when he played for the Montrealers in 1954, had his biggest day in two seasons at New York, scoring all three touchdowns.

And Cleveland's George Ratterman, who served an unhappy term as the Alouettes' quarterback for part of the 1951 season, probably hasn't been thrown for as many losses in a single afternoon since he jumped the Canadian club and returned to the NFL fold after his original desertion of the old New York Yankees.

Meanwhile, Chicago Cardinals made their third straight game, downing the winless Washington Redskins 31-3 to reign undefeated on top of the eastern conference standings.

Tied with the Giants for second place with two victories in three starts were Philadelphia Eagles, who defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 35-21.

Detroit Lions remained unbeaten in the western conference, stalling a late Los Angeles drive to edge the Rams 24-21. Chicago Bears were second by virtue of a 21-7 rout of San Francisco 49ers while Green Bay Packers won their first game of the season when Baltimore Colts 38-33 to move into a four-way tie for third place.

'Sooners' Roll Merrily on; Snub Texas 45-0

NEW YORK (AP)—It's getting to the point where perhaps the only question about Oklahoma's football powerhouse is whether the Sooners can get through the U.S. college season unscored upon.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's national champs, with the remaining schedule giving little evidence they'll be unfrocked, now have rolled over three 1956 foes with their goal line still virgin territory. They snubbed North Carolina 36-0, humiliated Kansas State 68-0. They then made themselves at home on the range with a 45-0 decision over Texas last weekend.

This week it's Kansas. The Jayhawkers, beating only Iowa State in four games to date, figure to give the Sooners a modern record of 34 consecutive victories.

Notre Dame, only a name for a change, may prove a stumbler, but it's unlikely. After a 28-14 thrashing by Purdue for a 1-3 record, the Irish now hold only the uncertain hope of upsetting one of the big guns.

Michigan State, hard on Oklahoma's heels for the national title, won 53-6 over Indiana and remained atop the Big Ten conference with also unbeaten Ohio State (86-6 over Illinois) and Iowa (13-7 over Wisconsin).

Barons Suspend Howie Lee

CLEVELAND (AP)—Howie Lee, who refused to report to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League this season, has been suspended from organized hockey, Jim Hendy, Baron general manager, announced Saturday.

"He's suspended until he reports to us or until someone is willing to pay for his release and his contract," Hendy said.

Hendy signed Lee last winter after the defenseman returned from Italy with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior. A series, Kitchener was Canada's entry in the Olympic hockey championships.

The Baron general manager was accused of "stealing" Lee from the Kitchener-Waterloo club.

Lee finally wound up playing with Cleveland after several meetings between Hendy and OHA officials.

"I really don't care much whether Lee plays us or not," Hendy said. "I think we have some defencemen now who are as good or better."

In the Eastern Ontario Cup Peterborough UEW gained an advantage on Saturday when they took a three to nor lead against Oshawa kickers in the first game of the home and home points count series in Peterborough. The second leg will be played on Oshawa's Alexander Park next Saturday when the winning team will be presented with the Norman Howard Memorial trophy.

In local bantam play United beat Arsenal by two goals to nil with Bill Royal and Jack Rushlow being the scorers. In the other game played on Saturday, Rovers and Wanderers played to a no score tie at the Cricket Field.

The game between Legion and Athletics was postponed. All teams now have their sweaters and put on an attractive display.

Next Saturday the games are Arsenal vs Athletic at the Fairgrounds with a 9.30 a.m. kick-off, whilst at the Cricket Field United play the Wanderers at 9.30 and Legion take on the Rovers at 10.30.

In the Bay of Quinte Juvenile loop on Saturday Belleville Juveniles visited Wellington and came back with a point as the result of a 1-1 tie.

Point Anne Defeats Frankford 7-2 Wins District Softball League Title

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Softball drew to a close for the 1956 season at Point Anne on Saturday afternoon when the Centennon defeated the Frankford aggregants 7-2 to capture the B and D, league championship and the Bill Ott Trophy. Point Anne took the series three games to two.

Point Anne is the provincial OASA Industrial champion also while Frankford holds the Ontario Intermediate "B" title.

Frankford took a brief 1-0 lead in the second on Saturday when handed the winners three unearned markers in the third. The Mercchants cut the margin to 3-2 before another trio of tuted tallies in the fifth wrapped it up.

Pat Maracle went the route for Phil Lott's champs, scattering seven hits including three doubles. He suffered a little control trouble near the start of the game, walking a total of five while hitting one batter. He claimed three strikeout victims.

Bobby Hunter toiled for the Merchants, allowing six safeties including a homer and triple. The right-hander whiffed seven, getting Mort Bradshaw three times and Lloyd and Pat Maracle twice each. He walked two and hit another man.

Bill Rankin drew a pass to open Frankford's second frame. Harry Wickson shot a double into left-centre before Maracle walked two more to force Rankin home. Hunter paved way for his team's second tally with a line single to left. Carr sacrificed and Gil Gilmour's blooper to right fell in for a run-scoring single.

Two were out when Austin's error on first led to the Pointer's first three markers, Pat Gilmour had singled earlier and Roger Mallory's infield safety scored the tying run. Jack Elliott then bashed a triple to right for two R. B. I.'s.

A bare on balls to Gilmour followed by successive errors to Cosgrove and Rankin loaded the sacks with none out in the fifth. Mallory's fly plated one, another scored on a wild pitch while the third came in on Elliott's infield out.

Pat Gilmour banged a bases-empty homer, a low line shot to left-centre for Point's final tally in the seventh. He also had a single, a walk and two runs scored to pace his team's attack.

Roger Mallory claimed a pair of infield singles, Jack Elliott doubled and Jackie Wardhaugh had a single for the losers.

Catcher Harry Wickson poled a brace of doubles and Carl Austin had one to lead Frankford with the wood. Singles went to Claude Carr, Mike Cosgrove, Bobby Hunter and Gib Gilmour.

Lineup — Frankford: Dafoe, Cosgrove, Austin, Rankin, Wickson, Hunter, Carr, G. Gilmour, Ackerman, Sicilier.

Pt. Anne: Wardhaugh, P. Gilmour, D. Hull, P. Green, Mallory, Elliott, Bradshaw, L. Maracle, P. Maracle.

Umpires — Red Carson (P) and Harold Bradshaw, Time — 1.21.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

THIS WAS BETTER!

The right honorable "Yip" Radley, of the board of directors of the Kingston CKLC hockey organization, shook his head a little sadly in the press box here the other night after the McFarlands bowed to the Kitchener Greenshirts by a 6-2 score.

"Yip," who had witnessed the downfall of his Eleces at the hands of the Rochester Rockets (7-0) the night previous refused to all in general. "What is needed around here is a team that can score goals."

"Yip" should have trekked to Kitchener Saturday with the Belleville Macks and witnessed their performance against the Kitchener-Waterloo Aim Club champions. There, in the beautiful two-million dollar arena with CAHA championship pennants of two years flittering overhead, the McFarlands scrambled their scoring egg and fired seven goals past Messrs. Jack Senior and Don Oliver, who it appears are battling for the Greenshirts' goalie spot.

With the squads facing the opening games of the season at the weekend, both left a lot to be desired. It was a wide-open free-wheeling pastime with very little "rough stuff" but twenty penalties-worth of the sly digs, elbows and whatnot that disserning referees figure are worth at least two minutes in the boosegow.

The Greenshirts trotted out their full manpower with Ken Laasman, Bob Schertzl, Jack Taylor and Billy Graham, the Kitchener ORFU football sensation, added to the squad that played here the night previous. The McFarlands didn't mimus the services of husky Lloyd "Chuckwagon" Cain, who, it is stated, is forced that faraway hockey pastures look a lot long-greener. Coach Bep Guidolin did not dress, watching his charges with a hawk-eye from the players' benching.

The Guidolin crew played much better positional hockey Saturday night while their back-checking also showed a noticeable improvement. Their shooting was good and they did not back up a step from the Kitchener senior "A" veterans' rugged checking.

A noticeable feature from a Belleville standpoint perhaps is the gradual fitting-in to the senior "A" scheme of things of the Bellerville contingent. Keith MacDonald showed no fears of the higher calibre type, slamming home two goals on neat plays while Davy Jones proved one of the superlative goals of the night. Davy broke into the clear behind the Greenshirts' blueline, dipsy-doodled in front of Bob Senior, doked him neatly and whipped the puck into the net.

The team as a whole showed, believe it or not, not only a scoring improvement over the previous night's performance, but on their all-round play. There is still room for betterment, however, and Guidolin will bring this out in his planned practice drills.

He shuffled his lines again and used Vern Goyer in a defensive capacity at times. Larwin and the "Turk" showed well in the nets with Barclay robbing Kitchener's Rope on a solo breakaway in the dying seconds of the game.

The fact that the McFarlands scored seven goals against the Allan Cup champions, should provide some kind of an answer to local critics who apparently expected a Montreal Canadiens' performance against the senior "A" champions Friday night. It should be remembered too, that the Greenshirts are seasoned senior "A" veterans with not only championship experience behind them (they won the CAHA title in 1952 and 1955.) but they have world hockey training, too. On the other hand the McFarlands, like the other clubs in the Eastern Ontario senior "A" circuit, have to start from scratch and foundation training.

None of them as yet has figured the proper pieces into the right slots but it won't be too long before the pattern begins to take shape and this neck of the woods will see hockey almost as good as say in the province. The Eastern loop can hardly be expected to produce provincial champions in the first few years of operation and despite the fact other senior organizations of the province perhaps look down slightly-disdainful noses at the eastern upstarts the day may not be too far away when they discover that east of Hogtown they will find foemen worthy of their steel.

Sweep Win Pair Over Weekend Habs, Bruins Split Victories Loop Goalies Nab Spotlight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With seven games of the National Hockey League season already written off, about the only resemblance between the current standings and the way they stacked up at the end of the last campaign is that they involve the same six teams.

That, and the fact that Chicago Black Hawks are in last place.

Detroit Red Wings, who finished second last year behind Montreal Canadiens, are off flying with six points on three straight victories, including a 4-1 trouncing of the Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday night and a 2-1 squeak over New York Rangers Sunday at Detroit.

MONTREAL THIRD?

The Leafs and Boston Bruins, pretty bold second place, each picking up their first victories Sunday night to add two points to their total. Montreal Canadiens, a 3-0 loss to Canadiens at Montreal to win 3-1 at Boston while the Leafs needed only a first-period tally to defeat Chicago 1-0. Montreal thus is in the unfamiliar position of a third-place tie with the Rangers, a point back of Toronto and Boston, while Chicago is winless in three starts.

While it's too early for predictions, it's safe to say that one incident in the Saturday games at Toronto won't help the Wings. It cost Detroit a defeat, probably for eight weeks or more, of ace centre Alex Delvecchio.

LEG BROKEN

Delvecchio, ninth in the league's scoring last year with 25 goals and 26 assists, broke his right leg around the ankle late in the first period when he was all alone in the Detroit end. Dick Duff, he appeared to be trying to kick-the puck out of danger when he bounced off the boards and crumpled to the ice.

The Wings managed only 17 shots on Lead goalie Ed Chadwick including the four goals, while Glenn Hall in the Detroit nets handled all but one of a barrage of 26 fired at him by the young and eager Leafs.

Marv Pavelich put the Wings ahead early in the first period. Ron Stewart tied it up midway in the second but Ted Lindsay regained the edge with seconds to go and in the third period rookie Billy Dea and veteran Red Kelly put it out of Toronto's reach.

SCORES WINNER

Dea tallied again Sunday night at Detroit and it turned out to be the winner, coming after Norm Ullman's goal. The Rangers' tally was fired in the second period by Guy Gendron.

Of the two Montreal-Boston engagements, the Sunday night match produced the fewest incidents. Until the Canadiens' pulled goalie into the empty net, the Montreal club had been swarming all over the Boston cage looking for the equalizer. Terry Sawchuk was brilliant in turning aside 23 stops.

All the other scoring came in the first period, Bob Armstrong and Jerry Toppazzini beating Plante before Dickie Moore got Montreal's only tally.

ROUGH ONE SATURDAY

The Habs distributed the scoring over three periods in their shutout victory Saturday night at Montreal, Floyd Curry, Tom Johnson and Jean Beliveau accounted for the goals.

It was a rough game, particularly in the third period when a couple of fierce mix-ups eight men into the penalty box in little more than a minute. All in all there were 22 penalties, shared evenly.

Ted Sloan did the only scoring at Chicago, his unassisted goal in the first period giving the Leafs their first victory and the Hawks their second without hot and third defeat. Chadwick, helped by a tight-checking defence, made 31 stops including several of the spectacular variety. Al Rollins handled 21.

HUMEZ RETAINS CROWN

Rochester ORFU Club Ousted After Default

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A football experiment that brought a United States club into a Canadian league for the first time was officially proclaimed a flop Sunday.

The Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, at a league meeting here, voted to kick out Rochester Rockets and see what can be done to collect on some of the New York state club's financial obligations.

The parting of the ways appeared to be virtually by mutual consent, since Rochester's failure to turn up for a game with London Lords Saturday amounted to a withdrawal from the ORFU and a touched off the official ouster.

The addition of the fifth club had not been a notable success either on the scoreboard or at the gate. The Rockets lost all five of their starts, registering only 60 points while their opponents rushed them for 196.

The league will seek legal advice as to what action can be taken to collect a "completion" bond posted by Rochester at the start of the season.

The remaining revised schedule: Oct. 20: Kitchener at Sarnia, Toronto at London.

Oct. 26: Sarnia at Kitchener.

Oct. 29: Sarnia at London.

Nov. 3: Toronto at Kitchener.

Nov. 5: London at Toronto (to be played only if it has a bearing on the final standing).

The league spent as much time in the committee room during the weekend as it did on the field. Only one game was played, Toronto Beaches taking a comeback 41-17 victory over the Golden Bears at Sarnia.

The win moved Toronto to within two points of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, on top of the heap with seven wins and a loss for 14 points. The Bears are third, four points back of Toronto and four up on London.

Beaches moved into a 20-17 lead at the end of the third quarter after trailing at quarter and half time, then added three quick touchdowns in the final frame.

Toronto touchdowns were distributed among Ron Murray, Gene Rossi, Bernie Custis, Nayland Moll, Larry Babecki and Bob Smith. Bill Rankin kicked one convert and Tom Urowski four. Stan Rohllard and Cal Weaver scored touchdowns for Sarnia and Evelyn Robinson kicking accounted for a 25-yard field goal, a convert and a single.

Eskimos Snub Sasky Riders As Blue Bombers Blast Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Interprovincial Football Union has entered the home stretch with only three playoff teams picked, but any one of them has a chance to grab the first-place bye into the league final.

Edmonton's Grey Cup champion Eskimos, are favored to take first place for the third straight year. They whipped Saskatchewan Roughriders 37-17 before 14,500 fans at Regina Saturday to down Riders into a second-place tie with Winnipeg, two points behind Edmonton.

Blue Bombers defeated British Columbia Lions 40-8 on halfback Bob McNamara's record-equalling six touchdowns before 28,500 fans at Vancouver.

END SEASON EVEN

Saturday's meeting was the last of the schedule between Riders and Eskimos and left them 2-2 in four games. Bombers, however, meet the champions twice in their last three games—including tonight at Edmonton. Eskimos must win their last three games to top the league.

Lions, who saw their playoff chances leave with the Bombers Saturday night, are six points behind Bombers and Riders and a victory tonight over the last-place Stampeders at Calgary would do no more than keep alive a faint mathematical chance to tie Winnipeg or Saskatchewan for third place.

Bill Walker scored two Edmonton touchdowns, one on a 37-yard forward pass from quarterback Jackie Parker and the other by recovering an end-zone fumble by Rider halfback Alex Bravo. Parker scored once himself on a sneak-yard end sweep and passed 37 yards to Rollie Miles for another. Joe Mobra kicked four Edmonton converts and a field goal.

Frank Tripucka tossed a 14-yard touchdown pass to Harry Lampman and Bravo scored on a four-yard end run for Saskatchewan's two touchdowns. Reg Whitehouse kicked a convert and a field goal and Isbell got a single.

At Vancouver, McNamara equalled the Canadian mark for the number of touchdowns in one game. The former Minnesota all-American scored four of his touchdowns in the first half and took over the league scoring leadership with the 36-point output.

Buddy Leake, Bomber quarter and half, kicked four converts to complete the Bomber scoring and stay within two points of McNamara's touchdown total. Leake had led the scoring up to Saturday.

Halfback Ed Vereb scored Lions' touchdown and Ron Baker converted it while Vic Chapman punted for a single.

'Bold Ruler' May Emulate Nashua Feats

NEW YORK (AP)—Sonny Jim Fitzsimmons says farewell to his beloved Nashua today, the sadness of parting tempered with the knowledge that he has in the two-year-old Bold Ruler a horse that may well emulate the performances of the millionaire thoroughbred.

Nashua entrains for Lexington, Ky., and stud duty today after winning the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park—the race that the 82-year-old trainer wanted "most of all to win."

The four-year-old son of Nasrullah, for whom a syndicate headed by Leslie Combs II paid $1,251,000, closed out his racing career Saturday with a record of 22 victories in 30 starts and a world record earnings of $1,288,565. Six of his triumphs and earnings of $545,130 came in 10 outings for the syndicate.

"Yes, I really wanted to win that one," said Mr. Fitz in talking of Nashua's American record-shattering performance of 2:29 2-5 in the two miles of the Gold Cup.

SEVENTH IN EIGHT

Bold Ruler, also trained by Mr. Fitz and a son of Nasrullah, Saturday won the Belmont Futurity for his seventh triumph in eight starts. Nearactic, owned by E. F. Taylor of Toronto finished 11th.

For the record, Nashua had a two-year-old record of six victories and two seconds in eight trips to the post for earnings of $125,865. Bold Ruler, owned by Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable, has picked up $139,050 with the end not in sight.

There was reason for Mr. Fitz's sadness. He had taken Nashua from his yearling days through a brilliant two-year-old career, a only by defeat by Swaps in the Kentucky Derby (a setback later squared in a match race), saw him pass to new owners following the death of William Woodward Jr., and then nursed him through two attacks of colic before he went through his last season of racing to establish a money-winning record.

WIN NORFU TITLE

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Rouyn-Noranda Fantassins, in their second year of operation, Sunday won the Northern Ontario Rugby Football Union championship with a 2-0 victory over Sudbury Hardrocks, last year's champs.

Kitchener Greenshirts Edge McFarlands 8-7 in Open Game; Locals Show Scoring Promise

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

KITCHENER, Ont. — Belleville McFarlands in their second exhibition appearance of the season, racked up the highest score to date against the Kitchener Greenshirts, despite the fact they were edged 8-7 in a free-wheeling, high-scoring game, here Saturday night.

The Eastern Ontario senior "A" club, which bowed 8-0 to the Allan Cup champions in Belleville the night previous, flashed a scoring potential with Keith MacDonald and Lucien Gilbert pacing the pack with two goals each.

The Greenshirts were at full strength with Ken Laufman, Jack Taylor, Joe Schertzl and Billy Graham, the ORFU football sensation, back in the lineup. They did not play in Belleville. The McFarlands were without the services of Lloyd Hinchenberger, defence hunky, and coach Bep Guidolin, who directed the team from the players' bench.

Marcelle St. Pierre was credited with three assists while Willie McNard, Wally Samaniuk and Davy Jones scored the other goals. Jones' goal was one of the best of the night with the tall centre racing in full on Boo Boo Hope's Greenshirts nets, neatly deking him out of position to whip the puck behind him.

The McFarlands spotted the champions two goals in the first three minutes of the game but roared back with three to end the period with a 3-2 lead. The Greenshirts outscored the easterners 4-3 in the second period. The McFarlands broke the 5-5 all tie early in the third but with the champions scoring a pair to swing the game with Kitchener fighting home the winner. The McFarlands bitterly protested this goal claiming the puck did not cross the line, but the referees ruled otherwise.

Referees Al. Promaine, Toronto and Jack Clancey, Hamilton, Ohio) use the two-referee system in the western group), handed out 12 penalties, eleven to Greenshirts, one a misconduct to Theberge for over-exercise of the tonsils.

Kitchener used Don Senior and Don Oliver in the nets, with Senior giving way to Hec Belleville goals. Larwin worked two periods for the McFarlands in taking six of the eight Kitchener tallies marked against him.

One of these was more or less fluky with Willie Menard having the puck roll off the tip of his stick in front of the Belleville goal straight in front of Barlow who pushed it in the net.

Kowalchuk and Brooker scored quickly for Kitchener in the opening three minutes when the Greenshirts had the ball. Gilbert scored the first Belleville goal of the season with a sizzling drive that caught a screen centre after a two-man drive with St. Pierre. Then came Davy Jones' tying goal and with seconds to go Keith MacDonald got his first tally on a neat passing effort with Minnie Menard.

Chuck Henderson tied the count early in the third but seconds later Samaniuk again gave the Macs the lead on a passing effort with Sammy Mulholland and Bobby Bellerville's strikers were clicking at this point and Willie Menard put them two up from Bill Harper's pass. Then came Barlow's goal and Kitchener's Art Heuett scored two seconds to go to knot the count at six all.

Gilbert put the McFarlands in the lead after four minutes of play on a penalties started to pile up. McKenzie's high, hard-driving blast beat Barclay to knot the count and with seven minutes to go came Graham's protested goal to end the scoring.

The McFarlands staged a sustained offensive at this point but a sturdy Greenshirt defence kept them off the score sheet. In the closing minutes when the Greenshirts reversed the pressure Hope broke into the clear with nobody but Barclay to beat. The McFarland goalie outguessed him cleanly on his hard driving corner shot.

The Greenshirts' power plays paid off with five of their goals being scored with Belleville a man short. In the second period the McFarlands failed to capitalize when the Greenshirts were minus two players at one time. The champions' experience showed plenty in their penalty killing efforts. The McFarlands' goals were hard-earned, all but one counting with the homesters at full strength.

Rochester Ties Cleveland Barons In Home Debut

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans, new entry in the American Hockey League, made their home debut Sunday night and although the best they could do was a 2-2 tie with Cleveland Barons, the crowd of 6,306 got its money's worth in action.

Twenty - two penalties were handed out in the rough game—13 in the wild second period.

The Americans, jointly sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, made a good try for a win, taking the lead twice, on goals by Mike Nykoluk and Earl Balfour, only to have the Barons tie the score each time, first by Cal Stearns and then by Ike Hildebrand.

At Cleveland Saturday night, Rochester had built a pretty lead but the Barons came through with four unanswered third-period goals to win 5-3.

Elik and Bill Sweeney, rookies, got two goals each for the Barons' wit' Fred Glover and Stearns getting the others. Mickey Keating, Paul Masnick and Glen Cressman scored for Rochester.

Other games Sunday night, the league - leading Providence Reds whipped Springfield Indians 7-2 with Bruce Cline and Jim Bartlett scoring two goals apiece. Hershey Bears came from behind on two quick third-period goals by Vic Dunaba and Larry Wilson to pull out a 3-2 tie with Willie Marshall were the Hershey scorers.

On Saturday night Jimmy Anderson scored two goals to lead Springfield to a 4-3 win over Buffalo. George Blair and Ken Wharram scored for the Bisons while Bob Bailey and Maurice Collins got the other Springfield goals. Collins scored after goalie Harry Lumley was removed from the Buffalo net in the final minutes. Hershey Providence its first defeat Saturday night, winning 3-1 on goals by O'Brien, Lorne Davis and Larry Zeidel. Paul Larivee got the Providence tally.

Irish Colt Wins Jockey Cup at New Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Bally Donnell, four-year-old Irish colt owned by Joseph Tomlinson of Oakville and Winnipeg, ran the greatest race of his career Saturday to win the $15,000 Jockey Club Cup before a crowd of 13,751 at Toronto's Woodbine Park.

Bally Donnell shattered the track record as he ran the 1¼-mile distance in 2:03 2-5. Hedied by Vic Bovine, he an coupled as an entry with Marshal Nev 2nd and got $21,600 to the Bally Donnell was running confidently to beat the fast-charging Grand Canyon by a length.

Grand Canyon, a three-year-old competing against older horses, ran a smashing race. Man of Destiny, shipped in from New York by Hirsch Jacobs, was a close third.

Bally Donnell's purse was $12,650, his first major start since arriving in North America.

Larks Pound Argonauts 28-3 As Tiger-Cats Claw Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things around the Big Four Football Union are becoming too tame. The teams are doing what was supposed to do, having the second-guessers little to talk about.

Just about everybody said Montreal Alouettes would knock Toronto Argonauts kicking and Hamilton Tiger-Cats would whip Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday. And that's the way it went—the Als pounded Argonauts 29-13 and 'Cats came up with in the last touchdown fourth quarter to slap down the Riders 40-24.

If nothing else, the results straightened out the playoff situation. The mighty Als are sure of at least a first-place tie—one more win in their three remaining games will send them home free—and 'Cats also can count on a post-season series in the three-team playoff system.

That leaves it up to the second-place Argos and the scrappy Rough Riders—and that's where the fun could start. Riders have eight points, four less than 'Tiger-Cats and two more than Argonauts, and two victories would put them out of reach of the Toronto clubs.

Riders have a home-and-home series with Argonauts and a return-of-the-schedule match with Hamilton. Argos, who haven't won a game since Sept. 14, close out the season Nov. 3 at Montreal, a thought that would make any grey Argonaut shudder.

Quarter Sam Etcheverry had a nice injury Saturday in that there was nothing wrong with his throwing arm. The ugly Als signal-caller tossed two touchdown passes, to Hal Patterson and Jerry Pal, and east bruising Pat Abbruzzi and Fob James through the Argonaut line for the other touchdowns.

Bill Bewley kicked three converts and a single on a 28-yard field goal attempt.

Toronto's Arnie Galiffa also flexed touchdown passers, but Dick Shatto and Royal Copeland, but they came too late.

Argonauts' offence, losing two imports through injuries and it proved that their Canadians, if given a chance, were some shucks as ball-carrying players.

Rookie Bibbsy Kuntz, a homebrew from Kitchener, banged at the Montreal front wall for valuable yardage and Copeland, a Toronto veteran, was up to his old pass-catching tricks before the crowd of 18,679.

Rough Rider made it much more interesting at Hamilton. They led 14-0 at the end of the first quarter and 17-13 at the half, but TiCats pulled ahead in the third and wrapped up the game with their fourth-quarter offensive.

Tony Curcillo, picked up by Toronto midway through the season, tossed two touchdown passes to Pete Ridolfo, scored on by Hal Waggoner and crashed over himself for one. Gino Gilcinti went over the Ottawa line from two yards out for another and on the last play of the game Hal Truant intercepted a Hal Ledyard pass and rambled 30 yards for the sixth touchdown.

Steve Oneschuk kicked four converts.

Bobby Simpson took a 26-yard pass for one of the Ottawa touchdowns. Don St. John and Tom Lewis plunged over from two yards out for the others. Bud Korchak looted two converts and a field goal and Avatus Stone added a single.

DeMarco Whips Kid Gavilan

BOSTON (AP) — Tough Tony DeMarco, the 1955 contender for the welterweight title, sidetracked the comeback hopes of former champion Kid Gavilan by pounding out a unanimous 10-round decision over the Cuban veteran Saturday night at the Boston Garden.

DeMarco weighed 146, Gavilan, 148.

The 24-year-old Boston bomber, unable to unloose his barrage at long range, turned to short, jolting blows to the head and body of the stylish-boxing Gavilan. Gavilan's best efforts, a left hook and his famed bolo, had little effect on the rugged DeMarco, who himself a former champion.

The Cuban Reed- appeared as fast and as quick as ever, especially during his customary late round rallies, but he lacked the punch.

Referee Tommy Rawson scored the fight 98-94, Judge Jim Carrig the 98-97 and Joe Santoro, 97-91, all in favor of DeMarco.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Norm Ullman men, centre of Detroit's power line between Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe, has taken the early lead in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Ullman has scored seven goals and assisted on two others in Detroit's first three games, putting him one ahead of four other players tied for second place.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Ullman, Detroit	3	2	5
Sloan, Toronto	3	0	3
Toppazzini, Boston	2	1	3
Reibel, Detroit	0	3	3
Howe, Detroit	0	3	3

Quebec Aces Nip Shawinigan; Royals Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces spoiled Shawinigan Falls' 1956-57 debut Sunday, defeating last year's Quebec Provincial League champions 3-1 before 4,000 disappointed fans.

It was the Aces' second victory in as many starts. Orval Tessier scored two of their goals while Gene Achtymichuk got the other. Connie Brodin was the lone Catfan marksman.

Other OHL action saw Montreal Royals down Peterboro Petes 4-1 on a left 5-1 and Chicoutimi Sagueneens edge Ottawa Canadiens 3-2.

Quebec's 6-2-1 Montreal fans saw Kelly Burnett, Andre Corriveau, Phil Lavette, Guy Rouleau and John Gillis score for Montreal. Ray Lemieux netted goalie Jerry McNeil's shutout bid.

Second-period goals by Jacques Lacasse and Rene Hicks gave the Sagueneens their season opener and spoiled the Ottawans' debut.

Gerry Wilson scored for the losers.

The Ottawa entry is the junior club that shifted to the capital this season from Montreal. It retains its junior status while playing an abbreviated schedule in the professional league.

GIVE UP TEAM

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—William Lannan announced Sunday he has sold the Ontario Hockey Association there will be no senior hockey team here this season.

COMMISSIONER RESIGNS

TORONTO (CP)—Peters McKenzie has resigned as commissioner of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association, it was announced Sunday by secretary Charles Rowan.

All Sports Are Segregated In Louisiana

NEW YORK (AP) — Louisiana today segregated all sports.

It will be illegal for white and Negro amateur or professional players to compete in the same athletic contests, the boxing commission or contests.If Spectators also must be segregated. The maximum penalty for violation is $1,000 fine and one year imprisonment.

Although the law passed in the regular May session of the legislature did not take effect until today, its provisions have been felt for weeks.

Soon after Democratic Governor Earl Long signed the bill July 17, some colleges began cancelling their commitments to appear in Louisiana. Some withdrew because of Negroes on their squads. Others said they were withdrawing on grounds of prejudice.

WRESTLER WITHDRAWS

The University of Wisconsin was the first to act. It ended its 1957-58 athletic relations with Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge.

Seven schools called off basketball games set for next season. Notre Dame, Marquette and St. Louis quit the Sugar Bowl tournament. Then, Auburn and Virginia Tech to play with Kentucky, only team remaining of the original field invited.

Boxing previously was the only sport specifically segregated throughout the state. That ban was applied through a rule of the Louisiana State Athletic Association. The new law prohibits white boxers from working out with Negro boxers in public.

Because of the new law, only a few major league baseball players from Negro ranks are expected in the state each training season.

Swedish Horse Enters Big Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The Laurel International will get one of its top entries from Sweden today while losing one from France.

Chancellor, owned by Swedish owner of the Danish and Norwegian dobles, is the 21st horse to be named from the Scandinavian countries to the $100,000 Laurel Handicap inaugurated in 1952 and to be run Nov. 12 this year.

Acceptance by his owner, Kurt Lundell, president of the Stockholm Racing Association, arrived with word Marcel Boussac of France that his Macep has to be scratched.

Macep broke a small bone in a leg galloping at Newmarket in England, Boussac reported, and will be out of competition for a year.

Ill Luck Dogs Miss 'Supertest' Smashes Sponson in Record Try

PICTON — The challenge of Miss Supertest II to beat the world record for unlimited class speedboats over a measured mile failed here Saturday afternoon when the craft struck a wake from a wave from an outboard anchored on shore. The sponson of he 6000-pound Canada Cold Cup contender from London, Ontario, was smashed, putting it out of further contention for some time. Driver Danny Foster of Detroit escaped with a cut on the nose as the craft rolled and dived before straightening out again. Prompt action on the part of rescue boats prevented the boat from sinking before it was beached.

Ideal weather and water conditions prevailed in the late afternoon. Miss Supertest was completing the first mile when the accident occurred and would have had to cover the course in the opposite direction in order to establish a record. She was clocked on the first mile, just three seconds short of the end, having averaged 190 miles per hour, which is 12 miles per hour better than the record set by Slo-Mo-Shun of Seattle in 1950.

RECORD WITHIN GRASP

Confident that they had a record within their grasp, owner J. Thompson and driver Foster expressed disappointment that bad luck continues to dog Canada's only unlimited speed boat which, at Picton regatta in July, defeated the cream of United States unlimited over a 15-mile course.

Miss Supertest set a new Canadian and British Empire record for propeller-driven craft a year ago by racing against the measured mile at 135 mph. She struck a submerged object and damaged the hull.

Bad luck continued to dog the boat during the 1958 racing season. In the Harmsworth race on Detroit, she damaged a sponson before the race but was able to win one heat. Later in the season, racing for the President's Cup in Washington, Miss Supertest II was far out in front when she hit a submerged object and ripped her sponsons, forcing her out of the race.

The trial was sanctioned by the Canadian Yachting Association with Robert Finlayson as referee and Jack Cole of Prince Edward Yacht Club, official timer.

Hundreds of spectators lined the high banks overlooking the course on the Reach of Picton Bay. Looking west over a colorful panorama of tree and bush in autumn dress, they first heard the whine of the motors. Then the great craft came into view, riding smoothly and sending up a giant rooster tail in the wake. All realized that a new record was in the making. Then the crowd gasped as the boat rocked twice and came to a bullet-like halt, about 100 yards from the end of the first mile. The craft started to sink and Foster climbed on the cockpit. Rescue craft attached lines and were able to get it to Cole's dock before it was beached, partly submerged.

Early morning trials had to be postponed until noon o'clock due to a high wind and rough water. As the wind died, conditions became ideal.

TERRIFIC SPEED

"I have never seen a hydroplane go so fast and I believe she was doing better than Slo-Mo-Shun ever did", declared R. Finlayson.

"It is a great disappointment but it does not mean the end of her racing", said owner Thompson. "It will need major repairs but we will be back again next year."

Among those assisting with the craft were Bruce Wells, chief mechanic who was assisted by Victor Jeffreys and Douglas Wimperis, all of London. W. Turner represented the Rolls-Royce people.

Miss Supertest, built at Sarnia is 31 feet long, 12 feet wide and has engines develop 3000 horsepower.

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

Where Do the Used Cars Come From?
Some people regard used cars with a certain amount of suspicion.
"If a car is in good condition, why was it traded in?" they ask.
Look at it this way. When a car comes off the assembly line it is good for many, many years of driving. Every few cars are kept until they are worn out by the original owner. Cars are traded because there would be very few new cars sold each year.
New designs, new features and mechanical improvements are all good reasons why a man turns in his perfectly good car for the latest model . . . and rightly so.
Because of the large number of NEW cars we sell year after year, the cars traded in are mostly one-owner, clean, dependable and with low mileage. That's one reason why you'll get a BETTER car when you deal at Pinder's.

Most Beautiful Girl in World Could Win $250,000 on Show

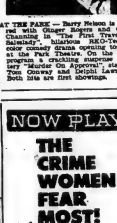
By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandra Rehn would like to be the most beautiful girl in the world. Maybe she is. At least she has a good start in that direction.

Sandra is 21, stands five feet six, weighs 120, her eyes are blue-gray and her hair is brownette. "(A brownette, she explains, is lighter than a brunette.) Her face is comely, her figure well-formed.

These qualifications will not necessarily make Sandra the most beautiful girl in the world—not under the ground rules of a new television program which makes its debut on NBC-TV Oct. 22 (at 8 p.m., EST) and is called, quite appropriately, The Most Beautiful Girl in the World.

Sandra must be talented and Sandra must be intelligent under the rules. On these bases she seems to qualify again, for she is one of 20 girls selected thus far to appear on the program from more than 1,000 applicants. While she will not necessarily appear on the first program, she will appear on an early one.



STUDIED DRAMATICS

She spent two years in the school of speech at Northwestern University studying dramatics. She came to New York with three girl friends to seek that elusive thing called a career.

Sandra now is appearing on the Walter Winchell Show (NBC-TV) and the Jackie Gleason Show (CBS-TV). Someone urged her to apply for The Most Beautiful Girl in the World contest. A dramatic bit she performed was approved, as was her intelligent and level-headed conversation.

Sandra, of course, is only one of many hopeful girls who face this contest. One of them has the chance of eventually winning $250,000. Supposing it should be Sandra? What would she do?

"Well—" her eyes widen—"I guess I'd go right on doing just about what I am now."

Gruber Does Not Like to Get On Horse But Writes Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Gruber claims to be the most prolific writer in the United States and he could be right.

Add up 37 books, 52 screen plays and 350 short stories and you've got a hunk of writing. That's what Gruber has produced in 22 years of work at a typewriter. What's more he has sold 16 of his books to the movies, and if that isn't a record, I'll be surprised.

"I don't think any author today has turned out more work than I have," said Gruber, a friendly, assured man who likes to talk about his business. "Not even Erle Stanley Gardner. He never writes more than three or four books a year, and I've written as many as nine. And he's never written for the screen."

NOTED FOR WESTERNS

Gruber's specialty is westerns—"We call them novels of the West because that sounds better." Among the films from his writings: Broken Lance, Rawhide, Tension at Table Rock and his current book, Buffalo Grass, already filmed by Alan Ladd.

It's an unusual specialty for a man who was born in Elmer, Minn., grew up in Chicago, found writing success in New York and spent his recent years in Hollywood.

"It's no great love of mine—I don't even like to get on a horse," he admitted. "But I have read everything I could find about the West and I've toured all over it, talking to people who knew Jesse James, Billy the Kid and so forth."

The result has been well-plotted, well-backgrounded action stories that appeal to the film makers.

DRIVEN BY POVERTY

Gruber might never have mined this western gold if it hadn't been for the depression.

"I was in the trade magazine business in Chicago," he recalled. "I was doing pretty well at it, but the depression struck and my salary kept getting smaller and smaller. When it got down to $30 a week in 1934, I said to heck with it.

"I had always wanted to write. So I decided I'd rather go to New York and starve as a writer than starve in Chicago as a trade magazine editor."

His first year in the big city netted him only $400. But the next year brought $10,000 and he's been climbing ever since. A couple of his books were sold the films at over $50,000 and several in the $25,000 range.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You bridge players who like plenty of tough meat in what is fed you, sharpen your molars. You can sink your teeth into what you are going to get here for some fine cuts.

You are going to get the deals played in the finals of the last international championship. With each piece I will mention some highlight on the conditions, conventions, and such.

In my yesterday space was shown deal number one. In case you missed it, here it is again:

NORTH
♠K 7
♥7 2
♦K J 7 3
♣A 9 8 6 5 4

WEST
♠J 7
♥10 6
♦A Q J 10
♣9 8 5

EAST
♠Q 10 9 5 4 3
♥K J 9 4
♦4
♣10 3

SOUTH
♠A 8 6
♥A Q 8 5 3
♦2
♣K Q J 7

It was Sweden against the United States in the finals of a 256 deals; team of four play with same cards in two rooms. In each room sits a pair from each team, only in opposite directions.

In this type of play, bonuses are paid for holding honors. This had an important effect in the very first deal in which neither side was vulnerable. The bids started off exactly alike in each room.

After north and east passed, south opened with one heart and west jumped to four diamonds. North doubled in both rooms. Then came a difference in the final contract.

Where the Swedish team played north and south the player in south did not let the double stand. Instead, he went to four hearts and made it for a score of 420 points.

Where the American team played north-south, the South player passed the double and defeated the four diamonds doubled by three tricks. An outside score of 500 points by Sweden.

But when west was able to deduct 100 points for honors in his trump suit, their loss was only 400 points. This meant that Sweden won in both rooms in the first deal of this star match.

With so much to tell about this match it may take a long time in small portions. So, prepare yourself for a siege.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, Oct. 16, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) —

Uranus and Mercury are both well aspected today. Both favor mental alertness and new changes for the better. However, be extra careful to avoid recklessness, errors.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) —

Much is up to you personally now. Sensible caution in financial and business matters should put your affairs on the right side of the ledger. You may have to guide others; stress conscientiousness.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) —

Stimulating, energizing Mercury rays should speed you on to unusual achievement if you keep your head and senses about you. Be creative but not extravagant in desires or ideas.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) —

Your innate sense of what is needed and desired should serve you well today. While not too easy a period, it is one in which returns will be in proportion to the efforts expended. Take time to think.

July 24 to Aug. 23 (Leo) —

You may have to reach beyond your own field for new advantages now. Fresh opportunities always abound, even on the so-called "poor" days. You have good ideas, business sense; emphasize them.

Aug. 24 to Sept. 23 (Virgo) —

Splendid vibrations for original ideas, creative matters. Without going to extremes, step away from the usual humdrum and try something different.

Sept. 24 to Oct. 23 (Libra) —

A little extra exertion and some revision of ideas could add to your day's returns. Review your schedule carefully but not anxiously, then proceed with faith and the knowledge that you can succeed.

Oct. 24 to Nov. 22 (Scorpio) —

It is not too late nor is time too limited to start that new project, or to engage in new studies, experiments. Influences encourage and stimulate most activities.

Nov. 23 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)

Think carefully while getting today's schedule in order so that you can proceed without red tape or fuss. You can gain benefits, advance in your interests with sensible caution.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 20 (Capricorn)—

You don't need to have everything bright and brand new to attain the advancement or progress possible now. Influences are favorable to sound matters generally. A fine time for mental work, too.

Jan. 21 to Feb. 19 (Aquarius)—

This day's influences suggest that you be alert, ready for action, and willing to work for fine achievement. Don't delay; act!

Feb. 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

This day's influences are encouraging for keen thinking, planning, smart manoeuvring to get into the right position for accomplishment. Ahead!

You born today are innately reasonable, pleasant and sensible. You have fine assets with which to meet life's problems. You are roundly talented, able and have a great amount of common sense and intuition. Don't be too set in your ideas and ways. It is important to keep up with progress.

Pinball Machines Must Be Removed Says Roberts

TORONTO (CP)—An estimated 200 to 250 pinball machine distributors are to meet here today to discuss an announcement by Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario outlawing the machines.

Mr. Roberts announced Friday that shopkeepers with pinball machines face prosecution if they do not get rid of them.

One distributor here said between 400 and 600 individual operators who employ more than 1,000 men are liable to be put out of business by the ruling. He said one operator may have as many as 80 machines.

He said the individual operators put machines on premises on a commission basis. Some dealt in other machines but the income from these would not be enough to keep them going.

SAME AS SLOT

Mr. Roberts said a recent Supreme Court of Canada ruling put the pinball machines in the same category as slot machines, which are illegal. He said operators or distributors or shopkeepers would be prosecuted even if no prizes were given.

He said police would give just one warning, which, if ignored, would be followed by prosecution while others said authorities will have to make the first move.

Commenting on the Toronto announcement, Windsor Police Chief Carl W. Farrow said that if pinball machines have been ruled illegal, "we will have to close them up."

Parents have complained in the past about their children playing the machines, he said, and "in any case, I don't see that the machines serve any useful purpose."

Forty Plus Club Helping Workers Over That Age

WASHINGTON (AP)—You are 45 years old—in your prime.

Things are going well. You have an executive position with a fair-sized business firm. Junior is in college and sis is almost through high school.

Then the bottom drops out. That old substantial firm you've worked for all these years is keyed to business efficiency and mass production of a marketable product at a lower price—and you find your own job gone.

You are physically fit, mentally capable and have what you consider a wealth of experience in the business world. But after months of looking about you find that no employer wants you because you are over 40.

What do you do?

HAS PART ANSWER

Well, an organization thinks it has the answer, at least in part. The non-profit agency is the Forty Plus Club. There are ones already in Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Buffalo.

The challenge is not just one of finding jobs for various individuals seeking the aid of the club—which it does. It is also one of studying the skills, problem of what to do about the skilled executive or professional man of that age group who still is employable but who finds himself out of a job through no fault of his own.

The way Forty Plus clubs work is to accept for membership any qualified executive or professional man who is willing to devote two days a week of his time to the organization while seeking re-employment.

Members through their business, government and professional contacts keep an eye peeled for job opportunities for other fellow members. Active members who secure positions then become sponsor, or associate, members who continue to aid, if possible, members still seeking posts.

SOVIETS TALK TRADE

PARIS (Reuters) — A Soviet mission arrived here Sunday for negotiations on a three year trade agreement with France, beginning next year. Pavel Kumykin, leader of the delegation, said the volume of trade between the two countries at the end of the three-year period would be three to four times as great as it was last year.

WEST LOS ANGELES (AP) — Character actor Barry Atwater, 38, told police Sunday he cut a small entrance in his door for his two cats. A burglar ripped out the fellows' entrance, reached up and opened the door. Missing are several hundred dollars' worth of clothing and jewelry, a clock radio and a tape recorder.

DEFLORES RED BED

NEW YORK (AP) — "Russia is not sleeping properly," says a mattress company executive just back from the Soviet Union. John W. Hubbell said that a thin, cotton filled mattress used on many Russian beds is at fault. He said he paid 170 rubles — about $42.50 — for one of the Russian mattresses.

4TH SIDNEY

4-H Club Girls Start Project, Elect Officers

4TH SIDNEY — The members of the 4-H Club met in the Wallbridge School on Thursday evening to start the new project, "Being well dressed and well groomed," with 23 girls present.

The election of officers was the first business on the program and they are as follows: president, Anna Gray; vice-president, Marion Woods; secretary, Frances Tucker; treasurer, Pearl Tucker; press reporter, Shirley Chisholm and leaders, Mrs. C. Woods, Mrs. W. Shorey and Mrs. F. Tucker.

It was decided to hold the meetings in the school house on Thursday evenings at 8 o'clock until demonstrations and sewing are started and then smaller groups will be formed.

A general outline of the project was given by the leader. This project is to help the girls develop a high standard of personal appearance, care of clothing, choosing materials and patterns wisely and later making a slip. The girls will equip a sewing box with scissors, tape and other essentials.

Mrs. C. Woods discussed cleanliness and what methods are best used to achieve same.

Plans were started for the making of a slip, measurements taken and what materials are best.

Record books are kept, including the minutes of each meeting and club story.

At the next meeting each girl will be asked to answer the roll call with a name for the club.

School Equipped to Train 200 Blind and Dogs a Year

By MICHAEL CRISSAN

MORRISTOWN, N. J. (AP)— You have seen the familiar pair on the streets: The blind man in his hatted sight and the alert dog guiding him through busy traffic.

This strange cooperation between sightless human and speechless animal is promoted here. The seeing eye school has its classrooms or textbooks. Here, on the busy streets of Morristown, you will see the blind master and his dog walking together, followed by a watchful instructor read to correct their mistakes.

Since the organization was established in 1929, some 2,300 blind men and women have been trained at the school. Now they earn their livelihoods in a hundred different fields.

The school is equipped with a teaching staff and facilities to train at least 200 blind persons and dogs a year. While it takes four years to train one of the sighted instructors, it takes only three months to teach a dog and one month to train a blind person.

George de Betaz, vice-president of the organization and supervisor of the school, says best dogs for the blind are German shepherds and boxers, but individual dogs of other breeds are also used by the school.

"As a rule," he said, "we prefer female dogs. They're less stubborn and aggressive."

It costs $1,300 to train a dog and a blind person but each applicant is asked to pay only $150 as his share toward the cost of training of the dog, his adjustment to the animal and room and board during the training period.

NO ONE DENIED DOG

Although seeing eye dogs are not given away, no applicant has ever been denied one for lack of funds. Those who haven't the money can pay as little as $1 a month. The philanthropic organization is supported by gifts.

When their first dog dies and they come back to school for a month's training with a new animal, blind persons are charged only $50. These contributions, de Betaz says, are required by the organization to help blind persons maintain their self-respect.

Some dogs are given to the school and others are purchased, but the organization maintains its own breeding farm, 13 miles from the school.

DOGS ARE COLOR BLIND

The first stage is to teach the dog obedience. The animal must learn to advance or turn right or left when the master commands.

Many people think a guide dog watches traffic lights when crossing a street. This is not true, de Betaz says, because dogs are color blind. But the master learns to judge the movement of traffic by ear and at the right time, commands the dog "forward." The dog, on the other hand, does what you would do when crossing a street without traffic lights — he watches right and left to make sure it is clear.

In the second training phase the dog learns what the school calls "intelligent disobedience." The animal learns to ignore his master's order when he thinks it is dangerous to follow it and, on his own initiative, find a safer solution.

JOHNSTOWN

Talents Parable Message at United Church

JOHNSTOWN — Johnstown United Church held its Thanksgiving communion service on Sunday afternoon. The Rev. G. A. Puttenham chose St. Matthew 25 for the Scripture reading. His subject was, "The parable of the talents." "Jesus did not give to all the same talents, but he entrusted something to each of us. He gave one five talents, to another three and yet to another one talent, and this one did nothing with his talent and the Lord was displeased with him. There are different talents, spiritual, social, political.

"The Lord will hold us accountable for the talents He has entrusted to us. Money is another thing we are responsible for. The area north of Blind River will soon be a uranium town of some 20,000 people. These people need churches, so money will be needed to build those churches. During the last ten years, the United Church has built a new church every ten days. Our country is growing so fast it takes a lot of money to keep pace with things.

"We have to have the compassion that our Lord and Master felt. Sometimes we say, 'Let the town do it.' The talent of compassion opens keys to other things. We should do something about the homeless children all over the world. We are called as witnesses for Christ. If this country is to be evangelized, it will depend upon us to do it. If we are Christians, we must accept what we are given and do something about it."

Mother Learns Son, Companion Alive And Well

Two Still on Ketch Orenda In Attempt to Cross Ocean

Father Rescues Three Children, Wife From Home

TORONTO (CP) — Three children huddled on the roof of a flaming suburban Etobicoke home today as their father rescued them and his wife.

Sid Drury and his wife suffered burns but the three children on the roof and two others were rescued safely.

The family was aroused by Joe Drury, 24, the oldest son, who was awakened by smoke swirling through his ground-floor bedroom.

The father led three of his sons, Reg, 16, Bobby, 9, and Billy, 6, out of a window and onto a kitchen roof.

RESCUES WIFE

Then he returned for his wife. He dragged her to the ground and fetched a ladder, carrying his wife down as flames began to envelope them.

Mrs. Drury was admitted to hospital with burns to her back, hands and face.

Mr. Drury was released after treatment for burned hands.

Joe Drury and Tom, 23, another son, escaped through the front door.

Firemen blamed a steam kettle cord for the outbreak.

Queen Presents Swans to U.S. Air Force Man

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen has presented a pair of royal swans to a United States Air Force sergeant to prevent a lonely male swan in Florida from dying of a "broken heart," the News Chronicle says.

Sgt. Robert Pickhardt, stationed at the Upper Heywood air force base, 60 miles northwest of London, wrote the Queen so he could save a swanncry in Lakeland, Fla., from extinction.

"With my wife and small son not long ago I went to Stratford on Avon," Pickhardt told the newspaper. "The swans reminded my wife of the swans that we raised at one time in Lakeland."

I wrote to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and contact was made with the Lord Chamberlain's department.

"We were thrilled to get a wonderful letter saying Her Majesty was granted a pair of her royal swans to be sent through us as a gift from her to Lakeland."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Warm, hazy weather continues over Ontario and every prospect of its lasting through Wednesday.

Temperatures which Monday ranged from 50 in northwestern Ontario to north of 70 in the Superior will be equalled today and Wednesday.

A few isolated thundershowers which occurred in Michigan and Wisconsin Monday night are shifting northeastward so that some places, mainly in central and northern Ontario, probably will get rain for a short while, sometime today or Wednesday.

TORONTO (CP)—A mother who three weeks ago refused to believe her son and his English companion had died in an attempt to cross the Atlantic in a 28-foot ketch has learned that both are alive and well.

Mrs. May Smith of Toronto said Monday night her son Bert, 31, and Allan Battersby of Blackpool have been heard from. They were in their small craft, the Orenda. Reported still bound for England, the ketch, with Smith and Battersby as crew, left Sydney, N.S., Sept. 1 en route to England. It was sighted Sept. 22 by the liner America drifting broken-masted on a stormy sea. There was no sign of life.

Mrs. Smith said Monday she received a cablegram from her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Violet Smith, who is waiting in London to meet her husband.

SENT FROM SHIP

The cablegram had been sent from the freighter Maribianca, which apparently drew up to the Orenda at sea. The Maribianca was reported to have given Smith and Battersby provisions and then sent a message from Smith to his wife. The cablegram was relayed by Violet to Smith's mother. It read:

"Dismasted. Making port on short sail. SS Maribianca provided enough provisions at sea."

It was the first news of the men since the ketch was seen by the America.

"Thank God the two of them are safe," Mrs. Smith said. "I have been praying every night that they would be all right. All I can think about now is that they are alive."

Mrs. Smith said her son had talked of sailing the Orenda back to Canada after visiting England, but he "may come back by liner and go back next year to sail the yawl home."

FEELS CONFIDENT

"Whatever he does, I feel confident because if he can survive this, I'm sure he'll come through anything else at all right."

She said she "never believed Bert was dead, even when Heard on America's report. He's a wonderful boy and they had probably sheltered themselves below deck during the storm."

Smith and Battersby built the Orenda in Toronto. Smith started an Atlantic crossing two years ago but gave up when he could find companions backed out in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Smith plans a big party for her son. He will be 32 Thursday and the yawl will be a belated birthday greeting.

EAGER HUNTERS

HALIFAX (CP)—An average of $33.75 was paid for rifles confiscated from owners who came to Canada after World War II, when eager hunters attended a provincial auction here recently. Prices ranged from $17 for converted military weapons to $168 for a sleek high-power rifle with telescopic sights.

Queen Will Pull Lever Wednesday To Start First A-Power Station

CALDER HALL, England (Reuters)—The atomic age will invade British homes Wednesday when the Queen pulls a lever at the world's first station to use atomic power station, switching current into the nationwide electrical grid.

The power station, which cost more than £15,000,000 ($42,000,000) 3½ years to build, was built by British engineers and Authority staff with the aim of investigating the use of nuclear energy for the production of electrical power and of providing plutonium for the defence program.

The plutonium will be produced as a by-product in the station's atomic pile. The station, the first of two being built at Calder Hall, will begin by pumping 10 megawatts of electricity into the national system—enough to light a fair-sized town.

H. G. Hart, a senior executive of the Atomic Energy Authority, said:

"We know that the Americans have generated small quantities for experimental purposes, but nothing like the figure of 10 megawatts. This is the first time we have told the Russians, but I base my opinion that they, too, have not gone beyond experimental purposes by the expression of their faces when they came to Calder Hall recently."

When Calder Hall is completed, it will house two nuclear power stations with a total installed capacity of 184 megawatts.

The first station is expected to be operating at full capacity early next year and the second will be ready in 1958.

ACK-ACK IN ARCTIC BEING STUDIED BY DEFENCE EXPERTS

Missiles to Be Used Instead of Fighters

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence planners now are beginning to study the possibility of installing anti-aircraft missile batteries in the Canadian Arctic.

They say establishment and maintenance of such a defensive system would be immeasurably simpler than trying to base fighter squadrons in the Far North.

Gen. Charles Foulkes, chairman of the Chiefs of Staff, said in a recent speech that enemy bombers would have to be intercepted beyond the settled parts of Canada to avoid the effects of radioactive fall-out on the population.

Officials say that to accomplish this greater radar, the supersonic CF-105 jet fighter and ground-to-air guided missile will have to be introduced into the air defence system. Introduction of more radar and the CF-105 equipped with atomic-head guided missiles will come at about the same time.

Anti-aircraft missiles are not expected to arrive on the Canadian scene until around 1960. Radar will supplement but not replace fighter planes. They will have a range of about 100 miles and the possibility of carrying atomic warheads.

COMBINE PLANES, RADAR

A combination of more radar, the CF-105, missiles and electronic computers to aid in their operations should, in the opinion of defence planners, provide a new measure of defence into the mid-1960s.

All these things will cost a good deal of money and defence authorities do not foresee the possibility of any major cuts in defence spending during the next eight or 10 years. In fact, costs may rise some. The defence budget for the 1956-57 years has been $1,775,000,000 a year.

Adenauer Changes Defence Minister

BONN (Reuters) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today announced a cabinet reshuffle of his cabinet, giving the key post of defence minister to Atomic Energy Minister Franz Josef Strauss.

Strauss succeeds Blanks over the post from Theodor Blank, adviser on conscription, modern army and West Germany. Blank, a veteran trade unionist and advocate of a "citizen army," was criticized for the lagging remilitarization program.

A major surprise of the long expected cabinet shakeup was that Gerhard Schroeder succeeds Bluecher as vice-chancellor. Earlier predictions had the post would go to Heinrich von Brentano so he could be groomed to succeed the 80-year-old chancellor.

The changes reduce the government from 20 to 19 ministers.

CALLS OF SEARCH

EDMONTON (CP)—The RCAF announced Monday it is calling off the large-scale search for two of eight airmen who were aboard, missing for 17 days in the Northwest Territories, when their aircraft, however, will continue to make a daily reconnaissance.

THE BEAR THAT CAME ONCE TOO OFTEN

One bear that came once too often to steal honey is this 450-pound monster shot by beekeeper Edwin Byers of Queensboro. Byers had lost 20 winter bee colonies to Mr. Bruin, so he set a packing case for seven hours with a 12-gauge, double-barrelled shotgun at his side waiting for the bear to appear again. When the marauder did show up, Byers did not miss. It is the seventh bear he has shot in the past three years. (Central Press Canadian).

Tito Must Explain Talks With Russians to Get Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower says Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito must give a satisfactory explanation of his confidential talks with Russian leaders before he can get promised American jet warplanes.

Eisenhower made this clear Monday night in authorizing only limited military aid to Yugoslavia "until the situation can be more accurately appraised during the days to come."

Eisenhower specifically banned delivery, for the present at least, of more than 100 American Sabre jet and Thunder-jet fighters, previously earmarked for Yugoslavia, along with howitzers, tanks and other heavy military equipment.

Eisenhower declared Tito's government eligible for full economic aid which has helped prop up Yugoslavia since it broke with the Kremlin with four years of Communist rule by insisting that Tito was doing everything to make certain it "remains justified in future circumstances."

The changes reduce the government from 20 to 19 ministers.

11 Quick Arrests Among Crowd Of 250 Pickets

WINDSOR (CP)—Police made 11 quick arrests among a pushing, cursing crowd of 250 pickets at the strikebound Windsor plant of the Canadian Bridge Co. early in the day when pickets tried to stop a group of 51 men returning to work.

It was the latest development in the four-week strike and raised to 21 the number of pickets arrested. The 11 arrested face charges in court later today. Of 10 who were charged in court Monday, nine were remanded until today.

Police carrying machine guns, tear gas bombs and riot sticks took up stations at the plant's entrance in the morning on the strength of rumors which said 4,000 pickets would be on hand.

More than 100 police were ordered to the plant but only 250 confronted the pickets. The other 50 were concentrated in a nearby alley with machine guns and tear gas.

PREVENT TROUBLE

Police said the arresting unruly pickets calmed the strikers and the scene of disorder during the shopbreaking Saturday found the arrest involved a trucking operation. Police said the men attempted to carry away the loot, Elmer McComb, 26, was charged with stealing $4,000 worth of electrical equipment.

10 Top U.S. Leaders Will Dedicate Rocket-Launching Site in North

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) Ten top American military leaders will dedicate the $30,000,000 rocket-launching site, 12 miles east of here in the scientific program of the International Geophysical Year.

Lt.-Gen. James Gavin, deputy chief of staff for U.S. Army research and development, will arrive on a U.S. Northern Canadian base with nine other military personnel on Thursday morning.

IGY, a co-operative scientific endeavor by 54 countries to study the composition and phenomena of the upper atmosphere, will start in July, 1957, and continue to December, 1958. Only the U.S., Britain, France, Japan and Australia have undertaken rocket explorations.

In the next two months, eight rockets, loaded with scientific instruments, will be shot into space in preliminary experiments at the rocket , site, 610 miles north of Winnipeg on Hudson Bay.

One rocket may be to aid scientists in their efforts to eventually obtain some control over the weather.

Scientists are recognizing that a more accurate understanding of the upper atmosphere is needed before long-range weather forecasting.

Storms gather in the air at heights beyond which weather balloons can rise.

Scientists want to know the composition of the upper atmosphere, wind patterns, density, temperature and the quantity of cosmic rays at high altitudes. Cosmic rays, it has been learned recently, are swarms of subatomic particles which have a decided affect on weather.

SYRIA SENDS HEAVY WEAPONS TO AID JORDAN

Iraq Delays Sending Troops Across Border

JERUSALEM (AP) — A report that Iraqi troops will not yet move into Jordan headed today by relax tension on both sides of the Israeli-Jordan border. But Syria announced she is sending in a gift of heavy weapons to help in the defence of Jordan's frontier with Israel.

Syria's military attache in Amman, the Jordanian capital, told a press conference that a military mission from his country accompanied the weapons to Amman but Jordanians to use them. He said more Iraqi troops arrived from Syria will reach Jordan later this month and early in November.

Syrian Ambassador Fouad Kadamani said the arms shipment began moving into Jordan after midnight and was still coming this morning. He called the weapons an unconditional gift from the Syrian people to help defend Jordan's borders, which he termed the first Arab line of defence against Israeli attacks.

REPORT BY PAPER

The decision to hold off on the planned reinforcement of Jordan's army by 5,000 Iraqi troops was reported by the Amman newspaper Falastin. It helped to clear the atmosphere in Amman, where war fears mounted after the Israeli attack on David Ben-Gurion warned his government reserved the right of freedom of action if the Iraqis crossed into the neighboring Arab kingdom.

Al Jihad said that during Monday's talks in Amman between Jordan's King Hussein and Iraq's Crown Prince Abdul Ilah, agreement was reached that the Iraqi troops would stay just outside Jordan's borders but would join Hussein's forces in the event of Israeli aggression.

Princess Meets Suitor's Brother

ARUSHA, Tankanyika (Reuters) Princess Margaret today (fished for brilliant silver) in her first meeting with a British district commissioner named Francis Townsend.

Francis Townsend, brother of her reported suitor Group Capt. Peter Townsend, met Margaret at a barrage of photographers' flashbulbs here Masai warriors.

As Townsend stepped to the front of the line of Masai warriors, looked him full in the eyes and grinned warmly.

Masai tribesmen, once the fiercest warriors in East africa, early today performed rain dances for Princess Margaret's sixth barraza since they started her last African safari.

Hundreds of warriors, their bodies daubed in red ochre and their hair plastered into mud ringlets, jigged up and down as Margaret approached them in a white sleeveless embroidered pique shirt.

TOOK 2 CRUISERS

TORONTO (CP) — Suburban York Township police who raided the home of an alleged bookmaker Saturday found the arrest involved a trucking operation. Police said the men attempted to carry away the loot, Elmer McComb, 26, was charged with stealing $4,000 worth of electrical equipment.

31 Persons Saved After Plane Forced To Ditch In Ocean

Pilot Waited Until Down To Bring Stratocruiser Down

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A big Pan American plane was forced down in the Pacific today and broke in two, but the coast guard rescued the 31 persons aboard within minutes.

A coast guard statement moments before said 32 were rescued, but this was quickly revised to 31.

The Stratocruiser, en route from Honolulu to San Francisco, was forced to ditch about 1,000 miles southwest of San Francisco because of trouble in two of its four engines.

The plane was ditched by pilot Richard Ogg at 8:16 a.m. PST (11:16 a.m. EST) and sank in 21 minutes, the coast guard reported.

FIVE INJURED

"All survivors rescued," said a message from the weather ship Pontchartrain. Nobody was seriously injured, but five persons suffered minor injuries, a message said.

The Pan American crew, trained for such emergencies, apparently got the passengers into life rafts.

"Four rafts in water," the Pont chartrain radioed soon after the plane went down.

The Pontchartrain then launched its lifeboats and took everyone aboard.

Pilot Ogg circled for three hours after the rescue ship, which was daylight to put his plane down.

The Pontchartrain radioed that Ogg after dumping excess fuel to stay aloft, had made two practice runs to prepare for the ditching.

Ogg reported one outboard engine "was away" and he was unable to control it. After he had turned back toward Honolulu he lost control of his other outboard engine.

Crippled Boy Saves Doll-House, Fights Hoodlums

TORONTO (CP) — A 10-year-old crippled boy who walks only with great pain and difficulty saved a doll house on the property of the Home for Incurable Children from possible destruction Monday night by a gang of teenage hoodlums.

The boy, who wears leg braces and was identified only as Teddy, and a 40-year-old orderly were attacked by six teen-age boys who had broken into the backyard of the home, officials said.

Despite Teddy's defence of the doll house, the youths got away with gas guns worth about $50. The doll house was used for-storage. Teddy had been picked by his crippled chums to act as 'duty boy' Monday night. He was to keep away the boys if children had been playing with during the day.

He told home officials he shouted to the raiders when he saw them coming into the doll house. He screamed for help and tried to beat the boys off. He was punched twice and pushed to the ground, said John Rodgers, in charge of the boys at the home.

Orderly Vivian Costello, who assisted him, also was attacked by the young hoodlums.

CHILD HIT BY CAR SUFFERS MINOR CUTS

Evelyn Cook, age 10, 86 Station Street, suffered minor cuts on her scalp and on her ear lobe early Monday afternoon when she was knocked from her bicycle by a passing auto at the corner of Alice and Pine Streets.

In an attempt to avoid the girl on the bicycle the driver of the car swerved with the car going across the lawn at 23 Pine Street and bumping against the house.

The girl jumped up and went on to school without telling the driver she had been hurt. The driver failed to report the matter to the police.

SHRINERS DETECT GASOLINE THIEVES

Gasoline thieves were active at the parking lot of the Shrine Club on Highland Ave. last night.

Police report that when a party of Shriners was leaving the building persons were questioned from where they were standing about one of the cars. Investigation revealed that a gallon can of gasoline and a length of hose on the ground at the rear of the car.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE GIVEN TWO YOUTHS

Two Simcoe, Ont. youths, Fred J. Cody, 18, and Walter R. Cronk, 18, were each given one year's suspended sentence when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills here this morning.

Cody pleaded guilty to uttering a forged cheque and Cronk pleaded guilty to forging the $22 cheque. Both youths were required to pay costs of $27.55.

An uncle of one of the boys took the lads back to Simcoe where they are wanted on charge of false pretenses.

SUSPEND 2,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Solicitor-General Rivard said Monday night 2,000 drivers' licences have been suspended in Quebec province since July in the province's fight against traffic fatalities. He said suspensions and other penalties helped reduce traffic deaths in the subsequent six-month period to 329 compared with 374 in the corresponding span a year ago.

Kenneth R. Holmes Committed For Trial in Fatal Accident

Kenneth R. Holmes, 43-year-old Madoc real estate and insurance agent, was committed for trial by Magistrate T. Y. Wills yesterday afternoon on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He pleaded not guilty and elected trial by judge without a jury. Holmes was released for court appearance in November after posting a property bail of $10,000 was renewed.

He is being defended by Mr. John D. O'Flynn, of Belleville, who is being assisted by his son, Mr. Crown Attorney John J. Pringle conducted the prosecution.

The commitment came at the end of a three-hour preliminary enquiry at which the Crown introduced 12 witnesses.

Holmes is alleged to have been the driver of a car which killed Edwin Wellington Reid, 15, of Halloway, as he pushed his bicycle north along the east shoulder of the Madoc County Road, a half mile from his home, on the night of September 4.

Conclusive evidence that Holmes' car had been at the accident scene was produced by Dr. Peter Carlson, of the Attorney General's laboratory at Toronto. He said he had proved "beyond a doubt" that a piece of chrome picked up at the accident matched the jagged edges of the right front headlight rim of the Holmes' auto. He asserted that green paint which was also discovered on the boy's jacket and bicycle fender did not necessarily come from the green fender of Holmes' car.

Stewart Lessard, of Tweed, told the court that on September 7, he and Holmes had consumed some 12-ounce bottles of rye over a period of nine hours. "However," he said, "I was not with Holmes for about 7 p.m. both men were quite sober."

SAW STALLED CAR

Four other witnesses told the court they had seen Holmes sitting in his stalled car on the east side of the Madoc County Road when he flagged them down shortly before 9 p.m.

Carl Reid, a school teacher who was driving behind Holmes, said Holmes had asked him for a push into Madoc. He noticed the accused man's unsteady walk and saw him stumble as he reached for the door handle of his own car. Mr. Reid told Holmes he would phone for a tow truck from a nearby house. He said he reached the house at about 8.30 and the call was placed for him.

William G. Latchford was southbound on the county road at about 8.45 and when flagged down by Holmes offered to push him to Madoc. But he decided against doing so when he noticed the close proximity of the two vehicles in a sharp curve.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Moorecroft, of Oshawa, told the court that they had pushed the accused into Madoc and left it, with Holmes behind the wheel, at his request. On the way into Madoc Mrs. Moorecroft said she noticed the damaged right front end of the car.

Mr. Moorecroft said that after he and his wife had attended a wedding he heard a news report concerning the fatal hit-run mishap. Having seen the damage to the car at Holmes' house and noting the color of the "wanted" auto, he located Holmes and advised him to report to police. Holmes said he would as soon as he got a lawyer. Mrs. Moorecroft told the story to Madoc O.P.P. on Sunday, September 9.

APPREHENDED AT HOME

O.P.P. Constable Ivan Tinkess, of the Belleville detachment, testified that on September 9, he, CIB detective James Harris and Constable G. E. Lebow, of the Madoc O.P.P. detachment, apprehended Holmes at his cottage, charged him at the Madoc O.P.P. station and lodged him in Hastings County jail. He was released the following day on $10,000 property bail.

Dr. John Hart, of Roslin, called to the accident at about 8.40 a.m. on September 8, pronounced the boy dead and fixed death at six hours earlier.

William Paul Emerson, 12, of Halloway, who had played ball with the Reid boy the night of his death, told the court that Calvin had left for some at 8.10, pushing his bicycle up the grade towards Lake of Napanee, was in the sanctuary.

"Quite heavy traffic," he said, "was quite heavy."

City to Use Public Schools For Election

Although decision was against using public schools for the day, the facilities of all Belleville public schools will be available for use by the public for the Canada-wide municipal election.

This was the decision of members of the public school board at their regular monthly meeting held Monday night at the board offices on Bridge St.

Chairman George B. Hyde, chairman of the city council executive and finance committee, stated he said when the meeting with respect to usage of the city schools for election purposes was told the board did not favor closing the schools for election day but otherwise the board would co-operate through making school accommodation available at all schools.

Negotiations on one of two landscaping schemes for the Sir Winston Churchill School proposed by architect William Watson, will be asked by the board.

The scheme on which quotations will be asked is a one-year plan and is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000 it was estimated.

It is school visitation time for teachers in the Bay of Quinte area with 100 teachers from Belleville, Hastings and another 25 from Picton observing class room instruction in the Belleville schools last Friday.

School curriculums in the city were compared by the visitors with their own.

School Administrator L. A. Kells reported the North Hastings teachers were in charge of Inspector John Bates of Bancroft, while the Picton teachers were in charge of Carl Reid, supervising principal for Picton schools.

On October 25th about 120 teachers from Northumberland county will visit Belleville schools in charge of Inspector Charles Young of Brighton.

About 90 Belleville public school teachers will visit the Ontario Hospital at Smiths Falls on November 7th, making the trip to the Eastern Ontario Centre by bus.

Attending last night's meeting were: Board chairman Gordon H. Frill, Mrs. Dorothy Tugwell, and members: Bruce Bishop, Morley Lovelace, Don McKinney, George Olsen, J. Ritchie, Dr. J. Russell Scott and James Ward.

Obituary

SISTER MARY AMABLE

The funeral of Rev. Sister Amable, the former Mary Margaret Trualsch of Belleville, was held on Saturday morning from Heathfield, Mother House of the Sisters of Providence, of which deceased had been a member for 32 years, to St. Mary's Cemetery. Solemn pontifical requiem mass was celebrated in the chapel at Heathfield at 9.30 a.m. by His Grace Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, archbishop of Kingston, in the presence of a very large number of Sisters of various religious orders, clergy and many friends of the deceased's family. Present were relatives and friends from Toronto, Ottawa, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, and other points. Rt. Rev. E. M. Leaf of Napanee, was in the sanctuary.

The archbishop was assisted by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan as assistant priest, Rev. D. J. Walsh and Rev. R. C. Pickett as deacons of honor and Rev. John Carley of Carleton Place as deacon. Rev. J. Flurey as deacons of the mass. Masters of ceremonies were: Rev. B. J. Walsh and Rev. W. J. Lynett. Archbishop O'Sullivan also presided at the absolution at the Libera, following the requiem mass. Prayers at the grave were said by Father Carley, a close personal friend of the Trualsch family.

Interment was in the Sisters' plot at St. Mary's Cemetery.

Pall bearers were: James B. Garvin, Hugh F. Foley, Dr. Hugh Devlin and Bernard J. Murphy.

ROBERT DANIEL RODGERS

The funeral of Robert Daniel Rodgers was held from the Ponton Funeral Home, Highland Ave. on Monday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Capt. C. J. Ivany of the Salvation Army, assisted by Lt. Bl. Walsh. During the service Jack Hatfield sang "Beyond the Sunset."

Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

MRS. HAROLD SCALES (Belleville and Stirling)

Former resident of Stirling but living in Belleville for the past three years, Mrs. Elizabeth Scales, 48 Murney street, died Monday at the Belleville General Hospital, following an illness of one year. She was in her 82nd year.

Born in England, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Forshaw, she was a member of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, and was a member of the Ladies' Aid of England at Ottawa.

She is survived by her husband Harold (Harry) Scales; two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Cook of Brampton, and Mrs. Elmer Bird of Belleville, and one sister in England. There are also eight children and four grandchildren.

Resting at the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JAMES DRUMMEY

The funeral of James Drummey, Marysville, was held from his late residence to Holy Name of Mary Church this Tuesday morning. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. I. Donoghue, who also officiated at committal rites in St. Mary's Cemetery. The members of the Holy Name Society formed a guard of honor at the church and cemetery.

The bearers were Alex Brenner, Jack O'Connor, M. J. Boyd, Richard Kennedy, James Mc. Cambridge and Joseph White.

Policemen Will Be Hosts at Annual Ball

For the past several weeks citizens of Belleville have been asking city police officers for tickets! This sounds like a complete reversal of the general public's usual attitude toward getting a ticket from a policeman. But in this case it's perfectly legal.

City police have been co-operating nicely with this strange request from many otherwise ticket-shy patrons of parking meters, fire plugs and driveways. Just flash a $5-bill in front of a gendarme and he will quickly haul a book of tickets from his pocket.

Now for the punch line:

These particular tickets do not request the presence of their recipient at the police station or magistrate's court. Instead, they politely invite their holders to attend the annual Belleville Police Association's ball which will be held at the Club Commodore Wednesday night.

Unfortunately city police have only a limited number of these tickets, but plenty of another type.

So, for all those people interested in mingling socially with their police force it might be advisable to drop a postcard on the street and ask for a ticket.

Development Assoc. Will Sell District at Sportsmen's Shows

Outstanding publicity representation at the Sportsman Shows to be held at Cleveland February 15-24 and at New York March 24-31 was one of the more important contributions made by the directors of the Lake Ontario Development Association, at its monthly dinner meeting at Queens Hotel Monday last night.

Reeve H. W. Rose of Frankford was appointed head of a committee of four to represent Zone Three, extending from Trenton to Napanee, at these key meets which draw leading sportsmen and travel representatives from all parts of the continent.

D. W. Kingdon, general manager of the region, said that the program to be staged by the contractions at the Sportsmen Shows would include showing of colorslides including trapping shots of giant muskies and the distribution of recently printed color brochures depicting the outstanding travel and recreational facilities of this district.
